FIND OPIUM AND GEMS IN BURGLAR'S ROOMS

Albert Lalonde, 26 years old, arrested Sunday with a woman he said was his wife in an apartment at 738 Seventh Avenue, and who confessed according to the police, that he had entered several apartments by forcing locks with a strip of celluloid, was in possession, it was established yesterday, of property stolen several weeks ago from the home of Mrs. Huntington Norton of 375 Park Avenue.

Lalonde was arrested on information furnished by neighbors who said drugs were sold in his rooms. The police said they found there an opium "layout," $8,000 of jewelry and art objects, including an expensive clock. The ownership of the clock was traced through jewelers to Mrs. Norton, who said there were no marks to show how her apartment was entered and robbed of a safe weighing 125 pounds, which contained some of her jewelry, and the clock.

Lalonde was held on Sunday for violation of the anti-narcotic laws, and the police said the additional charge of burglary would be made against him today.

HUNDREDS FIGHT FIRE IN LOWER BROADWAY

SPARKS RAIN AT CITY HALL

APPARATUS PROVES FAULTY

Firemen fighting a fire in the ten-story building at 296 Broadway early last evening found themselves greatly handicapped when, due to faulty apparatus in the R. G. Dun building next door, lines of hose burst and the firemen were unable to obtain any water pressure on the upper floors of that building.

Five floors in the building at 296 Broadway were completely burned out and three floors of the Dun building were badly damaged when the flames shot across a narrow passageway between the two structures. Ten floors of the Dun building were also damaged by water and smoke.

City Hall Park, two blocks away, was showered with burning sparks, and firemen were kept busy for hours in wetting down the roofs of near-by buildings to prevent the swirling embers from setting them on fire.

Five Alarms Sounded.

Five alarms were sounded and hundreds of firemen with virtually all the downtown apparatus responded. The fire is believed to have started on the top floor, occupied by the Sunbeam Chemical Company and the Senco Color and Chemical Company. The flames spread downward, extending to the eighth floor in the front of the building, and through a wooden air shaft to the fifth floor in the rear. the various floors were occupied by offices and salesrooms, and contained a vast amount of furniture that burned readily.

On the south of the burning building the Dun Building rises five stories higher and the building on the north is two stories higher. Firemen were at once sent to vantage points in these two buildings and attempted to send streams of water down on the flames.

The Dun Building is equipped with standpipes which, when needed, are connected up with the water mains by hose leading to the fire hydrants on the street. These hose can ordinarily stand a pressure of 450 pounds, but several of them burst when a pressure of only 175 pounds was applied. Chief John Kenion sent officers of his staff to find the reason for this and they learned that the valves connected with the standpipes and internal fire-fighting apparatus of the building were partly turned off. This resulted in a tremendous pressure being applied to the sections of hose connecting the street hydrants and standpipes.

Kenlon Condemns Engineer.

It was some time before the nature of the trouble was discovered and when Chief Kenlon learned what was wrong he strongly condemned the engineer in charge of the Dun Building.

"There is no such thing as a fire-proof building," Chief Kenlon said, "if this sort of thing is allowed to go on. The apparatus in every building should be in readiness at all hours of the day and night. We can't fight a fire unless we have water and we can't get water through valves that are not functioning properly."

Joseph Brew, 24 years old, of 137 Sterling Street, Brooklyn, elevator operator in the Dun Building, was trapped in his car when water drenching the building short circuited and then cut off the electric power and the car was stalled between floors. Firemen rescued him, and later two men of the salvage corps were compelled to chop their way through another elevator door when the car was stalled on the seventh floor.

A score of men and women employes of the Dun Building escaped to the street down the stairs when the first alarm was raised. Battalion Chief Heffernan responded to the first alarm and when he saw the hold the fire had obtained he turned in second and third alarms. Assistant Chief Joseph ("Smoky Joe") Martin came on the third alarm and a few minutes later he sent in fourth and fifth alarms.

Broadway Traffic Diverted.

This brought twenty-six engine companies, six hook and ladder companies and two water towers, together with Chief Kenlon's personal staff, all the salvage corps south of 125th Street and auxiliary apparatus. Reserves from the Oak and Beach Street stations and the rescue squad from West Thirtieth Street station, under Deputy Chief Inspector George Liebern, shut off traffic on Broadway between Duane and Reade Streets.

The department's largest water tower was stationed on Broadway and drove a terrific stream of water through the front windows on the tenth, ninth and eighth floors. At the same time the driver of a second water tower managed to swing his apparatus from Elm Street in the rear, along the narrow alleyway of Manhattan Place, making an L turn at the rear of the burning building so that the crew of the tower could swing their nozzles on to the windows facing the rear. In this manner tons of water were hurled directly into the heart of the blaze and this, in a large measure, was responsible for preventing the flames from sweeping the whole building.

Four firemen were slightly injured by the bursting of windows through the intense heat. They were Battalion Chief Charles Rankin of Chief Kenlon's staff; Captain Frank McNichol, Engine 10; Fireman Joseph A. Reilly, Engine 29, and Fireman Charles F. Cahill, Engine 7. They were treated by Dr. Reiss, Fire Department Surgeon, and sent to their quarters.

The fire raged for about three hours and the damage was estimated at between $100,000 and $200,000.

Senators Lose to Athletics; Phils Again Defeat the Braves

ATHLETICS FINALLY TURN ON SENATORS

Pound Washington Hurlers and Score 9-3 Victory After Losing First Two Games.

PATE STARS IN RELIEF ROLE

Yields Only Two Hits in 6 2-3 Innings—Senators' Five Errors Also Play Important Part.

WASHINGTON, April 15 (AP).—Excellent relief pitching by Pate while his mates were pounding Washington pitchers gave the Philadelphia Athletics the third game of the series today, 9 to 3. Pate allowed two hits in six and two-thirds innings, while three Washington hurlers were giving up fourteen.

Five errors by the Senators helped the Mackmen at critical times. It was the Athletics' first victory of the season, the Senators having won the first two games of the series.

HANK O'DAY STRICKEN; IS TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Later Examinations Reveal That Illness Is Slight—Will Be Out in a Few Days.

ST. LOUIS, April 15 (AP).—Hank O'Day, veteran National League baseball umpire, was taken ill suddenly before today's St. Louis-Pittsburgh game at which he was to have officiated. His physician diagnosed his ailment as appendicitis and ordered his removal to a hospital.

Later examinations, however, revealed that the illness was slight, and the physicians said O'Day would be out in a few days.

WHITE SOX WIN AGAIN.

CHICAGO, April 15 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox drove Tom Zachary off the mound in the first inning today and took such a lead as to enable them to make it two straight from the St. Louis Browns. The score was 11 to 4.

Wildness of the former Senators Flinger and erratic support on the part of the Browns gave the Sox the game. Blankenship pitched handily throughout, but eased up toward the finish.

VIC KEEN IN DEBUT SHUTS OUT PIRATES

Former Cub Appearing as Card Allows Only Five Hits and Triumphs, 2 to 0.

ST. LOUIS, April 15 (AP).—St. Louis won, 2 to 0, from the Pittsburgh Pirates here today behind the excellent pitching of Vic Keen, former Cub, making his first appearance in a Cardinal uniform. Keen yielded only five hits. This made it two out of three for the Cardinals in the series. Hornsby had another good day, with three hits out of four times up.

Jess Haines, Cardinal pitcher, who was struck on the right ankle by a line drive from the bat of Earl Smith, Pirate catcher, yesterday, will be out of the game for two or three weeks, Dr. Robert F. Hyland, club physician, announced.

The X-ray photographs failed to reveal a fracture, the doctor said, and he diagnosed the injury as a severe contusion. After the foot was placed in a cast at St. John's Hospital Haines returned to his home on crutches.

HAKOAH SOCCER TEAM TO PLAY WANDERERS

All-Jewish Eleven Will Also Oppose N. Y. U. in Exhibition Games Here Next Week.

The champion soccer team of the Hakoah Sport Club of Vienna, which will arrive on the Berengaria tomorrow, for an exhibition tour in this country, will play two practice matches before its opening contest at the Polo Grounds, Sunday, April 25, against a picked team from the New York State Football Association.

Next Tuesday the all-Jewish eleven will meet the Brooklyn Wanderers in a practice tilt at the Crescent A. C. grounds, and the following day the eleven will have a workout at Jasper Oval, 137th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, against New York University.

The drill at Jasper Oval will be open to the public, and the use of the park has been obtained through the courtesy of Professor Walter Williamson of City College, who also has placed at the disposal of the team, the lockers and showers at the college.

A monster reception has been planned for tomorrow, when representatives of 100 organizations will march with the eighteen players to be formally welcomed by Mayor Walker at City Hall. Abraham Tuvim, Executive Secretary, predicts that there will be 20,000 in line to welcome the players.

Sunday the entire squad will visit Hawthorne Field to see a league match as guests of the Brooklyn Wanderers, and Captain Alexander Neufeld, of the Hakoah team, will open the game there by kicking off.

Pirates Release Two Pitchers.

PITTSBURGH, April 15 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates have released Alvin Crowder and Edward Brower, recruit pitchers. Crowder was sent back to the Birmingham club while Brewer was released unconditionally.

WILLIAMS'S HOMER WINS FOR PHILS, 8-4

Pinch Hitter's Drive With Bases Full in Ninth Takes Third in Row From Braves.

RICONDA BREAKS HIS LEG

PHILADELPHIA, April 15 (AP).—The Phillies made it three straight from the Boston Braves today by winning, 8 to 4. Cy Williams, pinch-hitting for Nixon in the ninth, hit a home run with the bases full, that broke a tie. It was Williams's second homer in two days. Harry Riconda broke his left leg trying to score from third in the eighth inning, on a tap to the pitcher's box. The Boston third baseman slid into Catcher Jimmy Wilson and his spikes caught in the receiver's shinguards.

George Mogridge, Boston, pitching his first game in the National League, weakened in the final innings. Leach solved him for a home run, with one on, in the eighth, presaging Williams's cleanup smash in the next inning. It was the Phils' third straight victory over the Braves.

HOLY CROSS BLANKS GEORGETOWN, 1 TO 0

Cote Scores Lone Run in Fourth on Savage's Single in Washington Contest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., pril 15.—Holy Cross defeated Georgetown's fast traveling nine, 1 to 0, here today. The lone run was scored in the fourth which Cote opened with a single. He took second on Morrisey's sacrifice, third on an infield out and crossed the plate on Savage's single to short right.

Georgetown threatened in the third when between two outs it managed to fill the bases on a brace of singles and a pass. This put it up to Goddard. He drove out a long fly, which Savage, the Holy Cross centre fielder dragged down after a long run.

In the ninth the Hilltoppers gave their followers some hope when Goddard fanned, but was given life when the third strike got away from the visiting catcher. McLean ran for him and got as far as third on Hagerty's sacrifice and Nork's infield out. This time it was put up to Murtaugh. He fouled off about a dozen and finally fanned.

U. S. and British Pro Teams Likely to Meet In June on Gleneagles Links in Scotland

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 15 (AP).—Professional golf teams representing the United States and Great Britain will probably meet in the international professional match on the Gleneagles Club in Scotland, according to an announcement made here by Robert E. Harlow, manager of Walter Hagen, captain of the American team, following receipt of a cable from George Duncan, British captain.

Duncan stated that several clubs in England and Scotland sought the match, but that the club named had made a satisfactory offer. The match will probably be played the third week in June.

Hagen cabled Duncan that the American team would be composed of Macdonald Smith, Al Watrous, Gene Sarazen, Leo Diegel, Bill Mehlhorn, Tommy Armour, Bobby Cruickshank, Al Espinosa, Joe Kirkwood, Johnny Farrell, Jim Barnes and possibly two others in addition to himself.

Harlow will leave New York for England May 5, while Hagen and other members of the team will sail on May 26.

Duncan also said in his cable that an offer to set aside the receipts of the British championship at Lytham for use in sending a British pro team to America next Summer would probably be made. British pros, he stated, favor international matches.

GIANTS AND ROBINS KEPT IDLE BY COLD

Meet Today if It Is Warm Enough—12 Fewer Homers in Majors Than Last Year.

By HARRY CROSS.

Players and fans alike made gestures of joy yesterday when they learned that the game between the Giants and Brooklyn at the Polo Grounds was postponed. It was plenty cold enough to warrant the procedure, and it would have been foolhardy to subject healthy fans and healthier baseball athletes to exposure, to say nothing of frostbite.

Yesterday's postponed game will be played as part of a double-header when the Robins come to the Polo Grounds again next month. It is hoped by that time there will be some indications of Spring in Harlem.

The Giants and Brooklyn will resume negotiations this afternoon if it is warm enough, and it is likely that Jack Scott for the Giants and Burleigh Grimes for the Robins will be the opposing pitchers.

The first two days of major league baseball tends to support the contention of those who maintain that the ball isn't so lively this year as it was last. A year ago there were twenty home runs in the two major leagues on the first two days, fifteen in the American League and five in the National. This year there have been seven in the National League in two days and only one in the American League.

Regardless of whether the ball is or is not as lively as last season, there has been a general tendency among the clubs to lay less emphasis on long hitting. More attention is being paid to place hitting. The hit-and-run play and the sacrifice hit are coming back for more general use. Judging from the way the clubs have been practicing the bunt for the sacrifice and the squeeze play, it is assumed that the epidemic of home-run hitting has quieted considerably.

Since Babe Ruth has reigned as home-run king, the free, wide swing came into favor, but this season there is sure to be more of the old-fashioned type of scientific batting.

COLUMBIA PLAYS TODAY.

Columbia's varsity nine will play its seventh game of the season this afternoon when it faces Syracuse at Baker Field at 3:30 o'clock. Van Lengen, who pitched against Columbia in the 1925 clash, may get the mound assignment today, while Coach Coakley will send either Josh Billings or Allen Fitch to the box.

Columbia's freshman tennis team will also be seen in action this afternoon, opening its season against the Horace Mann racquet-wielders on the South Field courts at 3:30 o'clock.

YANKS AND RED SOX SUSPEND FOR A DAY

Though Boston Has Outhit the New Yorkers So Far, Huggins Is Not Discouraged.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

BOSTON, April 16.—Amid loud cheers from all parties concerned the Boston baseball management called off today's game with the Yankees on the ground of cold weather, though the weather was no more frigid than on the two preceding days, and for this reason it is assumed that the Boston magnates were suddenly overcome by humanitarian instincts.

The only other possible explanation was that both sides had run out of pitchers and had to declare a one-day moratorium to allow the hurlers to rest. So far the Yanks have used six pitchers and the Red Sox nine in this hectic series. The Yanks have made twenty-six hits but the Sox have gone them three better. But Miller Huggins was far from discouraged this morning.

"This is the hardest hitting club I have ever had," said Huggins. "That may look like a broad statement, but it goes. Every man in the batting order can slug. The pitcher who wades through Koenig, Coombs, Gehrig, Ruth, Meusel, Lazzeri, Dugan and Collins will know he has been in a battle.

"Of course it is too early to put a value on Koenig and Lazzeri but I would be ready to make a little bet that the Yankees will be no lower than second in the batting averages and will lead the league in extra base hits and runs scored.

"We have given the pitchers twelve runs in one game and seven in another. Even an ordinary pitcher ought to win under those conditions, and the Yankee pitchers are not ordinary. I'm not worrying about the pitchers. If we continue hitting and develop defensive strength at short and second the team will go far."

GREENLEAF RUNS 96, BUT LOSES THE LEAD

Wins Afternoon Block, 132-9, Is Beaten at Night, 199-76, and Trails in Handicap, 959-803.

By means of a sustained rally in the night block of the handicap pocket billiard match in progress at Dwyer's Broadway Academy, Erwin Rudolph regained the lead over Ralph Greenleaf. The score now is 803 for Rudolph and 959 for Greenleaf. Greenleaf, playing 1,500 points to 1,250 for Rudolph, is 41 points behind his quota while Rudolph is 3 points ahead of his.

Rudolph again took the lead by virtue of defeating his opponent 199 to 76 in the night block. Rudolph went out in ten innings, but scored 168 of his points in four innings. He made successive runs of 32, 26, 56 and 54 for this total. The run of 56 constituted Rudolph's high run. Greenleaf had a high run of but 26 in the night. He had nine innings.

Greenleaf's high run of 96 in the night was a continuation of his unfinished high run of 70 in the afternoon block. Together, both figures gave him a total of 96, the highest run thus far in the tournament. Greenleaf won in the afternoon, 132 to 9 in eleven innings. Rudolph had ten innings in the afternoon and although he made a high run of 17 had a total of but 9 points to his credit. This was due to much safety play on the part of both men. Both lost sixteen points for making three consecutive scratches. A fifteen point penalty is exacted for the third scratch, plus one for the previous scratch.

Play will continue on the handicap basis this afternoon and tonight. Tomorrow, however, the men will play on even basis in blocks of 125 each. This is because the difference of 250 points, at 25 points per block, two blocks per day, will be exhausted on the fifth day of the match. Tomorrow will be the sixth day.

OTHER BILLIARD RESULTS.

Seymour Kling and Jake Ward were the winners at 18.2 balkline billiards in the Poggenburg Memorial Cup tournament at Lawler's Brooklyn rooms yesterday. Kling defeated E. S. Knapp, 175 to 112, in forty-two innings. Knapp was playing for 125 points. Ward took the measure of J. Langdon, 125 to 119, in fifty innings. The high runs were Kling 36, Knapp 15, Ward 13 and Langdon 15. Ward will play Harry Stern this afternoon, while Henry Johnson and Herbert Hammer will meet this evening.

INGRID TRIUMPHS AT HAVRE DE GRACE

CALLAHAN GETS TROPHY

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 15.—Ingrid, Lee Rosenberg's sole candidate for the Preakness and Kentucky Derby, scored brackets on the occasion of her first start of the season when she won the Kid Boots Purse, for three-year-old fillies, which was the leading number of this afternoon's card here. The daughter of Crimper and Dinah Do, practically at even money in the wagering and the public choice, won by only a head in a field of seven, Johnny Callahan bringing her home in 1:06 3-5 for the five and one-half furlongs. She paid $4.20 for each $2 ticket in the mutuels.

Cold weather continued and the attendance was naturally small in comparison with the great crowd of the opening day. The track continued fast and should be at its best with a few more days of racing. Followers of form were repaid by the victories of three public choices.

Honors for Callahan.

"Old Man" Callahan gained a double reward for his first-class ride on Ingrid. In addition to his fee he received from Eddie Cantor a big silver loving cup in behalf of the musical comedy company for which the purse was named and the members of which were present in a body.

Sam Ross's Cinema, which had been sharpened by two races at Bowie, took command when the barrier rose. Ingrid forcing the pace all the way down the backstretch and around the turn. Callahan called on her in the stretch and she came on even terms with the leader a sixteenth from home. Ingrid outlasted Cinema in the final drive to gain the decision. Walter J. Salmon's Adria ran an even race to take third money.

Sweeping Ann's ill luck continued in the juvenile event of the afternoon. In her previous race she first ran away and then finished second after being practically left at the post. In the half mile dash this afternoon she was the favorite in a field of twelve. But she was so unruly at the barrier that in addition to delaying the start she wore herself out and while she displayed some early speed could finish no better than fourth.

Beatrice Noyes First Away.

The winner was P. H. Faulconer's Beatrice Noyes, a maiden and an outsider that paid $19.20 for $2 in the mutuels. She had the foot of the field. Chalmers taking her into an early lead, which she maintained throughout to win under a mild drive by Chalmers by three lengths from W. J. Salmon's Post Horn. The latter was nearest the pace and outlasted Victrix to take the place by a head. The race was run in 0:48 3-5.

The gallop of a mile and a furlong for 4-year-olds and upward brought half a dozen to the barrier, the winner being E. P. Summerfield's McGee gelding Faenza, the public choice. Tammaro had the mount, had him in front all the way and brought him home to win handily by three lengths from J. D. Wilson's Eager, the latter coming from in back with a rush to beat King of Fortune for the place. The winner carried the top weight of 115 pounds and ran the distance in 1:56 1-5.

75 HORSES BRING $55,675.

LEOMINSTER, Mass., April 15 (AP).—Seventy-five blooded horses have been sold here for $55,675. Fanciers from all parts of the United States and Canada attended a sale held here yesterday by Peter T. Roche of the Pinehurst training school of hunters, polo ponies, Irish jumpers and show horses.

The highest price was $3,200 paid by Robert R. M. Carpenter of Wilmington, Del., for Cortigan Star, an imported thoroughbred hunter. C. Van Cushman of Pomfret, Conn., paid $3,000 for Ironmaster, another Irish hunter, while Joseph W. Laurence of Pittsburgh bought Cyrano, a hunter, for $2,050.

CARLARIS AT LOUISVILLE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 15 (AP).—Carlaris, wonder colt, owned by W. T. Anderson's Chula Vista Stable, one of the strong entries in the fifty-second renewal of the Kentucky Derby, arrived here tonight. The colt was taken to Douglas Park where he will be trained for the $50,000 added event. The derby will be run one month from today, May 15.

MARKS DEFEATS ERICKSON.

Benny Marks of Brooklyn received the decision over Johnny Erickson in the feature bout of a card of ten four-round battles at the New Broadway Arena in Brooklyn last night before a crowd of 4,000 fans. Marks weighed 109¾ pounds and Erickson, 112½. In the semi-final four, Ralph Nischo, 21¾, of East New York, won the decision from Ernie Rosini, 119½, of Bath Beach.

Jackie Cohen, 122¼, East New York, defeated Tommy Brady, 119¾, of Harlem, four rounds, judges' decision. Billy Iacone, 129½, east side, received the decision over Louis Danetti, 123½, of South Brooklyn. Dave Goodman, 130, of the Bronx, lost to Willie Schmidt, 152½, of Ridgewood.

Shindel, 132½, of Kingsbridge, knocked out Johnny Locosio, 163, of the east side, in 35 seconds of the first round. The four-rounder between Pete Scarano, 150¼, Williamsburg, and Walter Ketzer, 149¾, of Staten Island, was declared a draw. Mickey Durano, 114¾, of Ridgewood, defeated Pete Villa, 115½, Philippine Islands.

$2,000,000 Worth of Yachts Built in Maine in Past Year

PORTLAND, Me., April 15 (AP).—More than $2,000,000 worth of pleasure craft, yachts and schooners have been built within the past year, or are under way or have been contracted for in Maine shipyards, it was learned today. One Boston designer, John G. Alden, has placed more than $500,000 of boat building in Maine shipyards within the last twelve months. A New Bedford firm has brought $1,200,000 of power yacht contracts to this State within the same period.

66 ARE NOMINATED IN 30TH PREAKNESS

Sixty-six nominations in thirty-eight different interests have been received for the thirtieth running of the Preakness Stakes, it was announced yesterday by the Maryland Jockey Club. The first of the Spring classics for the three-year-olds will be contested at the Pimlico course on Monday afternoon, May 10, the course of a mile and three-sixteenths, the added money being $50,000.

In comparison with the nominations for the Kentucky Derby the list is small, but the late closing of entries for the Maryland event has resulted in the elimination of a great number of hopeless horses, the names of which clutter the list of the Kentucky fixture.

The entries follow:

Beatrice Noyes went around the leaders with a rush in the early racing; won under mild pressure. Post Horn saved ground the entire trip, outlasted Victrix in the final drive. Latter finished stoutly. Sweeping Ann acted very fractious at the barrier, displayed speed for a quarter, then retired.

Owners—1, P. H. Faulconer; 2, W. J. Salmon; 3, R. W. Carter; 4, J. H. Buecher; 5, W. Keating; 6, R. T. Wilson; 7, Woodlawn Stable; 8, Mrs. Farrar; 9, W. Garth; 10, H. G. Bedwell; 11, J. Arthur; 12, K. N. Gilpin.

—	Redstone	115	8	3		5ˢ	7½	8½	10	Erickson	34.20	—	—

Everglade improved his position rounding the turn. He squeezed through between the leaders at the furlong pole and outlasted Dreammaker in the final drive. The latter, well up throughout, took command in the stretch, but could not withstand the winner's challenge. Lady Glaseen, repeatedly blocked, made a game effort when clear. Gymkhana, hard urged, showed a good effort.

Owners—1, Mrs. A. Swenke; 2, A. C. Bostwick; 3, H. E. Moore; 4, E. F. Whitney; 5, Woodlawn Stable; 6, F. J. Boyle; 7, Mrs. R. Alexander; 8, C. P. Winfrey; 9, T. Serio; 10, Seagram Stable.

—	La Ferte	108	5	5		5ˢ	6ʰᵈ	7	7	Coltlietti	117.90	—	—

Ingrid, nearest in pursuit of Cinema throughout, responded courageously under vigorous handling and wore her down when the final issue came. Cinema held her field safe for speed. She was rated in front, but could not withstand the winner's challenge. Adria saved ground throughout. Basqualse raced creditably.

Owners—1, Lee Rosenberg; 2, S. Ross; 3, W. J. Salmon; 4, J. F. Richardson; 5, G. W. Lee; 6, H. P. Whitney; 7, Sagamore Stable.

510 FIFTH RACE—Four-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $1,200; mile and an eighth. Start good; won handily; place driving. Winner, b. r., 5, by McGee—Stolen Minutes. Trainer, W. Wright. Time—0:24⅘, 0:50, 1:15⅘, 1:42⅘, 1:56⅘.

Faenza, rated in front, drew out through the stretch and won in hand. Eager, taken back off the early pace, closed with a rush in the final furlong. King of Fortune, well up in the early running, tired the final furlong. Sandrae could never get up.

Owners—1, E. P. Summerfield; 2, J. D. Wilson; 3, Mrs. A. R. Lawson; 4, J. W. Lewis; 5, F. M. Kelly; 6, Mrs. J. M. Black.

511 SIXTH RACE—Three-year-olds and upward; claiming; purse $1,200; mile and a sixteenth. Start good; won driving; place same. Winner, b. c., 3 by Theo Cook —Rollicking Airs. Trainer, J. Arthur. Time—0:24⅘, 0:50, 1:16, 1:42⅘, 1:49⅘.

—	Vulgate	84	6	5		4½	5ʰᵈ	8	8	8	Brown	31.30	—	—

Billy Mann displayed keen speed and raced Jacques into submission in the first six furlongs. He drew clear in the stretch and, finishing gamely, outstayed Grand Bey. The latter steadily improved his position and would have won in a few more strides. Ivy closed resolutely, outlasting Jacques in the closing strides. Soggarth Aroon retired in the final quarter.

Owners—1, J. Arthur; 2, P. B. Codd; 3, M. Grant; 4, W. S. Murray; 5, J. J. Feeney; 6, Mrs. A. R. Lawson; 7, F. J. Boyle; 8, D. T. Leonard.

497	Forlorn	92½	7	7		8	6ˢ	7ˢ	8	8	Edwards	129.20	—	—

Island Fairy, displaying good speed, drew clear after straightening out in the stretch and continuing gamely outlasted her opposition in the final drive. Fornovo, under restraint for six furlongs, worked his way forward between the leaders and was slowly wearing the winner down. Mildred Sherer closed well. Rusovia lost ground entering the stretch.

O, I've found in this life there is none like "the wife"
She thinks I will die if I wear a black tie
And life becomes duller and duller.
So I anticipate the effect on my mate
Each time that I make a selection,
And I know I shall hear "That's stunning, my dear!"
When I'm called to the fore for inspection.

Give me some glad rags, brother,
It's cheer that the world adores.
A tie that will flirt
With the stripe in my shirt,
And hose for my new plus-fours.

Always wears the most sombre shades;
But scowls and snippy tirades.
So, here's my respects to the man who selects
A blending of red, green or yellow.
He will find, if he seeks, some gorgeous batiques
That will keep "the wife" smiling and mellow.

Give me some glad rags, brother.
Something that welcomes and greets;
Something to say: "There is sunshine to-day!"
They dispense it at Rogers Peet's.

J. C. W. offers the above "with apologies to Stoddard King," the loud-tie laureate. But, as he indicates, we feel free to offer our merchandise without any apologies at all.

Nobody ever has to make excuses for R. P. clothes!

Everything men and boys wear for Spring.

OXFORD-CAMBRIDGE LOSES TO HARVARD

VISITORS APPEAR WEARY

Injuries Force Two Men Out of Game—Gillies and North Each Score Two Goals.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 15.—Before a crowd of more than 1,000 persons, one of the largest ever to attend a lacrosse game at the Stadium, Harvard's lacrosse team easily vanquished the Oxford-Cambridge team, 6 to 0. At no time did the English twelve display any exceptional playing.

The game was played under the English rules. The Harvard twelve were in fine condition throughout the game, while their rivals were tired out early and seemed hardly in playing condition. Injuries to two of the visitors' stars, Fullbright and Cole, also handicapped the team. Both of these men collided with Harvard players and were forced to leave early. Fullbright was hurt in a collision with Captain Al Reed, while Cole was hurt in a scrimmage.

Gillies opened the scoring, the veteran Crimson player slashing through (unassisted) for a goal early in the game. Soon after, he received a pass and shot another goal. It was almost three in a row for him, when Ogilvie of Oxford stopped him. Gillies was hurt on the play but resumed. North also made two goals. Ernie Gamache, the goal tender for Harvard, who was end on the football eleven two years ago, saved possible scores several times.

The line-up:

HARVARD (6).		OXFORD-CAMB. (0).
Clifford	G.	Borden
Watson	P.	Ogilvie
Gamache	C.P.	Greenwood
Linn	1st D.	Brown
Reed	2d D.	Scholl
Coombes	3d D.	Harker

Sayles	3d A.	Fullbright
Babson	2d A.	Marshall
Simpson	1st A.	Adshead
Lane	O.H.	Melland
Gillies	I. H.	Fornby

Goals—Gillies 2, North 2, Lane, Dreier.

Substitutions—Harvard: Muchnick for Clifford, North for Coombes, Mulliken for North, Wallace for Mulliken, Dreier for Lane, Ellison for Dreier. Oxford-Cambridge: Imbrie for Fullbright, Cole for Imbrie.

TWO HARVARD CREWS TO GO TO PRINCETON

Varsity and Junior Varsity Will Row Twice Daily During Recess Next Week.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 15.—Eighteen men, just enough to make up two crews, will be taken to Princeton next week by Harvard to spend the Spring recess in practice. Friday will be the last day of rowing for the varsity on the Charles this week and then the men will be at liberty to snatch a day or two at their homes. Those who do go from Boston will leave Sunday evening. Coach Edward Stevens is going to make the trip by automobile.

The crews will be quartered at the Cap and Gown Club, one of the Princeton clubhouses. They will row on Lake Carnegie twice daily. The week's visit will allow Coach Stevens to experiment with several shifts and it will also acquaint the oarsmen with the course over which they are to meet Princeton about three weeks from now.

The men who will make the trip, as now booked, are:

Will Play at New Haven Tomorrow —Violet Meets Union Today.

New York University will play its fourth lacrosse game of the season when it meets Union College on Ohio Field this afternoon at 4 o'clock. recently defeated the Oxford-Cambridge team. Thus far this season the Violet players have won two of their three starts, having taken the measure of St. John's College of Maryland and the Montclair A. C. and lost to the Navy. Coach Keppler will have practically all of his regulars in the line-up.

To fill an open date on the schedule, the New York University team has agreed to meet Yale tomorrow, and will leave for New Haven tomorrow morning. Last season Yale defeated the Violet twelve.

Wallace Outpoints Perlick.

PITTSBURGH, April 15 (AP).—Mike Wallace, Cleveland heavyweight, tonight won the judge's decision over Nick Perlick of Pittsburgh at the end of a ten-round bout. Perlick weighed 198 and Wallace 179.

CHICAGO, April 15 (AP).—Red Grange was thrown for a loss today when he settled with his former Wheaton neighbor, Archie H. Schatz, otherwise known as Johnny Small, a vaudeville actor, for $750. The settlement was made out of court. Schatz sued the football hero on claims that he first saw the possibilities in Grange and signed as his first manager last August. Grange subsequently selected C. C. Pyle.

GYMNASTS COMPETE FOR TITLES TONIGHT

Stars to Seek Crowns in Nine Events at Met. Senior Meet in Brooklyn.

FITZPATRICK GUEST OF HONOR TONIGHT

CAPTAINS SPONSOR EVENT

33 Leaders of Tiger Teams on the Committee—Four Added to Training Table List.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 15.—Princeton track men of all classes will gather in New York tomorrow at the University Club to pay tribute to Keene Fitzpatrick, head coach at Princeton and famous among American track coaches. Invitations have been sent to Princeton track men all over the country by a group of thirty-three track captains, who are represented by a committee of which Ralph A. Gamble, '09, of Larchmont, N. Y., is Chairman. Among the other topics of discussion at the dinner will be Princeton's trip to England with Cornell this Summer to oppose a combined Oxford-Cambridge team.

Fitzpatrick has been coaching both football and track for thirty-six years, and in that time has been affiliated with the athletics of Michigan and Yale, as well as Princeton. He began his career with Yale, coaching both sports from 1890 to 1892, going from there to Michigan, where he coached the next two years. He returned to Yale from '94 to '96, and then once more went to Michigan, where he remained until 1910.

First Tiger Team Won.

Coming to Princeton in the Fall of 1910, his first Princeton track team, captained by Maitland Dwight, defeated Yale for the first time in Princeton's history. Since the signing of the armistice Princeton has defeated her traditional rivals, Harvard and Yale, eight times, being beaten upon six occasions.

A number of widely-known trackmen have been turned out at Princeton by Fitzpatrick. Among these are the following intercollegiate champions: Thomas, sprints; Moore, 220-yard; Thompson, hurdles and weights; Hills, shot-put; Gales, hammer throw; Stevenson, quarter-mile; Taylor, hurdles; Johnson, middle distances; McKenzie, half-mile; Erdman, hurdles; Fisk, pole vault; Hayes, hhalf-mile; Brown, sprints.

Many names well known in the annals of Princeton athletics are included in the list of thirty-three former captains who signed the invitation sent to all Princeton trackmen.

Four More on Track Squad.

Four more Tiger trackmen were added to the training stable list here today as a result of their performances since the resumption of work after the brief Easter recess. Three juniors, all of them already possessors of major sport letters and one sophomore, comprise the quartet.

Charlie Wetzes and Sam High, both of whom ran on the quarter-mile relay team which equaled the world's record at last year's Penn relays, have shown great improvement in the sprints and will be members of the first squad for the rest of the season. Ed Dikeman, also a junior, does the broad jump. Joe Gibson, a sophomore, was added to the list for his work in the half mile.

Next week will witness trials for positions on the Princeton team which will participate in the Penn relays, April 23 and 24. Many of the positions are still open and competition will be unusually keen tomorrow and Saturday. Due to lack of men in the distance events, Princeton will probably be represented only in the two shorter relays. Princeton's quarter-mile relay team promises to be strong again this year, with Captain Gales, High and Weekes once more available. Jim Pappas completes the quartet.

The list at the training stable is Pappas, High, Weekes, Gales, Rockwell (sprints); Van Alstyne (quarter-mile); Leeming, J. Gibson (half-mile); Tyler (mile); Elles (two-mile); Howell, Lawrence, Beares (hurdles); Scudder, Dikeman (broad jump); Bradley (pole-vault); Steinmetz (high jump); R. M. Gibson (javelin); Moeser (discus).

RAILROAD MEN TO COMPETE.

A world's championship athletic meet for railroad employes will be held in Philadelphia on Sept. 25 in connection with the Sesquicentennial Celebration, it was announced yesterday by John T. Coleman, director of athletics of the Pennsylvania Railroad System Athletic Association and Chairman of the Committee on Industrial Athletics of the A. A. U.

Coleman made his announcement following a conference with Murray Hulbert, President of the A. A. U. He said the decision to hold the championships was reached by the railroad officials after a meeting in Chicago, at which ten Western railroads were represented, and at a subsequent meeting in Philadelphia, where twelve Eastern lines attended.

Berkeley-Irving Wins at Tennis.

The Berkeley-Irving School tennis team opened its season with a 5 to 0 victory over the Riverdale Academy team on the Arrowhead courts yesterday afternoon. The competition consisted of three doubles and two singles matches. All were won easily by the Berkeley-Irving players, who allowed their opponents but seven games in the entire five matches.

BOSTON COLLEGE RELAY TO FACE SEVERE TEST

PHILADELPHIA, April 15.—Boston College, winner of the four-mile college relay championship of America last year, in the annual University of Pennsylvania carnival, will have to battle every yard of the distance to repeat its triumph this year. From out of the West will appear two teams that expect to bring the championship cup to a Conference trophy case. The University of Wisconsin with Victor Chapman running anchor has a team that compares with its mile quartet, which rules the favorite in that event. Coach Tom Jones of the Badgers has J. Kalos, Bullamore and T. Carter, in addition to Chapman, for the event.

Chapman, Bill Arnold of Ohio State, R. Freyberg of Michigan and Tom Cavanaugh of Boston form a great quartet of milers who should provide plenty of thrills if they get off for the last mile a few yards from each other.

Fifteen teams will run in the race, a larger entry list than last year. Lafayette, Syracuse, Cornell, Maryland, Penn State and Georgetown are other teams that expect to give Boston and the Conference teams a tussle for the title.

Eighteen of the best high and preparatory schools in the East and West are entered into two-mile interscholastic championship relay. Huntingdon School, last year's winner and world's record holder for the event, has another evenly balanced team and expects to win this year to gain permanent possession of the Phi Kappa Sigma Challenge Cup.

The entry list, which recently closed, is larger than any previous carnival. Colleges and schools from the Pacific Coast to the Atlantic Coast, from the South, New England and the Middle West and will have representatives in the ninety-seven events.

RECORD LIST ASSURED IN POUGHKEEPSIE RACE

The University of California's decision to send its varsity crew to the intercollegiate championships this year virtually assures a record array of eight shells for the blue-ribbon feature of the regatta at Poughkeepsie on June 28, according to The Associated Press.

Washington, Pacific Coast champion this year for the fifth straight time, and the United States Naval Academy, winner of last year's varsity race at Poughkeepsie, will take part. Wisconsin, which finished third last year, also is expected to increase the competition for the four members of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association—Columbia, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Syracuse.

The present record of seven entries was set in 1907 when Georgetown, the Naval Academy and Wisconsin were the "outsiders." This mark was equaled last year when the Naval Academy, Washington and Wisconsin participated and finished in that order to register a complete setback for the four members of the I. R. A.

The entry for the freshman race also may touch record proportions with California planning to send its yearlings along with the varsity. Wisconsin was in this event last year, and Washington in 1923.

GERMAN SWIM STARS LEAVE.

Rademacher and Froehlich Sail for Home After Successful Tour.

Eric Rademacher and Gustav Froehlich, German swimming champions, sailed for home yesterday on the liner Deutschland after bringing to a close a highly successful invasion of the United States. Rademacher, record holder at breast-stroke swimming at numerous distances, triumphed consistently in his appearances here, while Froehlich, though beaten several times, also gave an exceptionally fine account of himself in all his races.

Both swimmers expressed their gratitude for the reception they had received in America and said they hoped soon to return for another tour. Rademacher said he had learned a great deal about sharp turns encountered in indoor swimming from American natators.

COLUMBIA VARIES DRILL.

Spring football practice for Columbia continued at Baker Field yesterday afternoon with twenty-six men taking part in the workout under the direction of Head Coach Charley Crowley and his assistants. A session in calisthenics, work on the tackling dummies, instruction in charging and taking out for the linemen and a session on the lower playing field with the ends running down under punts featured the drill.

MITCHELL HUMBLES COMPSTON, 4 AND 3

Veteran Also Beats Ockenden and Gains Semi-Final on Roehampton Links.

DUNCAN MOVES FORWARD

ROEHAMPTON, England, April 15 (Wednesday).—Playing under most unfavorable conditions, with sheets of rain and strong winds and many of the bunkers and greens flooded, Abe Mitchell, George Duncan, W. B. Smith and W. Robertson came through today's rounds of the Roehampton Golf Club's annual £200 invitation tournament and tomorrow will fight for the season's first professional prize. Mitchell will contend against Smith and Duncan will oppose Robertson in the semi-finals.

It was a great day for Abe Mitchell. He eliminated James Ockenden of Hangerhill, 3 and 1, and then took the measure of Archibald Compston, 4 and 3. The last match that Compston played before his American tour was against Mitchell; he got a drubbing then, but returned home this week and rushed from the liner to Roehampton anxious for revenge. He fell once more, however, before the veteran golfing master, whose long distance driving and splendid control and putting, except for one brief interval, far surpassed Compston's game. Mitchell and Compston took practically all the spectators with them, and despite the pouring rain the gallery stayed to watch Mitchell beat his man.

It was a popular victory, for Compston returned to England with just a trace of American accent and some additions to his vocabulary from the American language. But he did not acquire any American hustle, for he crawled through the morning round. While he meditated and studied the shots big George Gadd, the Roehampton club's professional, got wetter and wetter and more and more irritated, and ultimately lost, 5 up and 4 to play.

J. H. Taylor's age and experience at fifty-five triumphed over the young ex-champion, Arthur Havers, 3 and 2, but the veteran Harry Vardon, although he donned rubber plus fours, could not weather both the storm and Jack Smith's driving, losing, 6 and 5.

Aubrey Boomer, winner of the event last year and the only foreigner to get into the qualifying sixteen yesterday, battled valiently for a place in the semi-finals. But he lost to George Duncan on the last green. The Frenchman sank an eight-yard putt for a three at the first hole, but Duncan took the next three holes with fours. Boomer evened the match before reaching the turn, and on the way home every hole was halved except the sixteenth, which went to Duncan. In the morning Duncan beat Robson Havers, 4 and 3.

Boomer defeated T. Williamson, 4 and 2, in the morning, while W. B. Smith defeated Len Holland, who won sixteenth qualifying place yesterday, 6 and 5.

FOOTBALL TALK BY PARKER.

Coach Parker, varsity football mentor at City College, continued his series of lectures to the gridiron candidates yesterday afternoon, discussing the individual line positions. Offensive duties of the centre, guards, tackles and ends were outlined, as well as the new line tactics that will be used next season at City College, New York.

Hoppe Issues Defi to Reiselt For Special 3-Cushion Match

Willie Hoppe has issued a challenge to Otto Reiselt, successor to Robert L. Cannefax as world's three-cushion champion, for a special match. Reiselt, who finished first in the league standings, is scheduled to play here next week, and Hoppe said yesterday that he personally will discuss terms with Reiselt when the champion reaches this city. Hoppe scored two decisive victories over Cannefax last year in special tests and since that time has been recognized as the uncrowned three-cushion titleholder.

STATZELL SUBDUED BY YATES, 3 AND 2

PINEHURST, N. C., April 15.—Arthur W. (Ducky) Yates of Rochester, medalist in the annual mid-April tournament here, won a close match in the second round today from George W. Statzell of Aronimink, 3 and 2, and advanced to the semi-finals. After being 2 up at the turn, Yates halved every hole on the inward journey until the sixteenth was reached, winning it to take the match.

C. Ross Somerville of London, Ontario, who is playing exceptionally well, defeated A. L. Sands of New York by 7 and 6 to reach the semi-finals. Somerville was 5 up at the turn. Sands winning his only hole at the first with a birdie 3 when he holed a forty-footer. Somerville added the tenth and the eleventh to his lead. He was out in 38.

Tomorrow Somerville will play John A. Gammons of Providence in one-half of the draw, while Yates plays R. A. Stranahan of Toledo. Gammons defeated Bechtel Alcock of Pomonok, by 4 and 3, while Stranahan was defeating J. W. Bowman of Southern Pines, 5 and 4.

The summaries:

First Division—Arthur (Ducky) Yates, Rochester, defeated George W. Statzell, Philadelphia, 3 and 2; C. Ross Somerville, London, Ont., defeated A. L. Sands, New York, 7 and 6; R. A. Stranahan, Toledo, defeated J. W. Bowman, Southern Pines, 5 and 4; J. A. Gammons, Providence, defeated Bechtel Alcock, Pomonok, 4 and 3.

Second Division—H. Bradford Lewis, Andover, defeated Fred Woltenholm, New York, 6 and 5; J. H. Jones, Wareham, Mass., defeated A. Hamilton Gibbs, New York, 1 up, 21 holes; S. Howard Voshell, Pomonok, defeated F. H. Mellon, Conneaut Lake, Pa., 2 up; J. L. Weller, Hamilton, Ont., won from Ralph King, Toronto, by default.

Third Division—H. B. Swoope, Merion, Pa., defeated S. R. Smith, Newark, 1 up; P. S. P. Randolph, Meadowbrook, defeated L. L. Voight Jr., Oakmont, 3 and 2; Robert Lowry, Shamokin, defeated H. P. Hotchkiss, New Haven, 4 and 3; A. B. Couch, Montreal, defeated P. S. MacLaughlin, Jersey City, 5 and 4.

Fourth Division—S. Y. Ramage, Oil City, Pa., defeated F. B. Howland, Titusville, Pa., 5 and 4; William Hager, Roselle, N. J., defeated E. H. Griswald, Boston, 4 and 3; Raymond Farr, Arlington, defeated Fred Hawthorne, Pomonok, 1 up; Henry Suydam, Lakewood, defeated E. P. Merwin, Stockbridge, 1 up, 19 holes.

Baker-Dudley Bout Tomorrow.

Sergeant Sammy Baker, Mitchel Field soldier-fighter wound up his training yesterday for his twelve-round battle with Harry Dudley, California welterweight, at the Commonwealth Sporting Club tomorrow night. Welterweights also will appear in the semi-final when Joe Canamare, former A. A. U. champion, will oppose Jack Kiernan of Long Branch.

YALE'S NEW LINKS FORMALLY OPENED

Undergraduates and Invited Guests Play Over First Nine Holes—Many Applicants.

FIRST MATCH ON APRIL 24

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 15.—Yale's new golf links were formally opened today without ceremony or dedicatory exercises. Undergraduate enthusiasts and a few invited guests played over the first nine holes which are ready for use. The second nine will be completed by May 1. The attendance was curtailed by the high wind and cold, but a student rush for memberships indicated that the greens will be filled to their capacity for the remainder of the spring term.

Bernard Thomson, the former Mount Kisco professional and Yale golf team coach, took a party of officials and players over the course. He was convinced that the Yale links are among the most beautiful he has ever seen.

More than 110 acres of the Ray Tompkins memorial tract are laid out in a very picturesque fashion. There are five water hazards and practically 130,000 square feet of greens space, every green covering nearly 10,000 square feet. The course was laid out by Charles B. MacDonald, builder, and Seth J. Raynor, golf architect, shortly before his death, in the midst of a 700-acre forest preserve.

The Yale golf team has laid plans to open the course competitively with a match against the Army on Saturday, April 24. Frank E. Wattles Jr., 1926, of Buffalo, Captain of the Yale team, spent today at trials being held among the Yale candidates over the New Haven Golf Club and the Racebrook Country Club. The team will be chosen the first of the next week. This will be the first visit of the Army golf team to Yale.

Par for the championship or long course of 18 holes is 71, with a yardage of 6,552. The yardage over the regular course, which is played from the middle tees, is 6,107 with par of 69 and the so-called short course, or from the front tees, is 5,548 with the same par.

ALFANO FIRST IN ROAD RUN.

Wins With 45-Second Handicap in 13th Regiment's 2-Mile Race.

Frank Alfano was the winner last night in the first of a series of two-mile road runs to be conducted by Battery E, Thirteenth Regiment. The runs will be held every Thursday night with a view to developing more distance runners in the regiment. Alfano completed the course from Jefferson Avenue to Bedford Avenue and return in 10:23, with a handicap of forty-five seconds. C. Schesser, former two-mile indoor champion, who started from scratch, finished second, in 9:40.

Dartmouth Head Defends College Sports But Deplores the Big Salaries Paid to Pros

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., April 15 (AP).—Intercollegiate athletics are a defensible and essential part of college life, President Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth College said today in an address at a joint meeting of civic clubs here. He put the responsibility for maintaining the higher ideals of intercollegiate athletics up to the public.

Speaking on professionalism, President Hopkins said: "Boys who are entrusted to colleges should acquire a sense of proportion. What would happen if it was universally conceded that a professional athlete rendered the greatest service to the country? All America thrilled with pride when the President Roosevelt stood by and rescued those drowning sailors in the face of grave hazards. In New York Captain Fried and his men were given a tremendous ovation, but Captain Fried draws for a year's salary less than Red Grange gets for one single game. Do you want your sons to believe that the contribution made by the professional athlete in ninety minutes rendered a greater service to the world than Captain Fried?"

LANG AND MANGAN WIN AT PINEHURST

Chapin and Wheelwright Also Reach North-South Net Singles Semi-Finals.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 15.—The men's singles in the North and South tennis championships reached the semi-final round here today. Jerry Lang of New York will face Josiah Wheelwright of Boston as a result of the day's play, while A. H. Chapin Jr. of Springfield, Mass., plays Thomas J. Mangan of Washington, D. C.

In the women's singles the semi-final round was played and Mrs. A. H. Chapin Jr. conquered Miss Penelope Anderson of Richmond, Va., at 6—2, 7—5, to face Miss Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., in the final tomorrow. The latter won today over Mrs. Benjamin F. Briggs of Pelham, N. Y., 6—1, 6—1.

In the men's doubles there are four teams left. Takeichi Harada of Boston and Japan, who has defaulted his singles title, is playing with R. B. Bidwell of Boston. This team will face Jerry Lang and F. C. Baggs of New York tomorrow, while S. Howard Voshell of New York, paired with Chapin, meets Mangan and Wheelwright.

The men's singles today was marred by the default of Howard Voshell. Voshell is playing in the golf tournament and this morning preferred to play his golf match rather than appear on the tennis courts. The committee would have preferred Voshell to play tennis than golf, but under the circumstances were obliged to default him to Wheelwright. Voshell was picked to win the men's singles title, while on the links he was no better than a fourth division player in the mid-April tournament.

Mangan looked more impressive today than any of the others. In his match with G. Carleton Shafer of Philadelphia Mangan won easily at 6—4, 6—1.

Lang had a hard time against F. C. Baggs. Both players were missing many shots and trying hard to control their strokes. Lang won the first set, 6—0, but in the second it went to 11—all before Lang could get two more for the set.

Raymond B. Bidwell of Boston displayed some remarkable getting against Chapin. He stuck to the younger man and forced both sets to deuce, but trailed most of the way.

Miss Bayard had very little trouble with Mrs. Briggs and won rather handily. Mrs. Chapin won her first set easily from Miss Anderson, but had a hard time with the second and was twice within a point of losing it.

The summaries:

Women's Singles.

Semi-Final Round—Mrs. A. H. Chapin Jr., Springfield, Mass., defeated Miss Penelope Anderson, Richmond, Va., 6—2, 7—5; Miss Martha Bayard, Short Hills, N. J., defeated Mrs. Benjamin F. Briggs, Pelham, N. Y., 6—1, 6—1.

Men's Singles.

Third Round—Jerome Lang, New York, defeated F. C. Baggs, New York, 6—0, 13—11; Josiah Wheelwright, Boston, won from S. H. Voshell, New York, by default; Alfred H. Chapin Jr., defeated Raymond B. Bidwell, Boston, 7—5, 6—4; Thomas J. Mangan, Washington, defeated G. Carlton Shafer, Philadelphia, 6—4, 6—1.

Men's Doubles.

Second Round—Takeichi Harada, Boston, and R. B. Bidwell, Boston, defeated Beals C. Wright, Boston, and A. L. Bruneau, New York, 6—2, 6—2; Jerome Lang, New York, and C. Baggs, New York, defeated H. T. Dana, Pinehurst, and H. C. Buckminster, Boston, 6—0, 6—0; S. H. Voshell, New York, and A. H. Chapin Jr., Springfield, defeated G. C. Shafer, Philadelphia, and R. L. Baggs, New York, 6—2, 6—0.

POPE, MEDALIST, WINS IN VIRGINIA TOURNEY

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., April 15.—Dick Pope of Winterhaven, Fla., medalist in the Mason and Dixon championship, won his first round match here today rather easily. Pope defeated W. M. Goss of Waterbury, Conn., by 5 and 4. Out in 36, the medalist was 3 up and indicated by his play that he has a good chance to reach the final.

The cards:

Out—
Pope	4	5	3	4	3	5	4	3	5	—36
Goss	5	4	3	5	4	5	5	3	5	—39
In—
Pope	4	4	5	5	4	3	4	6	3	—38—74
Goss	5	5	5	5	5

Tom McWatters of Newark also did very well, defeating Dr. Howard Hogue of White Sulphur by 8 and 7. Like Pope, he too was out in 36 and stands out in the field. Two rounds will be played tomorrow with the final Saturday.

SQUASH MEN DOWN RACQUETS PLAYERS

Gain Title in Novel Clashes by Winning Final Half of Match by 454 to 150.

LOSERS TAKE EARLY LEAD

Show Margin of Three Points After First Two Contests, but Falter and Lose Series, 630-600.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

The squash tennis players won the squash championship last night when they defeated the squash racquets team by the score of 454 points to 150 at squash tennis in the second half of their challenge match at the Yale Club. They had previously scored 176 points to their opponent's 450 at squash racquets at the University Club and finished with a total of 630 points, to 600 for the squash racquets men.

Such scenes as were enacted around the scoreboard at the Yale Club have not been witnessed since the last presidential election. The squash racquets players started off by gaining a lead of 3 points in the first two matches finished. When R. Earl Fink of the Montclair A. C., who was a former national champion at squash tennis before he took up squash racquets, went on the court there was consternation among the squash tennis men.

Fink came closer than any of the nineteen other players to winning a match on the opponent's courts. G. M. Rushmore of the Harvard Club barely came through the winner over him at 18—13, 14—17, 17—14. As Fink had defeated the Harvard player at squash racquets by the decisive score of 15—4, 15—5, 15—5, he contributed 25 points to his team's side, giving the squash racquets' candidates a plurality of 28.

But Fillmore Hyde, the national squash tennis champion from the Harvard Club, had not yet been heard from. Cheers went up from the tennis men around the scoreboard when he returned from the court with A. E. Ellis of the University Club with thirteen points to his credit. Otis Guernsey of the Yale Club gave squash tennis 5 more by his victory over P. K. Keenan of the Montclair A. C., and when William Rand Jr. of the Harvard Club, former squash tennis champion, showed a majority of 22 points over Darwin P. Kingsley of the University Club, the tennis men threw up their hats and cheered.

Each new return now added to the plurality of squash tennis and when the last district had been heard from the squash racquets candidates had been defeated by the overwhelming margin of 30 points.

This was an unusual election, for the losers are going to give a banquet to the winners. But that was not the only reason for the squash tennis men's jubilation last night. They hold now that squash tennis has been shown to be the better game. The squash racquets men, however, as was revealed by a canvass last night, are going to stick to squash racquets.

Hyde and Ellis met in the No. 1 match and the University Club man proved to be more at sea than was Hyde when they played squash racquets on Tuesday, if the score is to be taken as a criterion. Hayde won at 15—5, 15—1, 15—4. The squash racquets score was 15—5, 17—14, 15—6 in Ellis's favor. The fact that Ellis played squash tennis before he took up squash racquets, as did Fink, Royal E. T. Riggs, Tevis Huhn and R. F. De Voe, other members of the losing team, was all the more reason for the squash tennis players to glory in their victory.

Fink played beautiful squash tennis for a player who has devoted himself to the other game for three years. Some of his shots were worthy of a Hyde, and it took the best that Rushmore had to overcome him. Huhn also made Coward travel at a fast pace.

Both teams made clean sweeps of the ten matches at their own game, while Rand and Fink were the only players to win games on their opponents' courts.

The summaries:

Fillmore Hyde, Harvard, defeated A. E. Ellis, University, 15—5, 15—1, 15—4; Thomas Coward, Yale, defeated Tevis Huhn, Princeton, 15—5, 15—9, 15—6; H. R. Mixsell, Princeton, defeated R. W. Gilmore, University, 15—3, 15—4, 15—1; Rowland B. Haines, Columbia, defeated R. F. De Voe, University, 15—8, 15—2, 15—3; William Rand Jr., Harvard, defeated Darwin P. Kingsley, University, 15—5, 15—4, 15—4; Otis L. Guernsey, Yale, defeated P. K. Keeman, Montclair, 15—2, 15—4, 15—3; Gavin Brackenridge, Princeton, defeated C. J. Hutchins, Harvard, 15—7, 15—6, 15—3; G. M. Rushmore, Harvard, defeated R. Earl Fink, Montclair, 18—13, 14—17, 17—14; G. G. Davidson, Crescent, defeated Henry Harper, Rockaway, 15—2, 15—1, 15—5; Auguste J. Cordier, Yale, defeated Royal E. T. Riggs, University, 15—4, 15—3, 15—2.

The points scored for squash tennis were as follows: Rand, 22; Hyde, 13; Davidson, 8; Cordier, 5; Guernsey, 5; Brackenridge, 3; Haines, 2. Total—58. The points scored for squash racquets were as follows: Fink, 25; Gilmore, 3; Hohn, 1. Total—28.

WESTCHESTER HILLS OPENS CLUBHOUSE

Notables in Golf World and Civic Life Attend Dinner in New $125,000 Building.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 15.—A large number of golfers attended the formal opening of the new clubhouse of the Westchester Hills Golf Club here tonight. The clubhouse cost about $125,000 and is one of the most modern of its kind in this vicinity. Jay S.

Invitations had been sent to outstanding champions of American golf, all of whom, with the exception of Bobby Jones, are or have been connected with Westchester country clubs.

In the list of guests of honor were Willie MacFarlane, the American open champion; Jim Barnes of New Rochelle, the British titleholder; Walter Hagen, the holder of the United States professional crown; Bobby Jones, national amateur champion; John G. Anderson, French titleholder; Jess Sweetser, No. 1 golfer in the metropolitan amateur ranking, and Mike Brady of Winged Foot.

The new clubhouse is one of the finest inside and out to be found in this section of the country. The club already has a locker house costing $50,000, built to conform with the new clubhouse. The club is on a strong financial basis, having cleared on operations more than $10,000 a year in 1924 and 1925.

COOPER WINS AUTO RACE.

FRESNO, Cal., April 15 (AP).—Led by Governor F. W. Richardson and Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco, 100,000 persons were here today to witness the eighteenth annual celebration of Raisin Day.

Earl Cooper won a 25-mile automobile race this afternoon, defeating Peter de Paolo and Bennett Hill. He circled the speedway at an average speed of 104 miles an hour. Hill took second. The time was 14 minutes 25.4 seconds.

Leaves from MURIEL'S DIARY

(Friday)

Today, Harry was terribly worried. And when Harry is troubled he always turns to me for sympathy. He says I'm so understanding.

Tonight, after he had merely pecked at his dinner, he took me into his study, closed the door, and flopped down in his easy chair.

"I'm going to lick this proposition now," he muttered as he clipped off my tip. "I'm not going to toss over it another sleepless night."

The first few puffs seemed to soothe him. He had found solace in tobacco.

Then, he jumped up and fairly danced around the room.

"Just the thing," he exclaimed joyfully. "And the credit goes to Muriel. You can't beat a good cigar for inspiration."

And he might have added: "You can't even tie Muriel's blend, a perfect harmony of finest Havana and lighter tobaccos."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Francs Decline to 3.35¾, the Lowest Price for All Time—Stocks Generally Irregular.

In light of the irregularity and confusion of movement which characterized Stock Exchange dealings yesterday, the decline of the franc to 3.35¾ cents was the day's most important and interesting financial news. This decline, too, was in the face of a statement by the Bank of France which could be called satisfactory in that it reflected a contraction in circulation of 407,000,000 francs and a repayment by the State to the Bank of France of 600,000,000 francs. There is not a great deal of mystery in the present fall to lowly estate of the franc despite the fact that the budget has been balanced, in theory, at least, and that taxes have been increased. The Government is faced with large maturities in May. It is confronted, too, with the problem of collecting the taxes which it has levied to balance the budget and it has been pointed out repeatedly that there is a vast difference in France between levying a tax and collecting it.

There is very little international speculation in the franc at the moment, at least no such speculation as that which drove it down two years ago and from which depths it recovered quickly when credits were placed at the Government's disposal. This very lack of a "short interest" in the exchange, and the further fact that international banking houses abroad continually sell francs on a scale, account for the present decline. Such buying as appears is commercial and not designed as support. It is small wonder, therefore, that the fluctuations of the exchange, in view of lack of international confidence in it, should decline.

On the Stock Exchange yesterday the same cross-currents of speculation which have been evident all week were running. There was confused selling in the morning, especially in the motor and steel shares, only to be followed by a period of quiet at midday and a sharp recovery at the close. Public participation in the market is at a low ebb and professional traders, despite their day to day experiments on both sides, have not sufficient strength, apparently, to drive the market sharply one way or the other. The fluctuations are entirely minor. They resemble a tug of war, in which first one side and then the other is victorious.

The day's financial news was singularly colorless in furnishing light on a business situation which has reached a state where it is usually described as "complex" because the immediate future is not altogether clear. The reviews of the automotive industry wax optimistic over present high ratios of production but sound a pessimistic note in reviewing the difficulties faced by the industry in the "used car" situation. Some moderate curtailment of production in this industry now seems highly probable within the next few weeks, or, at least, until a better test of the buying propensities of the general public may be obtained. Money rates did not figure at all in stock market dealings yesterday. The quotation was 4½ per cent., with ample supplies available at all times. So comfortable has the money situation become that the Street gossiped yesterday about a possible reduction in the Federal Reserve rate at New York. This, of course, is unlikely at a season of the year when agricultural and commercial demands are heaviest. Nevertheless, it was one of the day's factors which brought about a rally in stocks near the close.

LINK ROCK ISLAND AND FRISCO BOARDS

I. C. C. Approves Seating Kurn and Two Others as Directors of Road to Be Merged.

RIVAL OF LOREE PROJECT

Two Proposed Systems in Race to Get Commission's Sanction to Consolidation.

The St. Louis-San Francisco Railway received approval from the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday to seat its President, J. M. Kurn; its Chairman, E. N. Brown, and one of its directors, Jesse Hirschman, on the board of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway. This action is preliminary to a petition to merge the two lines into the longest railroad system in the country. An officer of the Frisco said yesterday that terms would be prepared soon on exchange of Rock Island stock for Frisco.

The chief rival of the Frisco-Rock Island alliance in the competition for Southwestern traffic is the new system proposed by Leonor F. Loree, to consist of the St. Louis Southwestern, the Missouri-Kansas-Texas and the Kansas City Southern. Both systems are desirous of reaching the commission as soon as possible with a consolidation proposal, and railroad men believe it will be a nip-and-tuck race to see which gets there first. The Loree group has the advantage of a head start but the disadvantage of comprising three roads, compared with the Frisco's two. Already rumblings are being heard in the financial district of opposition by minority stockholders to both plans.

The commission's rejection of the Nickel Plate application is no indication, in the opinion of railroad men, that the Frisco proposal will meet a similar fate. On the contrary, the commission is believed to be in a receptive mood for railroad mergers which meet all requirements of the public interest.

As the Frisco's holdings of Rock Island stock are less than 20 per cent., it is not believed likely that control will be sought in the open market, such as Mr. Loree has obtained by the purchase of large blocks of Cotton Belt and Missouri-Kansas-Texas shares.

Competition in the Southwest is keen among the railroads serving that territory to gain oil and fresh vegetable traffic. Both these commodities can be carried profitably when an individual company receives a large part of the business; otherwise profits are meagre.

The proposal to merge the Frisco and Rock Island came out as a defensive measure against the strengthening of the Missouri Pacific System and the formation of the Loree group. The two railroads were operated jointly in the early 1900's by the Reid-Moore-Yoakum or "tin plate crowd," but disconnected when the union was found unprofitable.

ROADS CONFER JOINTLY WITH UNIONS ON WAGES

Eastern Lines Meet Conductors' and Trainmen's Group—$1 to $1.63 a Day Rise Asked.

Conferences were held at the Grand Central Terminal yesterday between a committee representing the Eastern railroads and a committee comprising ten spokesmen for the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors. W. G. Lee, President of the Trainmen, and L. E. Sheppard, head of the Conductors, were the chief representatives of the unions.

The attempt of the railroads and their employes to reach an amicable settlement follows the filing by the conductors and trainmen on Feb. 1 of demands for wage increases ranging from $1 to $1.63 a day. The railroads were to answer by March 2. On or before that date they all rejected the demands but agreed to meet the unions, investigate the underlying conditions of the wage situation and determine if an advance could be made.

There was a question as to whether the railroads would discuss the demands jointly or separately, representatives of the Pennsylvania contending that they would prefer to keep it a company affair.

The Eastern railroads, however, finally decided to act as a group, as did those of the Western district. A series of meetings has just been concluded between the Western roads and the Brotherhood representatives which were adjourned until May.

No decision was reached at yesterday's meeting and discussion will be continued today.

DEININGER COMMITTEE AGAIN ATTACKS WARD

Informs Stockholders of the General Baking Co. It Intends to Recover $8,500,000.

William Deininger, former Chairman of the board of the General Baking Corporation, has sent another letter to shareholders concerning the affairs of the company.

The letter, which was mailed by Rabenold & Scribner of 61 Broadway, counsel for the Stockholders' Committee, said that no reply had been received from directors of the corporation to the letter of April 12, in which the committee requested the directors to obtain a refund of $8,547,935 paid to William B. Ward for 119,900 shares of General Baking A stock. The committee also requested the rejection of a tentative agreement with the Cnase Securities Corporation, in which the latter receives certain options of the company's stock.

The latest letter says: "This committee proposes to recover the $8,500,000 from W. B. Ward."

"We will not permit ourselves to be diverted from the fundamental issue in this matter, even by personal attacks upon a member of the committee," the letter continues. "That fundamental issue is quite plain. The corporation's treasury has been depleted by $8,500,000 cash which it needs in its business. W. B. Ward got the money. He is not disposed to restore it. Rather, he advises all the stockholders to do nothing about it, and asks them to support a Board of Directors who will do nothing."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

A sharp rally which developed during the closing hour on the Stock Exchange yesterday carried most stocks 1 to 2 points or more above the previous day's close and from 2 to 4 points above the low levels of the day. At the opening, prices were again lower, owing to an accumulation of selling orders over night as a result of the weakness which prevailed on Wednesday. When this selling had spent itself, the market became dull and the movement of prices was irregular. Around 2 o'clock, however, word went around that a rally would be staged against the professionals who had been attacking the market since early in the week. This rumor was accompanied by a report that the local Federal Reserve Bank discount rate would be reduced at yesterday's meeting of the board. While the rumor was baseless, it nevertheless had its effect, as the market immediately turned upward, and barring irregularity in a few of the speculative issues, closed firm. Domestic sugar stocks were again heavy during the greater part of the day, and a few railroad shares moved against the trend, but most industrials closed higher.

New Low Record for Franc.

Foreign exchange dealers said yesterday that the decline of the French franc to a new low point appeared to be the result of a lack of demand. One of the cushions that formerly caused rallies apparently has been removed from the market with the general short covering that took place recently on the announcement of the budget figures. On previous occasions when the franc broke, speculative sellers, in covering their commitments, usually brought about at least a partial recovery, but there was said to be very little short interest in the market at present. Thus only moderate selling, mostly from Europe, was sufficient to depress the rate yesterday. The feeling in financial circles is that France is working toward a solution of her major problems. The budget has been balanced, in theory at least, and the new taxation is expected to prove of benefit. The principal measure still necessary to be taken is an adjustment of the debt to America, which would be followed by large advances of American capital to France.

Temporary Buying.

The head of one Stock Exchange house which has been a big factor in the market says that the character of buying which brings intermittent rallies in the market and which has been evident for the last two or three days is not of a good sort, because it does not represent buying for investment. It is made up mainly of two classes: First, those who are covering short commitments; second, those who are buying "for a turn." In other words, they have made up their minds that a rally is due and are trying to catch a minor upswing for the sake of the 2 or 3 points or so which such a rally would give them.

A Bearish Prediction.

Wall Street paid a good deal of attention yesterday, possibly because it had nothing better to do, to the prognostications of Colonel Leonard P. Ayres of the Cleveland Trust Company, who does not quibble in his current review about the stock market. He says that the bull market has terminated and that a bear market has begun. Some persons in Wall Street harked back yesterday to last October, when the same sort of predicition emanated from Cleveland. The theories are pretty if they will just work.

Government Bonds Higher.

Heavy accumulation of Liberty bonds and other Treasury obligations was one of the salient features of the bond market yesterday. Prices were firm, though fluctuations were not wide. The principal buying was in Treasury 4s, which advanced 7-32s of a point, while other Government issues ranged from 1-32 to 1-16 of a point up. The general bond market was irregular and trading was light. Local traction issues again were in demand and were quoted slightly higher. Price changes in the railroad group were as a rule limited to small fractions. French bonds sold lower in sympathy with the establishment of a new low record for the franc, but other foreign issues were generally steady, and South American securities scored small advances.

Merger Talk Disappears.

Rather remarkable in Wall Street opinion is the manner in which talk of mergers, which less than two months ago were such potent market factors, has disappeared entirely. The head of one large railroad, in speaking to his stockholders at an annual meeting, remarked that "the public temper does not seem so keen for mergers." A month or so ago scarcely a day passed when two or three merger rumors did not crop up. These ranged all the way from United States Steel, which was about to take in some independent units, according to report, to a small candy company which, it was said, was about to be absorbed by a competitor. This sort of talk has ceased, and in most cases even the tentative conversations which have been going on between executives of various companies have been suddenly terminated.

Trade Figures Welcomed.

Several well-informed bankers said yesterday that the import balances shown in recent summaries of United States trade were likely to continue during most of this year. In the long run, they added, this would be a favorable development for the country. Foreign countries must pay their debts here in some way and payment with goods was declared to be one of the most advantageous methods from the standpoint of international stability. Another factor, they said, was that the large exports of European countries would enable them to purchase liberal quantities of wheat, cotton, minerals and other products from the United States.

A New Oil Deal.

According to reports in the financial district yesterday another oil deal is brewing which will involve the Phillips Petroleum Company and one of the larger independent organizations. A committee of bankers understood to be representing this organization has gone to make an inspection of the property. Reports circulated in the Street earlier in the year were that the Texas Company was interested in acquiring the property, but the deal never came to a head. The latest reports have it that the Texas Company had again taken up the matter and that control of the smaller company would eventually lodge with this organization.

A Stockholders' Protest.

Sale of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railway to the Atlantic Coast Line for 60 cents on the dollar of the first mortgage and income bonds has aroused opposition from the stockholders who feel that a "freeze out" of the stock equity is not necessary. Their action explains why the stock has lingered among the Exchange quotations at 1¼ and 1½ when acceptance of the Atlantic Coast Line offer would make it worthless. Officials of the Coast Line admit that there is no obligation on the part of the A. B. & A. to accept their proposition but in common with the bondholders believe that it represents the best figure obtainable.

MONEY.

THURSDAY, APRIL 15, 1926.

Stock Exchange call money was quiet and steady at 4¼ per cent. Business in the Street market was done on a light scale at 4 per cent. Withdrawals and inquiry for new funds were small. Time money market continued firm at 4⅝ and 4½ per cent., but only a fair amount of activity was noted, and this in the more distant dates, which passed at 4½ per cent. Call loans against acceptances sagged a fraction to 3⅝ per cent., but the bank bills, like commercial paper, were dull and unchanged in discount.

State-Lake Building Corporation

Chicago, Illinois

First (Closed) Mortgage Leasehold 6% Serial Gold Bonds

Dated April 1, 1926 — Due Serially: 1928-1943

Principal and semi-annual interest, April 1 and October 1, payable at the office of the Union Trust Company, Chicago, Trustee. Coupon bonds registerable as to principal: $1,000 and $500 bonds in all maturities; $100 bonds in last maturity only. Redeemable at the option of the Company as a whole, or in part, on any interest date on or before April 1, 1932, at 103 and interest; on or before April 1, 1937, at 102 and interest; and at 101 and interest thereafter. Interest payable without deduction for Normal Federal Income Tax not in excess of 2%, and certain state taxes refunded.

UNION TRUST COMPANY, CHICAGO, Trustee

SECURITY

The bonds will be the direct obligation of the State-Lake Building Corporation, and will be secured by a closed first mortgage on the leasehold estate and the twelve-story completed building of standard fireproof construction, situated at the southwest corner of State and Lake Streets, Chicago. The land was leased for 99 years from August 1, 1917, to July 31, 2016, at an average rental of $111,961.32 per annum during the term of the lease and $95,196.00 during the term of this bond issue.

VALUATION

The leasehold and building have been independently appraised as follows:

Joint Appraisal by Winston & Company and Hall & Ellis, of Chicago

Value of leasehold	$ 832,507.74
Building	2,348,500.00
Total	$3,181,007.74

Appraisal by Dibblee & Manierre, of Chicago

Value of leasehold	$ 814,070.80
Building	2,369,850.00
Total	$3,183,920.80

On the basis of the lower of the above appraisals, this loan is less than 57% of the value of the mortgaged property.

LOCATION OF PROPERTY

The State-Lake Building has approximately 340 feet of street frontage; 180 feet on North State Street and 160 feet on West Lake Street, in the Chicago loop district, one block north of Marshall Field & Company, and one block south of the new Wacker Drive. The highest property values in Chicago are on State Street, a short distance south of this corner; and the district offers unusual advantages for retail store, theatre and office purposes.

EARNINGS

Net earnings, after deductions for operating expenses, taxes and ground rent, available for the payment of interest, were $198,531.26 in 1923; $201,931.15 in 1924; and $225,576.03 in 1925, according to an audit made by certified public accountants. With new leases being negotiated for May 1, 1926, the management estimates net annual earnings for the year following that date at approximately $250,000, or nearly two and one-half times the greatest annual interest charge. The income is derived from leases to tenants in diversified lines of business, including a lease on the theatre of $150,000 per annum for twenty years to the State-Lake Theatre & Realty Co., payment of the rental being guaranteed by the Orpheum Circuit, Inc., whose balance sheet as of December 31, 1925, shows a net worth in excess of $40,000,000.

OWNERSHIP AND MANAGEMENT

The stock of the State-Lake Building Corporation is controlled by a strong group of Chicago business men. Mr. Leonard S. Florsheim is President, and Mr. Raymond Redheffer, Vice-President. The property is under the management of the Real Estate Management Corporation of Chicago.

FRENCH FRANC DOWN TO A RECORD LOW

MATURITIES COMING DUE

Heavy Payments of Cash May Be Necessary—Many Bankers Say France Is Recovering.

Under steady, unremitting selling, mostly from abroad, the French franc yesterday reached its lowest point in history, at 3.35¾ cents. This compared with a close of 3.42¼ cents the day before. It was the second time this year that the franc established a low record. On March 29 it sold as low as 3.39½ cents. Before that the low point was 3.42 cents, made in March, 1924, when an international speculative drive reached its climax. At that time the franc was rescued by a $100,000,000 credit advanced by J. P. Morgan & Co.

Most of yesterday's decline took place abroad before the opening of trading here, but New York selling developed early in the day and the downward movement was carried further in the local market than in London or Paris. Various explanations were advanced for the break, but foreign exchange dealers said that it appeared to be due not so much to excessively heavy selling as to an utter lack of demand. There is said to be little short interest in the market, so that covering, which has developed on previous declines, was lacking. The selling here came mostly from large houses with foreign affiliations and apparently was done on orders from abroad.

Heavy Loans Due Soon.

France has a large volume of loan maturities to meet next month, and in the past it has been the custom for holders to resubscribe for Government obligations. One report yesterday was that payments of large amounts of cash would be necessary this time and that this had caused less favorable sentiment toward the franc. Many in the New York financial district, however, believe that France is working toward a solution of her major problems. The Bank of France statement this week showed a reduction of more than 400,000,000 francs in note circulation, and the bank's advances to the State were reduced by more than 500,000,000 francs.

Legislation has been adopted under which the budget has been balanced, at least in theory, and new taxation measures are expected to prove of benefit. The principal task now confronting France is an adjustment of her debt to America, and uncertainties surrounding this problem have been constantly overhanging the market for francs.

Despite reports that Ambassador Berenger has been approaching an understanding with the Washington Government, a debt settlement is expected to take considerable time. Bankers declared, however, that once an agreement had been reached, new loans to France would not have to await final ratification by Congress.

Italian Agreement Pending.

The present embargo against French loans in the American market would be lifted on the signing of an agreement, it was said, and this would be followed by large advances of American capital to France which would be expected to restore stability. One factor causing delay is the uncertain status of the Italian debt agreement. It is not believed that the American commission would enter an agreement with another major country of Europe before Congress has disposed of the Italian pact.

Yesterday's decline in the French franc was responsible for a downward movement in the Belgian franc, which closed at 3.70½ cents, a net decline of 6 points for the day.

NOTE CIRCULATION IS REDUCED IN FRANCE

Bank's Statement Also Shows the Repayment of 600,000,000 Francs by the State.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes, in francs:

Gold at home	Increased	14,000
Silver in hand	Increased	34,000
Notes in circulation	decreased	407,930,000
Treasury deposits	Increased	7,035,000
General deposits	decreased	125,201,000
Bills discounted	decreased	137,999,000
Advances	decreased	68,595,000

The State repaid the bank 600,000,000 francs during the week. Advances to the State now stand at 35,650,000,000 francs, against 23,350,000,000 francs a year ago, and 22,700,000,000 francs two years ago. On Dec. 4, 1925, the French Parliament fixed a maximum of 39,500,000,000 francs for such borrowing. Previously the legal limit had been placed at 33,500,000,000 francs on Nov. 23 last, at 32,000,000,000 on June 27, and at 26,000,000,000 on April 15. Last week's advances to the State, 36,250,000,000 francs, were the highest on record.

The principal items in the statement compare as follows with the same date one and two years ago, in thousands of francs:

	Gold.	Circulation.	Discts., &c.

Under the vote of Dec. 4, 1925, the legal limit on note circulation is now 58,500,000,000 francs, against a 51,000,000,000-franc limit fixed on June 27, 1925, and 45,000,000,000 francs voted on April 15 of last year. Last week's note circulation, 52,851,085,000 francs, was the largest ever reached at the Bank of France.

The French Bank's official discount rate remains unchanged at 6 per cent., to which it was reduced from 7 per cent. on July 7, 1925.

SALT CREEK OIL REPORT.

President Owen Reviews 1925—Finds Industry Stable.

James Owen, President of the Salt Creek Consolidated Oil Company, in his statement to stockholders said "the operations of the company in 1925 were carried on under stable conditions for the first time in several years, with the result that the financial position showed a material improvement, after payment of dividends and expenditures for development work and operating expenses.

"During the year the company expended approximately $1,425,000 in development and operation of its properties, completing fifty wells under its own operation in addition to its share of joint operation with other companies. Also there has been acquired an additional interest in the Salt Creek field by purchase for part cash and part treasury stock. Production during the year was maintained at a satisfactory level and the average price received for our production in the Salt Creek field amounted to $1.82 a barrel. At the present time the average price is $2.12 a barrel."

The financial statement on Dec. 31, 1925, showed current assets of $683,401 and current liabilities amounting to $345,956, including dividends payable of $199,240. Capital stock outstanding amounted to $12,863,000 and surplus $4,130,389. Total assets were valued at $17,616,917.

UTILITY REPORTS A GAIN.

For the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1926, the American Water Works and Electric Company, Inc., and subsidiaries report a net income of $3,432,497, after taxes, interest, depreciation, &c., and preferred dividends of subsidiaries.

Computed on the basis that stocks of the West Penn Electric Company, to be issued under the plan of consolidation of electric subsidiaries of the American Water Works, had been outstanding for the entire year, the income, after provision for 7 per cent. first preferred dividends, is equal to $3.57 a share, (par $20), earned on 632,122 shares of outstanding common stock. This compares with a net income of $2,669,967, which, computed on the same basis, was equivalent to $2.55 a share the year before.

Net income of the West Penn Electric Company for the same year was $3,686,683. Gross earnings were $31,584,342, an increase of $1,496,600. Gross income, after operating expenses and taxes, was $14,090,715, a gain of $1,287,457.

PLAN SECOND SLATE FOR CONSOLIDATED

WANT PLACES ON BOARD

$100,000 Boost in Mortgage Brings Protest—$2,000,000 Offer for Building Refused.

The older members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York plan to put an independent ticket in the field at the annual election to be held next month. The personnel of the opposition ticket, it was said yesterday, would depend on the slate proposed by the regular Nominating Committee, announcement of which is expected within the next few days.

Opposition has again developed against the Exchange's administration, it was asserted, on the ground that the authorities are putting through resolutions without notifying the entire membership. In view of this situation a group of members who now claim to be on the outside will demand representation on the Board of Governors, and if this is denied by the Nominating Committee, the independent ticket will be put into the field.

The mortgage on the Exchange Building has been raised from $500,000 to $600,000, the proceeds of which, it is understood, are being used to carry on the administration of the Exchange as business continues on a small scale. Certain members, it was learned, objected to this action because, it was said, the Exchange had to pay $4,000 bonus in addition to the interest charge.

Several appraisals have been made in connection with the proposed sale of the building, but the figures have not been made public. It was reported that an offer of $2,000,000 had been refused, as the authorities expect to get $2,250,000.

Several extended meetings of the Board of Governors have been held during the last few days, but officers of the Exchange denied that these meetings were for the purpose of hearing charges against certain members.

DEFENDS MERGER OF TITLE COMPANIES

Committee of the United States Guaranty Answers Protest of Stockholders.

Reply to the protest by a Brooklyn and Suffolk County group of stockholders in the United States Title Guaranty Company against the proposed merger with the New York Title and Mortgage Company was given yesterday in a letter former the Executive Committee of the former company to the protestants and other stockholders.

The proposed merger, which comes up for ratification by the stockholders of the two companies on April 22 would make the resultant concern the largest of its kind in the world, with a capitalization of almost $30,000,000, the letter said.

The protesting group urged that the proposed exchange of two shares of New York Title stock for three of United States Title and a 5 per cent. stock dividend was unfair on a basis of book values of the two companies.

"Your committee carefully investigated the enumerated assets of the New York Title and Mortgage Company," the letter of reply says, "and had exhibited to it satisfactory evidence of the value of the various items included, totaling $8,730,259. This represents over 87 per cent. of the par value of the company's stock, in excess of its stated book value, making a total asset value of $340 per share.

"The report of the New York Title and Mortgage Company shows that the earnings on its average capital for 1925 were 40.83 per cent., after setting up liberal amounts for contingent and other reserves in addition to reserves for taxes and profit-sharing. Furthermore, for the first three months of the current year the company's earnings have shown an increase of 65 per cent. over the like period in 1925."

TOKIO TO FLOAT OWN LOAN.

Domestic Issue of $7,500,000 Will Convert Electric Bonds.

Continued ease in the money market in Japan was illustrated yesterday by news that the City of Tokio had arranged for domestic flotation of a loan of 15,000,000 yen, or about $7,500,000, to convert a bond issue bearing a higher rate of interest. The bonds being converted are known as the Electric Enterprise Loan, second issue, and represent part of the financing in connection with the electric light and power business which was taken over by Tokio.

The new loan is to bear 6 per cent. interest and will run for thirty years. The issue price is 92 to yield 6.61 per cent. The City of Tokio also owns the electrical street railway system and has a large outstanding sterling loan on this property, the bonds having been sold in London. This issue still has about fifteen years to run.

BANKERS TO CONFER HERE.

National Safe Deposit Convention Will Be Held May 7 and 8.

Representative bankers from all over the United States are expected to attend the National Safe Deposit Convention at the Hotel Roosevelt, May 7 and 8, which will be under the direction of the New York State Safe Deposit Association.

In addition to the regular business sessions the delegates will be elaborately entertained, according to Walter J. Barrows, President of the Standard Safe Deposit Company, who is Chairman of the arrangements committee.

The New York Stock Exchange and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York have issued invitations to the delegates to visit and inspect these two institutions. Several other banks and financial houses have offered to provide entertainment features it is reported.

BREAK IN FORD OF CANADA.

Stock Declines 69 Points in Day on the Curb Market.

A development yesterday on the Curb Market was the perpendicular drop of 69 points in the shares of the Ford Motor Company of Canada. This decline was on sales of but twenty shares and it brought the stock at the close to 506. It sold, during the motor boom, at 655.

The shares of the company are the only unit of the Ford companies traded in on any market. The floating supply is extremely small. Most of the shares are held by Henry Ford, Edsel Ford and their wives.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

French Franc at Record Low—Pressure From Abroad Through Local Agencies a Factor.

French francs dropped to a new low for all time yesterday when they sold down to 3.35⅝ cents, a gross loss of 6⅛ points from Wednesday. This displaces the previous record low of 3.39⅛, established on March 29. Weakness originated in London and was carried out here mainly by those banking houses with foreign connections which were obviously working on orders from abroad. The rate opened 3 points down at 3.39⅛ cents, followed by the new low of 3.35⅝, reached about midday. Profit taking repurchases then strengthened the later trading with a final at 3.38⅛ cents.

Dealers said that there was no disorder about the reaction, that it was a simple case of more offerings than the demand could absorb. This was attributed to the nervousness which was felt over the ability of the French Government to successfully meet the big loans due next month, since it was rumored that these loans will not be resubscribed for, therefore necessitating a heavy outlay in francs by the Government for redemption. The French bank statement, on the one hand, was a good one, showing big cuts in circulation and advances to the Government. However, this proved without effect.

Sterling gained slightly to $4.85⅝, for the first advance this week. The Belgian franc sustained a sympathetic reaction to 3.70½ cents, a loss of 6 points. Italian, Spanish, Swiss and the Scandinavians were dull and virtually unchanged. The Chinese were heavy, but Japanese yen turned higher. South Americans failed to show any startling changes.

Telephone Company Disbursed $2.25 Each on its 9,200,000 Common Shares.

FIVE CONCERNS PAY EXTRAS

Borne-Scrymser and C. & O. on $4 Additional Basis—Payments by 114 Companies.

Of the quarterly dividends paid yesterday by 114 corporations, the feature was the payment of $2.25 by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company on 9,200,000 shares of common stock, making a total disbursement of $20,700,000.

Extra dividends were paid by only five of the 114 companies, the highest being $4, paid by two companies, and the lowest 50 cents, paid by one.

The $4 extra dividend was paid by the Borne-Scrymser Company, one of the Standard Oil group, which also paid its regular dividend of $4; and by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, in addition to a regular dividend of $2 on the common.

Other companies paying extra dividends were the Quaker Oats Company, $2.50 extra and $1.25 regular on common; the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad, $1.25 extra and $1.25 regular on common, and $1.50 on certificates of deposit, and the Mountain Gulf & Oil Company, 50 cents extra and $1 regular on common.

The lowest regular dividend was 12½ cents, paid by the New Bradford Oil Company and the Kerr Lakes Mines, Ltd. Next above this came the 15-cent payment on the special $10 par stock of the General Electric Company. The third lowest was Fifth Avenue Bus Securities, paying 16⅔ cents.

Some of the larger companies which paid dividends yesterday were International Paper Company, Nickel Plate Railroad, Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company, International Telephone & Telegraph Company, International Harvester Company, New York Telephone Company, United States Radiator, Southern Railway Company, Western Union Telegraph, Bell Telephone Company of Canada, United States Smelting, National Biscuit, and Tobacco Products Company.

B. & O. AWAITS I. C. C. RULING

Petition to Acquire Mid-Western Road Now Being Considered.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad is awaiting action of the Interstate Commerce Commission on its application to acquire control of the Cincinnati, Indianapolis & Western Railroad, of which 90 per cent. of the stock outstanding has been deposited in favor of the offer of the B. & O. to pay $24.50 for the preferred and $14.50 for the common. The 50 cents in each case goes to Kuhn, Loeb & Co. as agent for C., I. & W. holders.

Acquisition of the road by the Baltimore & Ohio, it was said Wednesday in a hearing before Examiner Davis, would result in the establishment of the shortest route between Kansas City and tidewater. If the application is approved, B. & O. representatives say that the roadbed and equipment of the smaller road will be adapted to the handling of trunk line traffic.

NEW OFFERING

$4,000,000

Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company

Due January 1, 1948

Price 99½ and interest

Dated January 1, 1926. Interest payable January 1 and July 1 without deduction for Federal Income Taxes now or hereafter deductible at the source, not in excess of 2%. Principal and interest will be payable at the holder's option either in United States gold coin at the office of The Minnesota Loan and Trust Company, Trustee, Minneapolis, or at the offices of Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., in New York and Chicago, or in Canadian gold coin at the offices of The Dominion Bank in Toronto Montreal, St. John, Winnipeg and Vancouver. Denominations $1,000, $500, and $100.

The Company: Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company, incorporated in 1908 under the laws of the State of Maine, is with its subsidiaries among the largest newsprint paper manufacturers in the world. The plants are strategically located for low cost manufacture and distribution of the products which also include sulphate (Kraft) pulp, Insulite, lumber and other forest products. The ownership and operations constitute a self contained unit from the fundamental requisites—power and raw materials—through to the finished products. The actual holdings in Minnesota and Ontario are reliably estimated to contain sufficient pulpwood and sawlog timber to keep the present paper mills and sawmills in operation beyond the maturity of these Series B Bonds. The timber supply in Minnesota and Ontario contiguous and tributary to the mills embraces a forest area of approximately 50,000 square miles and contains an almost inexhaustible supply of spruce pulpwood and other paper-making woods.

Security: The First Mortgage Sinking Fund Gold Bonds will be secured by a direct or collateral first lien on all the physical property now owned or which may be hereafter acquired by the Company and on all physical property owned by its principal subsidiaries.

The hydro-electric and hydraulic developments, paper and sawmill plants have been appraised by independent experts. These appraisals alone, exclusive of the value of timber lands, timber permits, and pulpwood and timber limits in Minnesota and Ontario, aggregate an amount largely in excess of the First Mortgage Sinking Fund Gold Bonds to be presently outstanding.

The consolidated balance sheet of Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company and Subsidiary Companies, as of December 31, 1925, giving effect to the present financing and the appraisals of the fixed property discloses net tangible assets after deducting all liabilities except these Bonds, and net current assets of $62,297,329.98 and $12,713,895.33 respectively.

Sinking Fund: A Sinking Fund, sufficient to retire all Series B Bonds by maturity, will be provided which will acquire, either by purchase or redemption, and cancel $1,250,000 principal amount of these Series B Bonds on or before January 1 of each of the years 1946 and 1947, and $1,500,000 principal amount on or before January 1, 1948.

Earnings: Although reflecting no return on over $13,000,000 expended or being expended on properties to be presently in operation the average annual consolidated net earnings, after depletion, local taxes and liberal charges for maintenance and repairs, but before providing for interest, depreciation and income taxes, during the three-year period ended December 31, 1925, as certified by independent auditors, were $3,240,337.17. Maximum annual interest charges on First Mortgage Sinking Fund Gold Bonds require $1,200,000.

FINDS OTHER LINES COSTLY TO ST. PAUL

Expert's Inquiry Shows Gary Terre Haute Greater Burden Than Was Indicated.

SAYS ROAD LOST ON FREIGHT

Documentary evidence submitted by J. J. Hickey, attorney for the Interstate Commerce Commission and Chief of its Inquiry Bureau, during the recent hearings in the Commission's investigation of the receivership of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St Paul Railway Company, tends to show that both the Terre Haute and Gary lines, acquired by the St. Paul, were far greater burdens to the latter than oral testimony has yet indicated.

This evidence also indicates that the St. Paul paid far above the market price for coal and lost large amounts in revenue by hauling freight over the Gary, or longer route, instead of over the Indiana Harbor Belt Line. According to Mr. Hickey, oral testimony has pointed strongly toward the probability that one group constantly controlled the St. Paul through perpetuation of the same interests on the directorate, and that directors were chosen and then their qualifying shares paid for by the St. Paul itself.

Documents Go in Record.

The documentary evidence was submitted by Mr. Hickey without being read aloud or commented on at the time of presentation. It was presented en masse in the form of exhibits and is now a part of the record upon which the Interstate Commerce Commission will base its findings, but it escaped publication because of the manner of its submission. It is largely the result of an examination of the St. Paul's financial and physical condition by Interstate Commerce Commission experts.

Exhibit 158, for instance, which is a "statement showing financial burden as of June 30, 1925, assumed by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company as the result of leasing the lines of the Terre Haute," reads as follows:

"Rentals paid for the leased lines July 1, 1921, to June 30, 1925, $3,910,587.81. Net deficit from operation of the leased lines for the period July 1, 1921, to June 30, 1925, $4,026,206.49. Net loss suffered by the St. Paul in the liquidation of advances made to the Terre Haute, $693,323.97. Total other cash expenditures by the St. Paul, representing cost of securities purchased, unliquidated advances and other items occasioned by the leasing of the Terre Haute, $2,173,641.77. Total financial burden, $10,803,960.04.

Guaranteed Funded Debt.

"In addition to the rentals paid for the leased lines a contingent liability of $22,296,400 existed at June 30, 1925, resulting from the guaranty by the St. Paul of Terre Haute funded debt as required by the indenture of the lease dated July 1, 1921.

"Operating expenses included in 'net deficit from operation of the leased lines' are burdened with the cost of transporting a large tonnage of coal for the fuel needs of the St. Paul. No revenue therefor is included in operating revenues and no deduction reflecting the cost of transporting that fuel has been made from these operating expenses."

An exhibit covering "Cash advanced by the St. Paul to the Gary subsequent to Dec. 31, 1921, for the payment of bond interest or other corporate purposes," contains the following items:

Year ended Dec. 31, 1924	362,000
Six months ended June 30, 1925	210,000

"No interest charges have been assessed against the Gary on these advances," the document says.

Another exhibit sets forth that, during the four-year period ended Dec. 31, 1925, the St. Paul paid the Gary $1,065,958.46 for hauling coal, where if the same coal had been routed over the Indiana Harbor Belt line the amount would have been only $117,527.50.

Coal Revenue Losses.

Still another exhibit says that in December, 1924, revenue from shipments other than coal amounted to $39,202.31 whereas, had the Indiana Harbor Belt line been used instead of the Gary, the revenue would have been $71,790.23. This shows the St. Paul to have lost revenue at the rate of $391,055.04 a year as a result of using the Gary.

Mr. Hickey said recent testimony indicated that the Rockefeller interests were in control of the St. Paul not only while Percy A. Rockefeller was a member of its Board of Directors, but also after he had resigned from the directorate but was still present at board meetings.

"Testimony of several directors," Mr. Hickey continued, "was that they had little or no financial interest in the Gary. One of them admitted he was made a director of the St. Paul when he owned no share of its stock and the statement of the St. Paul's own attorney indicated that this director's qualifying shares had been purchased for him by the company without his knowledge.

"We have found also, upon examination of the St. Paul's records, that it was paying more for coal than the market price as of April, 1925. It was paying $2.40 for lump and $2.20 for 'mine run' coal at a time when the market price of lump coal was around $2.10 and that for mine run was $1.95.

"As matters stand now it seems to me that this investigation cannot be concluded without having hearings simultaneously in New York, Chicago and probably in Washington."

Mr. Hickey said this would, of course, require the assignment of others of the Interstate Commission in addition to Commissioner Frederick I. Cox, now conducting the hearings, to preside at the various places. The hearings here will be resumed Tuesday or Wednesday of next week.

KRENN & DATO OPEN HERE.

New York Office to Sell Edith Rockefeller McCormick Trust Bonds

A New York office has been opened in the Trinity Building by Krenn & Dato, Inc., agents for the Edith Rockefeller McCormick Trust of Chicago. Sales of real estate bonds based on holdings of the trust in Chicago will be made by the new office, which is under the management of Joseph P. Simmons. Only wholesale allotment of securities is to be made for the present and the concern will handle only its own bonds.

Capital of the trust, which was founded by Edith Rockefeller McCormick, is approximately $9,000,000, comprising $6,000,000 of Standard Oil securities and $3,000,000 of others.

BANKS FORM BUREAU FOR UTILITY BONDS

Department of Association of Savings Institutions to Give Security Data.

A bureau to supply banks in all parts of the country with information on public utility bonds has been established here, it was learned yesterday. The first of its kind, the bureau was organized by the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks and is known as the Research Bureau of Public Utilities. Its offices are at 11 East Thirty-sixth Street.

At present, public utility bonds are not legal investments for savings banks in this State. Yesterday, however, a bill which would make approved telephone, gas and electrical company bonds legal for their investments was reported out by the Rules Committee of the State Senate, after having been passed recently in the Assembly. Enactment of the law is expected to give the bureau an important status in banking circles. Eleven other States have already passed such laws.

The bureau indicates the great strides which public utility securities have made in the investment field in recent years. Last year, for instance, new financing by public utilities totaled $1,498,000,000 or more than the combined new financing of all railroads, iron, steel and automobile industries, coal and copper mines and oil and rubber companies.

Formation of the bureau resulted from action taken by the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks at its convention in Poland, Me., last June. A committee under the chairmanship of Wilson G. Wing, President of the Providence Institute for Savings, Providence, R. I., was named to recommend action on the establishment of the bureau. The committee consulted with a group representing thirty public utilities and financial houses interested in public utilities.

The bureau has been in process of organization since the beginning of the year. John Balch Blood, a former member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, is Director. Clinton W. Harrison, Executive Vice President of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, is associate Director.

Among the public utility interests which helped organize the bureau were the Brooklyn Edison Company, North American Company, American Light and Traction Company, Associated Gas and Electric Company, Adirondack Power and Light Corporation, H. M. Byllesby & Co., Harris, Forbes & Co., Commonwealth Power Corporation, Dillon, Read & Co., Electric Bond and Share Company, Howe, Snow & Bertles, Public Servvice Stock and Bond Corporation, Stone & Webster, Inc., Utilities Securities Corporation of Chicago and the United Light and Power Company. While these interests have taken an important part in the formation of the bureau, it is intended that eventually the bureau will be supported entirely by memberships taken out by banks in all parts of the country.

EXCHANGE SUSPENDS M. G. AND J. B. MORGAN

Finds Two Members Guilty of Violating Trading Rule—Imposes One-Year Penalty.

Morgan G. Morgan and John B. Morgan of the firm of Bouvier & Morgan were suspended from the New York Stock Exchange for one year, according to an announcement yesterday by E. H. H. Simmons, President of the Exchange. The substance of the charge against the two members, who were specialists on the floor of the Exchange, was that they were found guilty on Feb. 25, 1926, of buying stock of the Independent Oil and Gas Company for their own account at a price at which they agreed to protect the interests of another member during his absence from his post.

Later in the day it was announced that the firm of Bouvier & Morgan, with offices at 60 Broadway, had been dissolved. The members of the firm included the two partners who have been suspended and John V. Bouvier 3d. Morgan G. Morgan has held membership in the Exchange since Aug. 4, 1921, and John B. Buckley was elected a member on Sept. 14, 1922.

The announcement of the Stock Exchange said charges had been filed against the two members under Section 7, Article 17, of the constitution. The charges were considered at a meeting of the Board of Governors held on Wednesday at which both members were present. Following the hearings both were found guilty and suspended. Section 7, Article 17, of the constitution follows:

"A member who shall have been adjudged by a majority vote of all the existing members of the Governing Committee guilty of a violation of the constitution of the Exchange, or guilty of a violation of a rule adopted pursuant to the constitution, or guilty of the violation of a resolution of the Governing Committee regulating the conduct or business of members, or guilty of conduct or proceeding inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trade, may be suspended or expelled as the said committee may determine, unless the offense is the violation of a resolution or rule for which a different penalty has been provided, in which case such other penalty may be imposed."

TO STUDY STORES ABROAD.

W. N. Rothschild Goes to Europe—Will Attend London Conference.

Walter N. Rothschild, Vice President and Merchandising Director of Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn, will sail at midnight tonight on the Olympic for Europe, where for several weeks he will study European market conditions and department store methods.

The itineary chosen by Mr. Rothschild includes Cherbourg, Vienna, Berlin, Brussels, Paris and London. In London Mr. Rothschild will attend a conference of the Associated Merchandising Corporation, an organization comprising eighteen American department stores, the executives of which, at the invitation of their English member, Harrod's, are making a study of the famous London establishment.

Rand Mines Year's Net £575,747.

In its report for 1925 Rand Mines, Ltd., shows a net profit, after expenses, taxes, &c., of £575,747, as against £771,629 in 1924. Total income for 1925 was £862,739, against £858,382. Expenses were £46,543 and taxes £40,449. These items in the preceding year were, respectively, £35,530 and £51,203. After dividends of £511,287 last year surplus was £54,460, against £156,084.

Allis-Chalmers Income.

The Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company reports a net income for the two months ended Feb. 28 of $503,907, after depreciation and taxes.

W. G. VAN DE WATER 50 YEARS WITH ROAD

STRESSES 'FAMILY FEELING'

Finds Forming Friends in Business Essential—Makes Motto 'Don't Take Yourself too Seriously.'

William G. Van De Water, Secretary and Treasurer of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, celebrated his fiftieth anniversary yesterday as an employe of that road. He was showered with congratulations from members of the Lackawanna staff and entertained at an office party late in the afternoon. A ladder beside his desk held one step for each ten years of service.

Twenty-five years ago, Mr. Van De Water said, an intimate friend handed him a card which read "Don't Take Yourself Too Seriously." Following that advice he believes has made it possible for him to round out a half century of hard work.

"If I'd let things worry me," he declared, "I'd be in the grave now. I'd also be there if it hadn't been for my wife. She takes care of me and keeps me toeing the mark. Our life has been a continuous day of happiness."

His success as an executive Mr. Van De Water largely attributes to emphasizing the "family feeling." People spend more time at work, he says, than they do at play and "should be ashamed of themselves" if they fail to make friendships among their business associates.

"In the old days," he said, "we worked longer hours, but we didn't get nearly as much done. We wrote a few letters with a pen, made a few personal calls and let the rest go by the board. Now we write more letters in a railroad office in a day than we used to write in a year."

Railroading is not a fruitful field for the college man, in his opinion, unless the college man is willing to begin at a very moderate salary. College graduates are seldom willing to do this, he said, preferring to begin in "jobs where they can push buttons."

Mr. Van De Water was born on Bleecker Street in this city and has spent most of his life here. His family, which is of Dutch origin, was honored in the naming of Vandewater Street. He entered the employ of the Lackawanna Express Company as office boy in 1876, was an express messenger from 1878 to 1883, a clerk from 1883 to 1884; cashier, 1884 to 1885 and agent from 1885 to July, 1886. He became a clerk in the auditing department of the railroad in 1906 and from then on was promoted rapidly until March, 1920, when he was selected as Secretary and Treasurer.

"Your splendid record of service in the various important branches of the activities of the company," wrote President Davis of the Lackawanna to him yesterday, "is very remarkable and I think you can justly be proud of it."

TRADE PACE SLOWER, BUT VOLUME IS GOOD

Cleveland Banker Finds Easing of Speculation Gives Sober Tone to Business.

Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, Vice President of the Cleveland Trust Company, in the April bulletin of that institution, says that "the most important development of the first quarter of the year has been the termination of the bull market for stocks and the beginning of a bear market."

"There is little foundation," the bulletin continues, "in the oft-repeated claim that serious reverses in the security market need have no harmful implications for trade and industry, and still less in the assertion that a decline in prices of stocks will tend to stabilize general business. Business sentiment is better, in truth, and constructive initiative is more bravely exercised when prices are rising.

"The great decline in stock prices has affected a recession in the phenomenal real estate boom in Florida, and, as well, reports show that minor real estate booms, which have been noted in suburban sections of many large cities, are dwindling. Notwithstanding these facts, building operations are more or less on the rise, and especially in Florida, where, despite a market decline in speculative land values, more building is actually in progress than was the case a year ago at this time.

"In the country as a whole the more important indicators of trade and industrial activities show that general business has been going forward at properity levels during the first quarter of this year. Steel production, car loadings, automobile output, bank clearings and building construction have made new first quarter records. Employment totals have been well maintained. Failures have been a little more numerous than last year, and wholesale commodity prices, in continuing to decline, have constituted the one really serious weak spot in the general situation. The evidence begins to indicate that industry has been holding up better than wholesale and retail trade, and it may be that production is beginning to run somewhat ahead of consumption.

"The slowing down of speculation in securities and in real estate has given a more sober tone to general business. Industry is very active, employment is good, agricultural prospects are promising and trade is better than fair. In general it may be said that business during the first quarter has been good in most lines, and that during the second quarter at a pace that is distinctly moderated from the high speed of the closing months of 1925, but which is, nevertheless, fairly satisfactory."

OPPOSE ATLANTA ROAD SALE

Stockholders Say Offer Would Make Holdings Worthless.

Charles E. Cottrell, an attorney of Atlanta, Ga., announced yesterday that a protective committee was being formed to represent stockholders of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic in contesting the proposed sale of that railroad to the Atlantic, Birmingham & Coast Railway, a newly formed subsidiary of the Atlantic Coast Line.

The Atlantic Coast Line has offered to buy the road by the payment of 60 cents on the dollar of the outstanding first mortgage and income bonds. This offer makes the stock worthless and the stockholders believe it should share in the sale. Mr. Cottrell has notified the Interstate Commerce Commission of the committee's intention to oppose the plan when it comes up for ratification.

STEEL CORPORATION TO MEET ON MONDAY

Financial World Awaits Comments of Judge Gary on Outlook for Business.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation will be held in Hoboken next Monday. This event is looked forward to in stock market circles, as Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the board, usually comments upon the outlook for the steel industry. In view of the current record-breaking operations in the steel industry, and statements regarding falling off in new buying, Judge Gary's statements on the business outlook will attract more than the usual attention.

It is also expected that Judge Gary will have something to say on the recent celebration of the first quarter century of the corporation's existence. This anniversary fell in March, and at the time Judge Gary intimated he might discuss the achievements of the organization since its inception.

The stockholders of the corporation have been promised a treat, in the form of pumpkin pie, at the luncheon which the corporation serves at the meeting. Last year one prominent stockholder who likes pumpkin pie arose at the meeting and asked the executives to furnish pumpkin pie at future meetings. The request met with immediate response, for it seemed to be realized that only canned pumpkin is obtainable at this season and its consumption would aid the tin plate industry. As a result of the request a Pie Committee was appointed at last year's meeting to make arrangements for this year. After functioning for a year, the committee has ordered fifteen pumpkin pies for Monday's meeting.

TRANS-LUX FOR CANADA.

Contract for the installation throughout Canada of the Trans-Lux Daylight Picture Screen Corporation service has been made by the Trans-Lux company with the Canadian National Telegraph Company, it was announced yesterday. The Canadian National holds the same position in Canada in respect to ticker services as the Western Union Company does in this country.

The Western Union Company, through a contract with the Trans-Lux Corporation, acts as agent of the latter concern in taking orders, making installations providing service and collecting rentals in certain cities where Trans-Lux has ticker service.

North American Cement Net.

Net earnings of the North American Cement Company for the first quarter of 1926 totaled $105,478, after depreciation and depletion, but before interest, amortization and Federal taxes, it was reported yesterday.

SHIPMENTS OF GOLD TO CANADA LIKELY

GRAIN TO BE MOVED SOON

110,000,000 Bushels Said to Be Ready for Transfer When Navigation Opens.

A movement of gold from the United States to Canada was forecast yesterday when Canadian exchange advanced to a premium of eleven sixty-fourths of 1 per cent., the highest premium of the present year and the point which theoretically calls for the shipment of gold. Canadian exchange was at about its present level last October during a movement of American gold to the Dominion of more than $40,000,000. Bankers said that undoubtedly gold would be engaged for shipment to Canada today or tomorrow, but that they had not yet heard of any definite arrangements.

The present movement is the result chiefly of the arrival of the active export season for Canadian goods, which will result in large American remittances to the Dominion. Great Lakes and St. Lawrence River navigation is about to open up on a large scale, which will mean heavy shipments of grain and other products to this country. It is reported that 110,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat are ready to be moved, but not all of this will influence exchange, as part of the supply already has been financed.

Bankers said yesterday that there was a broad demand in New York for funds on Canada and that little demand existed in the Dominion for American remittances. In these circumstances they expected the present strength in Canadian exchange to be maintained or to increase. Up to a short time ago Canadian exchange had been at a discount and $66,000,000 of Canadian gold had been shipped to this country this year.

The imports of gold from Canada this year have accounted for a large part of the increases in the gold supplies in this country, which in turn have been partly responsible for the easy credit situation. Despite the likelihood of a return movement of gold to Canada and the improbability of gold being received in quantities from other parts of the world, the views of current import balancers in the commodity trade of the United States bankers expect comparatively cheap money to continue for the present.

CRUDE RUBBER PRICE DECLINE CONTINUES

Gross Loss in Active Months 2 Cents a Pound as Trading Reaches New High Level.

478 LOTS CHANGE HANDS

Crude rubber futures continued their decline to new low levels again yesterday, the gross loss sustained by the more active months averaging more than 2 cents a pound, while the more distant periods tapered slightly from this figure. At present prices the market is at the lowest since last May.

It was the biggest day that the Rubber Exchange has had, 478 contracts changing hands. Business started at a sharp overnight break on a combination of a reaction in London, where spot sheets were down 1½d. at 22½d., together with speculative offerings here. Another factor in the downward swing was the rumor that tire prices were likely to be cut very soon.

The market was affected by the publication of the tire production and shipping figures for February which showed that production was 4,944,386 tires, and shipments of 3,475,653. Stocks on hand at the end of February also showed an increase in inventories of more than 1,250,000 tires compared with the end of January. This had led to the rumor among brokers and dealers, and the trade generally, of the imminence of a price cut in tires. Wires have reached some houses in the city from Akron, the chief tire producing centre of the country, that manufacturers there had informally discussed this possibility to move the vast stocks on hand. In one quarter it was said that a contributing cause to the slow moving of stock was the lateness of the season, and the out-of-the-season storms which have visited the Western sections of the country.

Another bearish factor has been the steady climbing of stocks in the warehouses of London, this total having risen to 15,300 tons as of April 10, with the expectation that the current statement will reveal a still further increase. This would represent an advance of more than 100 per cent. in holdings in London.

Range of prices for the active deliveries, follows:

Other months closed: August 45.20, October 44.60, November 44.30.

Spots were quoted at 48.30.

Business in the Street market was also done at sizable concessions from Wednesday's prices. At the day's lowest the market was down about 3 cents a pound, with spot sheets at 46 cents and first late crepe at 47 cents. Other grades lost ground. Volume of contracts turned over showed a big jump over recent figures.

	Spot.	May-June.	July-Sept.
Rubbed smoked sheets	.46	.45	.43
First latex crepe	.47	.46	.44
Amber, No. 3	.43	.42	.40

Para up-river	.40	.39	.37

Tire reclaimed, 11c; shoe, 10c; tube, 19c.

On the Cocoa and Rubber Exchange twelve lots were sold. These were, three May at 44.70 cents, four July at 43.50 cents, one at 44 cents, two September at 44 cents and two at 45 cents.

LONDON, April 15 (AP).—The rubber market in Mincing Lane developed decided weakness today in all positions, going below two shillings a pound as compared with the high level of four shillings sixpence prevailing last July. Spot and April rubber was quoted at 22¾d. and October-December at 22¼d.

Since the attack of Secretary of Commerce Hoover on the Stevenson scheme of curtailing rubber supplies and the institution of an economy campaign in the United States by an increased use of old rubber, there has been a gradual sliding tendency in rubber prices. This has been checked only by the excellent dividends declared by many companies as a result of the high prices of 1925.

Rubber stocks in London have increased week by week and the exports from Malaya during March have been much larger than expected, being being further increased by supplies of native rubber.

The trade demand is not so good, especially from the United States, the latter evidently drawing supplies from other sources. The rubber market consequently was unable to withstand the depressing influence despite bumper dividends and the quotations on shares has been downward almost daily.

NOTE CIRCULATION GAINS

Acceptances up $44,300,000—New York Bank Gains $33,800,000 in Deposits.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The consolidated condition statement of the Federal Reserve Banks on April 14, made public by the Federal Reserve Board, shows increases during the week of $44,300,000 in holdings of acceptances purchased in open market, $35,000,000 in Government securities, $28,200,000 in Federal Reserve note circulation and $91,600,000 in member banks' reserve deposits, with only a nominal change in total holdings of discounted bills.

Discount holdings of the New York Reserve Bank increased $33,800,000 during the week and those of the Cleveland and Richmond banks $4,600,000 and $4,200,000 respectively, while holdings of the Chicago bank declined $19,100,000; of Philadelphia, $7,600,000; Atlanta, $6,700,000, and Boston, $4,300,000.

Open market acceptance holdings were larger than a week ago at all of the banks except Cleveland, which shows a small decrease. The principal increases in this item for the week were: New York, $19,300,000; Minneapolis, $11,300,000, and Boston, $4,800,000.

All classes of Government security holdings increased during the week. United States bonds by $19,100,000, Treasury notes by $8,600,000 and Treasury certificates by $7,300,000.

Relatively little change is shown in Federal Reserve note circulation except in the case of the Atlanta bank, which reports an increase of $34,300,000, due largely to the shipment of currency to Cuba to meet recent heavy withdrawals of deposits from the local banks.

A summary of changes in the principal assets and liabilities of the Reserve banks during the week and the year ended April 14 follows:

$15,000,000 FOR LOEW'S, INC.

Syndicate Offers $7,500,000 Missouri Bonds—$4,000,000 Issue for Paper Co.—Other Offerings.

The largest piece of railroad financing in almost three months is announced for today in the form of $17,030,000 of Pennsylvania Railroad equipment trust certificates. A large volume of municipal and industrial bonds also will reach the market, and the total offerings exceed those of any previous day this week.

The Pennsylvania issue bears 4½ per cent. interest, and the certificates mature in equal annual instalments in from three to fifteen years. The issue is being offered by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in equal amounts of all maturities, at an average price of 98¾, and accrued interest, for an average yield of over 4.67 per cent. The certificates will be secured by new standard steel equipment costing approximately $24,400,000, of which 30 per cent. in cash will be paid in by the railroad company. This issue is the largest railroad financing of the present year except $30,000,000 of Baltimore & Ohio bonds sold last January by a Kuhn, Loeb & Co. syndicate.

$15,000,000,000 Issue for Loew's, Inc.

A $15,000,000 issue of Loew's, Inc., 15-year 6 per cent. sinking fund gold debentures being formally offered today by Dillon, Read & Co. and the National City Company is priced at 99½ and interest, to yield about 6.05 per cent. Each debenture will carry a warrant entitling the holder to purchase common shares of Loew's, Inc., in the ratio of five shares for each $1,000 principal amount of debentures, at $55 a share, at any time up to April 1, 1931.

Offering will be made today of $7,500,000 State of Missouri 4¼ per cent. bonds by a syndicate composed of Eldredge & Co., Kean, Taylor & Co., George B. Gibbons & Co., Roosevelt & Son and the Federal Commerce Trust Company of St. Louis. The bonds, which mature from 1933 to 1943, are priced to yield 4.05 per cent. They are legal investments for savings banks in New York.

An issue of $4,000,000 Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company first mortgage sinking fund 6 per cent. bonds will be placed on public sale today by a group headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co. and the Minnesota Loan and Trust Company. The bonds mature Jan. 1, 1948, and are priced at 99¼ and interest. With its subsidiaries, the company is a large manufacturer of newsprint, pulp and other products. Net earnings for the thirteen months ended Dec. 31 were $3,800,224.

$1,369,000 Los Angeles Bonds.

The Detroit Company, Inc., and the Anglo-London-Paris Company are distributing $1,369,000 Los Angeles, Cal., short term 4½ and 4¾ per cent. bonds. Maturities are from 1930 to 1935, and the bonds are priced to yield from 4.25 to 4.30 per cent.

E. H. Rollins & Sons, Blyth, Witter & Co., Eastman, Dillon & Co., the Federal Securities Corporation and H. M. Byllesby & Co., Inc., are marketing $1,000,000 Jersey Central Power and Light Company first mortgage and refunding twenty-year 5½ per cent. sinking fund gold bonds, Series A, due Feb. 1, 1945. They are priced at 97½ and interest, to yield over 5.70 per cent. The company supplies electric light and power to 173 communities and gas service to 50 communities in northern and eastern New Jersey.

The Union Trust Company of Chicago is offering $750,000 of 6 per cent. serial gold notes of the Dayton Rubber Manufacturing Company. The issue will be paid off in annual instalments of $150,000 beginning in 1927 and continuing through 1931. The bonds are priced to yield from 5 to 6.05 per cent.

Lawrence Stern & Co. and the Union Trust Company of Chicago are offering a $1,800,000 first mortgage leasehold 6 per cent. serial bond issue of the State Lake Building Corporation, secured by the building at the southwest corner of State and Lake Streets, Chicago. Maturities range up to seventeen years.

WINS QUICK PROMOTION.

Ex-Phone Boy Now Partner in Firm and Member of Curb Exchange.

Vincent E. Elwell, 21 years old, who five years ago was employed by the New York Curb Exchange as a telephone boy, yesterday was admitted to full membership of the Exchange, the seat of J. L. Penney being transferred to him. Elwell was elected as a partner in the firm of John L. Morgenthau & Co.

Elwell entered the employ of the Exchange on June 27, 1921, when the market moved into its new quarters in Trinity Place. Later he was promoted to the reportorial staff, with assignment to the bond group. His election yesterday identified him as the first employe of the Exchange to become a member.

Included in this report is a profit of $2,579,105, realized from the sale of investments in the Adams Express Company Building.

Calls for Condition of Banks.

WASHINGTON, April 15 (AP).—The Controller of the Currency today issued a call for the condition of all national banks at the close of business on Monday, April 12.

AUTOMOBILE SALES MORE THAN YEAR AGO

Production Also Shows Marked Gains, Says Automotive Industries.

Continued satisfaction with the status of the automobile industry has been expressed by manufacturers and dealers. Even though dealers' stocks of unsold cars are somewhat high in comparison with a year ago at this time, sales have shown normal Spring increases and have apparently justified heavier buying in anticipation of the Summer demand, according to Automotive Industries.

At some of the factories record-breaking production was reported.

Some concern has been felt in various quarters regarding the used car situation, because, in view of the exceptional production of new cars and trucks, distributers and dealers have been hard put to it to reduce their stocks of used cars. The factories are doing all in their power to aid dealers in conducting their used car business on a sound basis.

The general situation is reported as follows by the trade journal:

"Sales to date this year are figured roughtly as 20 per cent. over those of the corresponding period of 1925. Production has been running, until the last two or three weeks, at an even greater rate of increase, but it must be considered that stocks held by dealers at the beginning of Spring a year ago were inadequate to meet the demand that developed. Hence manufacturers are naturally desirous of having their dealers in position to give prompt deliveries at all times."

SUGAR PRICES ADVANCE.

Refiners Mark Up Lists on Cuban Crop Curtailment.

As a direct result of the Cuban Cabinet's acceptance of the proposal to restrict the present sugar crop 10 per cent., prices of refined sugar advanced sharply yesterday.

The Warner Sugar Corporation increased its quotation 35 points, to 5.60 cents, which compares with a low of 5 cents on March 8, and a previous high of 5.40 on Jan. 29. Advances of 15 points, to 5.40 cents, were announced by the American Sugar Refining Company, the National Sugar Refining Company and E. Atkins & Co. Arbuckle Brothers quoted 5.20 cents for prompt delivery and 5.25 cents on delayed shipments. Federal Sugar Refining Company went up 25 points, to 5.25 cents and Pacific Coast refiners increased their prices 15 points, to 5.60 cents. British refiners were up 6d.

In the raw sugar market the American Sugar Refining Company bought 26,000 bags of Cuban raws, clearing immediately, at 2⅜ cents, charges and freight, which is an advance of 1-32 of a cent.

EQUITABLE OFFICE CO. NET.

Reports to Stock Exchange $780,916 Profit for 1925.

A net profit of $780,916 after interest, depreciation, taxes, &c., is shown for 1925 in a statement submitted to the New York Stock Exchange by the Equitable Office Building Corporation.

The income account contained the following: Earned rentals, $2,915,277; other income, $187,580; total income, $3,102,857; expenses, real estate taxes, interest, &c., $2,051,255; depreciation, $179,517; Federal taxes, $91,169; net profits, $780,916.

Total assets of the corporation were $39,533,949. Cash was $54,007; accounts receivable, $89,863; inventories $89,110, and property account, $33,981,425. Liabilities, including accounts payable, $401,027; dividends payable, $243,750; tax reserve, $93,295, and accrued items and taxes, $433,306, were $39,385,523. Surplus was $168,426.

GASOLINE PRICES FIRMER.

Mid-Continent Refiners Advance Motor Grade ⅛ Cent.

Gasoline prices were a shade firmer in the midcontinent district yesterday.

The large refiners advanced the wholesale market for United States motor grade gasoline ⅛ cent a gallon, from 10½ to 10⅝ cents. A similar advance was announced in some of the higher grades.

The Standard Oil Company of Indiana, according to advices received in local trade circles yesterday, has abandoned its previous policy of allowing quantity discounts, so far as "multiple delivery" is concerned. This action, it is understood, removes the principal cause of complaints brought by independent operators and is expected to result in the dropping of the case brought against the company by the Wisconsin Department of Markets.

REVIEWS ALCOHOL CO. TRADE

Head of United States Industrial Concern Sees Good Prospects.

H. S. Rubins, President of the United States Industrial Alcohol Company, speaking at the annual stockholders' meeting yesterday, declared that although the company was in the midst of a trade war conditions were fairly encouraging.

"We are doing very well," he said, "and United States Chemical Company, our subsidiary, is doing better than at any time in its history. Foreign competition, which is not direct except to a limited extent as a solvent, has not interfered with the expansion of our business."

Granby Mining Reduces Deficit.

Net profit for 1925 of the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting and Power Company, Ltd., and subsidiaries was $1,107,234 after expenses, taxes and interest, comparing witnh $832,392 in 1924. After provision for depreciation and depletion reserves of $1,610,883, deficit was $503,748, against deficit for 1924 of $772,373. Gross and other income totaled $6,846,627. Operating costs were $5,086,858; expenses and taxes reached $389,578, and interest was $262,956.

Associated Gas Output Up 22.1%.

Operating companies of the Associated Gas and Electric System reported an increase of 22.1 per cent. in their output of electricity for the four weeks ended April 9, compared with the same period a year ago. Gas output gained 12 per cent. Of the larger electrical units in the system, the Pennsylvania group reported a gain of 19.4 per cent., New York State 20.7, Kentucky-Tennessee 6.1, Staten Island 50.8, and Harlem Valley 17.9.

Fanny Farmer Sales Increase.

Fanny Farmer Candy Shops, Inc., report sales for March of $232,211, as compared with $163,040 in the same month last year, or a gain of 42.1 per cent. Sales for the first quarter were $692,016, as against $506,672, for the first quarter last year, or a gain of 36.5 per cent.

Lebanon Bank Increases Capital.

Authorization from the Controller of Currency having been received, the Lebanon National Bank of New York has increased its capital from $250,000 to $500,000, it was announced yesterday.

PLENTIFUL SUPPLY SENDS COTTON DOWN

BRITISH EXPORTS LOWER

Board of Trade Figures Show Decline in Both Yarn and Cloth Movement.

Though the covering of May commitments continued on a liberal scale yesterday, the amount of cotton for sale supplied all contracts wanted at a slightly lower range of prices and closing quotations showed a loss of 8 to 13 points. Blocks of May were taken from the ring during the morning at 180 points over December, but later in the session May was for sale 54 points over July, which eased the entire list. A sharp advance in wheat and a steadier stock market proved without influence on the course of cotton. Showers occurred at forty-one stations in Texas and temperatures were again below a seasonable level. Weather in the Canadian Northwest was considerably warmer than in northern sections of the cotton belt and the Weather Bureau predicted frosts in several Southern States for last night.

Only two stations in the entire belt, one in Georgia and the other in Florida, reported maximum temperatures of 80 degrees yesterday. Several States experienced minimum temperatures in the 30s. This is in decided contrast with the situation a year ago and four-fifths of the reporting stations showed maximum temperatures ranging between 80 and 94 degrees.

British Board of Trade figures showed exports of 16,000,000 pounds of yarn during March, compared with 18,000,000 last year, and 403,000,000 yards of cloth compared with 417,000,000 yards last March.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

SIR MATTHEW NATHAN HERE.

Ex-Governor of Queensland Studies Stock Exchange Operations.

Sir Matthew Nathan, former Governor of Queensland, Australia, and of a number of British Colonies, was a guest at the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. Samuel F. Streit, President of the Stock Exchange Clearing Corporation, accompanied Sir Matthew with the superintendent of the Exchange, and later he was accompanied to the trading floor by E. H. H. Simmons, President of the Exchange. Sir Matthew has been in Washington for some time making a study of some of our Governmental departments.

After long service in the British Army, Sir Matthew headed the Government of Sierra Leone in 1899. For the next three years he was Governor of the Gold Coast, after which he was made Governor of Hongkong. After two years of service as Governor of Natal, he was appointed to various portfolios in the British Government and special committeeships under Government supervision. In 1920 he was made Governor of Queensland, a position which he held until last year.

PACKER'S EARNINGS HIGHER.

Libby, McNeill, Libby shows for the fiscal year ended March 6, 1926 a net income of $2,405,414 after charges and taxes, which is equal to $13.36 a share earned on 180,000 shares of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock. This is against $1,433,828, or $7.96 a share the year before. Accrued unpaid preferred dividends of the company amount to 2½ per cent.

After payment of preferred dividends of $630,000 last year, surplus was $1,775,414. Surplus the year before was $1,433,828, no provision for dividend requirements having been made. Previous surplus was $3,450,998, thus making the profit and loss surplus $5,226,412.

Gorham Net Is $591,202.

For the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1926, the Gorham Manufacturing Company shows a net income of $591,202, after depreciation, Federal taxes, &c., which is equivalent to $15.43 a share earned on 38,291 shares of 7 per cent. cumulative first preferred stock. In the year preceding the net profit was $325,901, or $8.51 a share. Current assets were $6,092,694, compared with $5,745,586 in the year before, and current liabilities were $910,534, as against $1,061,097 in the previous year. Profit and lass surplus last year was $917,104 as against $325,901.

Keystone Tire's Deficit $87,030.

A deficit of $87,030, after depreciation, interest and taxes, is shown by the Keystone Tire and Rubber Company in its report for 1925. In the preceding year the deficit was $277,853. According to the consolidated income account gross profit was $12,155 and other income reached $19,394. Operating expenses were $84,859, while interest, depreciation and taxes totaled $14,326. Profit and loss deficit was $3,462,788, against $3,356,599 in 1924.

Overman Cushion Tire Elects.

R. S. Allen Jr. was elected a Vice President of the Overman Cushion Tire Company, Inc., at the annual meeting yesterday. Benton Overman, E. Burnell and C. M. Manly were appointed as the executive committee, and other officers and directors were re-elected.

Pacific Phone's Quarterly Report.

Quarterly earnings of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company were $2,006,000, after all expenses and taxes, according to a report issued yesterday.

MAY WHEAT RISES IN BUYING MARKETS

Export Demands Covering 1,300,000 Bushels Give Prices a Sharp Upturn.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 15.—A material increase in outside interest in wheat swept values up sharply to a new high on the present movement and, in the face of immense profit taking, the finish was about the top, with net gains of 1½ to 3⅞ cents, May leading, and later delivery showing further congestion. Local and Eastern shorts were aggressive buyers at times, and there was considerable buying, especially of July, by outsiders.

Unexpected strength in Liverpool, which closed ⅞ to 1½d higher, caught many traders short overnight and led to free buying from the start. At the time the May closed in that market it was only 2⅛ cents over Chicago, compared with around 6 cents recently.

The Canadian Government estimate on the amount of wheat in farmers' hands on March 31, showed a total of 51,000,000 bushels, against 39,000,000 bushels last year, including seed requirements, and suggests that the yield in the three Northwestern Provinces has been underestimated 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 bushels, and indicates around 100,000,000 bushels available for export, or somewhat larger than generally expected.

Primary arrivals today were 450,000 bushels; week ago, 457,000 bushels; last year, 328,000. Shipments were 303,000 bushels; week ago, 296,000; last year, 585,000.

Buying by local professionals and by shorts was largely responsible for a strong turn in corn, the strength in wheat being the dominating influence in changing sentiment, and the close was about the top, with net gains of 1⅜@1½ cents. Outside markets are outbidding Chicago for corn down-State by a wide margin, and there was some improvement in the Eastern demand, with sales of 90,000 bushels.

Not Much Change in Underwear.

So far as men's underwear is concerned, there has not been a great deal of change in the local knit goods market this week. The call for nainsook "athletic" goods has kept up well, especially in the striped novelties and solid color effects, and the belief is expressed in some quarters that the increasing demand for such merchandise is the principal factor in the current dullness of lightweight ribbed underwear and "bals." In other parts of the market, however, the lack of movement of the latter goods is attributed almost entirely to the continued lack of warm weather. Heavyweight underwear for Fall delivery continues neglected for the most part. Rumors are current that some manufacturers, in an endeavor fully to cover production during the April-June quarter, are shading prices quietly, but it is impossible to substantiate them.

Smocks Not Hurting Dress Sales.

The question of whether the wearing of smocks by so many employed girls during business hours will ultimately lessen the sale of dresses apparently does not give manufacturers of the latter garments much concern. While it is admitted that the use of smocks saves quite a little wear on dresses, the feeling is that the aggregate resultant monetary saving will result in larger dress sales, rather than smaller ones. This opinion is based on the belief that girls who use smocks will soon realize that these garments will permit them to wear less expensive dresses to work during the greater part of the year. This, it is predicted, will either bring about a larger sale of cheap dresses or will result in more buying of better-grade garments than heretofore. The latter part of this prediction is based on the belief that many girls, being enabled by the use of smocks to wear cheaper dresses to business, will put the resultant savings into "quality" garments for wear out of office hours.

Will Drop Bolivia Line.

Some careful studying is likely to be indulged in today by executives of dress goods mills when they learn that the Forstmann & Huffmann Company has definitely abandoned the high lustre and high pile coating fabrics and will not show them for next Fall. Fabrics of this type, commonly known as bolivias, have been shown by many mills which have already opened their Fall lines and it appeared to be a foregone conclusion that the pile weaves would again be the Fall's featured goods, despite their spotting propensities. Executives of the Forstmann & Huffmann Company, however, admitted frankly yesterday that it was impossible to eliminate the spotting, with the result that this type of goods will be replaced by other numbers, the exact nature of which has not yet been made public. Just what effect this action will have on the general attitude toward bolivias is the question facing other mill executives, who are wondering whether their production plans for the new season will not have to be recast.

Men's Wear Market Remains Quiet.

Although it had been expected that there would be a gain in men's wear orders for Fall with the passing of Easter, the market here continues quiet. Further business is likely to be held off for two or three weeks, it was said yesterday, until the manufacturers get a fairly definite idea of the probable buying of retailers from the road salesmen who are now out with the initial Fall offerings. The chances favor more business for the mills in overcoatings over the next few weeks, it was held, as retail carryover of overcoats is quite small and consumers have worn their garments for a much longer period than usual this Winter, both facts making for a healthy overcoat business next Fall.

Handbag Demand Continues Good.

Reorders for women's handbags continue to reach wholesalers here in good volume. The demand is divided between leather and silk merchandise, with the former having somewhat the greater call at present. Both the pouch and flat styles are wanted, although most of the later season business is expected to be placed in the small pouch style. Combinations of silk and leather are being shown in some of the newer bags offered, the silk being mainly moire, which gives an effective contrast to the light colored leathers that are favored.

Not Much Done in Gray Goods.

Not much was done in the local gray goods market yesterday. Most of the business put through was for spot and nearby delivery, neither buyers nor sellers showing any great interest in contracts. Sales of printcloths include 39-inch 80-squares at 11¼ cents; 39-inch 72-76s at 9¾ cents; 39-inch 68-72s at 8¾ cents, and 38½-inch 64-60s at 7⅞ cents. Among the rather limited sales of sheetings for the day were 36-inch 5 50s and 6.15s at 6¾ and 8 cents, respectively. Drills were quiet, and not much of importance was done in the sateens. The fine-yarn goods also had rather a dull day.

Outlook for Sports Clothing.

Wholesalers of men's sports clothing and Summer clothing anticipated a good season directly ahead. The real selling period at retail has not opened as yet but, with retail stocks light, a small carryover of such merchandise from last year, and greater numbers of men wearing sports attire every season, prospects are considered very good. The four-piece golf suit, in particular, is expected to do well with golfers and automobilists. Flannel trousers and entire suits of flannel are believed to be destined for much popularity.

Ribbon Trade Is Quiet.

The ribbon trade is in the midst of a quiet period at the moment. Much Spring business is still expected, however, with showings of Fall lines being delayed to the end of the month or possibly later. The demand for ribbons from the millinery trade has been one of the bright spots, many hats being made of belting ribbons. Brocaded merchandise up to five-inch widths has taken well. Most of the orders, however, continue to be for the narrow goods, in which satins, moires and velvets dominate.

Not Too Late for Scarfs.

While the weather has so far militated so strongly against the wearing of suits by women that the sale of fur scarfs has been materially hampered, manufacturers of them have by no means given up the hope of doing a good business. It is realized that the volume of these goods that now may be disposed of at wholesale, due to the rather general lack of consumer demand which has worked against the receipt of important duplicate orders, may not be as large as if the weather had been favorable. However, there are as yet few, if any, indications of the pessimism that leads to price slashing. In some quarters there is a tendency to look for such a gradual warming up of the weather that the season for scarfs will be prolonged considerably. If this should turn out to be the case, much of the business lost earlier in the season would probably be made up. Fox scarfs, especially "silvers" in the higher-priced goods, are especially well thought of.

FALL SHOE STYLES SET BY THE TRADE

Conclusions Come to at Conference of the Footwear and Allied Industries.

SOME HEELS TO BE HIGH

Fancy Leathers Still to Go Into Women's Shoes, but Lasts Show Little Change.

Fall styles in men's, women's and children's shoes were set at the Hotel Astor here yesterday, when the various committees entrusted with working out the details reported their findings and suggestions to the semi-annual Joint Shoe Styles Conference of the footwear and allied industries. The reports were accepted by the numerous delegates to the conference and the data contained in them will govern the production of style and utility merchandise for the Fall wholesale season.

A report covering the recommendations of the various committees, issued after the conference had completed its labors, shows that in women's footwear for general use three principal effects will be emphasized. These will be strap, oxford and "gore and step-in." Present types of lasts, with medium to round toes, will be continued for the new season, while heels will range in height from 8-8 (one inch) to 14-8 (1¾ inches).

The materials to be used in the production of these types of women's footwear for Fall, in accordance with their importance, are arranged in this order by the report: Tan calf or kid, black calf or kid, patent leather, reptilian leathers, and suede and unfinished leathers. The report adds that "the smarter type of shoes recommended under this classification will be appropriate for wear with sports costumes, which it is believed will be popular this Fall and Winter."

Oxfords will dominate in the sports wear field for Fall, with lasts unchanged and heels ranging from an inch to 1¾ inches in height. The favored material will be plain or embossed, with tan leathers and tan leather combinations in favor. The principal patterns in evening slippers will be strap effects and pumps. Lasts will continue as at present, but in this case the heels will run in height from two inches up. Paisley brocades, plain or trimmed, will top the list of favored materials, with others including embossed leathers in the pastel shades; black satin, plain or trimmed; white satin and plain or metal brocade suitable for tinting, and silver and gold brocade.

Strap, oxford and pump effects will be seen in the turn types of women's shoes for "dressy" and informal wear and higher-cut gore effects will also be seen if the recommendations of the conference are carried out. Lasts with medium to medium-round toes will prevail, while the heels will run from less than 1⅜ inches to 2½ inches. The predominance of 1⅜ to 1¾ inch heels, however, will be noticeable.

Novelty leathers, chiefly in reptilian effects, will be mostly used as trimmings, although they will have some importance for use as all-over shoes. Patent leather, plain or trimmed, will be featured among the materials for this type of footwear. Tan and brown leathers in grain or suede, plain or trimmed will also be used considerably, as will black satin and colored leathers other than tan and brown. Black leathers in both grain and suede effects, plain and trimmed, also will be seen.

The report pays particular attention to style in children's shoes for the Fall season. In discussing them the report says that no disposition to make any particular changes in the shapes of lasts in the smaller runs is shown. The feeling of the conference was that broad toe lasts are "just right," and that they should be continued.

"In the larger sizes, from 13 up," the report goes on, "there is a tendency toward medium-round toes with heels to correspond. These range in height upward from five-eigths of an inch, in half-round effects in place of the old square heels.

"In footwear for growing girls improvement is needed, both in lasts and patterns, and this Fall, particularly, there is going to be a great tendency toward full toes with short vamps and 10-8 to 12-8 heels that ought to be considered girlish types of shoes. Styles must be attractive and along the dress or collegiate lines, whichever the case may be, but the utmost attention to the growing foot must be paid. This is important, and should not be neglected.

"Stronger relations between boys' and men's footwear is apparent, and more 'pep' and style are now shown in shoes for lads than ever before. This offers the only opportunity to increase boys' shoes sales. There should be a variety of patterns and leathers, and the prosaic idea of tan and black should be got away from.

"Play shoes should be worked with soft toes, and featured mainly in elk leathers. These are soft and pliable, and almost scuff proof. Soles should be flexible, in order to give the strength and muscular action that is so important to the growing foot."

The report concludes with detailed recommendations concerning shoes and other footwear for juveniles. These cover all types of play and dress shoes, both for girls and boys.

FALL FABRICS FOR SPORT AND TRAVEL

Lines of sport and travel fabrics for dresses, suits and coats, for next Fall were opened yesterday by the Forstmann & Huffmann Company. Thirty-six fabrics make up this sports range, which is entirely different from the formal fabric lines of the company that will be opened next week. Prices of the sports weaves are from 5 to 10 per cent. lower than last Spring fabrics on which comparison may be made. In the repeated fabrics, the company's well known candia is unchanged at $3.12½; cassia has been reduced 25 cents per yard to $3.25 and kashmirduna 20 cents to $4.67½ per yard.

In connection with the lines of dressy fabrics which the company will offer next week, the announcement was made by officials that it will contain many new qualities, including several numbers introduced to replace the high lustre, high pile fabrics that have been abandoned by the company. "Spotting of high lustre coatings cannot be eliminated, said an executive of the firm, and rather than again produce fabrics subject to spotting, we will offer other dressy fabrics of a high order of merit and style appeal."

Featured in the travel and sports line opened yesterday are fine camel's hair and cashmere coatings in natural tones and in colors. This is the first time the Forstmann Company has produced camel's hair weaves. They are priced up to $6.37½ and are characterized by a soft and elastic touch and a closely shorn surface. They are shown in two weights in both plain and fancy weaves. The two-tone fabrics of this nature comprise small checks, indefinite patterns, and one material in which the warp and weft are of different colored yarns.

Another feature is a range of five 14½ ounce two-tone coatings made of lamb's wool in a range of fancy designs of a conservative nature. The patterns are not fixed and are shown in such colors as grays, browns, hennas and tans. Candia and cassia, lamb's wool coatings, and kashmirdana and kashmirdana of cashmere are repeated for Fall in new versions and new colors. All of these fabrics show a diagonal weave, which is particularly marked in cassia and kashmirdana. In the two-tone versions lightning herringbones, small checks and indefinite patterns are developed. In addition these materials are shown in self-tone patterns and in a jacquard version.

In the dress weights there are several fabrics of extreme light weight. These include forstinette and forsteen, featherweight worsteds with a crepe surface and dull finish, and kashmelitta and kashmir crepe which are made of fine cashmere yarns with a petit-point weave. Kashmir crepe is a seven ounce material which is adaptable for the lining of cloth coats, a development that is expected to be important for the coming Fall and Winter.

Retailers Settled Promptly.

Payments by retailers of merchandise obligations incurred by Spring purchases have been prompt this year. Although April 10 is the quite general due date for goods bought from jobbers for Spring shipment, most of the latter do not consider the discount doors closed much before April 15. The result is that the question of how collections have been, cannot be satisfactorily answered before the latter date. It was said here that the volume of collections up to yesterday had been about the same as those of a year ago, although possibly better, relatively, due to the smaller amount of business done this year, as a result of the backwardness of Spring. Payments, barring sections very badly hurt by the unseasonable weather or by strikes or other special conditions, were made normally by retailers in all parts of the country.

FOR ALTERED BANKRUPT ACT

Bar Association Plan Would Help the Debtor Reorganize Business.

A proposed amendment to the Federal Bankruptcy act was presented yesterday before the Committee of Commerce, Trade and Commercial Law of the American Bar Association, at the concluding session of its three-day meeting in the rooms of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, 65 Liberty Street.

Bernard Bercu, representing the New York Society of Accountants, presented the amendment, which provides that a majority of the creditors of a bankrupt may vote him a percentage of the assets to enable him to reorganize his business. The amendment, said Mr. Bercu, would discourage concealment of assets and would likewise strengthen the debtor's moral obligation to repay the losses sustained by creditors.

Charles L. Bernheimer, Chairman of the Arbitration Committee of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, urged the support of the Bar Association of the Mills-Ernst Sales bill, first introduced three years ago. The bill is designed to standardize and regulate the form of sales transactions in all States.

The committees will make recommendations on various bills discussed at the meeting just concluded to the American Bar Association at its annual meeting in Denver next July.

RAILROAD LOAN BILL REPORTED TO SENATE

Measure Allows 30 Years to Pay Indebtedness Under Federal Control.

PROVIDES I. C. C. INQUIRY

Senator Gooding Declares Passage Is 'Best Assurance of Relief to Stockholders.'

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—Senator Gooding reported from the Interstate Commerce Committee today his bill to allow an extension of time to the railroads to repay money advanced to them by the Government upon the termination of Federal control. Secretary Mellon approved this legislation, in a letter made public this week by Senator Watson, Chairman of the committee, to whom it was sent, and the bill was amended to conform to the Secretary's suggestions.

On Feb. 28, 1926, fifty-one railroads owed the Government $301,155,592.86, Senator Gooding's report showed. He recited the promise of President Wilson when the roads were taken over that their properties would be protected. The late President's statement said:

"Investors in railway securities can rest assured that their rights and interests will be as scrupulously looked after by the Government as they could be by the directors of the several railway companies."

Cites Excess of Interest.

Senator Gooding's report says that in the four years from June 30, 1921, to June 30, 1925, "the Government has received from the railroads as interest at 6 per cent. on their indebtedness $40,635,092.10 in excess of the cost of the money reckoned at 4½ per cent."

Senator Gooding said the committee had been advised by the Interstate Commerce Commission that it was making a thorough investigation of the affairs of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway. The committee paid attention to the effect of the bill on that road in framing it. Passage of the measure, he said, "is the best assurance of relief to the stockholders."

The largest sums owed to the Government by railroads include:

Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul	$35,000,000
New York, New Haven & Hartford	27,130,000
Boston & Maine	21,706,479
Seaboard Air Line	14,453,900
Erie	11,574,400
Chesapeake & Ohio	8,073,023
Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific	7,862,000
Chicago & Western Indiana	7,616,000

The bill as amended provides, Mr. Gooding said, that the railroads now owing the Government an indebtedness incurred during Federal control may, with the consent of the Secretary of the Treasury and the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, pay that indebtedness within thirty years through a reduction in the rate of interest to not less than 4¼ per cent. and an application to the discharge of the principal of not less than the balance of the 6 per cent. now paid to the Government.

Plans Study of Carriers.

The procedure contemplates an investigation by the I. C. C. of each carrier applying for extension and reduction of interest to the end that if the I. C. C. shall find and certify to the Secretary of the Treasury that such extension and reduction should be granted to enable or aid such carrier to properly meet the transportation needs of the public then the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to make arrangements for the extension of the time and the reduction of the interest as above described, and not otherwise.

Senator Gooding said the committee had in mind, in reporting the bill, the following:

"1—To aid or enable carriers affected to provide for the transportation needs of the public.

"2—To insure that such benefits as come from the bill inure to the railroads, security holders, and

"3—To restore and maintain the credit of such carriers as are unable to meet the early maturities of their obligations to the Government."

In the Senate this afternoon Senator Smith of South Carolina said he had no desire to object to this legislation now but wanted the country to know the need of extending relief to farmers in the drought stricken regions of the Southeast who suffered from the loss of their crops last year. He estimated that the Gooding measure would cause the Government a loss of approximately $6,000,000 a year.

"This bill" he said, "for the relief of the railroads will not pass this body until recognition is given to the claims of those whom the Government recognizes as constituting that vast unorganized army upon whose aggregate production the whole superstructure of America stands."

MORTGAGE LOANS PLACED.

The Seaboard Investing Company, Inc., arranged a first mortgage building loan in the amount of $120,000 for one year at 6 per cent. on the six-story apartment house, containing 120 rooms divided into forty-three apartments, on a plot 75 by 100 feet, located on the west side of Godwin Terrace, 260 feet north of West 231st Street, the Bronx, for the Cuyahoga Realty Corporation, C. B. Grundstein President.

Hewson, Wolfe & Co. have obtained for the owners a loan of $31,500, covering the four-story and basement building at 1,839-1,841 Lexington Avenue.

William A. White & Sons have negotiated four first mortgage loans aggregating $245,000 for the Boaz Realty and Construction Corporation, Morris Risenwasser President, on their new four-story apartment houses on the north side of Washington Avenue, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, Astoria. The houses are 100 per cent. rented.

G. H. Burr Leases Fifth Av. Suite.

George H. Burr of George H. Burr & Co. has leased an apartment of seventeen rooms and six baths at 998 Fifth Avenue, north corner of Eighty-first Street. Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co. negotiated the transaction.

Central Park (L. I.) Tract Sold.

Brandon Moses, associated with N. Levitas, has sold to a client of his office a thirty-two-acre tract at Central Park, L. I., with extensive frontage on the State Road. This property being in line of all improvements will be developed at once.

SHIP BOARD SALE ATTACKED IN HOUSE

Representative Wood Assails Disposal of Admiral Line to Dollar Interests.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The sale of the Admiral-Oriental line of Seattle by the Shipping Board to the Dollar Steamship Company of San Francisco, was assailed in the House this afternoon during final consideration of the Independent Offices Appropriation bill by Representative Will R. Wood of Indiana, Chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the bill.

Democrats joined Wood in criticizing the transaction, but cited the reduction of the appropriation for the Shipping Board as a plausible reason for its action in turning the line over to private ownership. The shipping item in the bill as passed was $13,900,000, but Mr. Wood declared it was understood by board members that Congress was willing to appropriate more money for operation if the amount proved insufficient.

"Let me tell you all about the Dollar bid," said Mr. Wood. "They submitted a bid of $600,000 a few weeks ago, which was rejected. Then a new advertisement was made, based on specifications made by Dollar, who submitted a bid of $900,000 per vessel. It is not so much what these vessels bring as what the future consequences to the United States may be. This transaction gives a monopoly to the Dollars, a thing that should not be.

"The Dollars are not so patriotic that they would give up their substance to the United States. It is one of the biggest shipping lines in the world and one of the most selfish. They were not flying the American flag before the war. They were sailing under the British flag."

He cited the ownership by the Dollar Steamship Company of a line from British Columbia to the Orient and another from San Francisco giving it, he said, a "monopoly" of passenger-freight service on the Pacific.

"Their British Columbia line is operated under contract with and in cooperation with Japanese capital, he charged. The total payments required on the Admiral-Oriental ships aggregate only 25 per cent. of the purchase price, he said, with 22½ per cent. made in the form of a letter of credit.

"I expect that we are powerless because of the board's action, but we have surrendered the greatest auxiliary the navy has on the Pacific Coast," he said.

Mr. Wood attacked Chairman O'Connor as "an ex-stevedore from Buffalo who is still a stevedore," and Commissioner Hill of North Dakota as "President of a bankrupt bank who would not know a schooner from a battleship."

FIFTH AVENUE LEASE.

Great Northern Railway Co. Secures Forty-eighth Street Corner.

The Great Northern Railway Company, has joined the group of railroad companies that have recently established offices on Fifth Avenue, and taken a twenty-one-year lease of the five-story building on the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street.

According to report, the railroad will pay a rental of about $70,000 a year for the building. Store space will be retained for use as a ticket office.

DEVELOPERS START WORK.

A. Riegel & Sons Get Westchester Subdivision Contract.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., April 15.—The former estate of Ethel G. Rich, consisting of sixty acres, at the corner of Mamaroneck Avenue and Ridgeway, immediately adoining Gedney Farm and the Westchester Hills Golf Club at White Plains, is being developed and will be offered in large highly restricted home sites, it was announced today.

A contract has just been let to A. Riegel & Sons, Inc., for the installation of sewer, water and gas mains and the construction of concrete roadways. Work on these improvements will be rushed to completion. The property was recently sold by Mrs. Rich to the Elkton Estates, Inc., a syndicate of prominent White Plains residents, Mrs. Rich reserving for her own occupancy her large residence and twelve acres.

PREDICTS DROP IN LUMBER.

Treasurer of Association Says This Will Hold Building Costs Down.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 15.—Despite past and probable future increases in labor costs, reductions in the price of lumber will keep building costs at about the same level as formerly during this year, according to G. M. Stevens of New York City, Treasurer of the National-American Wholesale Lumber Association, who addressed the annual convention of the body today in the Ambassador Hotel.

"There is a large amount of lumber of hand," he said, "due in part to cancellation of many Florida orders recently. New York is buying most of this. There has never been such suburban building activity as exists around New York. It looks as if all New York were moving to the country."

To cut lumber costs and insure use of proper sizes and quality by the public, the lumber industry is spending millions of dollars to standardize the product, it was said by C. V. McCreght of Pittsburgh, Chairman of the Standardization Committee.

That there be less overproduction and better distribution of lumber was urged by W. W. Schupner of New York, Secretary-Directing Manager of the association.

SALESMEN.

The writer of this advertisement joined the organization three years ago.

He was then 32 years of age and had for 10 years previously sold specialties such as books, securities, credit systems and membership subscriptions; but in spite of hard work could not make such headway; he could never pass the $4,000 per year mark.

In this organization he has found an excellent present and an assured future. He has had four promotions in three years and today is managing the Eastern Division.

He sincerely believes that any salesman who has had similar experience and who is tired of being knocked from pillar to post will find the solution to his problem here, providing he is willing to work intelligently on a liberal commission basis.

We are manufacturing and selling a specialty which in connection with a personnel letter service is something entirely novel in the market, but already widely indorsed by executives.

We wish to interview men who are sincere in their desire not only to earn good money but to establish themselves solidly and work toward a position of responsibility.

FREE NIGHT SCHOOL FOR PART TIME WORKERS.

Whether you are a mechanic, chauffeur, clerk, accountant, lawyer, doctor, college professor—

You may be reading this advertisement to find a part time job that will pay you good commissions selling real estate.

We mention these representatives of various occupations and professions because our sales force contains every one of them.

You may say, "I AM NOT A SALESMAN."

That is our business to make you one, as we have made hundreds of men like you, if you are capable.

Our organization is one of the largest of its kind in the metropolitan district. During the past two years, we sold lots totaling over $25,000,000.

THESE LOTS WERE SOLD BY SALESMEN 90 PER CENT. OF WHOM HAD NO PREVIOUS REAL ESTATE EXPERIENCE.

This year we have contracted to sell over $30,000,000 worth of lots, which necessitates our doubling our sales force.

WE HAVE ROOM FOR PART TIME MEN ON COMMISSION BASIS.

And we have provided a Free Night School in Real Estate Salesmanship which you are invited to attend.

You may enter this school tonight.

Report between 9 A. M. and 6 P. M. today for enrolment.

If these hours are impossible, report for the first class at 8 P. M. sharp tonight.

Be ready to state your qualifications.

ASSAILS SURCHARGE OF THE PULLMAN CO.

REVIEWS FIGHT TO END IT

Tells Salesmen's Body That Most Powerful Lobby He Has Ever Seen Caused Defeat of Bills.

Denunciation of the Pullman surcharge as being unsound economically and unjust and the charge that the defeat of the bill which would eliminate it, was brought about by the most powerful lobby he had ever encountered during his twenty-five years in Congress, made by Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, in an address before the Associate Membership Division of the National Council of Traveling Salesmen's Association at a dinner at the Hotel Pennsylvania last night.

"It is short-sighted policy for the railway executives to insist upon the retention of this unjust charge," said the Democratic floor leader.

"Railroads generally are enjoying a period of great prosperity. Their earnings are speedily increasing. Net railway operating revenues are growing larger every year, notwithstanding alleged extravagance in expenditures. My conviction is unalterable that the surcharge has no foundation in either sound economic policy or justice."

Senator Robinson described his efforts to bring the introduction of bills in the Senate to have the tax eliminated. He recalled that the measure was first passed through the Senate without discussion but on the second occasion the entire subject was gone into. The bill was carried by a large vote.

"In the House," he went on, "no action was seriously attempted with respect to the measure the first time the Senate passed it. The bill was pigeonholed in Committee. The House Committee on Interstate Commerce was so constituted that it was impossible to secure favorable action. The members of the committee were so decisive in their opposition that the greatest difficulty was encountered in forcing any consideration. At last, however, arrangements were affected by which the bill was unfavorably reported. The most powerful lobby I have ever seen during twenty-five years Congressional experience appeared to fight the measure.

"It was said that the first need is for the reduction of freight rates. The champions of farm organizations were prompted to join their resistance with that of the lobby, on the theory that farmers would soon be able to secure the advantages of reduced rates on their products if the Pullman surcharge were retained. Experience has shown the insincerity of this ground of opposition, because no notable reduction of freight rates has occurred or is in prospect."

The Senator said labor leaders were induced to join the opposition on the ground that the repeal might prove the first step in a policy of reducing revenues to such an extent that increased wages would become impossible and reductions in pay would be threatened

Senator Robinson reintroduced the measure at the present session and it is now pending in the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. He believed it would again pass through the Senate, although he said it would encounter more opposition now than formerly.

Edward A. Filene of Boston, presided. Aaron M. Loeb and Frank L. Armstrong also spoke.

CALLS FEDERAL AID UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Representative Tucker Seeks Way to Have Supreme Court Pass on Grants to States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The United States Supreme Court soon will be asked by Representative Henry St. George Tucker of Virginia, a former President of the American Bar Association, to pass upon the constitutionality of various Federal appropriations, whereby the States are allotted money by Congress on condition that they appropriate like amounts for the same projects.

Mr. Tucker, an authority on constitutional law, is a member of the House Committee on Judiciary. He maintains that there is no authority in the Constitution for Congress to enact Federal-aid measures, and he is confident that if the matter could be placed before the Supreme Court and a decision obtained from that body, all the Federal-aid measures would be ruled out as unconstitutional.

Congress has provided Federal aid for the construction of roads, for rehabilitation, for infancy and maternity work, for forestry and for other matters, and it has been proposed that the Federal-aid plan be extended to the work of reducing illiteracy.

Mr. Tucker said today that perhaps he would select the maternity law as the basis of a case. Federal aid for maternity was taken into the courts several years ago by Harriet A. Prothingham of Boston, but in 1922 the Supreme Court held that it did not have jurisdiction. Mr. Tucker said he is endeavoring to establish the jurisdiction of the court so that a similar case can be taken up and a final decision handed down.

In the Boston case Mr. Tucker filed a brief of amicus curiae in the Supreme Court, seeking to show that Congress, under the general welfare clause, has not the power to appropriate money for any purposes which it may deem suitable. He contended that the convention which proposed the Constitution had before it, in several forms, this unlimited power of Congress to legislate in all matters for the interests of the Union, and that it was rejected.

"It would seem that this should end the argument," he said. "We have shown that Judge Story and Mr. Pomeroy alone among the law writers endorse this view, while arrayed against them are Madison, Jefferson, Marshall, Cooley, Judge Miller, Hare, von Holst, Willoughby and Tucker.

"We have attempted to show that the atmosphere surrounding the making of the Constitution was so deeply impregnated with the fear of federal power that no article containing what is now claimed for this could ever have become a part of the Constitution; that if the expression 'the general welfare' had no such meaning when proposed by the Federal Convention, or when ratified by the people, it can have no such meaning now."

Plan Paper Mill at Grand Falls, N. B.

FREDERICTON, N. B., April 15 (AP).—An agreement has been reached between President A. R. Graustein of the International Paper Company, allied with the Fraser Company and the Government of New Brunswick, with regard to the allocation of power to be developed at Grand Falls. The International Company will have sufficient power for the immediate establishment of a 200-ton newsprint mill which later may be supplemented to bring production up to between 600 and 700 tons daily.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15.—The disturbance that was over the lower St. Lawrance Valley and the disturbance over the ocean some distance north of Bermuda have merged and now form a storm of marked intensity over the Canadian Maritime Provinces, Port au Basques, Nova Scotia, reporting a barometer reading of 29.34 inches.

The Northwestern disturbance has moved southeastward with increasing intensity and pressure has fallen from the Hudson Bay region southward to Missouri and Illinois, Port Arthur, Ontario, reporting the lowest, 29.34 inches.

Minor disturbances are centred over British Columbia and Georgia.

Pressure is relatively high from Middle Atlantic States southwestward to Texas and New Mexico and off the Pacific Coast and in the vicinity of Bermuda.

The northwestern disturbance will advance east-southeastward, and it will be attended by warmer weather Friday east of the Mississippi River, except in the South Atlantic States, and by light rains Friday or Friday night from the lower Lake region eastward to Maine. Otherwise, fair weather will prevail most generally over the Eastern half of the country during Friday and Saturday.

The temperature will be decidedly Friday in more northerly sections and it will not change materially Saturday.

COUNTRY-WIDE WEATHER CONDITIONS.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday the temperatures given are the high est during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M., and the lowest during the corresponding twelve hours, from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M.

DIRIGIBLE CONQUERS WIND, COLD AND FOG ON LENINGRAD TRIP

TROTSK LANDING PERFECT

By WALTER DURANTY.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LENINGRAD, April 16.—It was a bleak and anxious day of waiting at the Trotsk airdrome, three miles from the little town of Gatchina, where the Emperor Paul I in fear of assassination built himself a chateau and fortress and where, nevertheless, he was murdered. It was white and desolate, the airdrome covered with snow three feet deep, over which the steep hangars loomed in black relief.

The Norge was expected first at noon, but 4, 5 and 6 o'clock passed and the darkness came, without news from the dirigible in which the Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile expedition purpose to fly across the North Pole to Point Barrow, Alaska. The crowd of 2,000 or more that had trudged through the snow from Gatchina and the neighboring villages slowly dwindled. They were cold and weary, but unwilling to abandon hope of the airship's coming.

For hours the airdrome squadrons scoured the sky for a hundred miles around. There was no sign of the airship and the powerful radio stations at Kronstadt and Metskoiselo reported no answer to inquiries.

Twice in the afternoon there was megaphoned the announcement that the airship was approaching and the crowd huddled closer toward the big wooden hangar, but each time it was a false alarm.

Red Aviator Attemps a Joke.

About 4 o'clock there was a sudden flurry of excitement when one of the planes signaled to clear the way for a forced landing. Like a falling leaf the airplane fluttered earthward, then suddenly flattened out and made a perfect landing on its ski runners and stopped within fifteen meters, and so close to a group of reporters and photographers that the wing tip smashed one camera to pieces.

The pilot naively explained that he was tired of flying round doing nothing and wanted to amuse the crowd, but M. Khalturin, the Red commander of the airdrome, did not see the joke at all and the young man went back to quarters with a severe reprimand.

At 6:30 P. M. several of the foreign Consuls and diplomats decided that it was useless to wait longer, and their special train was ordered to return to Leningrad. But twenty minutes later, before they had gone, came a message from Kronstadt that the dirigible was in touch by radio with the airship, which was rapidly approaching. At 7:50 there was a megaphone announcement that the airship was arriving, and all eyes were strained westward into the darkness.

The minutes passed—nothing, nothing. Then suddenly far down on the western horizon, below the faint, stormy moon, there glowed a tiny light in the sky. Hardly was it seen when—so swift was the airship's flight—the dark bulk of the machine showed against the sky, swooping down to reconnoitre the landing. Down within fifty meters of the ground she came, amid the cheers of the crowd; then she swung up again in a wide circle.

"She doesn't like her first look at Russia and is going on to the Pole," cried a bearded old peasant, but round she came and hovered over the airdrome. At exactly 8:10 P. M. the motors stopped and the ship came lower and lower toward the ground, standing silvery gray in the light of the huge log fires built at intervals across the field.

Red Soldiers Land the Airship.

Suddenly the hangar that had been a blaze of electric lights became darkness.

Something had gone wrong with a fuse. Then they dropped two ropes from the airship. Each was seized by fifty or more soldiers, scrambling like pigmies in the high, deep snow, their peaked cloth helmets showing up against the firelight. There was no wind, and M. Khalturin's arrangements worked perfectly.

"Steady, now!" he boomed through the megaphone. "Hold tight—pull on the left—pull on the right—prepare to support the gondola!" and 100 more men rushed forward to carry, as it seemed, a fragile shell upon their shoulders.

After an hour's manoeuvring the ship was pulled stern-first before the entrance of the hangar, where oil lamps replaced the still dormant electricity.

"Careful now—it is a critical moment!" shouted M. Khalturin. "Lower it a bit more—pull to the right—steady—pull her in!" and, yard by yard, the long, shining cigar-like airship slid silently into the hangar.

The crew was half frozen and utterly exhausted. Buffeted by a tempest, lost in the clouds—for thirteen hours—deprived, none knows why, of radio communication with the land, unable to lie or sit or smoke, they had had a

Germany Hears the Ex-Kaiser Has Crown Stolen From Palace

BERLIN, April 16 (AP).—New clews have been uncovered by Prussian State detectives in the hunt for the $875,000 jeweled crown of the late Queen Augusta, first wife of Kaiser Wilhelm II, which mysteriously disappeared from the royal palace on the Unter den Linden more than three years ago.

The information, the police said, virtually established the fact that the beautiful crown was smuggled out of the palace in 1922 and that Princess Hermine von Reuss wore it at Doorn, Holland, when she married the former monarch in exile. The crown legally belongs to the Prussian Government.

A former court jeweler told the police that the crown was brought to him in a leather hat box by a man who represented himself as an agent for the Kaiser. The man, it is said, told the jeweler that it was the Kaiser's greatest desire to see Princess Hermine wear the crown of his former Queen at the altar. From measurements the Kaiser knew the crown would not fit the Princess and asked that it be made smaller.

HOOVER'S POWERS OVER RADIO DENIED

WAVE LENGTH WAS SEIZED

CHICAGO, April 16 (AP).—The first "air piracy" case in the history of radio in the United States was decided here today in favor of the Zenith Radio Corporation and its President, Eugene F. McDonald Jr., against the Government in the court of Federal District Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The Government, in a criminal action, charged the defendants with operating radio apparatus contrary to the license issued to the corporation's station, WJAZ. Four specific allegations were made.

The Court held that Sections 1 and 2 of the Wireless act of 1912—the only laws existing that apply to broadcasting—were ambiguous, and that the act itself did not clothe the Secretary of Commerce with certain discretionary powers which he has allegedly assumed. Station WJAZ was licensed to operate one night a week or two hours on the same wave length of 322.4 meters assigned to the General Electric Company Station KOA at Denver.

Unable to obtain permission for more time, WJAZ wilfully "pirated" a wave length which was set aside for use of Canadian broadcasting stations, and, according to the briefs in the case, took this action in the hope of starting court action and bringing about legislation and clarification of the existing broadcasting laws and regulations. In addition to using the wave length the station also extended its time on the air.

Court Finds No Grant of Power.

In regard to the regulations, Judge Wilkerson in his decision says:

"There is no express grant of power in the act to the Secretary of Commerce to establish regulations. The regulations, subject to which the license is granted, are contained in the fourth section of the act.

"The defendant's license authorizes a use of a wave length of 322.4 meters on Thursday nights from 10 to 12 P. M. when the use of this period is not desired by the General Electric Company's Denver station.

"The Secretary of Commerce is required to issue the license subject to the regulations of the act. The Congress has withheld from him the power to prescribe additional regulations. If there is a conflict between a provision in the license and the regulations established by Congress the latter must control."

Regarding the division of time with another station the decision says:

"The statute is ambiguous in this respect, and, while it should be given reasonable construction, ambiguities

SHERIFF TO RULE IN PASSAIC MONDAY AS MILLS RESUME

Plants to Throw Open All Gates and Invite Workers' Return—Assured of Protection.

ONE GETS AN INJUNCTION

Court Bars Picketing There, but United Front Leaders Say It Will Go On Elsewhere.

COLBY DEFENDS WEISBORD

Grand Jury Said to Have Brought In Three Indictments Against Leader—Bail Fund Sought.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., April 16.—At the request of Director of Public Safety Abram Preiskel, Sheriff Charles W. Morgan of Passaic County will move into this city on Monday with 150 armed deputies and also will take charge of the Passaic Police Department with its 200 regular and special policemen.

Sheriff Morgan, at Paterson today, said his investigations of the last two days convinced him that many strikers would be glad to return to work if offered protection. The mills will throw their gates wide open Monday under the protection of the Sheriff and his armed forces.

The riot act will not be read unless it is necessary, said Sheriff Morgan, whose forces will guard the mills by day and the homes of the workers in the mill district by night.

Monday is likely to see the crisis of the strike. The United Front Committee, conducting the strike, announced that picketing would be resumed at every mill in the strike area on Monday. Attempts by the police to break up mass picketing have generally resulted in rioting and the clubbing and arrest of strikers. Sheriff Morgan made no statement on his attitude toward the method of picketing followed by the textile workers on strike twelve weeks.

Colby to Defend Weisbord.

Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State under President Wilson, will represent Albert Weisbord, leader of the United Front Committee, when the Harvard Law School graduate appears this morning before Supreme Court Justice Black in Paterson on a writ of habeas corpus, which alleges that he is being illegally detained.

Weisbord was arrested last Saturday in Passaic, where he assisted in the formation of a parade of children, and was held in $30,000 bail, a sum which has been attacked by his counsel as being excessive and oppressive.

The Passaic County Grand Jury for the January term completed its duties today. Before being discharged by County Judge Joseph A. Delaney it handed up numerous indictments. It is understood that these included three against Weisbord.

The indictments against Weisbord, it was reported, charge inciting to riot, inciting against the Government, and introducing Communist matter.

On the complaint of the Forstmann & Huffmann Company, one of the largest mills in this area, Vice Chancellor Bentley today issued a drastic temporary injunction restraining the leaders of the strikers, including Margaret Larkin, publicity representative, and others, from advising, encouraging or consulting with any of the employes of the defendant, or from molesting them or addressing them against their will.

Picketing the Forstmann & Huffmann mill or asking any of its employes to contribute to the strike fund is held to be contempt of Court in the order signed by Vice Chancellor Bentley and made returnable before him on April 29 at 1 Exchange Place, Jersey City.

Doesn't Affect Other Mills.

The injunction does not affect the carrying on of the strike at any of the other mills. In a supporting affidavit, attached to the bill of complaint, Robert M. Reinold, personnel manager of the Forstmann & Huffmann Company, alleges that few of the employes of his company have taken active part in the strike. Affidavits of employes were presented asserting acts

Would Sell Governors Island To Help Army's Housing Plan

WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP).—Arguing that funds be made available for the army's building program, Brig. Gen. Fox Conner, Assistant Chief of Staff, suggested to the Senate Military Committee today that the whole program would be put "on easy street" if the War Department were permitted to sell Governors Island, New York, and the Presidio of San Francisco.

The General estimated that Governors Island would bring $25,000,000, the Presidio $26,000,000, and other "surplus lands" owned by the department $30,000,000. He estimated that $110,000,000 would be required to complete the housing program.

Senator Bingham of Connecticut suggested that Governors Island might be converted into an airport, but General Conner said its value from a military viewpoint would be negligible. He disclosed that eventually the War Department wants to spend $4,500,000 for housing purposes at Fort Sill, Okla., alone.

CALLS LAWYER HEAD OF MILK GRAFT PLOT

Dr. Harris Sees Man Who Held a Responsible Position Under Hylan as the Master Mind.

FOUR GOT EXTORTION MONEY

Four persons were named by Harry Danziger of Middle Village, Queens, yesterday, as having received the money he admits extorting from bootleg milk dealers to insure their immunity from prosecution by the Health Department during the Hylan Administration, in the sale of adulterated milk.

As a result of his revelations, it was said last night that the milk investigation in Manhattan was now centring upon a lawyer who formerly held a responsible position under Mayor Hylan. He was credited by Dr. Louis I. Harris, Health Commissioner, with being the brains of the entire conspiracy. It was said that the plan of mulcting dealers in bootleg milk originated in his mind and that he acted as intermediary with the Health Department officials during the previous Administration when prosecution was threatened.

Danziger spent several hours yesterday with District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe and Peter M. Daly, his assistant, in Queens County. Danziger was accompanied by Joshua Bernstein, his brother-in-law. It was to Mrs. Bernstein that Danziger transferred his milk business after the investigation began. Bernstein, who is a lawyer, is said to have used his influence to make Danziger talk.

Nearly Ready for Grand Jury.

Despite Danziger's disclosure of the names of four persons he said received the money collected from the milk dealers, doubt was expressed by the authorities that he was giving all the information in his possession concerning the alleged protection fund of upward of $1,000,000. While he assumed an attitude of apparent sincerity, there was some reason for believing, it was said, that he did not wish to go so far as to furnish evidence upon which his former associates could be convicted. Notwithstanding this, Mr. Daly said that Mr. Newcombe felt satisfied with the result of the investigation thus far, and that it was likely the case would be presented to the grand jury next Tuesday.

District Attorney John E. McGeehan and his assistant, Sylvester J. Ryan of Bronx County, visited Commissioner Harris in the afternoon to discuss the milk investigation. Mr. McGeehan said that before Danziger pleaded guilty to extortion last Thursday, his counsel, Samuel Goldstein, had presented a stipulation in which it was agreed that his client would expect no consideration from the prosecutor as a result of his plea and the information he would give concerning the conspiracy.

In the stipulation Danziger expressed the hope that, if he "told an honest and straightforward story," Mr. McGeehan would acquaint the prosecuting officers of the other counties of the fact, and, "if able through his influence," prevent Danziger's prosecution in Queens, Manhattan or elsewhere.

When Mr. McGeehan left Dr. Harris's office he took with him certain Health Department records covering the last two years, which he studied at his home last night. He said he would confer today with Supreme Court Justice Aaron J. Levy, who has announced that he would instruct the Grand Jury in connection with the milk graft situation next Tuesday. Mr. McGeehan said that he would present a plan to Justice Levy, the nature of which he would not discuss.

Hard to Get Information.

One dissatisfying feature of the investigation as it existed now, Mr. McGeehan said, was the fact that various persons suspected of having information were showing unwillingness to appear before him for questioning when summoned.

"I want the public to know that these men are refusing to come to my office and I want their identity made public," he said. "I believe that the public should know everything going on in connection with the milk situation."

W. Kurtzman, one of six Health Department inspectors who have been mentioned in the investigation, was

REPUBLICANS MAP 7 'SAFE' DISTRICTS IN GREATER CITY

TWO SEATS IN MANHATTAN

Three More in Brooklyn and Two in Queens—Harlem Region Consolidated.

HAVE TWO SEATS IN ALL NOW

Democrats Preparing Their Own Measure—Smith Ready to Veto Republican Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—The Republican bill providing for a reapportionment of Senate districts throughout the State on the basis of the 1925 census figures was introduced in the Senate and Assembly at sessions held for that specific purpose late this afternoon. It is the last measure of primary importance likely to be placed before the present Legislature, which expects to bring its labors to a close next Friday.

There will be two reapportionment bills instead of one. When the contents of the final draft of the bill introduced today became known the Democratic leaders in the Legislature announced their intention to present a measure of their own, which porbably will go in on Tuesday. Work on this eleventh hour bill, which has been under way in New York for some time, will be completed over the week-end.

In preparing their Senate map for New York City the Republican leaders there concentrated in an effort to create seven "safe" Republican Senate districts in that territory. They believe they have succeeded, and as a result the map has taken on the semblance of jig-saw puzzle, so fantastic are the district lines.

Of the "safe" districts, two have been carved out in Manhattan, three in Brooklyn and two in Queens. In the present Senate there are only two Republican members representing New York City districts.

No Compromise Spirit Shown.

It is plain from the gerrymandering of districts in New York City that the Republican majority in the Senate and Assembly approached the task of carving out the new district lines in anything but a spirit of compromise designed to enlist Democratic support for the bill.

In the territory up-State, most of which is dependably Republican, the changes are few and not of fundamental importance.

In Erie County changes have been made in all three Senatorial districts, with a view to making them all safely Republican. All are represented by Republicans at present, but usually one of the three—the present Forty-ninth—has sent a Democrat to the Senate.

In Monroe, where there are two Senate districts, there have been slight changes rendered necessary through shifts in population, but both Monroe districts are strongly Republican as it is.

Another change which may have been made with a view to making a "safe" out of a somewhat "wabbly" Senate district provides for the throwing together of Rensselaer and Saratoga into what would be known under the new reapportionment as the Thirty-second district. Rensselaer, which for the last decade has constituted a Senate district by itself, has sent a Democratic Senator to Albany on two occasions during that period.

Other changes up-State include detaching Chenango County from the Fortieth Senate District, now composed of that county, Broome and Cortland, and throwing it, with Madison, Otsego and Schoharie, into a new Fortieth Senate District.

Montgomery and Schenectady under the new reapportionment would constitute the Thirty-third Senate District. Under the present reapportionment Schenectady and Saratoga have been combined in the Thirty-second Senatorial District. None of these changes would seriously affect the status quo within the Republican State organization, or the political complexion of the Senate.

District Made for Nicoll.

DRYS DEMAND TIGHTER LAW ENFORCEMENT; SAY POVERTY DECREASES, HEALTH GAINS, WHILE DRUNKENNESS AND CRIME DECLINE

20 New Yorkers in House Demand Beer and Wine; Democrats Serve Notice on Senate Committee

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Declaring their conviction that the people they represent demand beer, wine and fermented beverages, twenty Democratic members of the House of Representatives from New York City, Albany and Buffalo filed with the Senate Judiciary Committee today a statement in which they serve notice they are going to fight for these beverages. The statement read:

Sentiment of our people has been conveyed to us in no unmistakable terms. They demand wine, beer and fermented beverages. To attain their desire we believe they are willing to abide by the Constitution and forego distilled liquor and ardent spirits.

Feeling obliged and willing at all times to express the wants and desires of our people, we have come to the conclusion that the bill we have introduced best meets their desires.

Our bill does not violate the Constitution. It follows it. The bill repeals the Volstead act in its entirety and, starting out anew, prohibits the unquestionably "intoxicating liquors" which are distilled liquors or spirits. It leaves each State then free to do as it sees fit in reference to beer, wine and fermented beverages. The so-called "dry" States may remain "dry" and prohibit, if they see fit, even beer containing any percentage of alcohol, however small. The other States may likewise provide and regulate the sale of beer and wine. And all States will be protected by the old Webb-Kenyon law from interstate traffic in any beverage they prohibit.

This, we believe, is a new step in the attempt to solve this vexing problem—complete prohibition for the present, at least, of distilled liquors and ardent spirits—but vesting power in the States to permit the sale of lighter beverages as the respective States see fit.

We have no fear of the constitutionality of our proposal. We have given it a great deal of consideration and we stand ready to meet any challenge that it violates the Eighteenth Amendment.

TUG STRIKE SETTLED; MEN WIN PAY RISE

3,000 BACK AT WORK TODAY

Towboat Owners Grant 10-Hour Day, $10 to $25 Increase and More "Grub" Money.

The strike of towboat men which crippled shipping in the harbor yesterday was settled last evening. The agreement was reached just twenty-four hours after the strike order, issued by Captain William A. Maher, general manager of the Associated Marine Workers, had called out approximately 3,000 workers and tied up 400 towboats.

The settlement was a victory for the workers, who will receive an advance in pay and the ten-hour working day which they had demanded. The men left union headquarters after the meeting last night pledged to report for work this morning, when the new schedule becomes effective.

The strike threatened yesterday to cause a serious situation through tying up harbor craft and holding up the arrival and departure of transatlantic liners. So serious was the outlook deemed that T. J. Williams of the United States Department of Labor and Colonel Michael J. Reagan, State Labor Mediator, arrived in New York to take a hand in the affair.

Based on 313 Working Days.

According to a statement given out at union headquarters, the ten-hour day in the new agreement is based on 313 working days a year, for which the men will be paid regardless of whether they work the full number of days. They are to be paid for a full ten-hour day regardless of whether they were required to work the entire ten hours.

The men have received an increase in pay of from $10 to $25 a month, as against their demand for from $10 to $50 a month. The men in single crew

ANDREWS EXPLAINS NEED FOR $3,000,000

With That Sum, He Says, Supply of Alcohol to Bootleggers Can Be Stopped.

WOULD MAKE LIQUOR PAY

Collection of Taxes on Illegal Traffic, He Declares, Would Meet Enforcement Costs.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—While some of the dry leaders were launching attacks today on General Lincoln C. Andrews, because of his testimony before the Senate committee that the distribution of light beer under Government control would help in enforcing the prohibition laws, the head of the Government enforcement agencies issued a statement telling what he hoped to accomplish if Congress granted a supplemental appropriation of $3,000,000. He predicted that traffic in beer would be stopped and diversion of industrial alcohol into the bootleg trade virtually eliminated soon, if he was let alone to carry out his program.

General Andrews said he believed a sufficient sum eventually could be collected in tax assessments on estates of bootleggers, producers of industrial alcohol and brewers detected in illicit trade to pay for the entire cost of the Federal enforcement work, and that a part of the money which he now asked from Congress would be employed to finance squads of investigators who would engage in that work.

After conferring with Secretary Mellon, General Andrews left the city. It was stated that he had gone to Philadelphia on private business.

None of the Treasury officials would make any comment today on the situation created by the testimony General Andrews gave before the Senate committee, but it was indicated that the testimony was personal with the General and should not be in any way interpreted as putting the Treasury Department or administration on record in favor of modification of the law to permit the sale of beer.

New Plans Worked Out.

"When the 1927 estimate was presented," said General Andrews, "the reorganization of the prohibition unit was not yet completed and experience therewith had not yet developed the possibilities for law enforcement. We have now worked out detailed plans along three new lines and developed the possibilities along three others to a point where we feel assured of effective results if these plans may be carried out. These plans, together with additional legislation which we are asking of Congress, should result in the practical extinction of present large sources of supply and a more satisfactory service for the legitimate industries.

"We have recently begun the organization of a special Federal squad of tried, experienced agents operating under the supervision of a chief in Washington, without regard to district lines, whose function is the supervision of the permittees using or manufacturing specially denatured alcohol.

"The work of this squad has already reduced diversion by over 500,000 gallons per month, and is reducing the number of permittees materially. We will cut down the number of permittees by several hundred. When fully organized they will be able to cut out this source of illegitimate supply and to furnish the administrators such knowledge of the legitimate permittees

EMERSON PRAISES DRY ACT

But Physician Says Lax Enforcement Causes Gain in Alcoholic Cases.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The drys, with Wayne B. Wheeler of the Anti-Saloon League, Bishop Cannon of the Methodist Church and Canon William S. Chase of the Episcopal Church of Brooklyn, in command, took the offensive against the wets today, with every indication that it will require most of next week before the last of their witnesses, who will probably be Mr. Wheeler, takes the stand.

The Senate Judiciary Committee room in the Senate Office Building seemed to be packed today with more people, if such a thing be possible, than on any other day since the hearings began last week. The applause and titters that greeted the assertions of the dry witnesses indicated that the audience was largely composed of advocates of prohibition.

The witnesses represented the ministry, the medical profession, women's organizations, labor, settlement work and other professions, and included such outstanding dry advocates as the Rev. Dr. Charles S. MacFarland of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the Right Rev. James Henry Darlington of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Harrisburg, Dr. Haven Emerson, former Health Commissioner of New York City; Edward Keating, editor of Labor; Mrs. Helen H. Green of the "Golden Rule" organization of Cleveland, and the Rev. W. I. Haven, D.D., of the American Bible Society.

Mr. Wheeler introduced into the committee record a statement in which he denounced the modification bills now pending before the Committee on Judiciary and endorsed the bill introduced by Senator Goff, one of the dry members of the committee, which if enacted would make it much easier for prohibition agents to obtain warrants to search private homes.

Mr. Wheeler announced that he would take the stand later as a witness. Then will come his cross-examination by Senator Reed, which is expected to be one of the big events of the closing weeks of this session of Congress.

MacFarland Speaks for Cadman.

Leading off, Dr. Macfarland, who explained he was also speaking for the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, D. D., of New York, President of the Federal Council of Churches, said that all the personal liberty talk now being heard throughout the country was a delusion and a snare. He pictured prohibition as the "magnificent experiment," and once while in the middle of his testimony exclaimed, "Give prohibition a chance," a plea which brought forth applause.

Another witness was Lee Beatty, Superintendent of the Madison Square Church House, who said his district includes that part of New York City that is bounded on the south by Twenty-eighth Street, on the north by Forty-second Street, on the west by Lexington Avenue, with the East River as the eastern boundary.

In that section, he declared, there is not at this time a single speakeasy or blind tiger. Mr. Beatty also expressed his conviction that the home brew and home distillery situation is much exaggerated.

Enforcement Lax, Says Emerson.

Dr. Emerson gave it as his opinion that prohibition enforcement in New York City is becoming "increasingly inefficient."

Dr. Emerson submitted statistics which showed that in 1925 the deaths from alcoholism in Bellevue Hospital were greater with the exception of the years 1910-1914 than in any years in the history of the alcoholic ward. In 1920, the first year of the Volstead law, the number had been reduced to twenty-nine deaths, but in 1925 it had climbed back to 250.

"How to you account of that?" inquired Senator Reed.

"Because alcohol is available again as it was in the past," replied Mr. Emerson.

Dr. Emerson, however, declared that prohibition is the greatest boon the nation can have if it is enforced. He insisted that the betterment of conditions among people of small means was due to it as well as the decrease in many diseases.

In Cleveland, according to Mrs. Green, the authorities in their efforts to enforce prohibition not only arrest the man who acts drunk but also the man who looks drunk, and she expressed her thorough acquiescence in

Tracker of Desert Hunts for Spanish Flier; Hamed, Egyptian 'Sherlock Holmes,' on Trail

CAIRO, April 16 (AP).—An ancient art of the desert, the uncanny skill of specially trained natives in tracking man or beast over the vast expanse of sand, has been called into play in renewed efforts to find trace of Captain Esteves and his mechanician, of the Spanish flying expedition to Manila, missing since last Sunday.

After days of steady search by British aviators, Hamed, prize tracker of the British detective force of Egypt, today was somewhere on the Syrian Desert trying to unravel the mystery of the whereabouts of the two Spanish airmen.

Hamed, who is called the "Sherlock Holmes of Egypt," in tracking, was taken today to Captain Esteves's abandoned airplane near Amman, Palestine, and there he began tracing the footprints of the two men, who had left a note saying they were proceeding afoot.

Hamed, who is gifted with an uncanny knack of following trails, frequently has been utilized by the police when all other trackers have failed. He is greatly feared by the criminal class and many natives attribute his skill to black magic.

He is faced with an extremely difficult task in solving the present riddle of the sands. Not only is a man's trail quickly obliterated by the constant shifting of the sands, but sand storms have been raging ever since the Spanish airmen disappeared.

Despite the failure thus far to locate the Spanish airmen, the searchers by no means have abandoned hope, believing that Captain Esteves and his companion may be sheltered with some desert tribe.

Hamed is a quiet, unassuming, black-bearded man, who would scarcely be noticed in a crowd except for his deep-set black eyes, which possess an eerie, piercing look.

Stokowski Satirizes Philadelphia Audience; His Orchestra Drifts In and Out, Piecemeal

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 16.—Leopold Stokowski "turned on the audience" at this afternoon's performance of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and, playing his entire program upon the taut strings of satire and irony, "spanked" those of the Friday crowds who, it is said, have earned a "notorious reputation" for coming in late and leaving early.

The audience was amazed and dumfounded. Many in the boxes applauded the leader's satire, but some were not so pleased with it and hissed. Forty first-row patrons walked out.

The first shock came when the curtain rose and only two players appeared on the stage, the first violin and the first 'cellist.

Mr. Stokowski made his appearance, raised his baton and the concert was on. The audience expected to hear the rest of the orchestra behind a backdrop. Instead, the two instruments continued alone. Later the various members of the orchestra nonchalantly drifted in, sat down and broke in on the music.

One or two players made hurried entrances and threw themselves into the most convenient chairs when they started to play.

At the close of the piece the usual contingent of late-comers paraded down the aisles.

After two more numbers Mr. Stokowski sprang his second surprise. As the orchestra began the first movement of Haydn's "Farewell" symphony one or two members, apparently tired of playing, calmly wandered off the stage. The exodus kept on, to the chagrin of the audience, until, in the last movement, only two violins remained.

One of the violinists walked off the stage, playing meanwhile. The other arose, bowed graciously to the director, and left the stage empty except for Mr. Stokowski, who kept up his "direction" to the end.

Then came the final subtle slap. Standing alone, Mr. Stokowski turned his back to the audience and, with the familiar gesture, ordered his phantom orchestra to rise to the audience's applause. The chairs were empty. The director turned, smiled and left the stage.

Germans Defend Negotiations—Polish Premier Sees No Cause for Alarm.

BERLIN, April 16.—Russia and not Germany sought the "amicable understanding" which is now being negotiated between the two powers, according to indications received from a spokesman for the Wilhelmstrasse today.

The Soviet Government, it is declared officially here, desired a formal agreement with the Luther Cabinet to offset the Locarno compacts, which in Moscow's eyes represent a westward orientation on the part of the Reich.

What form the convention, now being negotiated and fast approaching its conclusion, will take is not revealed by the German Foreign Office, but it is now conceded that it will involve definite political commitments.

Apparently a German pledge of neutrality in the event of Russia becoming embroiled with other nations is one of the foremost considerations. In this connection the Russo-Turkish Treaty is mentioned frequently at the Wilhelmstrasse, although it is insisted there is no close parallel, since Germany is not discussing anything of a military character with the Russians and there is consequently no question of a defensive alliance.

But German officialdom is remarkably vague about how the Reich can undertake to insure a neutral attitude toward the Soviet in view of the possible future application of Article XVI of the League covenant, which obliges member States to cooperate in League enterprises against the violators of world peace.

League May Interfere With Treaty.

The Locarno powers promised to take Germany's military and geographical position into consideration in applying Article XVI, but admittedly Germany in the last analysis is bound by this article once she becomes a member of the League. Therefore, to what extent she can bind herself to neutrality is dependent upon the League Council's ultimate interpretation of Article XVI and the Reich's obligations under it.

The room for a possible conflict in the Russo-German agreement to remain reciprocally neutral and the eventuality of a League undertaking against Russia in which Germany would willy-nilly be involved, is evident.

Meanwhile, however, Berlin affects to consider that Locarno would be strengthened rather than weakened by an understanding for the promotion of peace in Eastern Europe, and that the signatories of the western security treaties have no reason to object to such a proceeding. Any convention or treaty concluded with Moscow, the Wilhelmstrasse affirms, will no more be directed against the allied countries than the Locarno compacts are aimed at the Soviets, nor, it is said, is it in any way symptomatic of a return to the pre-war system of alliances.

The setback received by the Reich at Geneva, it is also insisted, has no bearing whatever on the Russo-German parleys, which were begun simultaneously with the diplomatic moves leading up to the Locarno meeting.

Yet, in official quarters here, emphasis is laid on Germany's feeling that the Rapallo treaty was adequate to guarantee this country's amity with Russia, and that it is the Russians who desired a more binding expression of mutual friendship.

Riga, April 16.—Concurrently with the negotiations in Berlin for a Russo-German supplement to the Rapallo Treaty, the Soviet Government continues to develop plans for an understanding with Poland and the Baltic States.

Political circles in the Baltic States now confirm a telegram mentioning Soviet proposals for a guarantee compact published in THE NEW YORK TIMES on April 9. Negotiations with all these States have hitherto been only oral, but each has now been requested by the Soviet to present proposals in a definite written form.

A statement, confirmed by the Soviet Government, insists on treating with Poland separately, but is willing to bunch the others, Lithuania, Latvia, Esthonia and Finland, together and will arrange treaties with two, three or four or each singly, as may be desired.

Poland, however, shows great initiative in these negotiations and is striving to arrange a general conference of all five States with Soviet Russia to conclude treaties of neutrality and non-aggression.

Finland remains the most unresponsive, emphasizing the fact that aggression is possible only by the Soviet and that therefore any guarantee of non-aggression to the Baltic States is superfluous. Moscow, it is held, should give that kind of a guarantee in which the strongest security would be a submission of all conflicts to arbitration. But Moscow stubbornly refuses to include an arbitration clause.

Latvia appears also rather skeptical, still regarding the proposals as a tactical move by Moscow.

The most responsive State is Lithuania, and news that separate Lithuanian-Soviet negotiations have already begun is confirmed, but their existence is far from being approved by the other States.

Lithuania apparently believes a special agreement with Moscow would recognize Lithuania's frontiers as defined by the Soviet-Lithuanian peace treaty and thus strengthen Lithuania's claim to Vilna.

Altogether the opinion prevails that positive results are not likely from these Soviet-Baltic negotiations.

VIENNA, April 16.—No alarm over the Russo-German negotiations was expressed by the Polish Premier, Count Skrzynski, in an interview today. After explaining that he lacked precise information of the objects and results of the Russo-German negotiations, Count Skrzynski said:

"It cannot be possible, however, for any agreement they reach to be in conflict with the Locarno treaties. Germany in entering the League of Nations must register all treaties openly

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 16.—Lord Birkenhead, Secretary of State for India, was said today to be the Cabinet Minister who inherited a substantial portion of the fortune, estimated at between £6,000,000 and £7,000,000, left by Sir Robert P. Houston, Liverpool shipowner, whose funeral took place today.

LONDON, April 16 (AP).—Although it had been reported by the newspapers that the greater part of the estate of Sir Robert Patterson Houston, wealthy ship owner, who died this week, was willed to a Cabinet Minister, possibly the Earl of Birkenhead, The Daily Mail reports a denial by Sir Robert's lawyers that a member of the Cabinet would benefit by a bequest.

The Mail says that years ago the Baronet made a will bequeathing large sums to Lord Birkenhead and other friends, but that since then Sir Robert and Lord Birkenhead became estranged and the will was destroyed. It is not stated whether another was drawn, but the newspaper says that if the estate amounts to £7,000,000, as reported, the death duties will bring about £3,000,000 into the national exchequer.

The first Earl of Birkenhead has always had an air of affluence, although the expenses of his successive official positions must have been large. He has a mansion at 23 Grosvenor Garden and law offices at 4 Elm Court, the Temple, London, and a country house at Charlton, Banbury. But, like the late Lord Salisbury, when a young man, he labored early and late with his pen in order to supplement his salary.

As Solicitor General, as Lord Rector of Glasgow University, and as Lord High Chancellor in the Lloyd George Coalition War Cabinet, his name was also familiar, not only to the readers of law and educational reviews, but also to those of the weekly and daily press, as a writer on a variety of popular topics. He reviewed many books.

One of his last comments was on Lady Oxford's (Margot Asquith's) "Places and Persons," which was syndicated in England a year ago. In the following June, Premier Baldwin is understood to have had the Secretary of State for India particularly in mind when he expressed the wish, which amounted to an order, that Cabinet Ministers should not write for the press while in office. This edict is said to have hit Lord Birkenhead hard. Since then his name has been seen only on a book, published early this year, "Fourteen English Judges."

KRAO, FREAK WOMAN, DIES OF INFLUENZA

Siamese Circus Performer Billed as 'Missing Link' for 30 Years —Body to Be Cremated.

Krao, "the missing link," is dead.

The strange freak-woman, who came out of Siam forty-three years ago and who for thirty years was displayed in Barnum & Bailey & Ringling Brothers' circus, died yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Zieler, 307 East Ninetieth Street, from asthma and influenza.

Krao, whose full name was Krao Farini, was 49 years old. She had made her home while in New York with the Zielers for more than twenty years. Krao opened with the circus in the New Madison Square Garden when it came to town not long ago but was taken ill about two weeks ago. Before she died Krao asked that her body be cremated.

Her first public appearance was in the old Brandenburg Museum in Philadelphia in the early '80s. After that she toured the country in circus sideshows.

STRIKERS DENOUNCE FUR PEACE TERMS

Frayne's Offer Howled Down at Three Tumultuous Overflow Meetings.

GOLD TO KEEP UP FIGHT

Workers Insist on 40-Hour Week—"Let Them Try and Get It," Says Federation Organizer.

The terms of a proposed settlement of the fur strike, announced on Thursday by Hugh Frayne, national organizer of the American Federation of Labor, were howled down yesterday afternoon at three overflow meetings of the strikers.

Mr. Frayne's proposals were read by Benjamin Gold, head of the Joint Board of the Furriers' Union, at Webster Hall, 117 East Eleventh Street, Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East Fourth Street, and Beethoven Hall, 210 East Fifth Street. At each hall the crowds were so great that the entrances had to be closed and hundreds turned away. Those inside crowded the lobbies, jammed into the aisles and stood perched on railings, boxes, tables and other points of vantage.

When Gold entered the meetings to discuss Thursday's demonstration at Carnegie Hall he received a tumultuous welcome. Admirers brought him a basket of roses and carnations. Holding up his hand to quiet the applause, the youthful strike leader said that Mr. Frayne's terms were altogether unacceptable and that even though outlawed by the International Fur Workers' Union the local union would keep up its fight until the strikers' demands were met. A storm of boos and hisses broke out when Mr. Gold read the proposed terms.

Others who spoke at the three meetings were former Assemblyman August Claessens, Secretary of the Socialist Party in New York, who was making his first appearance at a fur strike meeting; William W. Weinstone, Secretary of the Workers' (Communist) Party; Robert Dunn of the American Civil Liberties Union; Benjamin Gitlow, Workers' Party candidate for Mayor last Fall; Abraham Shiplacoff, leader of the leather goods workers; Louis Heyman of the International Ladies' Garment Workers, Algernon Green of the Rand School and several members of the general committee which has been conducting the fur strike.

All urged the strikers to keep their ranks intact, to maintain the picket lines and not to forget that their most important struggle was still with the manufacturers.

Mr. Frayne had no comment to make yesterday on the fur strike situation. When informed that the strikers had rejected the proposed settlement terms and were still insisting on the forty-hour week, Mr. Frayne said: "Let them get it if they can." He said the International Fur Workers' Union was continuing its poll of the workers to determine whether or not the proposed terms were acceptable as a basis for conference.

boats will receive a flat increase of $10 a month for all grades of workers from captains to deckhands. Double crew men, or those working six hours on and six hours off, will receive increases of from $15 to $25 a month.

Captains, engineers and mates on double-crew boats will receive a $25 increase, while deckhands, stewards and other workers on boats that carry two crews will receive a $15 increase.

The agreement will be effective for one year. The negotiations were carried on by representatives of the Mutual, Dalzell, Barrett and other towing companies, and the conference lasted several hours.

After the question of wages had been adjusted and the ten-hour day agreed upon the strikers advanced another demand that, for a time threatened to bar a settlement. That was a demand for more "grub" money. On each boat the steward is allowed a certain sum to feed each member of the crew. The workers contended that this sum was not enough to allow them to be fed in a the manner befitting their work. After some discussion the owners agreed on an increase from 75 cents to 85 cents in the allowance for food.

When Captain Maher announced at headquarters, 120 Broad Street, that the owners had granted a wage increase the men were evidently surprised at the early settlement, for some of them had looked forward to a long fight. Some tugboat captains pointed out that the Associated Marine Workers had been in existence since 1922 but that this was the first strike it had called.

Representatives of towing companies attending the conference with the Workers' Committee were G. H. Dalzell for the Dalzell Towing Company, James H. Moran for the Moran Towing and Transportation Company, James A. Ryan for the Taylor Towing Line, Edward E. Barrett for the Barret line, William T. Flannery for the Flannery line.

The arriving French liner Savoie was forced to anchor in Quarantine in the afternoon, being unable to come to her North River pier because the line's officials were unable to get tugs to assist her up the river.

The strike disrupted the business of the harbor all day and while the boat owners questioned the number of men on strike they admitted that the situation was serious. Captain Maher said that 3,000 men had obeyed the strike order and that 400 tugs had been tied up.

The Cornell Towing Company, one of the large concerns at the port, signed the agreement in the early evening. The O'Brien Contracting Company, the Tracey Towing Company and six smaller companies had signed earlier in the day. Their action released about 50 towboats and sent 650 men back to work.

The French liner Bourdonnais came to her pier at the foot of West Fifty-ninth Street in the afternoon without the aid of tugs. Her captain manoeuvred her off the pier and it was more than an hour before her nose was turned shoreward and she moved gradually alongside her berth.

CASTS PASSPORTS INTO SEA.

Steward's Mistake Gets 47 Passengers Into Trouble.

Forty-seven passengers of the French liner Bourdonnais, from Bordeaux, arrived yesterday without passports, because a steward threw the passports overboard when he mistook them for wastepaper. It was explained that "pour le poste" means "give it to the postman," and "non post" means wastepaper which the stewards are to dump overboard. The steward misunderstood his instructions.

The plight of the forty-seven passengers, of whom fourteen were American citizens, presented a delicate problem to the immigration authorities, but finally Immigration Inspector John Montgomery decided that if the unlucky passengers would make affidavit as to the correctness of the information contained in their passports he would permit them to land.

of violence and intimidation by pickets. George H. McCarter of Newark applied for the injunction on behalf of the defendant.

Governor A. Harry Moore, who was ill in Jersey City, made known through his secretary in Trenton that he has no authority to remove law enforcement officials in Passaic and Bergen counties, as requested by the textile strikers. He said that he had no desire to remove them, but felt that they should be encouraged in every lawful effort to do their duty.

Fund Sought for Bail.

The American Civil Liberties Union and the League for Industrial Democracy announced yesterday a movement to obtain guarantors to assure a million-dollar bail fund to assist strikers and leaders requiring bail. A mass meeting will be held soon in New York to further the idea, it was said.

The bail bond situation was discussed yesterday by Norman Thomas of the League for Industrial Democracy, who is out on $10,000 bail for testing the Riot act. He said:

"Irrespective of the merits of the strike itself, those who want to vindicate American ideals, and the tradition of a government of law and not men, can aid this bail situation. The proper way to handle bail, of course, is in general through bonds written by surety companies. The surety companies must be guaranteed either by actual securities or, what is far preferable, by personal guarantors whose assurances the company will accept.

"The Emergency Committee for Strikers' Relief, formed by the American Civil Liberties Union and the League for Industrial Democracy, of which I am Chairman and Evelyn Preston Treasurer, is seeking enough guarantors to assure us of a million dollar bail fund. We do not anticipate any loss on bail bonds that may be written, but obviously the greater the number of guarantors the less proportionately would be any loss. We are, therefore, issuing a public appeal to all those who believe that the Anglo-Saxon institution of bail should not be used to break a strike to help us obtain the necessary guarantees."

To Seek an Injunction.

John Larkin Hughes of Newark, counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union, is preparing papers in an injunction suit to restrain the Bergen County authorities from "further violation of civil rights." It will also be alleged that the Sheriff's men violated property rights in arresting Mr. Thomas on ground rented by the League for Industrial Democracy. The petition will be supported by affidavits of Forrest Bailey, director of the American Civil Liberties Union; Freda Kirchway, Norman Thomas, Arthur Warner and Arthur Garfield Hays.

Approximately 2,500 strikers attended the mass meeting at Wallington arranged by the Strike Committee. Order prevailed. No county officers appeared at the meeting. The only officers nearby were three policemen, who paid no attention to the meeting, but directed traffic. Protestant Episcopal Bishop Paul Jones of Utah, of the Fellowship of Reconciliation; the Rev. John Wroblewksi, rector of the Polish National Catholic Church of Passaic; Elizabeth Gurley Flynn and J. O. Bentha addressed the meeting.

The special committee of citizens and clergymen formed to mediate between strikers and mill owners met today and will meet again tomorrow.

COOLIDGE KEEPS HANDS OFF.

Turns Strikers' Affidavits Over to Department of Justice.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—President Coolidge has no information that the Federal law has been violated in the Passaic strike. If it has he thinks that the United States District Attorney should investigate and act.

The affidavits presented to him by representatives of the strikers yesterday have been referred to the Department of Justice. The Department of Labor, it was pointed out, was in touch with the situation and doing what it could in the way of mediation and conciliation.

WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP).—Passaic textile strike conditions are becoming such that a Senate investigation should be authorized, Senator Borah told the Senate today, urging the Manufacturers Committee to report the La Follette resolution, calling for an inquiry without delay. Senator Borah said he had "reliable information that the employers no longer desire an investigation."

NORMAN THOMAS SUES THE SECURITY LEAGUE

Asks $25,000 for Slander by One of Its Speakers, Who Denies Report of Speech.

Joseph Cashman, a speaker for the National Security League, and the organization itself were named as defendants in a $25,000 slander suit begun yesterday by Norman Thomas, who alleges that Cashman, at a luncheon of the Lions' Club on April 15, alleged that he took college students to Passaic "to instil in them the seeds of revolution."

Mr. Thomas, who is represented by Arthur Garfield Hays, of 43 Exchange Place, caused the papers to be served on Mr. Cashman yesterday.

On information and belief, Mr. Thomas alleges that the National Security League "pretends to stand for American principles of Government," but its purpose is "to endeavor to upset the Constitution of the United States and the principles of the Government thereof by inciting persons to prevent others from exercising the rights guaranteed them by the said Constitution."

Assails Security League.

Mr. Thomas further alleges that "the said National Security League, Inc., spreads propaganda through various officials in various forms, one method consisting of calling any persons who believe or act on the constitutional guarantees of free speech, press and assemblage, revolutionists, Bolshevists, Communists and Socialists, ignorantly asserting there is no distinction, and in other ways slandering or libeling such persons, unless such persons express the views held by members of this organization and stated in its literature."

At the Lions' Club luncheon, says Mr. Thomas, Mr. Cashman "maliciously and ignorantly made statements to the effect that the strike now existing in Passaic and Garfield, N. J., originated in Communist headquarters in Chicago, and was planned by Communists as a lesson in revolution; that the plaintiff is at the head of a plot to corrupt the morals of college boys and girls and has taken City College students with him to New Jersey to instil in them the seeds of revolution."

Mr. Cashman sent the following letter to THE TIMES yesterday:

April 16, 1926.

Editor, NEW YORK TIMES,
Times Square,
New York City.
Dear Sir:

In the issue of the TIMES of even date, you report an address which I made before the Lions Club at the Commodore Hotel yesterday. You make the following statement:

"Mr. Cashman asserted that Norman Thomas, who was arrested for making a speech in the strike area, is at the head of a plot to corrupt the morals of college boys and girls, and has taken City College students with him to New Jersey to instil in them the seeds of revolution."

I beg to state that I did not make the statements attributed to me in the foregoing paragraph. What I did say was that Norman Thomas and various other persons whom I named are members of the League for Industrial Democracy, and that they and others speak under the auspices of the Student Forum at the various liberal clubs in colleges throughout the country; that such speakers as Mr. Thomas and the others named spread subversive ideas among the students of those clubs, and that constructive and patriotic speakers are not permitted to speak there. A quoted from a pamphlet by R. M. Whitney entitled "The Youth Movement in America," showing some of the types of subjects discused at liberal clubs, including such clubs in women's colleges.

I did not, however, at any time make the statement that Norman Thomas was engaged in any such work, or was at the head of any group engaged in such work as is stated in the above quotation.

Furthermore, I did not say that Arthur Garfield Hays was a Revolutionist. I may have said that Arthur Garfield Hays was a Socialist, and a members of the American Civil Liberties Union and other kindred groups.

I might also add that I was not speaking at the Lions Club under the auspices of the National Security League, but was filling an engagement by direct invitation of the Lions Club.

I am writing this letter in justice to Mr. Thomas and Mr. Hays, whose views on political, economic and social matters are generally contrary to my own. I am quite familiar with their views, as I have debated on the platform the question of freedom of speech with both of these gentlemen, and while I disagree with their conception of freedom of speech, and their political and economic beliefs, I have no reason to feel anything but respect for them personally.

Will you kindly publish this letter in order that full justice may be done Mr. Thomas?

Very truly yours,
JOSEPH T. CASHMAN.

cruel journey over the Baltic Sea and the snow-clad lands of Latvia and Esthonia.

Greeted by the Officials.

Almost mechanically they responded to the greetings of the Italian Naval Attaché, Signor Mirsglia and Consul Bombieri, the Norwegian Consul Platow and other officials, Russian and foreign. At 10:30 o'clock they piled into rough peasant sleighs to make a wary jolting trip to Gatchina, where—a startling contrast—they were lodged in the imperial bed chambers with priceless carpets, wood and painted ceilings and the furniture that was the gift of French Kings to the Russian Czar.

Colonel Umberto Nobile, the commander of the ship, and Lieutenant Ritser-Larsen, second in command, expressed the utmost satisfaction over the airship's performance over difficult conditions and with the Russian arrangements for the landing. They warmly thanked and congratulated M. Khalturin and M. Zinovief—no relation of the President of the Communist International—Commander of the Leningrad air district, for the manner in which the ship was manoeuvred into the hangar.

Then they went to sleep.

"This is the first real rest for six days," said Colonel Nobile, "and don't wake me tomorrow."

It is probable that the reception by the Academy of Science, which was planned for tonight, will be postponed until tomorrow to give the crew time to rest. They are expected to stay here for a week or ten days until informed that the new hangar is ready at Kings Bay, Spitzbergen.

RIGA, Latvia, April 16.—Numerous reports were received today from places along the route taken by the Norge over Esthonia yesterday, telling of the signals which the explorers made to the people below when the airship encountered the fog.

One states that near Pelin the Norge, hovering low, dropped a packet, which the watchers found, containing a note saying that it had lost its bearings, owing to winds and fog. The note was written in English and German and read:

"Where are we, north or south of the Gulf of Finland? If south, please hold arms aloft; if north, cross arms."

The watchers lifted their arms and the Norge proceeded, apparently finding its bearings from the Walk Railway Junction, which it encircled thrice.

Engines to Be Overhauled.

LENINGRAD, April 16 (AP).—Weary from their many hours in the air on the journey yesterday from Oslo to Trotsk, the officers and crew of the Norge, rested the greater part of today at the Gatchina Palace. Celebrations in their honor have been postponed until the men have thoroughly recovered from the effects of their long vigil at their posts.

Colonel Nobile said today that the motors will be thoroughly overhauled before the dirigible starts on the next lap of the voyage northward which, it is confidently expected, will eventually lead across the North Pole to Alaska.

Colonel Nobile described in detail some of the experiences of the 17-hour trip from Oslo to Trotsk.

"I am not afraid of fog," he said, "and if during the polar flight we encounter fogs like that of yesterday I shall use our British compass. The whole voyage thus far has been without a hitch. All three engines have been well tested by the flight from Rome. Between Oslo and Trotsk our speed was more than sixty miles an hour, and even during the foggy stage we kept going at nearly forty miles an hour."

Colonel Nobile and all the members of the crew withstood perfectly the heavy rolling of the Norge while passing over the Baltic, when, at one time, the airship stood at an angle of 45 degrees. The necessity of standing in the airship's gondola and the extremely low temperature encountered over Esthonia naturally wearied the crew greatly, although it did not dampen their high spirits and optimism.

Says the Norge Was Lost for Ten Hours in the Baltic Fogs.

LENINGRAD, April 16.—News from the Meteorological Institute of Oslo that it expected a change in the weather induced Colonel Umberto Nobile to leave Oslo at 11 o'clock for Leningrad, to avoid the risk of the wind catching the Norge in a dangerous position at its mooring mast.

This precaution was most fortunate, because in flying over the Baltic Sea and the Gulf of Finland a very strong gale drove the ship south in the midst of dense clouds all around her, shutting off sight of the earth and preventing the navigators from locating our position and forcing us to wander at hazard for ten hours.

Toward noon the clouds cleared and we descended as low as possible to reconnoitre the land. We found ourselves above a flat plain covered with snow and ice, across which it was possible to perceive a few scattered log cabins.

No station replied to our Marconi, and it was only a little later that we perceived a small town with a railroad and were able to read the name of the railroad station, which revealed that it was Walk, on the border of Esthonia and Latvia.

We realized that the wind had carried us south over Latvia and that we were now reaching Esthonia. We were thus able to resume our route and for upward of five hours flew over frozen Lake Peipus. We entered Russia shortly afterward, and at half past 7 in the evening located the airdrome at Gatchina, thirty kilometers from Leningrad, where a landing was successfully accomplished.

We received an enthusiastic reception from a large crowd and numerous foreign and Russian officials, including the Italian Consul, Signor Bombeiri, and his wife. Then we traveled over deep snow in sleds to the imperial palace of Alexander III, where fine quarters were prepared for us. We expect to wait here until we receive news that the hangar is ready at Spitzbergen.

GERMANS ARE ELATED AT SUCCESS OF NORGE

But Experts Still Doubt She Has Proven Her Suitability for the Flight Over the North Pole.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 16.—Germany, the home of the Zeppelin, is enthusiastic over the successful flight of the airship Norge of the Amundsen-Ellsworth-Nobile Expedition from Oslo to Leningrad, overcoming heavy fogs and other adverse conditions.

Throughout the flight there were numerous rumors afloat that the Norge was lost and would be obliged to land, possibly on German soil. On account of this possibility the authorities along the Baltic Coast made preparations to give the airship every facility in making a landing, by warning all radio stations to be on the lookout for signs of the ship's approach, and sending landing squads to the airfields.

Though the news of the safe arrival at Leningrad is applauded by the technical experts in aeronautics, they are not optimistic concerning the Norge's worthiness for the forthcoming trip over the North Pole to Alaska. It is pointed out that the only real test flights which the dirigible has had were from Rome to Leningrad by way of Pulham and Oslo, which, they assert, are hardly sufficient to pass judgment. The next flight from Leningrad to Spitzbergen will be the last before the dash across the North Pole is attempted. Whether the ship can make a non-stop flight from Spitzbergen to Alaska is not yet proved, according to the experts, who point out that it is difficult to make a landing with the present ship and that a large force of men is needed, which would be impossible should a forced landing be required in the polar regions.

Though the failure of the wireless on the last trip is looked upon as only a technical fault which can easily be overcome, the German engineers believe it is a sign that the necessary coordination of the various functioning is imperfect and that small failures of this kind could prevent the successful outcome of the trip.

Under present conditions, as well as they are able to judge, the German experts believe that Captain Amundsen must have considerable luck on his side to succeed in crossing the North Pole.

SMITH SIGNS BILLS RAISING JUDGES' PAY

Increase in Salaries of Surrogates Is Also Provided in 14 Measures.

38 OTHER BILLS APPROVED

Reorganization Measure Putting Grade Elimination Under Public Works Head Is Signed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—Salary increases totaling thousands of dollars yearly for County Judges and Surrogates were provided under fourteen measures approved today by Governor Smith. The Governor signed fifty-two bills today, bringing the total number of new laws placed on the statute books this year up to 407.

One of the measures approved by the Governor was by Senator Shackno, Democrat, providing that the salaries of Bronx County Judges shall be the same as those paid to the General Sessions Judges. Another bill by Assemblyman Kinsley, Democrat, would make the salary of the Bronx County Surrogate the same as that paid to the Surrogate of New York County.

The salary of virtually every County Judge and County Surrogate in the State will be increased by the 1926 Legislature, according to present indications. The Senate already has passed a bill by Senator Gibbs, Republican, providing increases for all except three or four County Judges and Surrogates, in addition to the measures signed today by the Governor. The Gibbs bill is still in the Rules Committee in the Assembly, but indications are that it will be favorably reported early next week and passed. The Gibbs bill, in addition to the measures just approved by the Governor, would take care of virtually every County Judge and Surrogate so far as a salary increase is concerned.

Kings Official to Get $22,500.

Under a bill by Assemblyman Evans, Democrat, which the Governor approved today, the salary of the Kings County Surrogate would be the same as that paid to Supreme Court Justices in the Second Judicial District. At present the Supreme Court Justices receive $17,500 a year, but legislation has been passed which would increase their salaries to $22,500.

Under one bill approved by the Governor the salary of the Surrogate County will be increased to $5,000 a year, while the County Judge of that county will be increased only to $4,000. Other salary increase measures approved by the Governor today are as follows:

Increases for the County Judge and the Surrogate of Steuben County to $5,000 each.

Increase in the salary of the County Judge and the Surrogate of St. Lawrence County to $5,000 each. This measure was sponsored by Mrs. Rhoda Fox Graves, Republican of St. Lawrence, the only woman member of the Legislature. Increase in the salary of the County Judge and the Surrogate of Jefferson County to $5,000 each.

Salary of County Judge and Surrogate of Oswego County increased to $4,000 each.

Increase to $3,500 each the salary of the County Judge and Surrogate of Cattaraugus County.

Increase to $3,500 the salary of the County Judge and Surrogate of Cayuga County.

Increase in salary of County Judge and Surrogate of Ulster County to $5,000 each.

Increase to $10,000 each the salary of the County Judge and Surrogate of Onondaga County.

Increase to $5,000 each the salary of the County Judge and Surrogate of Tompkins County.

Democrats Predicted Veto.

When the bills increasing the salaries of many of the County Judges and Surrogates in up-State counties came up for final action in the Assembly last week several Democratic Assemblymen predicted that the measures would be vetoed by the Governor.

Governor Smith also signed a bill by the Reorganization Committee providing that the work of eliminating dangerous railroad grade crossings shall be under the supervision of the Superintendent of Public Works instead of the Public Service Commission. This will take effect the first of next year, when the entire reorganization of the State Government will go into effect.

The Governor signed a bill by Senator Nicoll, Republican, providing for the establishment of a board of higher education in Greater New York. The real purpose of the measure is to permit the proposed board to establish a university in Brooklyn.

A bill by Assemblyman Moore, Westchester, Republican, which would make it a penal offense to destroy flowering dogwood, mountain laurel or pink lady's slipper, was approved by the Governor. Last year Mr. Moore succeeded in having a bill passed by the Legislature and signed by the Governor which would prevent the destruction of trailing arbutus.

Both branches of the Legislature held very brief sessions today. A half dozen bills recommended by the Hughes commission, and providing for the reorganization of the State Government, were advanced to the order of final passage in the Assembly.

There is every indication that the Legislature will adjourn sine die one week from today, according to Senator Knight.

Gov. Smith Invited to Middletown.

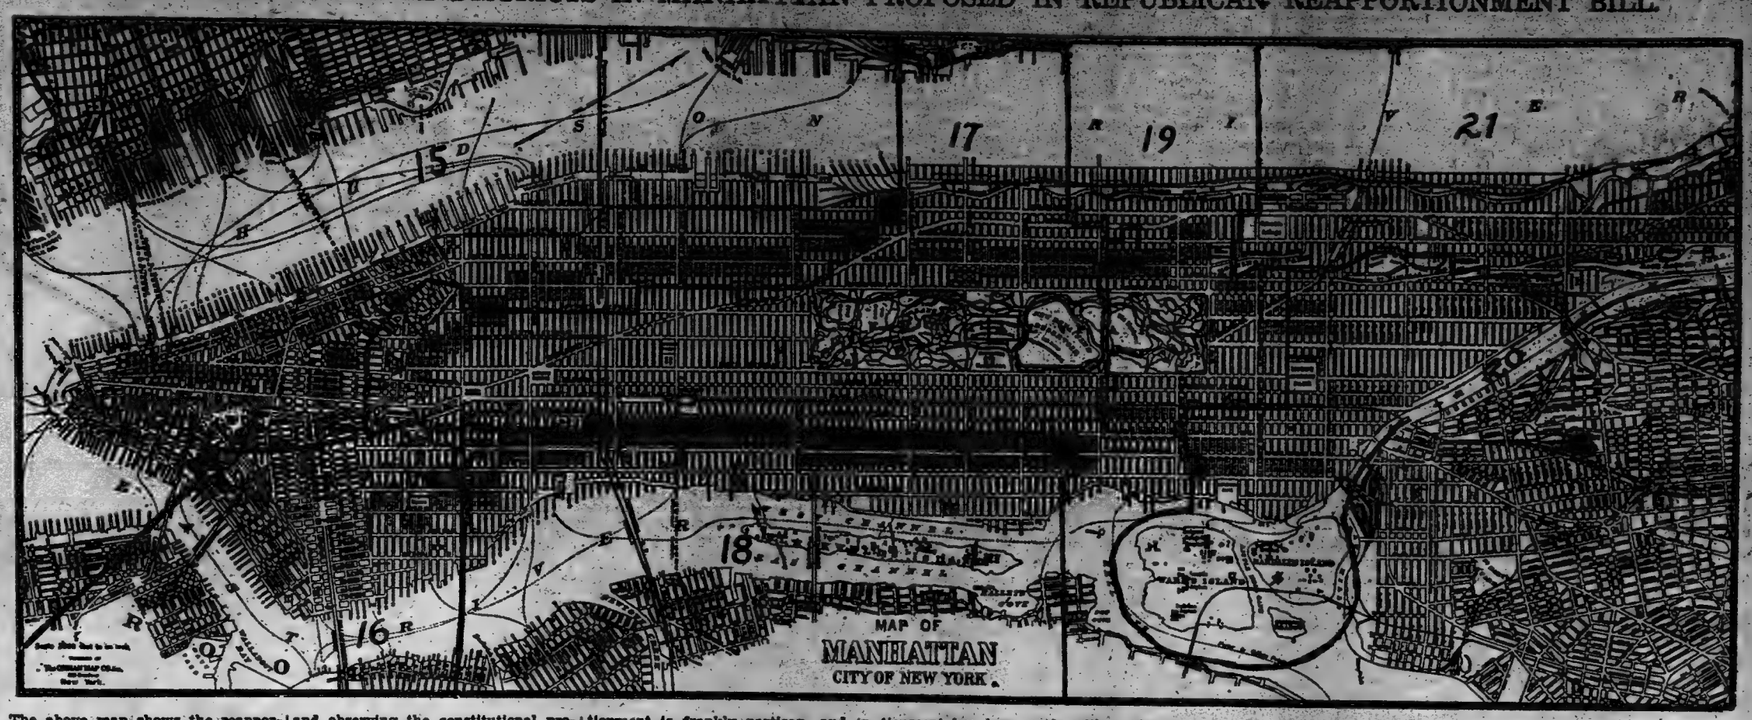
LINES OF NEW SENATE DISTRICTS IN MANHATTAN PROPOSED IN REPUBLICAN REAPPORTIONMENT BILL.



The above map shows the reapportionment of Senate districts in Manhattan as proposed by the Republican bill introduced in the Legislature yesterday. It was drawn by Percy J. Mickelbacker and Collin H. Woodward and approved by the Executive Committee of the New York County Republican Committee.

As explained by Republican sponsors of the measure, the jogs and teeth in the serrated boundary lines between districts were caused largely by the necessity of making all the districts practically equal in citizen population and observing the constitutional provision against the division of a block.

Those not caused by the necessity of equalizing population, it was said, were brought about by a desire to include in the proper districts, clubhouses owned by the political organizations, both Republican and Tammany. For instance, a jog in the boundary line at Fourteenth Street was caused by a desire to retain Tammany Hall in the Senate district of the late Charles F. Murphy, in which it had been for many years.

The proposed Republican reapportionment is frankly partisan, and in addition to the new seventeenth and twentieth districts, which are expected to be Republican, the leaders of that party expect to be able to carry the new twenty-first or Washington Heights district and the new sixteenth district in favorable years. At present there is only one Republican Senator from Manhattan—Senator Courtlandt Nicoll.

Although the reapportionment of Assembly districts will be made by the Board of Aldermen, now a Tammany body, the Republican Senate reapportionment has been made with a view to obtaining Republican Assembly districts. This would be possible, if the Republican Senate Reapportionment bill should become law, by the necessity of the Board of Aldermen keeping entirely within Senate district lines in making new Assembly districts.

At present, there are three Republican Assemblymen from Manhattan—Phelps Phelps, Samuel H. Hofstadter and Abraham Grenthal. According to the Republican viewpoint, the worst the Republicans can hope for would be six reasonably safe Republican districts in a new apportionment. Two of these would be negro districts in the proposed Twentieth Senate District.

The proposed Senate reapportionment would probably also make the present Sixth Assembly District, of which Samuel S. Koenig, Republican County Chairman, is leader, safely Republican. The lines of the Senate districts have been shifted so as to make Fourteenth Street, instead of Eighteenth Street, the northern boundary of Mr. Koenig's bailiwick, thereby cutting off a normal Tammany plurality of about 2,000. Mr. Koenig lost his Assembly candidate last Fall by a margin of only a few hundred.

Governors, Ellis, Bedloe and Oyster Islands are included in the proposed Fifteenth Senate District; Blackwell's or Welfare Island in the Eighteenth District and Ward's and Randall's Islands and the Sunken Meadows in the Twentieth District.

In the proposed reapportionment Manhattan will have nineteen Assembly districts, a loss of four; the Bronx, ten, a gain of two; Brooklyn, twenty-four, a gain of one, and Queens, nine, a gain of three, while Richmond will continue to have two districts. This will be a net gain for the city of two Assembly districts.

REPUBLICANS MAP 7 'SAFE' DISTRICTS

bill was made "safe" for Senator Courtlandt Nicoll. The new Seventeenth would have its northern boundary at Ninety-eighth Street, and run, with many fantastic windings, as far south as Bleecker Street, taking in nearly all the Republican territory on the west side below Harlem.

Senator Nathan Straus, now representing the Fifteenth District, will find himself a resident of the Seventeenth in this partly new and unfriendly territory if the new bill goes through and is approved.

The new Fifteenth would string out all the way from West Seventy-first Street tot Ellis and Bedlow's Island in the lower bay. The boundaries defined would indicate that it might prove fighting ground where in a Presidential year the Republicans would have a chance of electing a Senator.

The second "safe" Republican district in Manhattan would be known as the Twentieth, and would take in the entire "black belt" in Harlem, now divided among three Senate districts.

In Brooklyn a Senate district in the Ridgewood section would be added under the proposed new reapportionment. This is the extra district made possible by increasing the number of Senators from fifty-one to fifty-two.

Of the two Senate districts lost to Manhattan, Queens will get one in addition to its present two, while the other will be the First, made up of the County of Suffolk.

Average District Populations.

District.	Citizen Population.
First	122,716
Second	185,089
Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh (Westchester)	378,376
Twenty-eighth	155,543
Twenty-ninth	145,378
Thirtieth	148,872
Thirty-first	180,214
Thirty-second	162,214
Thirty-third	175,717
Thirty-fourth	153,925
Thirty-fifth	125,432
Thirty-sixth	132,967
Thirty-seventh	178,419
Thirty-eighth	149,123
Thirty-ninth	247,203
Fortieth	142,211
Forty-first	164,818
Forty-second	147,128
Forty-third	135,726
Forty-fourth	151,860
Forty-fifth	144,282
Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh (Monroe)	357,190
Forty-eighth	145,545
Forty-ninth, Fiftieth and Fifty-first (Erie)	637,333
Fifty-second	192,744

The Republican craftsmen who have been working at the Reapportionment bill feel rather proud of the close partition of Brooklyn's citizen population achieved by them in carving out the nine Senate districts in that borough. The population of the several districts under the new apportionment would be as follows:

Sixth District, 199,904; Seventh, 199,905; Eighth, 199,902; Ninth, 199,902; Tenth, 199,900; Eleventh, 199,903; Twelfth, 199,904; Thirteenth, 199,905; Fourteenth, 199,903.

The partition in Manhattan was not so close as this, but in Queens the bill drafters were compelled to calculate with equal closeness, because there were places in the new and sparsely settled sections where an entire block might be occupied as the residence of one family. Under the constitutional provision the citizen population of a Senate district must not exceed that of an adjoining district by more than the population of any one block.

Painful Cuts for Some Democrats.

In the reducing of the number of districts in Manhattan by two, many cuts have been made which will prove painful to some Democrats now in the Senate, upon whom they have been inflicted. On the east side the "gas house district," now represented by Senator Thomas I. Sheridan, has been largely combined with the present Eighteenth District, which is represented by another young Democrat, Martin J. Kennedy. There have been changes, too, on the lower west side, merging into one district much of the territory which at present makes up the Twelfth Senate District, which, until his election as Mayor, was represented by James J. Walker, and the Thirteenth, also a strong Tammany district.

It was suggested by some Democrats that the Democratic bill, which will differ only slightly from the Republican measure north of the Bronx, but which will provide for radically different district lines in all the boroughs in New York City, especially in Manhattan, should be based on "corrected" census figures, established through the survey made on behalf of the Democratic borough organizations to check up on last year's Republican census figures. The Democrats charge that the latter were juggled to cut down Democratic representation in the Legislature.

This idea, however, was discarded when the Democratic leaders, upon reflection, realized that to use as a basis for a new Senate apportionment anything except the official census figures would render their bill unconstitutional.

If the Republicans, as they are believed certain to do, turn down the Democratic measure, despite the closer compliance with the Constitutional requirement of an equal apportionment claimed for it, and insist upon passing their own reapportionment bill, this, as the Democrats see it, will furnish Governor Smith with the necessary ground for vetoing the Republican bill. Even if the figures of the 1925 census might be open to attack, this fact, according to lawyers, would afford no justification for veto action. The Constitution provides that a Senate reapportionment must be based on the official census preceding it.

The introduction of two separate bills it is believed, will at least have the advantage of making it unnecessary to prolong the Legislative session beyond next Friday. With the Democrats offering amendments to the Republican bill, the new print of the measure would have to lie several days on the desks of members before it could be taken up for final passage unless an emergency message could be obtained from the Governor to cut the red tape of procedure. The Republican leaders are loath to ask the Governor for a message of that kind, and it is doubtful whether he could see his way clear to grant such a request anyhow where a measure which he intends to veto is concerned.

BRITISH MINERS GET AID FROM CONTINENT

HELP IS MADE CONTINGENT

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 16.—A promise to support the British coal miners by every possible means, in the event of a strike, was made today by a committee of the International Miners' Federation at a meeting in Brussels.

The decision means, according to the International Federation, that not only will efforts be made to stop the exportation of coal to Great Britain but the possibility of a general sympathetic strike on the Continent also is contemplated.

"Emperor" Cook, the fire-eating Secretary of the British coal miners' organization, declared that a new and powerful weapon had been placed in the men's hands. It was evident that the prospect of a strike of 700,000 miners on the Continent appealed to his imagination.

A careful reading of the resolution, however, shows that it contains much that is contingent, but practically nothing that is operative. The support of the International Federation was gained only after great concessions had been made by the British leaders. It was agreed that in the event of a sympathetic strike on the Continent the direction of the British strike would pass from the British leaders to the international committee and that there should be no separate settlement in Britain.

It will probably be next Tuesday before a meeting between Prime Minister Baldwin and the colliery owners can be held. Baldwin is devoting his energy to a procedure for the settlement of wages, which is the most contentious point.

It is expected that the employers will reluctantly consent to a national wage negotiations proceeding, but it is not known whether they will still desire to reserve some control of the wage settlements by the district, which the men doggedly oppose.

Labor troubles, like others, seldom come singly. Negotiations between the employers and trade unions in the engineering industry again broke down today, and the situation remains materially the same as it has been since the middle of March, when the employers rejected finally the demand for an increase in wages and the unions announced their intention of seeking by districts what they failed to get nationally.

Some of the districts now have exhausted the procedure for the settlement of disputes, and in the London area the men are asking the authority of the union executives to take a strike ballot.

$12,000,000 IN SHARES FOR INSURANCE FIRM

Stockholders Vote New Issue in Ratifying Plan to Restore the Automobile Company.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 16.—To rehabilitate the Automobile Insurance Company, which had such fire losses that its stock dropped from 800 to 200, stockholders at a special meeting today adopted a plan approved by the State Insurance Commissioner whereby 10,000 new shares will be issued at $1,200 per share.

The Aetna Life Insurance Company, which owns about three-fourths of the Automobile stock, will take all its shares of the new stock and whatever rights are relinquished by other stockholders.

Payments of the $1,200 for each share of the new stock, which has a par value of $100, have been arranged as follows—$600 April 20, $150 July 15, $150 Sept. 15, $150 Nov. 15, $150 Dec. 15.

Most of the $12,000,000 raised by today's action will be devoted to the reserve account of the Automobile Insurance Company. Its capital will be increased from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 and its surplus from $2,000,000 to $6,00,000.

President M. D. Brainard disclosed that the Automobile's losses in 1925 were between $8,000,000 and $7,000,000.

New directors elected today are Edward Milligan, President of the Phoenix Fire Insurance Company and a director of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and Richard M. Bissell, President of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company.

Charles H. Remington, who was the underwriting head of the Automobile, resigned as an officer of the various Aetna affiliated companies several weeks ago and a new fire underwriter has been secured from Chicago.

$500,000 INSURANCE LOSS.

Hartford Fire Company Will Change Oil Policy in California.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 16 (AP).—Richard M. Bissell, President of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company, today estimated his company's loss in the recent California oil tank fires at $500,000. He said also that as a result of the disaster in that region a general reduction in all oil lands in California has been ordered, and in some instances a cancellation of policies has been made.

Mr. Bissell predicted that because of the lightning hazard, which had been considered negligible when the policies were written, the rates would have to be raised and a more conservative policy adopted. The Hartford Fire Insurance Company wrote policies amounting to nearly $3,000,000.

"If our loss should run to $500,000 or $800,000," Mr. Bissell pointed out, "it would only mean a loss ratio for the year of 1 per cent. Last year we did a business of over $60,000,000 in premiums."

The Hartford Fire's business there is reinsured by many companies.

Guy E. Beardsley, Vice President and Secretary of the Aetna (Fire) Insurance Company, has estimated his company's loss at $262,500.

COMMONS ADVANCES DIVORCE NEWS CURB

Passes Second Reading of Bill by Vote of 222 to 3 After All-Night Session.

EXPLOITING IS DENOUNCED

Minority of Press Is Accused of Damaging British Prestige Abroad, Especially in East.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 16.—The House of Commons, after sitting all last night and until 7 o'clock this morning fighting the batle of the economy bill, but without further scenes of the sort which led to thirteen members being suspended the previous night, reassembled this morning at 11 o'clock and gave a reading to a bill to prohibit indecent reports of judicial proceedings. The second reading was passed by an overwhelming majority of 222 votes to 3, among the three being Sir Ellis Hume Williams, K. C., one of the most famous British criminal lawyers.

The bill provides that in the proceedings for the dissolution or the nullity of marriages or for judicial separation nothing is to be published except the names, addresses and descriptions of the parties and the witnesses; concise statements of the grounds on which the proceedings are brought and resisted; submissions on any point of law; and the summing up of the judge, the finding of the jury and the judge's remarks when passing judgment.

Major Kindersley, who moved the bill, argued that a small minority of British newspapers deliberately exploited unsavory cases. Publication of such details seriously damaged British prestige abroad, particularly in the East, he said. The bill deliberately contemplated punishing suggestiveness, he added.

Sir Evelyn Cecil, the real father of the bill, said the only commandment some newspapers observed was giving the public what they thought it wanted, and the public of course would read anything.

Sir Ellis Hume Williams quoted a former President of the Divorce Court to the effect that a censorship would interfere with justice because the infamy of offenders would be unknown.

Sir William Joynson-Hicks promised Government support for the bill, but stated he would resist all attempts to establish a general principle of hearing such cases in camera.

This had already made him refuse the terms of the Newspaper Proprietors Association, which had demanded a hearing in camera in return for publication of names and findings only.

On the general question of publicity for judicial proceedings, he pointed out that since adultery had ceased to be a capital offense it was no longer a crime at all and, unlike criminal offenses, did not deserve the punishment of being pilloried in the press.

THREE-TON SIGN FALLS, HITS WOMAN IN STREET

Large Timber Then Crashes Near Her From Lyric Theatre—She Is Taken to Bellevue.

The automobile metal and glass call sign of the Lyric Theatre, weighing three tons, fell forty feet to the sidewalk in Forty-second Street with a loud crash yesterday afternoon. A young woman, Antoinette A. Hess of 210 Eleventh Avenue, Astoria, Queens, was struck a glancing blow by the sign and was taken to Bellevue Hospital.

The falling of the sign was followed a moment later by the crash of a large timber from a point higher up on the face of the building, where workmen were putting up an advertising sign.

The timber fell within a few feet of where Miss Hess lay, and almost struck her and a young man who had rushed to her aid. The young man, who gave his name as L. Barbeaux of 403 Fifty-seventh Street, picked up the young woman and carried her into a shoe store adjoining the theatre.

Later, at the invitation of the theatre management, she was carried into the rest room of the Lyric, where Dr. Anderson of Bellevue gave first aid. She was suffering from abrasions of the back and possible fractures of the collar bone and wrist.

The sign became dislodged in some undetermined manner. Joseph Oppenheimer, manager of the theatre, said that so far as anybody connected with the theatre knew, the sign and its fittings and attachments were in good condition. He hazarded the guess that as a result of blasting in an excavation near the theatre the sign might have become loosened on its fastenings.

O'NEILL PLAY GOES TO JURY.

Los Angeles Prosecutor Charges They Saw Only "Parlor Version."

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, April 16.—"Desire Under the Elms," on trial before Judge Fredericksen, went to the jury at 4 P. M. today after a spirited argument, in which Prosecutor Reams pleaded for protection of the morals of the young and defense Attorney Green quoted from the Bible and Shakespeare to prove that language as bad or worse than any in the play was to be found in both.

The actors who presented the play for the jury deliberately slurred the risque lines and considerably improved the moral tone of the drama, the prosecutor charged.

"It was a parlor version" that the jury witnessed yesterday, Reams charged, an entirely different version from the one on the night of Feb. 18 when Police Sergeant Sweetman saw the play and was so "painfully shocked" that he arrested the management and the entire cast.

Mission Society Members to Dine.

The New York Protestant Episcopal City Mission Society will hold a "get-together" dinner on Monday night at the Hotel Astor, the first in its ninety-five years of organization. The toastmaster will be Robert L. Harrison, counsel to the society, and the speakers will be Bishop William T. Manning, the Rev. Dr. Milo H. Gates, vicar of the Chapel of the Intercession, and the Rev. Dr. L. Ernest Sunderland, superintendent of the society. About 100 guests are expected.

HOW TO SAVE PARKS TOLD BY ROULSTONE

In Radio Speech He Reviews the Conservation Program and Praises Citizens' Aid.

WANTS POLICE IN PARKS

And Seeks Punitive Legislation for Vandalism—Looks to Walker to Keep Pledge.

How residents of New York may aid in park preservation, rehabilitation and extension through their own efforts and by impressing public officials with the city's needs in the parks was the subject of an address delivered over the radio yesterday from Station WRNY by William B. Roulstone, President of the Parks Conservation Commission.

Mr. Roulstone said that friends of parks recently formed an "anti-litter" commission, which, headed by Mrs. Cyrus Sulzberger, had effectively called the Mayor's attention to the importance of educating children on the importance of not throwing trash in the parks, and that the Mayor had responded immediately by appealing to the school children of the city to keep the parks clean.

He said the same committee advocated the abolition of vandalism in the parks, and it was hoped trough its efforts to have restored park police and to get punitive legislation which would protect the parks.

He said other examples of cooperation by citizens to aid the parks were the recent preventions of park invasions through the erection of buildings, and added that even now movements have been started to reduce not only the size of Central Park but also the smaller water front parks. One of these, he said, was the application of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Robinson to take away fifty-three acres from Jacob Riis Park, a project in which the Navy has been previously rebuffed. However, he said, Mayor Walker had pledged himself to protect the parks and the public relied on him to keep his promise.

"There is ever a very pressing need for citizens to bestir themselves in these matters, to go to the officials and inform them and advise officials as to the public view about these matters," he said. "Many of us are very hopeful that if the public view indicated in this talk can be courteously and effectively presented to the new Administration, that satisfactory results from them will presently be the reward."

Honors for Princeton Musicians.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 16.—John Glover Kellogg of Oswego, N. Y., has been elected President of the Princeton Musical Club for the next academic year and Robert Penn Kemble of Mount Carmel, Pa., will head the Glee Club. Both are juniors. They will be in charge of a dinner for the clubs at the Hofbrau, New York, on April 24. Besides singing second bass in the Glee Club, Kellogg is one of the pitchers on the varsity baseball team. Kemble sings first bass in the Glee Club and the university quartet.

BROKER DIES AFTER FALL.

C. L. Horton, 78-Year-Old Patron, Fell on Restaurant Stairs.

Charles Lester Horton, a broker of 60 West Forty-sixth Street, died yesterday at Bellevue Hospital of a fractured skull. He received his injuries last Monday when he stumbled and fell down the cellar stairs of Rosoff's Sea Food Restaurant at 781 Sixth Avenue. Mr. Horton, who was 78 years old, had been in the habit of lunching at Rosoff's for more than eight years, according to the proprietor, and the same waiter, Peter Hagis, had served him during the entire time.

Mr. Horton had occupied a room at the West Forty-sixth Street address for seven years. Others living at the same place said he invariably went out early in the morning and did not return until late in the day.

After his injury, Mr. Horton gave the name of a cousin, Mrs. Alice Watermyer of 2 East Court, Hudson, N. Y., as his nearest relative. Jack Dunstan, one time proprietor of "Jack's" restaurant on Sixth Avenue, was a close friend of Mr. Horton.

ASPARAGUS

But asparagus is at its best between the third and sixth years,

When it is tender and toothsome and very rich in mineral salts,

And when it is one of the best sources of vitamins in the world.

For your health's sake, as well as for keen enjoyment, make asparagus a part of your diet.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, April 17—Take a leaf from the book of the young university man. He knows what's what and what's not. He carries his pipe tobacco in pouch covered with the same silk as his four-in-hand scarf or bow-knot tie.

Gay-hued college stripes. The pouch is lined with oiled silk to keep the tobacco in prime condition.

Such a set is just another of those picturesque ideas which lend charm and character to one's turnout. Exclusive, but not expensive.

FOREIGNERS NOT MOLESTED

British Legation Attaches Are Permitted to Climb Over Wall and Go to Work.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 16.—The following dispatch has been received today by The London Times from its Peking correspondent:

Early this morning I motored around to the various city gates and found all of them closed except two. At one of these I saw remnants of the Kuominchun evacuating the city and at the other a large force of infantry was entering after a fight outside.

These oncoming troops belonged to a division that had been in the attacking Fengtien force, then joined the defending Kuominchun, but yesterday reverted to it sold Fengtien allegiance.

There was a good deal of skirmishing last night, and today in the environs between the retiring Kuominchun and the advancing Fengtien forces.

It is understood that the Kuominchun made their withdrawal in good order to Nankow Pass.

There is no complaint regarding the conduct of the troops toward foreigners. In fact, the soldiers almost invariably have shown friendly good humor when foreigners passed through their lines or encountered them otherwise. One instance is worth recording.

Among those who spent last night in Paomachang, a suburb, and were stopped when trying to enter the city this morning were Eric Teichman and his wife and Mr. Vereker of the British Legation staff. They engaged in a long exchange of courtesies with the officer on guard through a slit in the gate, and, although that worthy adhered to his orders to keep the gate closed, he did not oppose the arrangement whereby a rope was thrown from the battlements, up which all three clambered laboriously for forty feet, and so got inside.

Cavalry Gathers Up Stragglers.

PEKING, April 16 (AP).—The forces of Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian war lord, have not yet attempted to enter the city, as it had been generally feared they would, and complete order is being maintained here.

The main body of the Manchurian army remains at Tungchow, though one regiment was located outside Yungtingmen this morning. Manchuria cavalry detachments are patrolling the neighborhood and rounding up National Army stragglers, a party of whom were captured this morning.

In consequence of excellent work by the staff, virtually the entire Kuominchun had been evacuated to Kalgan by 4 A. M. Tang Chi-tao is acting commander of the garrison, with one brigade outside and one brigade inside the city, which Wang Shih-chen and his Committee of Public Safety have under effective control.

Never before has the Legation Quarter harbored such a great influx of wealthy and prominent Chinese. For days the hotels have been crowded with Chinese bringing in valuables in chests and boxes for safe-keeping. Yesterday evening when the proposed evacuation became known there was a veritable stampede of persons seeking places of safety under the protection of foreign guards.

Pay Kuominchun Not to Loot Peking.

By THOMAS F. MILLARD.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, April 16.—Today's private news from Peking indicates that the Kuominchun, before abandoning the capitol yesterday, having failed to arrange an entente with Wu Pei-fu, exacted a large amount of money from Chinese bankers, who thus avoided the looting of the city.

It is said that Chief Executive Tuan Chi-jui has returned to his residence from the Legation Quarter and resumed his nominal position as head of the Government. Now it appears that the transition has been effected with little disorder.

The chief difficulty lies ahead because of the conflict of interests between the two factions headed by Chang Tso-lin and Wu Pei-fu. There is little excitement because of events among the Chinese of Central South China, as they expect Wu and Chang soon to fall out and revive their old enmity.

In the meanwhile the Extraterritorial Commission is long overdue here. It was scheduled to leave Peking a fortnight ago, but is still marooned there and unable to get out.

It is privately reported that they are very impatient over the delay, and also the Customs Conference delegates are completely held up pending the reorganization of the Government.

Today the Chinese labor guilds and street unions issued a notice calling attention to the coming anniversary of the shootings on last May 30, and calling all patriotic Chinese to organize great demonstrations for that day.

GERMANS GET COCAINE BY COAL TAR PROCESS

Ring Backed by Rich Men Buys Drug at $200 a Pound and Sells It for $3,000 a Pound.

BERLIN, April 16.—The manufacture of synthetic cocaine from coal tar derivatives has reached a stage which permits of chemically pure stuff being made in a home laboratory, according to disclosures in the New Berliner today.

Darmstadt, Germany, and its suburbs, seem to be the centre of the illegal drug manufacture, and these laboratories are able to take care of the immense demands for raw cocaine made by smugglers.

Although the leading German chemists who are heads of large German chemical plants deny having any knowledge of producing synthetic cocaine as cheaply as extracting it from cocoa leaves, on the other hand import figures show that insufficient leaves are brought into Germany to account for the quantities of pure cocaine that are delivered to various countries as payments in kind on the reparations bill.

The New Berliner calls attention to the fact that Yugoslavia alone receives 130 pounds of pure stuff yearly in this manner, which means at least eight times that amount when used either illegally or on doctors' prescriptions.

Although the police frequently arrest peddlers, and occasionally smugglers attempting to get their wares into other countries, manufacturers are able to evade all attempts at detection.

That the entire industry is controlled by a ring backed by large capital is the belief of the police, as exporters are able to bear losses running into tens of thousands of dollars, as was the case when a recent shipment in false air tanks on the bottom of an international express train was confiscated.

Wholesale prices of the chemically pure article are about $200 a pound within the German border, but it is retailed to drug addicts at 50 cents a "deck," making the retail price about $3,000 a pound.

BLIND MEN MAKE APPEAL.

Ask Aldermen for Preference in News Stand Privileges.

Twenty blind men appeared before the General Welfare Committee of the Board of Aldermen yesterday afternoon in support of an amendment, introduced by Alderman John Cashmore of Brooklyn, providing that the blind be placed in the same "A" classification with war veterans in the granting of city newsstand privileges.

Commander Jean Brunner of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who said he voiced the sentiments of the Brooklyn veterans, opposed the amendment. Alderman Cashmore, sponsor for the bill, is a member of the American Legion, affiliated with Post 500, Kings County.

William Griffith, who is blind, said the average person thus afflicted had only three ways of making a living—caning chairs, vending newspapers or begging. Most of them, he said, desire to be self-supporting.

William Dorris, President of the Blind Newsdealers' Association, and Hugo Hanser of the Blind Industrial Workers' Association also pleaded for the amendment.

REALTY MAN BEATEN WHILE AT A PHONE

EMPLOYER ALSO PUZZLED

But Hints That Victim, Alone in Office, Might Have Been Mistaken for Him.

William J. Fleming, 35 years old, of 460 West 143d Street, sales manager for Jules Nehring, head of a realty corporation at St. Nicholas Avenue and 181st Street, was beaten unconscious at noon yesterday in the office by one of two strangers, and the police last night were endeavoring to learn the motive for the attack.

Fleming said he was telephoning when he heard the two men enter the room behind him, but thought it was his employer and paid no attention to the visitors until a second before he was assaulted.

Then, he said, he glanced over his shoulder to find an elderly man, wearing a light suit, hurrying toward him with another man. The next second he felt a crushing blow on the head, and fell unconscious on the floor. It happened that Mr. Nehring was coming up the stairs to his office, accompanied by Miss Marion Rogan, a professional nurse and civic worker in the Washington Heights district, when the elderly man hurried down to the street past them.

Mr. Nehring paid no attention to the man, but a few minutes later when he found his sales manager on the floor, with a deep wound in the back of his head, he hurried to the safe and found that everything was intact. Then he searched the desks in the office but nothing was amiss. Miss Rogan in the meantime had revived Fleming, and obtained from him the meagre details of events preceding the attack.

Mr. Nehring then telephoned for the police and summoned Dr. Richard Molenhauer of 600 West 183d Street. Fleming was then taken home. A traffic policeman was on duty at the street intersection at the time Fleming was blackjacked, but nobody thought of calling him until the arrival of several detectives from the station.

The detectives admitted that they were puzzled by the case, and sought information from Mr. Nehring which might help establish a motive, but when they left the realtors' office some time later they admitted that they were without a clue.

Mr. Nehring last night said that he had no idea what the incentive for the attack could be, although he advanced the theory that possibly the assailant had mistaken his sales manager for himself.

"Fleming resembles me somewhat from the rear," he said, "and, seated as he was at the telephone with his back to the door, it is possible that the blackjack wielder mistook him for me."

"What could be his motive, since no attempt at robbery was made?" Mr. Nehring was asked.

"Well, I've had a tough real estate matter on hand for about a year," was Mr. Nehring's reply. "I don't want to say anything more about it just now, but I'm going down to my lawyer, Edmund L. Mooney, in his office in Pine Street tomorrow morning, and I'm going to talk to him about the matter."

HOST AT BROWN'S FUNERAL.

Entire English Village Attends Services for the New York Banker.

WIVENHOE, England, April 16 (AP).—The whole village of Wivenhoe turned out in a pouring rain today for the funeral of McEvers Bayard Brown, the wealthy and eccentric New York banker who died April 8 on his yacht, the Valfreya, which had been anchored off the Essex coast for thirty-six years.

The coffin, covered with the Stars and Stripes, was borne to St. Mary's parish church, followed by the yacht's skipper and crew and a host of local friends, among them Major Percy Sturdee, cousin of Admiral Sturdee.

The body will be sent to New York April 24 for burial in Brooklyn. No arrangements have yet been made for disposal of the yacht.

WALKER DID NOT FORGET.

But His Floral Wedding Anniversary Gift to Mrs. Walker Was Late.

LONDON, April 16 (AP).—Mayor Walker of New York, with a thousand and one things to think about in administering the affairs of the American metropolis, didn't forget his fourteenth wedding anniversary, although to Mrs. Walker, here with the American hotel tourists, it appeared for a time that he had.

The date was last Sunday. Nothing came, either by cable or post, and Mrs. Walker didn't quite understand. But, upon returning to her hotel last evening from sightseeing, she found her room all decorated, in the centre of the table was a beautiful bouquet of orchids, with affectionate greetings from her husband.

Mr. Walker had arranged last week for the orchids and decorations, but the dates were confused at this end.

The chef of the hotel heard of the occasion and baked a large cake in honor of Mrs. Walker, assuming that it was her birthday. A large slice of the cake will be sent to the Mayor.

COMING OF PERET DOUBTED.

Coolidge Believes Progress Is Being Made in French Debt Talks.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The American Debt Commission has not reopened formal negotiations with France in reference to the settlement of that country's war-time debt, according to statements made by officials today.

It is believed that the negotiations, interrupted last Spring, will be resumed soon after the Senate acts upon the Italian debt.

President Coolidge believes that there have been some informal talks and that these have been proceeding encouragingly although no definite proposal of terms has been made as yet.

The reports from Europe that Finance Minister Peret is coming to the United States to negotiate the settlement are not credited in Washington, as this would be contrary to the plan which had been agreed upon.

LONDON, April 16.—The International Shipping Conference at its concluding session today passed a resolution expressing willingness to cooperate with the League of Nations to obtain freedom of communication and transit for the commerce of all nations.

The resolution viewed with concern the rapid growth of international organizations representing Government, trade and other interests as involving unnecessary interference with the shipowner's activities.

notified by Mr. McGeehan to come to his office yesterday. Mr. McGeehan said that Harry Vollmer Jr., Kurtsman's counsel, called him on the telephone and informed him that he had advised his client not to appear. Another inspector, whose name was withheld, also refused to submit to questioning, Mr. McGeehan said.

A conference with John Montgomery, President of the Valley Food Company, shippers of cream, resulted in evidence of additional payments of graft to Dansiger, Mr. McGeehan announced.

It became known yesterday that former Mayor Hylan and his Health Commissioner, Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, did not speak for two months during the Fall of 1925 because the latter refused to accede to a request by the former Mayor that a high Health Department official be dismissed.

Dr. Harris, who was named to head the department by Mayor Walker, informed Thomas J. Clougher, who had been Commissioner Monaghan's secretary on Jan. 2, that, having been placed in the exempt classification, he had sacrificed his civil service standing and that his services were no longer needed. Clougher submitted a written petition to each member of the Board of Health, but Dr. Harris's action was sustained. Clougher at present has a real estate office in Jamaica, Queens, with Henry W. Morgan, a former Health Department official, who was tried and dismissed from the service Thursday on charges of insubordination and of "irregularities" in connection with the milk investigation.

Banton Aids Investigation.

Dr. Harris received assurances from Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora that as soon as the evidence which is being collected was presented to the District Attorney's office in such form as to "be useful" it would be acted upon with vigor.

The Health Department laboratories tested eighty-five samples of milk seized early yesterday from milk wagons in Jersey City and found all of them to be unadulterated except one. The seizures resulted from a conference of Mayor Walker, Dr. Harris and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, in which the latter agreed to cooperate with the New York authorities in the drive against bootleg milk. A. McRoberts, chief of the division of milk inspection in Jersey City, was suspended by Mayor Hague.

None of the officials had anything to say on the dismissal. McRoberts, however, was indignant.

"They made no explanation," he said. "There are no charges against me, so far as I know. I can explain everything. I am ready to face any charge they may want to bring."

The seizures began shortly after midnight. Milk wagon drivers were required by the police to proceed to the nearest station house, where New York milk inspectors took samples from their cans. The Jersey City police were under the direction of Inspector John Underwood and, in all, about 223 wagons were stopped. Dr. Harris said he believed the fact that only one impure sample had been obtained was due either to the fact that advance news of the intended raid leaked out, or that the situation in Jersey City had been cleaned up.

Dr. Harris explained that bootleg milk, once received in Jersey City, could easily be brought to New York by motor truck. The milk standards in New Jersey have hitherto been much lower than those here, but Dr. Harris said that Mayor Hague had agreed that all the pure milk requirements here would henceforth be enforced in Jersey City. It was due to Mayor Walker's interest in the situation, Dr. Harris explained, that Mayor Hague's cooperation had been enlisted.

Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, former Commissioner of Health, at his home, 1,009 Bushwick Parkway, last evening declined to discuss developments in the milk investigation. "I have nothing to say. This is not the time to do any talking," he said. "I will have something to say at the proper time, but that is not now. I am not going to say anything that will embarrass any one."

KOERBER IS SENTENCED TO DIE IN MAY 16 WEEK

Leader and Four of Gang Taken to Sing Sing—Laugh Until They See Prison Walls.

Judge Frank P. Adel in the Queens County Court yesterday sentenced Herbert Koerber to die in the electric chair the week of May 16, for the murder of Anthony Mahairis in his Jamaica restaurant on March 21.

Jacob A. Vissel, attorney for Koerber, protested against sending his client to the chair, whereas Koerber's four companions in the Mahairis holdup were allowed to plead guilty to second degree murder, getting off with sentences of twenty years to life imprisonment.

Judge Adel admitted that technically all five were equally guilty, but that Koerber had fired the fatal shots, and that he (the judge) thought the others had not desired to do murder.

"I feel that under all the circumstances justice has been done," said Judge Adel.

Deputy sheriffs took Koerber to Sing Sing by train yesterday, with his four companions in crime—Richard Daerr, Gustave Fisher, Fred Kellerman and Palmer Green. The youths were in high spirits, laughing and joking, until they caught sight of the prison walls. That sobered them, especially Koerber, who for the first time seemed fearful and shaken.

Daunt struck Joseph Kirikaros, a news photographer, who photographed the thieves as they were taken from the Queens County jail.

Brooklyn Widow Burned to Death.

Mrs. Mary Feeley, 45 years old, a widow, was burned to death in her home, 362 Fifty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, yesterday when her clothing caught fire while she was attending a boiler filled with clothes on a gas range. Several women neighbors, attracted by her screams, finally beat out the flames, but when an ambulance surgeon arrived the woman was dead. Mrs. Feeley lived with Mrs. Kitty Hice, also a widow, and was employed as a ticket agent by the B. M. T. at the Fifty-third Street and Fourth Avenue station.

PARIS DELAY ON DEBT ANNOYS THE BRITISH

Churchill, With Budget at Hand, Resents Prospect of Further Postponement of Parley.

FRENCH ENVOY GOES HOME

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 16.—Impatience in British official circles with France's attitude on two important subjects—its war debt and disarmament—has caused a striking change in Anglo-French relations during the past fortnight.

The British Treasury resents the failure of M. Peret, the new French Finance Minister, to come to London to discuss the French war debt to Britain.

Winston Churchill, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, intimated to his French colleagues some time ago that he would like to have the attitude of the French Government on this subject made clear in time to take it into account in preparing his budget.

M. Peret, it is understood, pleaded his own budget difficulties, but the French budget is believed now to be complete, and it was expected M. Peret would reopen the debt negotiations by the end of the present week.

To the surprise of the British Government, however, an intimation has been received that Peret's visit has again been postponed indefinitely. The hitch in the France-American debt negotiations with Washington, it is understood, is specified as the cause of the postponement.

French Envoy Goes to Paris.

Churchill, with his budget speech only ten days distant, has been placed in a situation of considerable embarrassment and is reported to be very resentful in consequence.

M. de Fleuriau, the French Ambassador, paid a visit to the Foreign Secretary today and afterward left for Paris. It is understood that his mission is to impress upon the French Government the importance the British Ministry attaches to an immediate reopening of the French debt negotiations.

As regards disarmament, the British Government has now definitely indicated for the benefit of other powers interested that it does not consider the Soviet refusal to participate in the forthcoming preliminary conference as sufficient reason for its further postponement.

Hints have been received, however, that in some other European centres a different view is taken, and British official opinion has been driven to the conclusion that France, which was one of the moving spirits in the initiation of the conference, now desires another postponement. The reason given is Russia's non-participation.

British Stress Need of Inquiries.

Britain admits that the Soviet refusal to confer with the other nations would make it almost impossible for Russia's neighbors to reduce their armaments. The British point out, however, that no State will be asked to reduce armaments as an immediate result of the meeting of May 18, since this will be a meeting of the preparatory commission only, or, in other words, the Agenda Committee.

It is stressed here that discussion of the actual details of disarmament must be preceded by highly technical inquiries into such matters as what constitutes armaments and whether distinctions are to be made between offensive and defensive forces.

The preparatory commission's findings will not bind the participating Governments. In view of this fact and of the certainty that another postponement would only confirm Ambassador Houghton's skepticism about the sincerity of European professions of a desire to disarm the British Government is firmly of the opinion that the conference must be held.

FRENCH AND GERMANS RENEW POTASH ACCORD

Divide the World Market, Exclusive of the United States, for a Period of Seven Years.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 16.—The French and German potash industries have renewed for a seven-year period the temporary agreement signed in May of last year, which expired in a few weeks.

The convention, which was signed at Lugano, April 10, represents an important business victory for the French, according to the general outlines of the agreement given by the French authorities today. While it is learned that the agreement has not yet been modified so far as exports to the United States, the French have obtained a division throughout the rest of the world giving the French 30 and the Germans 70 per cent. of all the business.

The most important part of the agreement, however, is the provision that the French share will be increased annually until it is 50 per cent. of the world's exports—exclusive of the United States—by May 1, 1931. A new agreement for the United States market may be expected soon.

Joint sales promotion will be undertaken and the keynote of the whole arrangement is the policy of obtaining wider markets, and with no price increases planned at present. The German market will be still exclusively supplied by the Futsches Kalisyndikat and the French home and colonial markets by the Societe Commerciale des Potasses d'Alsace.

In connection with the arrangement it should be pointed out that the Alsatian mines are operating at capacity, while the Germans are only operating at 40 to 50 per cent. in order not to overload the market. Should the French be unable at any point to supply their share of the potash it will automatically revert to the German exporters. But the great French production is largely accounted for by the tremendous increase in domestic consumption, which is 200 per cent. greater than before the war and 20 per cent. greater than last year.

MEXICO CITY, April 16.—German experts in all lines who will soon arrive in Mexico to take positions in the Mexican Government service are said to be the forerunners of many more German experts, who are making a thorough study of the resources of the entire republic under the instructions of the German Government, which is reported anxious to secure control of raw materials.

The Krupp Company has arranged to build new smelting furnaces to develop an iron and steel trade in Mexico to supply Central and South America. Experts from the Krupp Company have tried to secure long-term contracts for raw material, iron, copper, coal, sisal and dye materials and are now convinced that the German Government can gain more by establishing factories and smelters in Mexico. This is part of the reported general plan of the German Government to secure control of Mexican industry to fight American interests in Central and South America. The German Government is also planning, it is said, to establish small German banks to finance these new German industries.

TROOPS AWE HERRIN AT KLAN BURIALS

Friends Crowd Church for the Funeral of Three Victims of Election Riot.

CORONER OPENS INQUEST

HERRIN, Ill., April 16 (AP).—With troops patrolling the streets in the vicinity funeral services were held this afternoon at the First Christian Church for Harland Ford, Mack Sizemore and Ben Sizemore, the three Klansmen killed in Tuesday's election disorders.

Four clergymen officiated. They were the Rev. J. E. Story, pastor of the church where the funeral was held; the Rev. P. R. Clotfelty, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Herrin; the Rev. I. E. Lee, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Herrin, and the Rev. B. E. Green, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Hurst. Green formerly was editor of the Klan newspaper at Herrin and was prominent in Klan affairs during the Klan régime in Williamson County.

The Odd Fellows Lodge, of which all three men were members, had charge of the services. The small church was packed to capacity and many stood on the outside. It was announced this morning the services would be held at the First Baptist Church, which is larger, but plans were changed again to hold the services in the First Christian Church as originally announced.

The Coroner's Jury held a short session today, heard two witnesses and adjourned until tomorrow morning.

Richard Thompson, a miner, testified that three automobiles loaded with armed men drove up to the Masonic Hall polling place, in front of which the fatalities occurred. The men got out and started toward John Ford, former Chief of Police, reputed Cyclops of the Herrin Klan now and a brother of one of the slain. He said a man whom he believed was Mack Sizemore fired the first shot, which killed one of two men who accosted Ford and searched him.

Almost simultaneously, however, Thompson testified, Mack Sizemore fell, mortally wounded. He said he did not recognize any of the men who got out of the cars.

Dale McNeill, the other witness, testified substantially the same. In the previous shooting at the Smith garage, he said, he saw fifteen or twenty men firing toward the garage, the only one of whom he recognized being Bill Burton. He said he did not see any police or regular deputy sheriffs near the polls.

Some said he had gone to Florida and others Kentucky, but whatever his destination Smith lost no time in leaving the place where for nearly three years he had been one of the central figures in Klan and anti-Klan clashes.

His garage, which was riddled by bullets in Tuesday's battle and in which seven men were killed Aug. 30, 1924, was sold late yesterday to two Herrin automobile and accessory dealers, who divided the stock between them.

GENEVA, April 16.—The ex-Crown Prince George of Saxony, who definitely renounced his title and wealth wto years ago to become a priest, is expected to arrive at the Catholic Monastery at Fribourg, Switzerland, this month to take up his new duties. The Prince took a theological degree at the University of Fribourg, and was ordained a priest.

are not to be solved so as to embrace offenses not clearly within the law."

Referring to the discretionary power of the Secretary of Commerce the decision asks:

"What rule has Congress laid down for his guidance in determining division of the time between the defendant and the General Electric Company?"

Violation Held Not Criminal.

The Court held that while the Zenith Corporation and President McDonald were really guilty of a violation of an administrative regulation promulgated by the Secretary of Commerce, it was not a criminal violation.

The decision further said that Congress cannot delegate its power to make law, and that it is "axiomatic that statutes creating and defining crimes cannot be extended by intendment and that no act can be punished under such a statute unless clearly within its terms."

Mr. McDonald in a statement said such a decision was expected, and, while it was gratifying, it was certain that the action clarifies the law.

He and his counsel interpreted the decision as having "absolutely no effect on the average broadcasting stations, and chaos cannot result in spite of the recent newspaper statement of Secretary Hoover. The decision will prevent seizure or piracy of wave bands by unlicensed stations or by stations not specifically licensed as manufacturers or experimenters, as the present law provides."

J. Elliott Byrne, Assistant Federal District Attorney, said steps would be taken in an action to appeal.

Case Going to Higher Courts.

WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP).—It was indicated today at the Commerce Department that the Zenith Radio case would be carried to higher courts.

Secretary Hoover had previously announced that a decision adverse to the Government would result in chaos in the broadcasting field, with a rush of stations to favored wave lengths.

The Commerce Secretary was in New York today and his aids ordered Chicago officials to analyze the opinion in the case so that a definite decision might be reached on further action.

CONGRESS WARNED ON FARM RELIEF

Minnesota Republicans Will Fight Adjournment Unless Action Is Taken.

COOLIDGE FOR LOAN FUND

He Regards It as Credit Need and Not a Subsidy—Haugen to Draft a New Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP).—Notice from Minnesota Republicans in the House that they would oppose adjournment of Congress until farm relief legislation was enacted, brought from Representative Tilson, the Republican leader, a response today that he expected a bill reported by Wednesday and brought up in the House the latter part of next week.

Meanwhile the Agriculture Committee, displaying symptoms of swerving from Secretary Jardine's plan, embodied in the Tincher bill, instructed Chairman Haugen to draft a measure. This procedure was adopted without a dissenting vote, but did not commit members to any form of legislation.

Chairman Haughen indicated that in working out a bill he would use the Corn Belt measure as a basis, modifying it so that it would be similar to the McNary-Haugen bill which failed to receive Congressional approval two years ago.

His plan is to include a revolving fund for stabilising agricultural prices by levying an equalization fee on the first sale of wheat, corn, cattle and hogs.

Differing from the Corn Belt bill, which would leave price stabilization to the discretion of a Federal Farm Board, Mr. Haugen's scheme would direct the board to maintain the price of each basic commodity at the world market quotation plus the import tariff.

At the White House it was said that President Coolidge is inclined to look with favor on the principle of the Tincher bill of not engaging the Government in the buying or selling of farm products.

He does not regard the revolving fund proposal as a Government subsidy any more than loans extended through the War Finance Corporation, and he believes that it would provide a credit for farmers more direct and satisfactory than that of the intermediate banks, which, he believes, are not functioning as well as had been expected.

JAPAN NOW ANXIOUS FOR OUR GOOD-WILL

Her Leaders Tell Henry Morgenthau of Their Desire to Cooperate, but as Equals.

CLASH OF VIEWS AT MANILA

All Factions Want America to Declare at Once the Future Policy for the Islands.

Henry Morgenthau of New York, who has just reached the Pacific Coast on his return from a tour of the Far East, has telegraphed to THE NEW YORK TIMES his impressions of conditions, presenting them in the following article:

By HENRY MORGENTHAU.
Special to The New York Times.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., April 16.—In spite of the importance of our position in the Pacific there seems to be little general realization in the United States of the vital interest to Japan of uninterrupted trade relations with our country.

If these relations were broken even for a very short time the effect on the Japanese economic structure would be disastrous. Last year the United States bought $440,000,000 of Japanese raw silk. This was 93 per cent., of the most valuable export product of Japan. The United States also took 80 per cent. of her export of grass rugs, 45 per cent. of her camphor, which comes from Formosa, 51 per cent. of her brushes, 38 per cent. of her pottery and 30 per cent. of all her toys sent abroad.

American imports to Japan still further demonstrate to all intelligent people the evident necessity for Japan and the great desirability for the United States of the continuance of good relations between the two countries. The United States is providing Japan with 85 per cent. of her automobiles, 84 per cent. of her import lumber, 70 per cent. of all her building and construction material, 50 per cent. of her petroleum products, 50 per cent. of her machinery, 54 per cent. of her leather and 40 per cent of her wheat. An amazing and most convincing array of figures.

Largely through the kindness of Ben Fleisher of The Japan Advertiser I had the opportunity to meet at luncheons, dinners and other functions and have long, serious discussions with most of the leaders of Japan—Baron Shidehara, Prince Togagowa, J. Inouye, Dr. Dan, Viscount Shibusawa, Tsurumi Hanihara, Baron Ishomoto, Viscount Goto and others. Although most of them still resent our "exclusion law," all realize that for economic, political, strategic and many other reasons, they must strengthen the close, pleasant and most profitable relations of the two countries. Any war, irrespective of the outcome, would do irreparable damage to Japan.

One must have visited Tokio and Yokohama to understand the terrific injury done by the earthquake and fire. The Japanese are still stunned from its effects. They are heroically repairing the damage, but it is slow and expensive work. Unfortunately, they cannot revivify the dead.

The Japanese still speak with great admiration of the prompt help and sympathy we extended them in those days of dire distress.

Changing Attitude Toward America.

Formerly some of the Japanese, like others elsewhere, regarded us an overgrown, provincial, smug and self-satisfied nation with limited military resources, while since our contribution to the winning of the World War they recognize our enormous potentiality in war as well as in peace. Their statesmen, who are as keen and farsighted as any in the world, fully appreciate the changed conditions, and particularly that we now are the determining factor in world affairs and that in any future world tug-of-war the side we pull with will win. They are most solicitous for our friendship and are anxious to counteract and destroy the evil effects of the pre-war anti-Japanese propaganda in the United States.

They emphasize their great and unbounded admiration for us and seize every opportunity to convince all visiting Americans of their sincerity to clarify the situation. They want our cooperation, and, above all, to be treated as our equals. A great nation is anxious warmly to clasp our hands.

The homogeneity of the Japanese stands out in bold contrast to the heterogeneity of the Chinese. Japan's natural path and that of least resistance is toward the West. At present, besides still further industrializing their own country, they are also energetically developing Korea and their own "Philippines," the island of Formosa.

They will look toward Manchuria, which is contiguous to Korea, Japan's mainland. (Look at a map and you will promptly grasp the situation.) But even there they aim at peaceful economic penetration. They realize that the competition for the Chinese trade will be fierce and that preference will be given by China to friendly nations who have treated them decently and justly during the trying period of evolution. The Chinese have recently learned the power of the boycott; Hong Kong is in a sorry plight from the result of its application; they will not hesitate to use it in the future.

Japan wants to continue as a world power, although they realize that their non-productive expenditures incurred thereby are more than their present taxing power justifies—their war and navy budgets are a great strain on their taxpayers and may even cause them to rebel against it—yet Japan feels that her continuing as the only world power on the Pacific gives her a valuable prestige, not only in the Pacific but all over the world, and it will be of great advantage to them in securing a full share of the Chinese trade when that country is finally opened to unlimited commerce and development. They feel that their great future prospects justify their present apparent extravagance.

The Japanese promptly brush aside any allusion to their coveting the Philippine Islands. Their thorough knowledge of the Philippines and their complete (even better than that of our public) understanding of our relations to the Philippines and the Pacific problem has convinced them that there will not be any Philippine question in the immediate future. They know that it is essential and wise to continue the existing relations for some time to come.

Rival Claims in the Philippines.

During my stay in Manila, where I had long and exhaustive discussions with all the principal advocates of firm retention, complete separation, immediate independence and deferred independence, I found that all these factions, in the heat of their discussions, are exaggerating their demands and are claiming more than they expect to realize. The politicos, headed by Quezon, are obsessed by the slogan, "immediate independence"; during my sojourn in Manila they even established a day of prayer for "immediate independence."

They fail to realize that the United States has become a great world power and, as such, has assumed new responsibilities in the Pacific and may therefore not deem it expedient to carry out her original intentions toward the Philippines, and instead offer them a quasi-junior partnership in the most powerful political entity of the world which would be a much more desirable status than being a small independent State reliant on its own limited resources and deprived of the great advantages of free trade relations with the United States.

In all domestic matters the Filipinos should be given a degree of autonomy somewhat similar to that enjoyed by the States of our country. They should have all the autonomy, without the same Federal responsibilities of these self-governing units, but there should be sufficient outside control to prevent occurrences like their dreadful bank disaster, which would have swamped them but for the timely assistance of our Government.

It is difficult to carry out the original plan to give the Philippines their independence as soon as they demonstrate that their Government is stable. A government, according to Governor General Wood, is stable when there is a ready flow of foreign funds seeking investment in its country at normal rates of interest. At present that is hardly so, and it is not so partly because capitalists fear the possible success of the demand for immediate independence.

And even if there were an absolutely stable Government now it would be so largely because the United States is helping in its direction. It is impossible for the Philippines to demonstrate that they can maintain a stable Government without the supervision of the United States until they have conducted an uncontrolled Government, so here is a vicious circle. It is one thing to be stable while the United States is steering the ship, but quite a different thing when Filipinos are at the helm.

Another serious contention has arisen: Has either Congress or the President the inherent right to surrender the sovereignty of the United States over the Philippines?

In Manila it is strenuously asserted and an extensive brief has been prepared to prove that by the treaty of peace with Spain the title to the Philippine Islands has become vested in the people of the United States and nothing short of a Constitutional amendment will enable a transfer of the same to the Filipinos.

An immediate opinion by the Attorney General on this question would be welcomed by all. All the factions want the United States Government promptly and definitely to fix their future policy as to the islands and then firmly and unwaveringly adhere to it. They don't want another investigating commission of Americans. They desire a mixed commission of Americans and Filipinos to find an immediate solution to the problem.

REICH TO FURNISH SUPPLIES

Senator de Monzie Pushes Scheme Which Will Cost About $50,000,000 —Financing Is a Problem.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 16.—The French Government services will be lodged in a single group of buildings surrounding the first skyscraper erected in Paris, if plans actively sponsored by the Minister of Public Works, Senator de Monzie, are realized.

Several Cabinet meetings have discussed ways and means. Materials and equipment for the Government centre would be supplied by Germany under the reparations agreement. This arrangement would make for great economy in carrying out the project; but, despite the relative cheapness, it will be expensive enough, owing to labor and other charges, to necessitate some sort of special financing, which may be difficult at the present time.

The financial difficulties are twofold: First, the ordinary Treasury receipts for this year and probably for the next few years will be eaten up by current expenditures and by the redemption of the huge floating debt, to say nothing of foreign, commercial and war debts.

In some circles the suggestion has been advanced to sell the buildings now occupied by the various ministries, which are extremely valuable; but this is opposed on the ground that the cash thus obtained, after doing its work, will be gone forever.

Secondly, market conditions of the franc scarcely permit the floating of an internal loan, while a foreign loan is deemed inadvisable by many persons because of the effect it would have on public opinion in France. It is true that many newspapers in the past few months have been warning against inflation or fresh borrowing, and the mere fact that the Government was offering a loan in some foreign market, however advantageous the use of the money might be, would arouse disfavor hard to overcome.

Americans Advise Against Project.

It is understood that American financiers, questioned as to the advisability of such a loan, have shown a certain degree of disfavor to the project, but only on the ground of the existing condition of the franc rate of exchange.

It is possible that some other alternative may be discovered which will permit the scheme to be carried out, such as a private banking arrangement. Inasmuch as the note issue would not have to be carried for long, there are great chances of success if financial backers are discovered.

The scheme along general lines consists of recuperating a vast area which is located behind the military school. This would be brought about by the prolongation of the public gardens, which would stretch from the Trocadero, across the Seine, under the Eiffel Tower and up to the military school.

Behind the old school a central twenty-story skyscraper would be erected and around it would be a series of smaller buildings, all constructed according to the latest American light-zoning plans.

All Government services would be modern, spacious offices with ingenious lighting, signaling and intertelephonic arrangements. A central plant would supply heat, hot and cold water, telephone exchange, &c. Two subway systems would build special stations and a shuttle train would carry passengers to the Orléans Railroad Terminus.

Would Rent Present Buildings.

The present Government buildings, following the completion of the new buildings, could be rented for high figures—to hotel syndicates, for instance. Among such buildings are the Ministry of Marine in the Place de la Concorde, one of the choicest sites in Paris; the Ministry of Justice on the Place Vendôme; the Ministry of Finance in the Louvre; the Ministry of the Interior, close to the Elysée, where the President of the Republic lives; and numerous old historic palaces on the Rues de Grenelle, Saint Dominique and the Boulevard Saint Germain.

The annual rent from these and other vacated Government offices would suffice to wipe out the initial expenditure in a fairly short number of years, while revenue from the same sources could be derived by the collecting of taxes on real estate, which the State does not pay.

Experts who have examined the tentative architects' and contractors' plans estimate the amount needed to carry out the work between $35,000,000 and $100,000,000, according to the methods of work and the financing selected, but a conservative figure appears to be $50,000,000.

Two American building firms are known to be interested in the scheme, which was originated by a young French engineer schooled in America, who is at the head of the French offices of one of these firms.

Under several monarchs all Government offices were centralized in a single group of buildings, such as Versailles under Louis XIV and the Louvre under Napoleon III. It may be presumed that the scheme has found favor in Government circles and that attempts will be made to interest the public in the plan.

Senator de Monzie, it is understood, hopes to carry out a governmental reform simultaneously with the erection of the new Government centre, if he can persuade Parliament to adopt his plan.

Restaurant Not on Padlock List.

United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner announced yesterday that his earlier statement for publication that the Golden Glide Restaurant, Inc., at 112 West Forty-fourth Street, had previously been raided and was on his "special list" for padlock action was due to misinformation received by his investigators. The place referred to was a café in Suite 203, on the second floor at the same address. The Golden Glide Restaurant is a coffee house occupying a part of the ground floor and, according to Mr. Buckner, its owners have no connection whatever with the raided suite. The restaurant is operated by Henry Gottesman and Antony Widrich.

ROME, April 16.—On reaching Rome this morning after a night's ride with my guide from Naples and after surrendering our tickets at the station gate, a guard remarked smilingly: "This is the end of your journey; this is Rome." And to Rome, or at any rate to Italy, all roads seem to lead just now, as they did in the ancient days.

A European King came to Rome on the train on which I traveled comfortably from Naples. A new another European King at Pompeii, who must pass through Rome to reach his northern kingdom again. I also traveled some distance toward Rome with two personages who attracted much more attention than royalty when they arrived in Italy. They were Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford.

The Northern King might wander in Italy or Pompeii without attracting much more attention than the nobility got, according to Bolivar, on the night of the great disaster. The other European King might pass unnoticed among the guests in a Neapolitan hotel. But not so these artists from Los Angeles, whose films the Epicurean Latin poet Lucretius would have been delighted to see as confirming his theory of the transmission as films or images of objects and ideas.

There is, however, one figure to whom the roads of all thought seem to lead. He is at the present moment on the way home from Africa, so I have not been able to see him, but one is aware that his personality pervades and dominates the Italy I so far have seen from the siren rocks off Capri to Corso and from Umbertide to Rome, from fishermen and peasants to scholars and financiers.

I saw Italy before the war, I saw Italy during the war and I saw Italy shortly after the armistice. This first glimpse seven years later reveals a changed surface aspect. Dante could no longer inveigh against this land of his as "a hostel of woe" or as "a vessel without a pilot in a mighty storm."

If there is woe it is invisible, and not even suggested in the faces of the people one sees in the streets, in the shops or at work along the road. I have seen hardly a beggar, save a blind. Industry has seemingly become a passion.

There is no feverish haste, no sign of interference here. There is obvious thrift and absence of prodigality. Incidentally, in all the miles I have walked I have not seen enough litter to fill a bucket. All in all Italy seems—at first sight, at any rate—to be a transformed land, lifted into industry and orderliness by some common hope or purpose.

If that is the explanation, even though that hope or purpose has been stirred by a single individual, Italy has entered upon a new life that will survive the voice that animated it.

Some of us may prefer other ways of obtaining such objectives; others may believe they cannot be permanently achieved except through what are usually, if not necessarily, slower processes of democracy. But no outside observer can doubt that those to whom proclamations are addressed in posters along the ancient ways of Rome today, in grateful recognition of Mussolini's escape from death or serious injury, are for the time being in better state.

Their confident hope is that they will find this improved condition is but a preface to a permanently better state, to be attained through the self-discipline which they are practicing under leadership of their own creation—under the guidance of one who holds the reins of Justinian's refitted bridle.

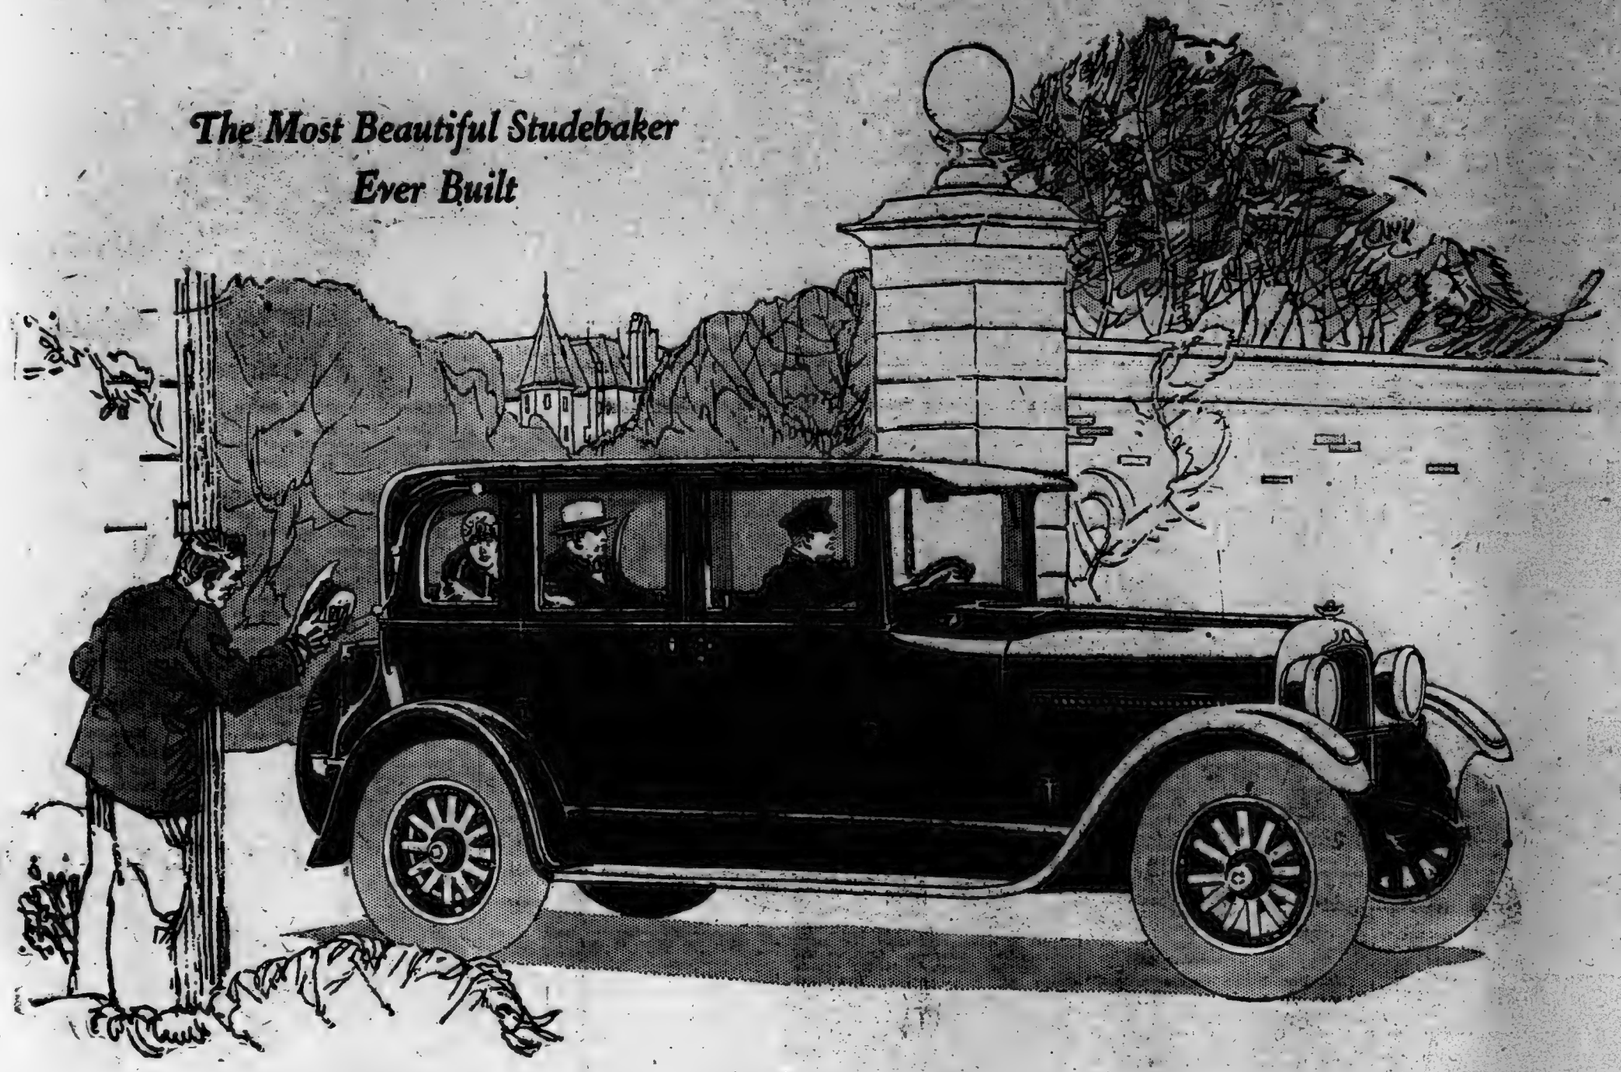
Distinctive Beauty
At a One-Profit Price
Studebaker Big Six Brougham



$2095
f. o. b. factory

The Most Beautiful Studebaker Ever Built

THE most beautiful Studebaker ever built—a car that offers luxuries in style, finish and interior appointments considered impossible in a car at this price until Studebaker achieved it through One-Profit manufacture.

No car has finer type of body construction—nor more luxurious inner and outer appearance—than the Studebaker Big Six Brougham. There are only seven American cars of equal rated horsepower, and they cost from $2655 to $7955 more to buy.

It is because of this that we ask you to judge this fine car solely on a basis of comparison with any fine car you have admired—and buy then by what you know to be the facts.

From its black-enameled steel travel trunk on the rear, attractively set off by ornamental brackets, to the distinctive curve of its bright nickeled radiator—the Big Six Brougham is the highest example of the coach-builders' art. Leather rear-quarter and landau arms complete its custom beauty.

A study in luxury

Inside—it's a study in luxury. Wide, deep seats accommodate five in easy-chair comfort. Upholstery is of finest broadcloth, tailored to a form-fitting design. Interior hardware is tastefully arranged and finished in rich Butler silver.

The richness of its interior and exterior finish is indicative of the fine quality body construction you cannot see. Body pillars are of selected northern white ash; cross members of hard maple. Studebaker standards—the highest in the industry—zealously guard every part and operation in its manufacture.

These fine One-Profit Studebakers may be purchased out of income at the lowest time-payment rates known to the automotive industry

Studebaker Big Six world's fastest-selling high-powered car

The Big Six Brougham is powered with the identical engine that carries hundreds of Studebaker busses at high speed hour after hour over some of the most mountainous and difficult-to-travel routes in America—hence we urge you to compare its thrilling performance with that of the finest eight-cylinder car.

The chassis and engine are especially designed for the Studebaker-built body. Full-size balloon tires, 127-inch wheelbase, long, resilient springs and snubbers assure unsurpassed ease of riding.

Because of its power, beauty and quality advantages the Studebaker Big Six has become the world's fastest-selling high-powered car.

Because of Studebaker's enormous One-Profit facilities, and the added advantage of volume production, Studebaker is able to offer a value in the Big Six Brougham that no manufacturer can duplicate within hundreds of dollars of its present low price. No other car of equal rated horsepower sells at less than double its price.

Studebaker's unique facilities

Few motor car "manufacturers" have foundries, forges, etc., to make their own engines—yet one-fifth of an automobile's cost is in the engine. Even fewer build their own bodies—yet one-third of a car's cost is in the body.

Studebaker builds all its own bodies, all engines, all clutches, gear sets, springs, differentials, steering gears, brakes, axles, gray-iron castings and drop forgings. Only Ford in the low-price field and Studebaker in the fine-car field have such complete manufacturing facilities.

One-Profit value

These facilities enable Studebaker to manufacture quality cars on a One-Profit basis—eliminating outside profits. The savings thus effected are passed on to Studebaker owners in the form of higher quality and lower price.

Unit-Built construction

Studebaker facilities result, too, in cars designed, engineered and built as units. The hundreds of parts in a Studebaker function as a smooth-working unit, resulting in scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation, greater riding comfort and higher resale value.

Always kept up-to-date

Direct manufacturing control enables Studebaker to keep cars constantly up-to-date. We add improvements regardless of the calendar—we do not save them up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete. Resale values are thus stabilized. Church Leaders Praise Prohibition as Aid to the Nation's Morals and Finances the arrest of all such persons regardless of whether they are disorderly or not.

Bishop Darlington, in his testimony, praised the Roman Catholics for the part they were playing in the dry campaign, while Dr. Haven of the American Bible Society, as did practically every other witness heard today, said the situation was one calling not for modification but for a more strict enforcement of the law.

DR. HAVEN OPENS BATTLE.

To the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America went the honor of opening the battle of the drys, and the Rev. Dr. W. I. Haven of New York City, senior agent of the American Bible Society, was the witness.

"From the beginning of its existence," said Dr. Haven, "the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America has been unequivocally committed to the policy of prohibition. When the first meeting of the Council was convened in Philadelphia in 1908, bringing together official representatives of thirty denominations, a message dealing with the problem of the liquor traffic declared that 'if it be right to preach the gospel of abstinence for the individual, it must be right to include in our message every possible persuasion to total prohibition as the attitude of the State toward the traffic in strong drink.'

"During the following years this position was repeatedly reaffirmed, and at the quadrennial meeting of the Council in St. Louis in 1916 action was taken urging that an amendment providing for national prohibition be submitted.

"In adopting this attitude toward the liquor evil the Council was simply gathering up and giving united expression to the expressed desire and will of the denominations that comprise the Council. Year after year in their highest legislative assemblies, by overwhelming majorities, they were registering their deep conviction that the traffic in liquor must be abolished. Not a single denomination included in the membership of the Council has expressed a contrary judgment on this subject within recent history."

From the moment the Eighteenth Amendment was ratified to the present, Dr. Haven said, the Council has sustained the principle of prohibition with "unflagging loyalty," and that at every meeting of the Council since that time this position has been sustained. This stand, he added, was a definite reflection of the attitude of the churches comprising the Council.

"The support of national prohibition," he continued, "by the Council rests upon four fundamental considerations:

"First, the belief that in dealing with gigantic social evils, like disease or crime, individual liberty must be controlled in the interest of the public welfare.

"Second, the belief that the liquor traffic is beyond question such an evil.

"Third, the conviction that no plan less thorough-going than prohibition is sufficient to eradicate the evils of the liquor traffic.

"Fourth, the evidence of history that other methods of attempting to control the traffic have failed and that prohibition, despite inadequacies of enforcement, is succeeding better than any other program.

Progress Must Pay a Price.

"Limitation upon individual freedom in matters affecting society is the price that any people must pay for the progress of its civilization. Personal liberty cannot rightly be claimed for practices which militate against the welfare of others or the interest of the community as a whole.

"It is especially contrary to the democratic ideals and to enlightened public policy to permit any citizen to make profit from a business which is detrimental to his neighbor. This is readily recognized by all as sound policy in regard to the trade in narcotics.

"It is equally true of the liquor traffic. To insure social protection against a trade whose avowed purpose was to get people to consume the maximum possible amount of alcoholic liquor is the foundation on which our national policy of prohibition rests.

"The policy of prohibition was not adopted hastily nor was it foisted upon the country by a puritanical minority. It was first voted in most of the States separately, and then nationally, because the people had become convinced that the liquor traffic was a social evil of such magnitude that it had to be destroyed. The Eighteenth Amendment was made a part of the Constitution by the regular methods which the founders of the Republic devised with a view to making the amendment to the Constitution difficult rather than easy. Yet this amendment was adopted more promptly than any other change in the Constitution ever proposed.

"The reasons which led to prohibition not only remain today but have been reinforced by the experience of other nations. The social peril of alcoholism is becoming a growing concern to statesmen throughout the world. If serious evils have sprung up since prohibition, they are far less than the evils which arose from the liquor traffic prior to the amendment. The liquor traffic, with the accompanying saloon, was allied with political corruption, crime, gambling and prostitution.

"It meant the wreckage of men and the degregation of families, which social workers and ministers saw constantly in their daily work. It produced needless inefficiency in industry.

Says Beer Means Saloon's Return.

"Moreover, the tendency in the United States, as has been the case in Europe, was toward an increasing consumption of the stronger liquors, with consequent intensifying of social hazards. Methods of control short of prohibition, such as taxation, regulation and the governmentally controlled systems of some of the Canadian Provinces, Norway and Sweden, have all proved inadequate to cope with the evil.

"The proposal to modify the Volstead act so as to permit the sale of wines and beer presents insuperable objections. It would make enforcement more difficult. It would inevitably mean the return either of the saloon or something equally undesirable. Bootlegging in stronger liquors would become more menacing, because it would tend to operate through the places where the milder intoxicants were sold.

"Moreover, there is no evidence to justify the contention that to permit wine and beer would reduce the consumption of ardent spirits. The teaching of experience is to the contrary.

"The one path of advance is for all good citizens personally to observe the law and to support the great enterprise, born of the idealism of the people, of completely ridding the nation of as demoralizing a business as the liquor traffic has always proved itself to be. Least of all should our prohibition law be changed in response to the cry of those who by their own disrespect for the law are preventing it from receiving a fair trial or who, because of their special interest in the return of the liquor traffic, are artificially stimulating an agitation for

Full List of the Signers.

The full list as read by Dr. Haven follows:

The Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, the Rev. Charles S. MacFarland, the Rev. Frank Mason North, Mrs. John Ferguson, Carl E. Milliken, the Rev. John M. Moore, Bishop James Cannon Jr., the Rev. Charles E. Burton, the Rev. Robert E. Speer, the Rev. George Reid Andrews, the Rev. Robert A. Ashworth.

Clifford W. Barnes, Edward H. Bonsal, Thomas E. D. Bradley, the Rev. William Adams Brown, the Rev. Willard D. Burdick, the Rev. Samuel McCrea Cavert, Bishop George C. Clement, James S. Cushman, the Rev. William L. Darby, the Rev. Osora S. Davis, the Rev. William Horace Day, Mrs. Jeanette Wallace Emrich, the Rev. Chauncey W. Goodrich, the Rev. I. W. Gowen, the Rev. Howard B. Grose, the Rev. Sidney L. Gulick, the Rev. William I. Haven.

Dr. George E. Haynes, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, Arthur E. Hungerford, the Rev. R. E. Hutchinson, the Rev. F. Ernest Johnson, the Rev. Howard Agnew Johnston, Orrin R. Judd, Alfred R. Kimball, David G. Latshaw, the Rev. Albert G. Lawson, the Rev. R. D. Lord, Miss Ella D. MacLaurin, the Right Rev. William T. Manning, the Rev. John A. Marquis, Walter R. Mee, E. E. Olcott, Bishop Robert W. Peach, the Rev. John Proude.

Miss Florence E. Quinlan, the Rev. E. B. Sanford, the Rev. Charles E. Schaeffer, Mrs. E. H. Silverthorn, George Otis Smith, James M. Speers, the Rev. Joshua Stansfield, the Rev. Harry E. Stocker, the Rev. Fred D. Stone, the Rev. George Summey, Hugh A. Thrift, the Rev. Ezra S. Tripple, the Rev. Worth M. Tippy, Fennell P. Turner.

The Rev. Charles E. Vermilya, H. M. Voorhees, Professor Luther A. Weigle, the Rev. John M. Wells, the Rev. George U. Wenner, the Rev. Charles L. White, the Rev. Thomas H. White, Oliver R. Williamson, the Rev. David G. Wylie, Charles P. Taft 2d.

Dr. Haven also submitted a communication from the Chicago Church Federation, which, he explained, is a subsidiary of the national organization, or Federal Council.

In this communication the Chicago Church Federation declared the Volstead act "seems to be the natural and necessary corollary to promote the adequate enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment," and that since determined and persistent efforts are being made to "bring these prohibition laws into disrepute, as well as to hamper their proper enforcement, the Chicago Federation not only wants the present law maintained, but urges enactment of such additional legislation as will help in stricter enforcement of these prohibition laws."

MACFARLAND NEXT WITNESS.

The Rev. Charles S. MacFarland, D. D., General Secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, followed Dr. Haven. Dr. MacFarland explained that he appeared as a substitute for Dr. Cadman, the President of the Federation, who was unable to be present, and that the testimony he gave were the views of Dr. Cadman.

"The personal liberty plea," said Dr. MacFarland, "is a delusion and a snare. All law is limitation of personal liberty for the sake of the public welfare. Only yesterday a bread trust was dissolved before it was well begun. The plea that one can do as he pleases with his own property does not avail for the bakers. Why should it avail for the brewers and drinkers?

"One of the blots upon our national character is due to the utterly misleading conception of personal freedom which rejects control and defies authority.

"How else can we account for the swollen lists of divorces, robberies, murders; the notorious deeds of public spoliation and financial debauchery; the unlicensed illusions of the press and its exaltation of rogues by the publicity it gives their trial and execution when they are brought within the reach of tardy justice? I maintain that the Republic we love needs the discipline which prevents reckless and assertive individualism from prostituting the honor and imperilling the safety of the American people.

"The perils of alcoholism give a growing uneasiness to statesmen everywhere, and although the degrading habits of those who openly flout the law are serious for them they are neither as widespread nor as iniquitous as the consequences of the legalized liquor traffic of a decade ago.

"Then saloons were on nearly every corner, groggeries in the slums, and breweries, which owned them, in full blast. They were sinks of human iniquity, alive with legislative corruption, political fraud, prostitution and crime. I know few who dare to hint that these dens of drink and creative sources of poverty and misery should be restored to their former vile supremacy.

"Yet should prohibition be weakened at the dictates of its foes, I am convinced that eventually the saloon will return. Its non-social and pestilential rule will be resadded upon the people. Those who are disposed to heed the pleas of the wets for a more liberal interpretation of the law should ask them how the return of the saloon is to be avoided.

Prohibition an Old Policy.

"They say that prohibition was foisted suddenly upon an unwilling people. As a policy, entire legal suppression of the liquor traffic, in one form or another, is seventy years old in the United States. During that prolonged period the traffic was given repeated opportunities to reform.

"Recall its bone-headed brutalities, its flagrant violations of law, its conscienceless outrages upon the security and peace of countless American homes. Taxation, police supervision, State regulations or the governmentally controlled systems of some of the Canadian provinces have alike proved ineffective. Finland, after experimenting with other plans, has followed the example of the United States and adopted prohibition.

"The descriptions of the violation of the law, or the wealth of bootleggers and of other villains and villainies preying upon our people, are usually made by those who want the modification or repeal of prohibition. Why they should make a concerted drive in this particular policy is not obvious apart from their selfish interests. Other laws are exceedingly difficult of enforcement, but we do not advise their modification or repeal.

"Give prohibition a square deal. No sooner was prohibition established and the wets had recovered from the shock than they began to encompass its destruction. But after enduring drink for many centuries, nearly always with ignominious results, can we not endure prohibition even for a decade? What homes have it blighted? What disgrace has it brought upon us, what shame and sin, when compared with the unbridled use of in-periment till it has had a fair opportunity. Give society an equal chance with drunkenness." In view of the undeniable benefits which have already been produced by prohibition and because of the sheer impossibility of dealing with the Titanic evil by any other method, I call upon all good citizens to rally to its support."

Dr. MacFarland concluded his testimony by reading into the record two telegrams, both addressed to Dr. Cadman. The first was from T. Albert Moore, Secretary of the United Church of Montreal. Mr. Moore declared the United Church of Canada, with more than 900,000 members, was opposed to any law which permits the sale of intoxicants for beverage purposes.

The Government sale system in Canada, he declared, has resulted in "more liquor sold and consumed, increased bootlegging, reduced domestic comforts, retarded industrial enterprise and depressed financial conditions and general prosperity."

The message stated that the Rev. Wallace Peck, D. D., of the United Church of Canada, was on his way to Washington to challenge the testimony of Canadians who had testified for the wets, and asserted that conditions had improved in Canada as a result of Government liquor control and operation laws.

The second message was from George C. Pidgeon, also of Montreal. It was similar to the one wired by Mr. Moore.

BEATTY TELLS OF NEW YORK.

Lee W. Beatty, Superintendent of Madison Square Church House, New York, the next witness, said the organization with which he is connected operates between Twenty-third and Forty-second Street and Lexington Avenue and the North River, which, he explained, is a very densely populated tenement district.

"Before prohibition," said Mr. Beatty, "it was necessary for us in order to prevent mothers and families with little children being dispossessed, in order to provide them with clothing and food so that they might attend school and be nourished, in order that they might have some comforts, to spend from $30 to $300 a month. Since prohibition came in I cannot spend $15 a month with the same population.

"Between Twenty-eighth Street and Fortieth Street there were thirteen saloons in pre-prohibition days, doing a land-office business, with young men gathered in them night after night, and especially Saturday nights. Today, of course, there is not one of these saloons in existence. They have been replaced—opposite my church house, for instance, with a new bank having marble furnishings and every modern convenience for so handing institution.

"On the opposite corner there was another saloon, but now there is a haberdashery there, conducted by a very decent gentleman.

Cites Home Improvements.

"I want to tell you one other fact: In the old saloon days we always had a fresh air farm connected with our institution, to which we would take mothers and children to the country for two weeks at a time. We could accommodate fifty-five in a party, and five parties during the Summer. We always had applications for accommodations from 100 to 125 or 150 people, people who wanted to go.

"The first year after prohibition the largest party we could make up was composed of twenty-seven people. We then went to a family which had always come to the Church House at that time of year and applied for permission to go to the country, a mother with her five children. Her husband was making $13 a week, as a porter, I mean during pre-prohibition days. As I say they had always applied for the privilege of going.

"But, inasmuch as we could only make up a party of twenty-seven we visited this family and this took place: 'Are you not going to the country this year?' The reply was: 'Oh, no, we have rented a bungalow down at the seashore for $300 for the whole season, and we will keep the children there all the time.'

"Then the further question was asked: 'You must have had a great raise in salary, then?' And the reply: 'Oh, no, Alexander does not drink any more. He gets more salary because of the prosperity, and, of course, higher wages have come in, and now he gets $23 a week—which is about the average salary for a porter in New York—but, in former days he always brought home his envelope torn open, and I would get $3 or $4 out of it and that is all I would have gotten today if the saloons had not closed.

"But they have been closed and now he brings home the whole envelope and he has not been drunk for the last five years and I put $10 in the bank every week and still have $13 a week to take care of my family instead of the $3 or $4 a week I had in the saloon days.'

"Another incident that I might refer to: This reflects upon the great spirit of exaggeration prevalent these days in describing what is called the tremendous amount of home brew. Let me tell you a little incident that occurred only this past two weeks. I called on one of my parishioners, a very fine Christian lady living on the third floor. As I went in the door I detected, by the criterion that has been set up by the wets in their pleas here before last week, the odor of home brew. I smelt some brew as I went in the hallway and I knew there was home brewing going on.

"I went up and I chaffed the lady a little over the matter and asked whether she had anything to serve up to her pastor. She went into a very exaggerated statement something like this: 'Oh, this is awful. Oh, it is worse than in pre-prohibition days. It is terrible. Why, they are making home-brew in every house on the block.'

"I said, 'All right; I will see about that.' After my prayer and a little conference, I visited every one of the ninety-three homes on that block. I want to tell you that there was not the smell of home-brew in a single one of them.

Exaggeration on Speak-Easies.

"Let me give you one other incident to show how these matters are exaggerated. Going down from Thirty-eighth to Thirty-ninth Street in pre-prohibition days there were nine saloons. One of the members of my Bible class who had gotten the spirit of exaggeration, having caught up this talk and propaganda as it goes 'round, said: 'These speak-easies have taken their places. The saloons have gone, but speak-easies have taken their places.'

"I said, 'Give me the numbers of the speak-easies.' He said: 'You can get all the liquor you want. It is as free as water.' I said: 'All right. I will try to get a drink. Give me the names—or I mean the numbers of the places where you say there are speak-easies.' He gave me seven numbers. I went down there and I want to tell you that not one of those numbers he gave me was a speak-easy, but there was bing conducted a legitimate business.

"And I want to say to you that I have been around there for twenty-five years, am up against these things and the beer bottles were all stripped and the beer tank was out, and the pumps, and they were being conducted as restaurants. But I rather think they were speak-easies, because they seemed to get onto me, and I could not get a drink."

Mr. Beatty concluded by presenting a resolution of the Presbytery of New York, which piked the presbytery on record as against the resteration of a legalized liquor traffic.

URGES LAW WITH TEETH.

Mrs. Helen H. Green of Cleveland, who said she represented 18,000 members of the Cuyahoga Dry Maintenance League, was called to the witness chair next. She was a determined, looking woman of middle age, and she was ready to match wits with Senator Reed, as developments were soon to disclose.

"The dry forces I represent," Mrs. Green began, "are not in favor of any modification of the law, but we do want better enforcement of the dry laws and teeth put into those laws.

"In spite of the fact that our population has increased about 25,000 a year, and is now more than 900,000, and I might add that Cuyahoga County claims 1,000,000—and in spite of the fact that more than 75 per cent. of our population is made up of people of foreign birth or children of foreign parentage; and in spite of the fact that our colored population has increased from 10,000 in 1913 to 60,000 in 1925, colored people brought up from the South for industrial purposes, there is today less crime in Cleveland than there was before prohibition came into being.

"I know that crime is decreasing. I have sat on the bench with Judges; I have sat on the chairs with criminals; I have been down in the cells; I have been out in the workhouse where criminals are imprisoned; I have been in the courts where they seek release before the board to which they go to ask release; I have in many cases helped the wives of those men to get employment while their husbands are absent; and in a few cases I have attempted to restore the men to their positions when they came out of the workhouse.

Cleveland Wars on Crime.

"I wish to say that Cleveland has a dry Mayor. It also has a dry City Manager. That City Manager has appointed a dry Safety Director, and the dry Safety Director is getting action on crime.

"And I want to say that our young people are not so bad as they have been painted or pictured, and wish to summit a news article from The Cleveland Plaindealer of date Feb. 6, 1926, in which the Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Charles H. Lake, is quoted in defense of the youth of the city. I will say that this man probably has contact with more young people than any other man in the City of Cleveland, and with your permission I will read, briefly:

"'Chronicles of immorality among high school boys and girls that occasionally get into the newspapers—stories of wild parties stimulated by synthetic gin—are exceptional, or they never would draw first page position.'

"Then he points out that there are 23,000 boys and girls in the secondary schools of Greater Cleveland.

"I notice some of the gentlemen of the subcommittee may be of similar age to my own, and I believe you gentlemen will bear me out in saying that conditions in the country schools were not all that they should be a quarter century or thirty-five years ago; and the worst things that I know today are things I heard when I was a little girl in common school that came from the lips of big boys 15 and 16 years of age."

Questioned by Senator Reed.

"May I see that newspaper article?" Senator Reed asked. Mrs. Green handed it to him.

"There has been, according to this article, a reaction since the war. What kind of reaction is it?" asked Senator Reed.

"I think he refers to the charges that have been made," Mrs. Green replied.

"Does he refer to the charges or to the facts?" Senator Reed inquired.

"I do not know what Mr. Lake refers to," said witness.

"Is it not manifest that this article starts out by claiming that conditions are better and then amounts to a confession that they are worse because there has been a reaction?"

"I think not," Mrs. Green replied.

Senator Reed—You do not think that is the case? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You say there is less crime; is there less drunkenness in Cleveland? A.—Yes, sir. May I handle that later, however?

Q.—I thought you had finished your statement? A.—No, sir.

"I will say," continued Mrs. Green, "that juvenile delinquency is reduced. T. L. Lewis, chief probation officer of the Cleveland Juvenile Courts, submits the following official statistics in the years 1915 to 1925. In the year 1915 there were 1,807 boys and 389 girls brought into court.

"And I should like to ask this subcommittee to bear in mind that in this period of twelve years the population of Cleveland has increased probably 300,000 and that the colored population has increase 50,000, and whereas today the colored population of Cleveland is 6 per cent. of the entire population, yet the delinquency of colored boys and girls is 15 per cent. of the total amount.

"There is less drunkenness in Cleveland now than before prohibition. In 1917 there were 3,150 prosecuted and 38,000 'Golden Ruled' cases, meaning a total of 41,150."

"What year did that represent?" Senator Reed asked.

"The year 1917," said Mrs. Green.

"For intoxication?"

"Yes, for drunkenness."

"In Cleveland?" asked Mr. Reed.

"Yes, sir," replied Mrs. Green.

"They were prosecutions, did I understand you to say?" asked the Senator.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Let me get those numbers again, if you please," said Mr. Reed.

"I say in 1917 there were 3,150 prosecuted and there were 38,000 'golden ruled' cases, meaning a total of 41,150 cases for the year," said Mrs. Green.

Explains "Golden Ruled."

"Will you explain to us what you mean by 'golden ruled'?" interrupted Senator Walsh.

"Why, yes. They take them into the police station and keep them until they are sobered up, and get them to admit that they were drunk but are sorry and will try not to do it again, and then they let them go," Mrs. Green replied.

"That is," said Senator Reed, "they act on the theory, do unto the other fellow as we would like to be done by, myself for instance?"

"I believe that is the idea," replied Mrs. Green.

"You may proceed," Senator Walsh said.

"In 1918," said Mrs. Green, "the last year before State prohibition came into effect in Ohio—and it became effective the 27th of May—they were 2,847 boys and 431 girls before the juvenile court.

"The neglect of children is not as bad since prohibition has been in effect as it was during the wet years. I submit this item for your information: The amount of money paid by the County of Cuyahoga to the chief probation officer for prisoners committed to the workhouse for neglect of their children, of their minor children, at the rate of 50 cents per day per prisoner, in the years 1913 to 1915, which were wet years, represented an average annual expenditure of $12,516.

"Then in the dry years, from 1918 to 1925, inclusive, the average annual expenditure was $4,926, or very nearly one-third only of what it was during the wet years.

Neglect of Children Drops.

"Less drink reduces humane society work. The Cleveland Humane Society, through Field Secretary Evelyn F. Stires of 106 City Hall, Cleveland—and she is there because our humane society is supported by the City Government—reports that before prohibition 50 per cent. of all child cases—meaning cruelty and neglect—came from alcoholism in one or both parents, and since prohibition has been in effect the average number of cases when this is true has been a trifle over 15 per cent.

"What was the last year to which you referred?" Senator Reed inquired.

"The year 1918. I am slipping some figures in here because it is not necessary to take up your time to give you all of them."

Q.—Can you give us the year 1919? A.—No, I have not that year on this paper.

Q.—Have you the year 1920? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Or have you the years 1921 or 1922? A.—I begin with the Administration in which I am serving.

Q.—But you began in 1917, did you not? A.—Yes.

Q.—But I do not want to interrupt you, and am asking for clarity, that is all.

Senator Walsh—She gave you the years 1917 and 1918, Senator Reed.

Senator Reed—But you have not figures for the years 1919, 1920 or 1921?

"I will tell you why, Senator," Mrs. Green replied. "There was a political upheaval in our city at that time. The Mayor quarreled with the Safety Director, and the Safety Director quarreled with the Chief of Police, and everybody juggled the figures." And I am not sure that the figures would be correct even if I brought them to you. But the figures for the years 1917 and 1918 have been published again and again in our city, and have not been disputed by either the Government or the cities affected by them."

Senator Reed—I was just asking if you have those figures there? A.—No, sir. I have figures now in the Administration in which I have served.

Q.—What years? A.—The years 1922, 1924 and 1925, in the year 1923 there was 4,400 prosecuted, and 12,408 "golden ruled," a total of 18,814.

Q.—Have you 1924?

A.—Yes, sir, for 1924 there were 5,927 arrests and 13,558 "golden ruled," making a total of 19,273.

Q.—If you will please give me the figures for 1917 again, I will thank you. A.—In 1917 there were 3,150 prosecuted and 38,000 "golden ruled," making a total of 41,150. Now, the figures for 1925 are 7,719 prosecuted, and 15,720 "golden ruled," making a total of 23,393.

FEWER INTOXICATION CASES.

"There are very few drunken people seen on the streets in Cleveland," said Mrs. Green. "I live there. I go into every kind of district. I go into every sort of home. I am a public speaker. I do some social service work. I do some court work in connection with my official duties and I feel that I know conditions of the people in Cleveland, and it is very seldom that you see a drunken person—I think I have not seen five drunken people on the streets in the City of Cleveland in any section or in all sections in the past eighteen months.

"Before prohibition we had a night court where a Judge sat at least three nights a week and until the small hours of the morning. And we had our sunrise Monday morning courts. Since prohibition one Judge has taken care of all the drunks and liquor cases that have come before the municipal court under its jurisdiction, and there are days in almost every week when he does not work after 2:30 or 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

"There are fewer deaths in Cleveland from alcoholism as shown by the figures since prohibition. The Board of Health furnishes me figures, at the hands of Director H. L. Rockwood, M. D. In the year 1918 from alcoholism 80 people died, in 1917 77 died, in 1918 66, in 1919 37, in 1920 11, 1921 42, 1922 35, 1923 27 and 1924 7.

"Now, there is no favoritism in these reports. I have the report here and I will submit also the letter from the Commissioner of Health, Dr. Rockwood, in which he cites the pages on which you will find these figures."

"Is the Commissioner of Health a State officer?" Senator Reed asked.

"Yes, sir," Mrs. Green replied.

"That was alcoholism," she continued. "Now I will take up cirrhosis of liver, attributable directly to the use of alcoholic liquors. In 1916 our hospitals cared for 102, who died."

"Do you mean," interposed Senator Reed, "to say that cirrhosis of the liver is only attributable to alcoholism or do you mean in giving these statistics they have segregated those cases that could be traced to the use of alcohol?"

"The latter cases, yes," said Mrs. Green. "In 1917 there were 101 deaths; in 1918, 84; in 1919, 79; 1920, 73; 1921, 43; 1922, 13; 1923, 5; 1924, 7, and the figures for 1925 are not compiled as yet.

Points to Poverty Decrease.

"Drink as a poverty cause is disappearing. I have here the report of the Associated Charities, in which the figures in relation to drink as a factor in cases handled by the association are reported. The following are their figures regarding the degree to which drink had been a contributing factor in the family situations that are brought to their attention, and as to these I have a letter signed by the director of that activity beginning with 1916 and running through to 1925.

"In the wet years, 1916, 1917 and 1918, the per cent. of the total number of family cases that were handled where drink was the main factor in reducing those people to such condition of poverty that they had to be assisted by the Associated Charities averaged 6 1-3 per cent. In the next seven years, because I have the figures for 1925 from these people, the average was reduced to 2 1-5 per cent.

"In closing I wish to say I am the mother of two sons and four daughters. None of these young people are hip-pocket flask toters, and so far as I know their friends are not. I am firmly convinced, gentlemen of the committee, that the attitude of the home and the appearance of those grown people with whom they come in contact influence the habits of young people."

Pamphlets presented by Mrs. Green to the committee were a report of the Cleveland Human Society, Children's Division, annual reports 1917 to 1925 inclusive of the Associated Charities, and the Statistical Record, City of Cleveland, Division of Health, 1916 to 1924.

Only Wet on Ticket Defeated.

"May I say one word more?" asked Mrs. Green. "I am also a citizen of Ohio, and Ohio is dry. The last time Governor. We have a dry Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer and Lieutenant Governor, and the people of Ohio do not want modification, I am perfectly sure."

Senator Reed—What district did this unfortunate [illegible] run in? A.—Why, he ran in the State for Governor.

Q.—On what ticket? A.—Republican ticket. Harry L. Davis.

Senator Reed—What is the source of these particular figures of yours? A.—These are figures that have been published in Cleveland and we have on record, which have never been disputed, and were given to us at the time by the officers in a position to give them.

Q.—They evidently are disputed because I have before me a publication which gives different figures, but happens to check with yours exactly as to the year 1922. But they give for 1917 1,236—whereas your figures give 1,150. They give for 1918 835, whereas yours give 2,201. For 1919, etc. Your figures for that year are not here. For 1920 674, and you present no figures for that year. A.—I explained that, did I not?

"Oh, yes," said Senator Reed. "I am not criticizing at all. In 1921, 2,834, and you have no figures for that year. In 1922, 4,751. You have no figures for that year."

"That brings us," continued Senator Reed, "to 1923, where you give 6,406, which exactly checks with the figures I have. But coming to 1924 I have 6,613, and you have 5,927. And I have no figures for 1925, and you give 7,719. Now, first, you say that between 1918 and 1923 you produced no figures, and that that was, I think you said, because you had some mix-up in your city government; was that the reason?"

"May I say, Senator," Mrs. Green replied, "that I knew when I came here I would be placed on my oath? I would not swear to the accuracy of any figures that were tabulated during those turbulent years. No one has ever told the truth about them, and I presume nobody can today. I do not want to undertake it."

Records in Muddled State.

"Well, I understand why you should naturally be a little careful about it," said Senator Reed, "and there is not anything at all humorous about this matter. I want to get the reason. Was there such a terrible state of affairs in Cleveland from 1918 to 1923 that you think nobody told the truth about what was going on?"

"There was trouble between the Mayor and his Safety Director," Mrs. Green explained.

Senator Reed—What is the Safety Director? A.—The man above the Chief of Police. He has charge of fire, police and other safety measures, including smoke inspection and so forth.

Q.—I think the courts still ran there, did they not? A.—Oh, yes, sir.

Q.—And there must have been records made in the courts of the convictions? A.—But minor police courts.

Q.—Well, are there not records in the police court? A.—No, sir. When we came—when our Administration came into power—there was not even a card system in the police court.

Q.—Were there not records in the police court books of convictions? A.—A sort of record, yes.

Q.—Now did anybody ever examine those records, do you know? A.—I think probably so.

Q.—Would not those records disclose the number of convictions? A.—I do not know whether they would or not.

Q.—Well, you do not mean to state that between the Administration of the Mayor of the city and the Director of Public Safety—I think is the name you give— A.—And the Chief of Police.

Q.—And the Chief of Police, that the courts quit keeping records in your city of the actual proceedings in court? You would not say that, would you? A.—I know that the records are very inadequate.

Q.—Have you examined them yourself? A.—I have seen them, yes, sir.

"Are they any more inadequate," Senator Reed said, "than they were at other times? What happened to the Judges that made them quit keeping records, if anything?"

"I would not attempt to say," replied Mrs. Green.

Q.—Well, was the only issue in the campaign wet or dry? A.—No, no. But our people cannot forget.

Q.—They cannot forget the iniquities of the Republican Party, is that it, or they just only cannot forget the iniquities of the wets? A.—We cannot forget that when we elected Harry L. Davis Governor, and he promised to be dry, and he was not as dry as we though he was going to be, we could not forget that when he ran again after having another man in that office for a couple of years.

Q.—Well, how much was he defeated by that wet? A.—I cannot give the figures, but it was—Senator, it was terrible.

"Are you a Republican or a Democrat?" Senator Reed asked.

"Yes, sir; I am a Republican," Mrs. Green responded with emphasis.

"Naturally, it was terrible to you," said the Senator. "But now what I want to get at is this, fairly. There was a battle there between two men for Governor, and all of the ordinary political issues entered into the campaign?"

"May I ask you to repeat the question?" the witness interposed.

"I say, there was a battle between two men for Governor, and all the ordinary political issues entered into the campaign I assume," said Senator Reed.

"I suppose so," said Mrs. Green.

"And one of them was the question of wet and dry. Now do you belong to the Anti-Saloon League?"

"I am affiliated with the Anti-Saloon League. I am a member of this dry maintenance league of Cuyahoga County and the Women's Christian Temperance Union."

"Now did those temperance organizations advise their members to vote one way or the other?"

"I cannot speak for all of the organizations. The Dry League of Cuyahoga County did."

Q.—In general, then, there was a battle between two political parties and the drys threw their strength supposedly all over to this Democrat, and that constituted the balance of power? That was the situation, was it? A.—May I remind the Senator how—

Q.—Was not that the situation, frankly? A.—Well, I don't know that I would attempt to interpret the situation.

Q.—Very well, now I just want to ask you one or two questions about these figures. Is that the sheet, please? A.—Yes, sir.

Lively Exchange Over Figures.

"I notice," continued Senator Reed, "that for the year 1923 you have marked as arrests for drunkenness 6,406, which are exactly the figures that I have here in a tabulation before me. That, however, did not include, as I understand your figures, people who were arrested and locked up, but who were not prosecuted, who were let out under your Golden Rule plan. That is right, is it? You nod your head, the reporter must get it."

"I think probably that is right, yes," the witness replied.

"Yes, and so in any figures we may have for arrests we only have the figures from Cleveland of those who were prosecuted, that is, where they are locked up as arrests, but those who got the benefit of the Golden Rule are not charged in the statistics as arrests; that is the situation is it not," said the Senator.

"Would you not think that would depend where the statistics came from?" asked Mrs. Green.

"Well, I am speaking about your statistics," Senator Reed replied.

"Yes," said Mrs. Green.

"I am simply trying to get at what my statistics may be," Senator Reed asserted, "They exactly check with yours in 1923 on what you give as arrests, that is 6,406. My figures—these figures that are laid before me, they are not my figures—do not they evidently, then, include those where they were locked up and then turned loose under the Golden Rule plan? Now you have broken down? A.—There is damage to all kidneys of adults in the process of their living, no question about that. But that does not constitute Bright's disease.

Q.—Now is it a fact that a set of kidneys in that condition, when there is an acute inflammation of the kidneys set up, is diagnosed as Bright's disease? A.—No, sir, it is not.

Q.—Is it not generally diagnosed as Bright's disease, and does it not then follow when you have these acute attacks that a slightly injured condition of the kidney due to the inflammation may become a very dangerous thing and result in what we call a typical Bright's disease? A.—Your statement is partially correct and partly incorrect.

Q.—Have you had occasion to examine the liquors that are being drunk, the bootleg liquors? A.—No.

Q.—Examine that question? A.—No.

Figures on Tuberculosis.

"I have here," Dr. Emerson said, "a chart over the same periods of the trend in tuberculosis mortality in which the trend of mortality is shown from 1900 to 1910, continuing at approximately the same rate from 1911 to 1917, and then dropping with unprecedented suddenness from 1918 to 1919, and continuing even from that low level from 1920 to 1925.

"Now I would not be misunderstood as stating that alcohol is the cause of tuberculosis. I would forestall your questions in that regard by making this statement: That of all the factors which contribute to the well-being of the wage earner's family and household, the diminution in the consumption of alcohol appears mostly to have improved the conditions of shelter, clothing and housing of the wage earners, because from studies made in the Department of Health in New York, which I had charge of it is found usual in our cities that from 5 to 10 per cent., pre-prohibition, of the total income of the families of wage earners was spent regularly for alcoholic beverages.

"And the difference between safety of conditions, adequate housing, clothing and food, and inadequate, is determined commonly by a difference in the way of expenditure of as much as 5 or 10 per cent. of the income of the wage earners.

"The change in that, rather than the actual change in the use of alcohol in the individual, in other words, an economic rather than a physiological difference, is considered to be responsible in part for the striking reduction of tuberculosis of this country in recent years.

Senator Reed—Just a question, doctor. I understand you, and to put it in my own language—and if I get it wrong, you correct me. A.—I will do my best.

Q.—Tuberculosis, of course, may have many causes. A.—Only one, I believe, and that is the tubercle bacillus, yes, sir.

Q.—Oh, yes, that is the immediate cause, but there are many causes that set it into activity. The germ, or the—I don't want to say germ—the [illegible] organisms is the tubercle bacillus, yes.

Q.—Yes, sir. Now, healthful surroundings tend to prevent the development of tuberculosis, yes.

Q.—Now, prior to 1917 for a number of years there had been a great deal of unemployment in New York, had there not? A.—The period of 1916 and 1917 were periods of very great activity in the city.

Q.—That is after the war started, A.—1915 and 1916 were periods of considerable unemployment.

Q.—Yes, and a good deal of poverty and distress resulted in the city. They had bread lines? A.—In 1915 and 1916.

Q.—Then after the war started in Europe, and before we got into the war the conditions as to employment began to improve? A.—They did.

Economic Effect of War.

"Men's wages began to mount rapidly, and the living conditions of families became better on the average?" Senator Reed asked.

"If I am not mistaken the cost of living increased almost exactly parallel with the increase of wages," replied Dr. Emerson.

"But there was an increase of employment so that men who previously had been unable to get work were now able to secure employment?"

"Beginning in 1916, I think that was an obvious observation. Yes, sir."

"Yes, and that continued on until wages became so high and the necessity for employment became so great during our war that many women went into the factories and did the work that men had formerly done?"

"Yes," answered witness.

"Now, all that poured a great flood of money into the homes in excess of the amounts that formerly went there among the wage earners?"

"Yes, I have no doubt."

"Yes, and all that tended to improve their living conditions?" asked the Senator.

"Yes," said Dr. Emerson.

Statistics on Alcoholic Deaths.

"I have here," Dr. Emerson continued, "the records of deaths from alcoholism at Bellevue Hospital between 1910 and 1925." This represents not rates per one hundred thousand, but total actual deaths at the hospital, which has served the Borough of Manhattan and the Bronx and large parts of the rest of the city for many years.

"For the period from 1910 to 1919 there was an average number of deaths each year of 223. In the two years 1915 and 1916 there were 227.5. In the two years 1917 and 1918 there were 189.5. In the years 1919 and 1920 there were 29 each year. In the years 1921 and 1922 there were 26.5.

"Then dividing up between the two years 1923 and 1924, 134.5 in each year, and in 1925, 250.

"The reason for showing this," continued Dr. Emerson, "is to indicate what we may expect, and did experience in the saving of life when alcohol was inaccessible, relatively, and that with the increasing inefficiency of enforcement the return to the previous level of loss of life which has been characteristic of that great institution of the State for generations.

"Doctor," Senator Reed asked, "you attribute the mounting deaths from the low level of 26.5 in 1921-1922 to 250 in 1925 to the increased use of alcohol during 1925?"

"To the increased availability to the people who make up the traffic of Bellevue Hospital," D

Drys Demand That the Volstead Measure Get a Chance to Demonstrate Its Value

Senator Reed—That is evidence, you think, of diminution in the use of alcohol from 1919 to 1925? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—What is your evidence of no increased use of alcohol among these causes in the years 1923 and 1924 when the deaths ran up to 134.5, and in the year 1925, when it ran up to the astounding figure again of 250? A.—That alcohol is available again as it was in the past.

Q.—How do you know that? A.—Because the same kind of people are coming into Bellevue Hospital, and they state that they can get it.

Q.—So, then, the lesson that we get out of these figures is, after all, that one can get booze in New York City today about as easy as he could before prohibition? A.—That is one of the lessons.

Q.—Yes, that is one lesson.

Senator Walsh—And the other obvious lesson is that when they cannot get it there is a very great reduction in deaths.

Senator Reed—That there are not so many of them who die from it, of course.

Senator Walsh—Yes.

Doctor Emerson—My profession is the study of the causes of preventable diseases, and how they may be prevented, and this was the first practical evidence we have ever had of the astounding effect of making alcohol relatively inaccessible on the mortality of the country.

Senator Reed—Of course, we will all admit, and I do not want to argue with you, but it seems quite obvious that if nobody ever got drunk nobody would ever die from alcoholism. That would follow, I think.

Refers to Conditions Abroad.

For comparative purposes Dr. Emerson said it was interesting to note the experience of England and Wales from 1913 to 1923, when he said the decline of alcoholism showed also a decline of deaths from cirrhosis of the liver. He said the ratio was about the same as in the United States.

"They have no prohibition in England and Wales," remarked Senator Reed.

"Anybody who happened to be in England during the war," replied Dr. Emerson, "saw liquors very effectively controlled by the limitation of food supplies and other administration measures, both in the army and out, so that although what we speak of in America as prohibition was not accomplished in England and Wales. There were periods of tremendous reductions in production and use of alcohol from 1913 on, and largely reflected, even when there is a relative reduction in the use of alcohol, in important changes in mortality rates.

"All that I have to offer to you is the evidence that with every reduction in the use of alcohol there is an improvement in the health of the people, practically at all ages, and contributing also to a reduction in the number of deaths of almost all kinds."

"I am not criticizing you," Senator Reed explained, "but if in a town there was a saloon for every 1,000 people there ought not be any difficulty in the people who want to get liquor finding it, ought there?"

"That depends upon the number of hours such places are open, and the number of days of the week they are open," Dr. Emerson answered.

"Suppose they are open every day in the week except Sunday, and are open ten and twelve hours a day, that would give the people a chance to get liquor, every man who really wanted to get drunk could get liquor, could he not?" Senator Reed asked.

"That was not the situation that prevailed through England," replied Dr. Emerson. "They were open only a short number of hours in the day."

"But I want you to take my hypothesis and answer the question," said Mr. Reed.

"Yes, if there was a saloon to every 1,000 inhabitants, and such saloons were open ten or twelve hours during the day, I should say that under such conditions there ought to be no difficulty for anybody with the money to get liquor," said Dr. Emerson.

Senator Reed wanted to know if Dr. Emerson had any figures to submit as to the prevalence of venereal diseases before and after prohibition. Dr. Emerson said he had no records which he considered adequate on that subject. The only evidence he had was a decrease shown in reports made to some 800 dispensaries in various parts of the country. "In cities where it is mandatory that records of such diseases be reported there has been a decrease.

"You do not attribute this condition to the decrease in alcohol but to the increase in clinical facilities?" said Senator Reed.

"The only evidence as to the relation of these diseases to alcohol are the writings of Colonel George Walker of the A. E. F. He gives the relationship clearly and more authoritatively than can be given in civil life."

Q.—So you find that when a man gets drunk he is more likely to have the misfortune we are referring to? A.—Not only that, they are more likely to become infected; but the use of alcohol determines the particular other infection in a large number of cases.

Q.—Since there has been an increase in the use of alcohol, we must conclude there has been an increase in this disease. A.—I would say it would be it accepted any way, that wherever alcohol is accessible we shall find an increase in the incidence of venereal disease.

QUESTIONED ON DEATHS.

"Then, since prohibition has ceased to be effective," said Senator Reed; "you are having this increase in deaths from drunkenness and these reports made to you of the ease with which liquor can now be obtained."

"In these parts of the country where the notable increase to pre-prohibition flow of alcohol has occurred," Dr. Emerson answered, "I think it can be shown that if we had responsible records of venereal diseases there has been very little different situation than a parallel increase with the use of alcohol."

"So that the breaking down of efficient enforcement in these parts of the country where it has broken down," said Senator Reed, "is attended by all these evils."

"It would be destructive," said Dr. Emerson. "I have no evidence, but I take it for granted that would occur on account of the experiences in the army and elsewhere, but I am not offering any proof of that."

Senator Reed—How about the increase in the drug habit? A.—There is no evidence of any increase in the drug habit. In the contrary, there is pretty good evidence of a decrease.

Q.—There is pretty strict enforcement of the drug law, is there not? A.—I suppose, of all the laws of the country that are most difficult to enforce would be those that deal with drugs.

Q.—I suppose it is difficult. But as a matter of fact the officers are pretty keen on the track of those drug addicts, and are doing all they can to suppress it? A.—I would say that a very efficient and honest effort has been made to control the illegal traffic in narcotic drugs.

Q.—And the percentage of convictions, do you happen to know, have been very large in the narcotic cases? A.—I believe that was the case. I believe that they have been very successful.

Q.—You think there has not been an increase in the use of narcotics? A.—I do not believe there has been any evidence of any increase, although there is some evidence that there has been a decrease.

Q.—I am glad to hear it.

"In view of the fact that you find so many people dying from liquor," said Senator Reed, "and reporting that they can get it readily, you are not prepared to say that prohibition has been very effectively enforced in the City of New York more particularly, I will say."

"I should like to make this comment on it," said Dr. Emerson, "that it takes organized, commercialized distribution of alcohol to give those opportunities on which venereal disease particularly depends. I will say that surreptitious and hidden sources of supply do not give the opportunities for public assembly which are necessary for the development of immorality as it is usually spoken of in connection with the origin of venereal disease."

"Therefore," continued Dr. Emerson, "in spite of the fact that alcohol may have increased in amount, the very fact that it is under cover and cannot be used as freely as before in places of public assembly, has undoubtedly contributed to a prevention of venereal disease."

"If the liquor is so distributed," said Senator Reed, "that the poor charwoman and truck driver who come to your place have come back in such numbers that you have found a number of deaths, that the number is substantially near the high point of the past, do you say in those circumstances that there is not plenty of opportunity for people to get liquor and to drink it and thus place themselves in condition where all the evils that come from drinking naturally follow in the wake, or that substantially follow in the wake of drinking?"

"No," replied Dr. Emerson. "I should say, from having lived in New York all my life and seen the workings and development of immorality through the saloon, that such workings as commercializes the distribution of liquor have of themselves played an important part in the past in tending toward disease infection, and that so far as the increased use of liquor is not on a wholesale, commercialized scale in the public, there is less of that diversion of youth to practices of immorality than before."

Calls Crime Conditions Better.

"How is it about general crime conditions in New York. Are not they worse than before?" asked Senator Reed.

"I am not a criminologist," replied Dr. Emerson, "but I have been for years the director of an Association for the Relief of the Poor, under private auspices, and I think the opinion is unanimous that there is no crime wave, that there is no important increase in the causes of dependency; and the fact that family dependency is less than it was before—and figures similar to those for Cleveland may be easily secured for New York City, Boston, Philadelphia and other places—shows that there is an improved situation, I think."

"You cannot say," said Senator Reed, "whether this increase in the sale of liquor which has occurred in 1925 and which you stated a little while ago indicated laxity in the enforcement of the law, you cannot tell us whether that has increased crime or not or whether crime has increased as an incident of it."

"I cannot tell you," the witness replied, "from anything I know that there are any more violations of the law, whether there were any more in 1925 in New York than there were in 1922 or 1923 per 100,000 of population."

"So, although drinking was so very low three or four years ago," said Senator Reed, "and has now mounted again to this alarming extent that 250 deaths occurred in your place, you cannot say that crime has increased?"

"I have no access to those records," said Dr. Emerson, "and I do not know of any responsible authority which I could quote at the moment."

Walsh Shows Population Gain.

Senator Walsh asked if there had not been a considerable increase in population in New York City from 1916 to 1926. Dr. Emerson replied in the affirmative.

Senator Walsh—Can you tell us about how much that increase has been? A.—The population in 1916—well, the trouble there is, Senator, any quotation of the population of the City of New York would not be wholly applicable, because in the last five years there has been a loss of 300,000 of population in the Borough of Manhattan alone. Therefore the shift in population outside of the range of Bellevue Hospital service may be such as to show a smaller population instead of a larger; whereas the population of the City of New York as a whole has increased from approximately 5,300,000 to 5,900,000 during this period. But I could not be sure that the population served by Bellevue Hospital had shared equally in that increase.

STATEMENT BY WHEELER.

At the opening of the afternoon session Wayne B. Wheeler made his first official appearance in the proceedings. This was to offer for the record the statement bearing on the program of the advocates of a modification of the Volstead law as to distribution.

"The proposed 2.75 per cent. beer," said Mr. Wheeler, "admits that it may be unconstitutional and that he himself does not believe it would appease the opposition to prohibition.

"There is no justification for changing the present law, which is constitutional, for a substitute measure of doubtful constitutionality and generally recognized ineffectiveness. No precedent for making the standard non-intoxicating in fact, as proposed by Senator Edge, was suggested by him. Public officials and courts have often held that this means non-uniformity. This is evidently what the wets want. Until the proposers of this change demonstrate that this amendment would result in better law enforcement they have not made a case justifying favorable consideration.

"Senator Edge admitted on the floor of the Senate that he could not conceive of a non-intoxicating wine, which cancels his statement to the committee that to legalize light wines and beers to constitutional limits would greatly decrease the bootleggers' trade. No non-intoxicating beverages would meet bootleg competition. Only strict enforcement will do that.

"The proposal to permit each State to define intoxicating liquor and to have a Federal law conform to the standard in the State is simply another dodge to evade the Constitution. No State could legalize intoxicating liquor under the amendment and the change would be ineffectual to legalize booze. It would destroy the uniform application of the Constitution and increase the difficulties of enforcement. It is a species of nullification.

Calls Bruce Plan Un-Democratic.

"The undemocratic proposal of Senator Bruce to amend the Constitution by creating a Government control system which would make it impossible for either Congress or the States to adopt prohibition legislation, except in those States now having prohibition in their State Constitutions, would reverse every principle of our Government. Congress is given, by the Bruce proposal, supreme power to enforce his amendment. No city ordinance or State law could be passed even to regulate the liquor traffic unless Congress approved.

"Invasion of dry territory by wet shipments would be left to 'discretion of Congress,' in the words of the Senator. This proposed measure strips from the people their rights of self-government and their self-defense against the liquor traffic. It would make the Federal Government and not the people the source of power.

"It would give to this traffic a constitutional right it has never enjoyed and would perpetuate it indefinitely. It would also re-establish the Government in the liquor business and would tax citizens of 37 States to finance this new department.

"The local option provision in the measure has a joker which would prevent residents in any community from barring the saloon unless the State Legislature approved. A wet majority of one in a single branch of the Legislature could prevent this approval.

"The failure of Government control in all Canadian Provinces where it has been tried, its inability to eliminate bootleg competition, its responsibility for increasing the alcoholic appetite, its introduction of liquor into the homes, its fostering of vice and red-light sections, its restoration of the liquor interests to political power, and its consequences in bringing back the legal sale of hard liquors all argue against this nation adopting any such discredited policy of surrender to the liquor traffic.

"Many States in this country tried without success the dispensary system before prohibition was adopted.

Attacks Referendum Proposal.

"The advisory referendum on prohibition asked in the Edge reservation is unauthorized by the Constitution, would have binding force, requests Governors of States to perform duties not required by Constitution or authority of State law, and would transfer their functions to mail carriers and census takers.

"It is unnecessary, since many grave questions of national concern have been settled by proper legislative action without such a referendum. The next Congress will probably be as intelligent as its predecessors.

"A dangerous precedent would be established if members of Congress avoid their responsibility for action by requesting an opinion from the people on proposed legislation. The Congressional elections where issues are raised are the only true and dependable referendum.

"The removal of the present limitation on prescriptions for medicinal liquors would serve no good purpose and would increase the ease with which unethical physicians could furnish bootleggers with supplies of liquor. Such action by Congress would not affect twenty-three States and one Territory, where whisky, wine, &c., cannot be prescribed because of local law. During the last year such data was compiled 84 per cent. of physicians of New York and Illinois issued one-half of all the prescriptions in the United States for medicinal liquor.

Recalls Vote Among Physicians.

"Over 80 per cent. of the retail druggists have voted to petition Congress to relieve them of the responsibility of dispensing liquor on prescriptions. In a questionnaire sent to 53,900 physicians by the American Medical Association in 1921, asking their opinion of whisky and wine in medical practice, 31,115 replied, of which number 49 per cent. opposed the use of whisky and 68 per cent. opposed wine.

"Only 3 per cent. voted for an increase in the present limit of 100 prescriptions of liquor in three months.

"The measure introduced by Senator Goff, at the request of the prohibition unit, will strengthen the national prohibition act, and it should be adopted. It gives more control of cereal beverage plants; it authorizes search warrants for private residences used for distilling liquor in commercial quantities and for commercial purposes; it provides a speedier method for disposing of contraband liquor that has been seized and forfeited; it gives a better control of denatured alcohol and will aid law enforcement. The best way to answer the challenge that the law cannot be enforced is for Congress to provide the legal machinery to stop lawlessness."

CHURCHES OPPOSE MILDER LAW

At this point Frank J. Harwood, Moderator of the National Council of Congregational Churches in the United States, submitted a resolution from the Executive Committee of that Church against modifying the Volstead act, which read:

"The Executive Committee of the National Council of Congregational Churches in the United States believes that the membership of those churches in overwhelming majority are in substantial accord in their belief that any present modification of the Volstead act, such as is now proposed, or any modification whatever formulated and advocated by those agencies now proposing the repeal or amendment of that act, is opposed to the moral sentiment and best interests of the American people."

After presenting resolutions from congregational conferences in various parts of the United States, Mr. Harwood said:

"I want to say, as a manufacturer, that I see the benefit to our employes in the prohibition law. We have a mill full of automobiles, and some of the employes have no hesitancy in saying that they credit it to prohibition. That the money that used to go into saloons has been going into ours. They are using them for the benefit of their families.

"Before prohibition I do not remember of ever seeing a milk wagon in our mill yard. Every morning there are three or four milk wagons there, and the men are using milk in place of beer. I believe we are getting better work by that process. I think every manager in the town would testify along that line."

BISHOP DARLINGTON'S VIEWS.

The Right Rev. James Henry Darlington, Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Harrisburg, Pa., then took the stand.

"My diocese," he said, "is as large in extent as Delaware, New Jersey, Connecticut and Rhode Island put together—a little larger in extent. Part of it contains not all but some of the coal regions of Pennsylvania, so I know something about mining conditions.

"My ministerial life has been spent twenty-five years as rector of Christ Church, Brooklyn, N. Y., and archdeacon of Brooklyn, and also twenty-one years in Pennsylvania.

"Yesterday we had a meeting of one section of our diocese and upon my telling them I was summoned here they voted unanimously to say the strictest prohibition that could be had, without any change whatever, without any letting up, only better enforcement, was what they needed. That represented about one-fourth of these people.

"We have had the greatest strike that I have known in twenty-one years in Pennsylvania in the coal mines. We had two or three before the coming in of prohibition. In each case there have been outrages—people injured, property burned and destroyed and a great deal of disturbance. I have been beside one saloonkeeper's boy when in an attack on some building he was shot through the stomach. These outrages occurred at such times.

"But this time we had the longest strike I have known in twenty-five years there, that continued six months. With the earnest effort for enforcement by Governor Pinchot, who has done everything he could, and the State Police under Major Adams, the prohibition law has been excellently enforced. I would not say it was impossible in some places to get a drink, but it was very well enforced.

Lauds Catholic Church Support.

"Father Curran of the Roman Catholic Church of Wilkes-Barre will bear me out in this. I want to pay tribute to the Roman Catholic Church for what they have done to help this cause. Some people have taken the view that they have been opposed to it, but in my personal experience I can say many of them have aided most earnestly and effectively. My own neighbor and good friend, Bishop McDavitt, will not confirm anybody under twenty-one years of age unless he pledges total abstinence from wine, beer, cider or any intoxicant. That Roman Catholic Bishop will not confirm any one under twenty-one years without that pledge.

"Now during that strike we have not had one outrage reported to the police. I have been in Mount Carmel, Shamokin and all these places. There have not been any outrages, and it is the only time this condition has prevailed. While there has been a great deal of hard feeling, very great suffering, a great many bread lines, and there were threats to make trouble, to damage property and injure persons, there has been no outrage at all. That is due mostly to prohibition.

States His Church's Position.

That the position of the Episcopal Church might be clear, Bishop Darlington said the authoritative bodies of the Church were the House of Bishops and General Convention, which met once in three years. He then read the resolution, passed unanimously at New Orleans in October, when 144 Bishops were present:

"Resolved, That facing the danger of the spirit of lawlessness in American life, we welcome the renewed effort of the Government of the United States to enforce, strictly and impartially, the prohibition laws and the anti-narcotic laws, which are so widely and cynically disregarded——"

Bishop Darlington interjected:

"I want to say about the narcotics that we find this—that narcotics, instead of increasing with prohibition have fallen off about one-half. Some of us thought that people would go to narcotics with the stopping of liquor, that they would go to heroin and these other drugs, but we find that that is not true.

"We have found," continued Bishop Darlington, "that they got them in the saloons, and that with the closing of the saloons the use of narcotics has fallen off about one-half."

He then continued with the resolution: "And we call upon the people of our Church to set a good example of that obedience to law without which no democracy can endure."

"I want prohibition as it is, although better enforced, but everyone should be warned against the return of beer, which would inevitably bring back the saloon," said Bishop Darlington in conclusion.

Pennoyer Opposes Beer.

The Rev. Charles H. Pennoyer, D.D., Director General of the Convention Branch of the Social Welfare Department of the Universalist Church, came next.

"To allow the sale of beer would be the entering wedge for the miserable old saloon," he stated, and insisted that to change the law would prove nothing for or against prohibition.

Senator Goff asked him if he had recently said that increase of immorality was not due to prohibition. The witness said the increase had not been so large as estimated, but that what increase there was was largely because "the youth of the land were not adjusted to the new liberty."

"What do you mean by that?" queried Senator Goff.

"The new relations between young men and young women, the greater freedom of women in dress and activities," he replied.

"You mean the mutual attractiveness for each other," Senator Goff suggested.

"The willingness among the young to talk over the relations of life," added the witness. He said two most dangerous of homes were those which were too strict and those too lax.

LABOR EDITOR QUESTIONED.

Edward Keating, former member of the House from Colorado and now the editor of Labor, the next witness, emphasized that he spoke only for himself. This statement was again brought to the fore at the close of his testimony, when Senator Harreld asked him what the views of the labor unions were on prohibition.

"I have absolutely no desire," Mr. Keating replied, "to question the authority of the gentlemen who represented labor organizations at the opening of these hearings."

The witnesses in question had all asked for modification of the Volstead law.

Senator Harreld pressed Mr. Keating for a personal opinion of labor's attitude, but Mr. Keating said: "That is a controversy I prefer not to go into."

For himself, the editor said he was as ardent prohibitionist. He said that twenty years of newspaper experience in Colorado forced him to become one. Relating efforts to close "ladies entrances" of saloons in Denver years ago, he said reformers, even in these days, were called blue nose fanatics, and the same charge was made when it was attempted to shut the saloons on Sundays.

"I reluctantly became a prohibitionist," he went on. "I was not born one, but when I became convinced no law could regulate the liquor interests, there was only one thing to do—outlaw it."

Of course, there had been difficulty in enforcing national prohibition, said Mr. Keating, but, this was only to be expected with a new law.

CHERINGTON OFFERS FIGURES.

The next witness, Ernest H. Cherington, General Secretary of the World League Against Alcohol, read a statement containing many figures.

Sixty-six out of ninety-six Senators, and 70 per cent. of the House, he said, represented prohibition territory at the time the amendment was passed. Six wet States could have prevented ratification through their Representatives in the lower house, he asserted.

Mr. Cherington disputed the idea that college morale had broken down since prohibition and that drinking was prevalent on campuses. He said that at Ohio State University a canvass of 10,000 students showed conditions better than ever known there, according to the President of that institution.

Quoting Mr. Buckner's statement that it would cost $75,000,000 to enforce prohibition in New York State, Mr. Cherington said this would be "small" as contrasted with $1,500,000 proposed to be spent in the days of 1794 to enforce laws against distillers. The United States now spends annually $700,000,000 for the army and navy, so he thought it could spend more than $10,000,000 to fight for prohibition.

"The Government was spending slightly more than one-half of 1 per cent. of its revenue for prohibition, but this might be increased to 2.75 per cent., or $100,000,000," he argued.

Louisville Man Called.

The final witness was Colonel Patrick H. Callahan of Louisville, who appeared not only to tell of that city's progress under prohibition but as Secretary of the Association of Catholics for Prohibition.

Colonel Callahan gave arrests for drunkenness in Louisville as 6,172 in 1918 and 2,462 in 1924.

Colonel Callahan was questioned about the Kentucky dry law before prohibition. He described it as tighter than the Webb-Kenyon law.

"Didn't your State law let citizens bring in liquor for their own use?" asked Senator Reed.

"I believe so."

"You are the Secretary of the Association of Catholics for Prohibition?" asked the Senator.

"Yes," was the reply.

Senator Reed—How many are in your association? A.—Three hunired and twenty.

Q.—What is the Catholic population of the United States? A.—Between eighteen and nineteen million.

Senator Walsh—Is opinion on prohibition divided among members of the Catholic hierarchy? A.—Yes.

A sharp challenge to Colonel Callahan's figures on-arrests for drunkenness was made by Senator Reed. Colonel Callahan had said 6,172 in 1919 and 2,462 in 1924, but Senator Reed produced figures which he said were from Police Chiefs, showing the Louisville arrests for drunkenness as: 1919, 4,632, and 1924, 5,201. Colonel Callahan said his figures were prepared by a special clerk, with the aid of the Police Chief, and were checked by Mayor Quinn of Louisville. Nevertheless, Senator Reed asked the witness to verify his statistics.

The hearing then adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow.

JUDGE IS CRITICAL IN WILLIAMS CASE

Presiding Officer Admonishes the Prosecution and Recalls Two Witnesses.

SHARP QUESTIONS ASKED

One Adds to Previous Testimony That Colonel's Cocktails Were Harmless.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 16.—Impatience was expressed today by Rear Admiral Thomas Washington, President of the court-martial, at the conduct of the trial, when the defense moved to have certain parts of Captain Charles E. Rice's rebuttal testimony stricken from the records.

"The Court regrets being forced to ascertain facts themselves," said the President. "The Court has, for the last day and a half of the trial, been doing most of the questioning of witnesses, after both defense and prosecution rested their cases."

The Admiral said that the prosecution did not seem to be able to bring out testimony, and the defense may not have wanted certain testimony that the Court needed to reach a decision just to the parties and the Government. The Court was willing to give the accused every benefit of any doubt, declared the President.

This came up following the testimony this morning of Captain Rice, who declared that because the Colonel acted "unsteady" at the hotel he could find no reason to explain it other than that the accused was drunk.

This, he said, is why he told General Butler that he thought Colonel Williams was drunk the night of March 6, after the General had asked him to make a statement.

Declares Cocktails Innocuous.

There might have been liquor in the cocktails, said Rice; they tasted like it. But a man could have drunk a dozen and not felt the effects, he declared.

He also heard the Colonel tell one of the guests that he, the Colonel, was not drinking anything that evening, said Rice.

"I do not consider that my statement was made to the General under duress," said Rice. "I couldn't say he was sober when he didn't act like it."

The Captain said that he took the Colonel in his car to the hotel, and that there was nothing in the Colonel's actions during the ride to lead him to believe the Colonel was drunk. It was not until after they reached the hotel that the accused showed any unsteadiness, he declared.

The Captain said that the cocktails were all right, but that the Colonel might have gone into the kitchen for something else to drink.

This was objected to by the defense as purely a conclusion of the witness, and it was after this objection that the Court expressed impatience at the eliciting of testimony by the attorneys.

Cates Recalled to Stand.

Captain Clifton B. Yates testified this morning for the third time. The Court asked him to explain what he meant when he told General Butler, according to the General's testimony yesterday, "of course I didn't smell his (the Colonel's) breath, but you know why."

General Butler maintained that Cates meant that he had been drinking, too, and couldn't smell the Colonel's breath.

Cates this morning declared that he really said to the General:

"I did not see the accused take a drink nor did I smell liquor on his breath, as you well know." Meaning by "as you well know" that the General knew this because of Cates's former statement.

Changed Statement to Include Drunk.

The witness said that following the General's order to junior officers to "stop equivocating and make new statements," he changed his first statement where he said the Colonel was "unsteady on his feet at the hotel" to read, "he acted like a man drunk, sick or doped."

A colored maid who served the cocktails at the party on March 6 at the home of Colonel Alexander Williams may be called as a witness in the court-martial of the marine officer, it was indicated today, as the case reached a point where its continuance into next week seemed probable. This maid is expected to know and to tell what form of intoxicant the cocktails contained, if any.

14 PLACES ARE PADLOCKED.

Marco Polo Night Club Consents to Stay Closed for Six Months.

Fourteen padlock decrees were issued yesterday by Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow in padlock court. Seven places were ordered padlocked for one year and six for six months.

The Marco Polo Club, Inc., at 204 West Fortieth Stret, run by George B. Berritini, consented to a six months' closure. This is a social club and restaurant, which occupies two floors. It has been patronized liberally by after-theatre parties. During a raid a large quantity of assorted liquors was seized.

The restaurant and cabaret known as the Original Oriental Village, at 49 East Seventh Street, Greenwich Village, was ordered padlocked for one year. It was operated by Sidney Paul and Joe Chekes. A one-year decree was issued against the Stadelman Hotel, at 51 Main Street, Poughkeepsie. Mrs. Augusta W. Stadelman, owner, contested the charge, but agents testified she had sold them liquor.

Dry Graft Accuser Himself Indicted.

Special to The New York Times.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 16.—J. D. Wyrick of Fountain City, whose charges of corruption and graft in prohibition enforcement in Knoxville and East Tennessee were read at the Congressional prohibition inquiry in Washington yesterday, is himself under indictment in Federal court here as a moonshiner, according to Federal District Attorney George C. Taylor. Wyrick was arrested on May 6, 1925, with two other alleged moonshiners at a still.

DRY LEAGUE TO ACT TODAY ON ANDREWS

Directors Will Meet to Study Protests Against Dry Chief's Advocacy of Beer.

BUT SOME FAVOR DELAY

Meanwhile the General Leaves Capital for a Rest and Talk of Resigning Is Revived.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The Anti-Saloon League of America and some of the other dry organizations have delayed temporarily the decision as to whether they shall seek to unseat General Lincoln C. Andrews, head of the Federal prohibition forces, because he testified before the Senate committee on Wednesday that he believed distribution of beer under Government control would aid in the enforcement of prohibition.

A meeting of direqtors of the Anti-Saloon League tomorrow will give further consideration to the question, go over the testimony of General Andrews and dissect the supplemental statement he made yesterday, in which he stuck to his testimony, but declared he was in no sense an advocate of modification of the Volstead act which would make beer available to the people.

An official of the Anti-Saloon League also said tonight that a flood of complaints about the testimony of General Andrews had been coming into the league headquarters from all parts of the country, not only from branches of the league in the various communities, but other dry organizations and individuals. He admitted that the protests were numerous and some of them of a pretty fiery kind, and that the Andrews testimony apparently had had very wide consumption and displeased the drys.

Attention was called by this leader to the address made to the Women's National Conference for Law Enforcement here on Tuesday as representing what the drys thought ought to be the attitude of the Federal enforcement officers as opposed to the views expressed in the testimony of General Andrews.

Attorney General Sargent, he said, in the opinion of the drys, made it known in no uncertain terms that he did not feel any one who believed in modification and worked to that end was fit to be among the Federal enforcement officers. He said:

"There is no room for discussion as to what the voters of the country have said.

"There is no half-way place in the command they have placed upon their servants chosen and appointed to administer the law."

These phrases, the Anti-Saloon League leaders contend, formed a perfect and all-inclusive text for a sermon on how they believe the officers of the Federal Government should enforce the Volstead act. To wander from such a course is a sin to them.

That much the dry leaders made plain, although they were not willing to come out today in a formal statement.

Some of the leaders say that in view of the supplemental statement made by General Andrews and the additional steps he made it known today he hopes to take to fight the illicit beer and industrial alcohol interests if Congress gave him the money, it might be better to await later developments.

They expect to decide tomorrow or Monday.

General Andrews took the criticism very quietly today. He had a talk with Secretary Mellon, but neither would comment. Andrews then issued a statement about his enforcement plans, in which he made no reference to the controversy stirred up by his testimony, and left the city for a breathing spell.

There have been rumors for some time that General Andrews would resign, but he has not commented on such reports. The present flare-up has revived these rumors. There is ill-concealed interest here as to what steps the Anti-Saloon League and other dry organizations will take in the next few days as a result of the General's testimony.

That he would quit under fire of the league, without being pressed to do so by the Administration, is not believed by those who know him. What attitude the Administration will take if the fight flares up is another question. The answer is being awaited with great interest in political circles.

SEEK BRITISH TREATY TO CUT OFF LIQUOR

State Department Begins Conferences Looking to Ending Rum Row.

WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP).—The Government is attempting to place another stumbling block in the path of rum smugglers by supplementing its liquor treaty with Great Britain to prevent the exportation from the British Isles of liquor intended for Rum Row.

Informal conferences between the State Department and British officials have laid the groundwork for such negotiations, and if President Coolidge approves it is planned to send a mission to London this Summer to frame a treaty.

It is likely that Assistant Secretary Andrews of the Treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement, would accompany State Department officials, with William R. Vallance representing the State Department, of which he is Assistant Solicitor. General Andrews and Mr. Vallance recently participated in the negotiation of a similar treaty with Cuba.

It is believe the Administration is prepared to enter into a reciprocal agreement with Great Britain to prohibit exportation from this country of any goods considered contraband by other Governments.

Prohibition officials also are understood to be seeking an agreement which would permit American officials to search ships in the British West Indies. The present liquor treaty gives them power to search British vessels inside the twelve-mile limit.

as will enable them to meet their needs promptly and advantageously.

"The breweries also operate without regard to district lines, and we want to organize at once a Federal squad, extremely mobile, consisting of experts in this line for the supervision of these breweries. We believe we can thus keep these breweries from putting out any real beer—and this has been an impossibility heretofore. Plans are under way and only funds are necessary for the completion.

Would Be Self-Supporting.

"I consider this very important. This phase of enforcement has never been properly developed. We have tried our plan out in individual cases and are satisfied that a small board, organized at each administrator's headquarters, by specializing on this work can readily assess taxes and collect them in amounts to more than pay the entire cost of the prohibition unit. The illegal liquor traffic conducts a business involving many millions a month, and we should be able to collect taxes on such business as we have discovered and proved to have been conducted—and the collections should be sufficient to make law enforcement self-supporting.

"For instance, we deprived this traffic of over a million gallons in February in the Philadelphia district alone. Those millilion gallons, sold at retail, represent at least $50,000,000 collected by bootleggers. If we succeed in collecting the tax on only a small proportion of that business we will have produced a considerable revenue.

"As diversion of alcohol is stopped, its illicit manufacture will increase—and I am very anxious to get this phase of enforcement thoroughly established and successfully under way in order to meet this new source and tax it. We need only the additional sum asked for in order to accomplish this.

"During last Fall we had as many as 180 prohibition agents working with customs men as border patrol men. They were extremely efficient in stopping smuggling across the borders. The very material reduction of rum row smuggling naturally increased smuggling through Canada, and furthermore scattered sea smuggling on border fronts. We now have 100 prohibition agents thus engaged, and our plans for this year require an additional 250 patrolmen.

"These men are used exclusively to strengthen the patrolling features of the work undertaken by the Collectors of Customs on all our fronts, and I consider them essential to efficient work in stopping smuggling. If the proposed law for the organization of a United States border patrol becomes a law, we contemplate that these patrolmen will be absorbed in that force. They will all be selected from the civil service list with this in view.

Asks for More Investigators.

"Our headquarters investigating force is engaged exclusively on intrastate and interdistrict investigations, getting evidence against large operators, particularly those engaged in widespread conspiracies to violate the prohibition laws. This is an essential link in our organization to break up the liquor traffic. Its work is not spectacular, but its results will be tremendously efficient in actually stopping this business. I must increase this force to cover the whole field, and after considerable study believe that twenty-eight additional men are necessary.

"Our plans contemplate the thorough review during the entire year of all permittees. These run as high as 15,000 in the largest district, and this represents a tremendous amount of skilled work in the majority of the districts. To make this work efficient the inspectors must be trained, reliable men, and it is contemplated to build this force up largely with pharmacists from the civil service list. Their work will result in eliminating thousands of improper permittees and will thus reduce the present illegitimate distribution of liquor very materially.

"We are convinced that strengthening this force of inspectors materially will not only reduce the present illegitimate distribution, but will enable the administration to function much more satisfactorily in their administrative work in the permissive field. This should be reflected in making the enforcement of this law much more satisfactory to the public in general.

"Our policy of encouraging the cooperation of local authorities and thus reducing the amount of police work to be done by Federal agents is gradually becoming effective. We are thus using more and more under cover agents who operate in making important cases and we need authority for the employment of fifty-one additional investigators to be assigned to administrators for this purpose. These men must be of superior experience and ability and have to be paid accordingly.

"We are satisfied that the Federal function in law enforcement will be much better done through this class of work and are anxious to get these men established so that this policy may be made effective.

More Clerks Also Wanted.

"We are also asking for thirty-six additional clerks to handle the additional work in the Administrator's office made necessary by our increased activities in the permissive field.

"We are satisfied that our present plans, aimed directly at the elimination of the large sources of supply and at the present means of distribution will result in relieving the courts rather than in an increase of the already overburdened court rosters. The whole organization is being set up to carry out these policies, and Federal agents are becoming less and less of a policeman type and more and more of the trained investigator type.

"Both in the criminal field and in the matter of conducting inspections of permittees, &c., this organization may become as efficient as contemplated, and, if put on a civil service status, as seems most likely, it is hoped that within a year it will have become an efficient, businesslike organization for carrying out the Federal function in prohibition law enforcement."

A point d'Alençon lace jabot, 16 by 13 inches, given by the Empress Marie Thérèse to her daughter Marie Antoinette, Queen of France, brought $3,700 yesterday at a sale of only a few pieces of rare lace, important Gobelin and Flemish tapestries, rugs and bronzes from the collection of J. J. Albright, Count Scheremietiev, Baron Ropp and others at the Anderson Galleries. It went to Karl Freund, who also bid in for $2,750 a volante of rose point lace presented to la Marquise de Prie by Louis XV.

The point d'Alençon has the figure of the Empress, with flying amorini holding a crown, from which flowers drop over her. The detail includes mounted hunters and huntresses, garden pavilions, birds, deer, hounds and heraldic birds. The lace flounnce is point de France worked in Venetian fashion with fleurs volantes, the petalled flowers in low relief in continuous arabesque design united by stalks.

The rare Gobelin tapestries go on sale today, with the exception of one Gobelin, Jardin des Plantes, after a cartoon by Jacques Bailly, 10 feet high by 6 feet 4 inches wide, which was bid in by E. J. REVERE OFFICER CLEARED.

Boston Merchant Admits Liquor Charges Were False.

BOSTON, April 16 (AP).—Lieutenant Thomas J. O'Hara of the Revere police was found not guilty of conspiracy to sell liquor and accepting a bribe, by a jury in Superior Court today. Frank Vesce, jointly indicted with O'Hara for conspiracy, also was acquitted.

Vesce, proprietor of a candy and cigar store, testified that he lied when he told Mayor Walsh of Revere that he gave O'Hara $30 "bribe money" because he thought "it would be a good idea to get O'Hara off the liquor squad."

Mrs. Stella Giangolo, who pleaded guilty to the conspiracy charge and turned State's evidence, admitted that she had been convicted of liquor selling. She had described paying alleged "protection money."

Giants and Yanks Win, Both Taking Their First Series of the Season

ROBINS SCINTILLATE BUT GIANTS WIN, 3-2

FORMER HITS A HOMER

By HARRY CROSS.

Jack Scott turned back the Robins at the Polo Grounds yesterday and the Giants won, 3 to 2. It was a narrow squeeze, for Brooklyn, with Burleigh Grimes in fairly good trim, always had a chip on its shoulder and had serious designs of breaking up the game in the ninth. None of the 5,000 spectators had any use for fans, nor was there any rush on the ice-cream cone market which would keep the factories working nights.

The most lurid slap of the afternoon bounded off the reliable black bat of Jean Jacques Fournier, the Robins' first baseman, when he tilted a homer into the upper sleeping porch of the right-field stand in the second inning. The bat with which Fournier did the trick is named Betsy, and later in the game, with two on the bases, Grimes borrowed Betsy and had an idea he could get the same response from it. The only thing Betsy did for Grimes was a harmless bouncer on the infield lawn. Grimes doesn't know Betsy like Fournier does.

The exquisite fielding jewel of the afternoon also went to a Brooklyn player, none other than Rabbit Maranville. In the sixth inning, with two runs on the paths and two gone, Travis Jackson hoisted a fly into short left centre, which didn't appear to be within any one's reach.

Maranville's Catch a Marvel.

Maranville turned his back on the ball and started to run toward Eighth Avenue. Without once looking back to see where the ball was Rabbit kept right on going, thrust his hands out in front of him and the ball buzzed down past his nose and nestled in his mitts. It has been said that Maranville is going back. He is. Going back to make impossible catches like this one.

Just because Fournier made a home run and Maranville made a great grab doesn't necessarily mean that the Robins were the only ones in the ball game. The Giants were present at all times, and although the Robins did the fancy stuff the Giants won the game.

In the course of the afternoon's events some unusual things happened to the Giants. For one thing George Kelly muffed a ball. No one can remember when he ever did that before. Jacobson hit a grounder to Scott in the fifth, and Jack tossed a perfect throw to Kelly. The ball splashed out of George's hands like a hot potato. Then on the next play, when Maranville rolled to Jackson, Travis made a wretchedly unruly throw to Frisch for a force-out play. No damage ensued, however, from either error.

The Giants got away right in the first. With one out Frisch singled to centre, stole second and scored on Young's one-base slap to right.

Fournier's homer came in the second and tied the count. In the Giants' half of the same inning, Al Tyson jammed a double to left centre, galloped to third on Jackson's sacrifice fly to Felix and romped home on Snyder's sacrifice fly to Jacobson.

The Robins threatened in the fourth. Marriott nicked Scott for two bases and after Wheat fouled to Snyder, Fournier got a life when a pitched ball nipped the sleeve of his shirt. Felix jammed a liner down the centre aisle which Frisch pulled down and doubled Marriott before he could climb back to second.

Grimes Checks Menace.

New York got the run in the sixth, which marked the margin of victory. Frisch walked and went to third on Young's single to right. After Meusel raised a foul to Hargreaves, Kelly pounded a single to right which sent Frisch over. Grimes stopped the activity when he fanned Tyson and Maranville further squelched the impending run festival when he made his great catch of Jackson's Texas Leaguer.

The Robins generated plenty of activity at the last moment, when Felix opened the ninth with a two-base drive to left and scored when Jacobson singled to centre. Whitey Witt was inserted to hit in place of Maranville, but it wasn't his day and Scott struck him out. Hargreaves hit into a double play to end the matinee.

LUCAS WINS GAME FOR REDS

CINCINNATI, April 16 (AP).—Lucas triumphed over Alexander in a pitching duel today, the Cincinnati Reds defeating the Chicago Cubs, 2 to 1. Lucas won his game in the third when he tripled and scored on a sacrifice fly. In the second, Wilson bounced a triple off the bleacher railing in right and scored on a fly. The game was played in an hour and fifteen minutes.

RALLY IN 9TH PUTS CARDINALS ON TOP

St. Louis Carries Off Opening Series With Champion Pirates —Score Is 3 to 2.

ST. LOUIS, April 17 (AP).—A ninth-inning rally enabled the St. Louis Cardinals today to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3 to 2, and to make it three out of four in their series with the world's champions.

A double, single and a walk in the final frame filled the bases. Then Blades was hit by a pitched ball, forcing in Toporcer. Flowers scored the winning run on Mueller's single.

YANKS CARRY OFF SERIES IN BOSTON

Although Outhit by Ten Blows to Seven, Hugmen Wind Up With a 3-to-2 Victory.

PENNOCK GOES 9 INNINGS

Splendid Defensive Play, Especially by Lazzeri, Saves Him Several Times—Haney's Error Helpful.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 16.—The Yankees planted a farewell haymaker on the manly chin of the Red Sox this afternoon and then fled for Washington, glad to leave this chilly town. With the Red Sox prostrate in their wake, this left the Yanks winners of two games out of three played here, today's score being 3 to 2.

If for no other reason than that a Yankee pitched the full nine innings, the game today will go ringing down the corridors of time. Miller Huggins sent Herb Pennock to the mound in the first inning, and Herbie was still there at the end of the ninth, although in the interim the Sox used him roughly and at one stage of the affair, in the eighth, seemed on the way to a victorious rally.

With men on first and third and nobody out in the eighth, Pennock was facing a boisterous situation, but the wise old left-hander wiggled his left arm with such fluency that the Bostonese failed to score a run.

Red Sox Get More Hits.

For the second straight game the famed sluggers of Murderers' Row were outhit by the enemy, ten blows to seven, but the Yanks inserted their socks where they would do the most good, and were aided no little by an error by Fred Haney which netted our side an unearned run.

You have frequently read of pitchers being knocked, driven, bombarded or shelled from the hill, but in the case of Mr. Paul Zahniser this frigid afternoon, it was literally true. A line drive propelled by Earl Combs struck Mr. Zahniser briskly on the left ankle in the second inning, and he was assisted from the field, supported by the broad shoulders of two comrades.

The blow did not break any bones, but it left Mr. Zahniser in a maimed condition, unable to walk and, what was worse, unable to pitch. At the start of the third frame a Mr. Tony Welzer confronted the Yanks and did very well, permitting only one run and four hits in the remaining seven innings.

Defensive baseball of the highest calibre was necessary to carry Pennock through several precarious situations. In particular, Anthony Lazzeri, our young second baseman, played hard, dashing ball—nothing spectacular but very effective. The conviction grows that Mr. Lazzeri is a real ball player.

Lazzeri Gets a Triple.

In the first inning the Yanks did nothing despite a long double by Earl Combs. In the second Lazzeri got a triple and scored on Dugan's sacrifice fly to right.

Collins walked, and Pennock was safe when Haney fumbled his grounder. Mark Koenig jostled a single to centre and Collins plodded home.

Then it was that Combs carromed his liner off the Zahniser shin. Paul gamely threw out the Yankee, retiring the side, and then collapsed in a heap.

These two runs were plenty until the fifth, when the Sox scored once and almost twice. Signor Mike Herrera opened by singling to centre, but was forced by Gaston. Welzer singled to left, moving Gaston to second.

That fiend in human form, Ira Flagstead, singled to right, scoring Gaston. At this unpleasant stage, Haney grounded to Pennock and nice covering by Lazzeri and a swift throw to first, netted a double play to Pennock's single.

Koenig's saft bunt and a force-out left Yanks on first and second in the seventh. Welzer forgot his training and wound up, which allowed Koenig to steal third, whence he scored while Gehrig was forcing Combs.

Red Sox Get Another.

The Sox got a run in the seventh on Rigney's double, and two outs and they became hostile again in the eighth. Flagstead opened with a double to left and Haney bunted safely. Rosenthal wafted a short fly to Ruth, and on Todt's tap to Pennock Flagstead was run down at third. Pennock smothered Bratche's splash for the third out.

Pickups and Putouts

Manager McGraw used the paring knife on his squad at the Polo Grounds yesterday and separated Walter Novak, an infielder, and Blackie Carter, an outfielder, from his collection. Novak was sent to Norfolk, where Davey Robertson is manager, and Carter went to the Newark club. Both are out on option.

Ross Young is gradually hitting up the gait which has made him such a dangerous batsman in the past. Yesterday he nailed three out of four times up, slicing one of them to left field.

Grimes rarely pitches in such hard luck as he does at the Polo Grounds. He hasn't won a game up there from the Giants since Grant was a cadet. One thing he did perfectly yesterday. That was fielding his position.

The Giants have taken their first series of the season, 2 to 1. If they can do that much in all the other series this season there will be plenty of fun in Harlem next October.

Uncle Robbie put Babe Herman in as a pinch-hitter for Dowd in the seventh, but Frisch threw him out. Herman is tall and rangy and used to hit them a mile out on the Coast.

Johnny Butler and Chic Fewster are still convalescing, and Robby may have to add a couple of internes to the squad to get them in shape.

The series showed that the Robins aren't as bad as they were painted, and the Giants were not painted in as bright colors as they will be later on.

Manager Dave Bancroft brings the Braves to the Polo Grounds today. Hugh McQuillan may be on the firing line, with Joe Genewich against him.

White Sox Scandal Gamblers Put $15,000 Against Dartmouth Eleven, Says Hopkins

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., April 16 (AP).—Ernest Martin Hopkins, President of Dartmouth College, sees intercollegiate athletics in a more critical situation at the present time than ever before, and he says this is all due to public interest and the resulting overemphasis in college sports.

Speaking to a group of business men here, President Hopkins defended intercollegiate athletics, however, as an essential part of college life.

President Hopkins does not object to betting of an individual nature "if an undergraduate feels that his team needs the support of his financial nature," but he objects strenuously to the gambling pool. In this connection he pointed out that at one time there was posted at Hanover a statement that another college with which Dartmouth was to play had $15,000 to back its team. The statement concluded with, "Has Dartmouth any money?"

"We investigated, and found, as we supposed," he said, "that the money did not come from the college nor from the undergraduates, nor from the place where the college is located. It came from a group of professional gamblers. Two of the men a few weeks previously had tampered with the Chicago White Sox in the world's series."

While not questioning the effectiveness of prohibition, President Hopkins said that "there is a responsibility on the part of the public attending intercollegiate contests not to attempt to demonstrate that the Volstead act does not work."

SENATORS OUTHIT ATHLETICS; WIN, 4-3

Five Mack Hurlers Fail to Stop Champions, Who Take Series, 3 Out of 4—S. Harris Chased.

WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP).—Washington took a free-hitting game from the Philadelphia Athletics today, 4 to 3, giving the Senators three of the four-game series. Five Mack pitchers failed to keep the champions off the bases.

Manager Stanley Harris was ordered off the field in the ninth when he vigorously protested Umpire Nallin's ruling that he had not touched second base on a close play.

TIGERS BEAT INDIANS WITH 5 RUNS IN THIRD

Rally Overcomes Three-Run Lead When Shaute Passes Two Men and Hits Another.

DETROIT, April 16 (AP).—A five-run rally in the third inning overcame a three-run Cleveland lead and gave Detroit a 5-to-3 victory over the Indians today.

Shaute's wildness and a double by Heilmann which cleared the bases were responsible for Detroit's five runs in the third. Shaute walked two men and hit another in this inning.

WHITE SOX TAKE 3D IN ROW.

CHICAGO, April 16 (AP).—Tom Gulley's three-base hit with the bases full in the first inning proved the undoing of Charley Robertson in his first appearance against his former teammates today, and the Chicago White Sox defeated the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 1, for the third straight time.

Red Faber pitched in fine form and was never in danger until the ninth inning, when the Browns bunched two hits and saved themselves from a shutout.

The Beverwyck at Havre de Grace Is Won Handily by Apostle

APOSTLE CAPTURES BEVERWYCK PURSE

MUNDEN RIDES 3 WINNERS

Brings Leatherwood, Mabel C. and Duckling In First — Whitney's Pyrex Bows to Club Steak.

Special to The New York Times.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 16.—Running out in front from the drop of the flag, C. Caffarelli's Apostle coasted home to an easy victory this afternoon in the Beverwyck Purse, a dash of five and a half furlongs, restricted to the three-year-olds, which was the leading number of a rather ordinary card. It was Apostle's first appearance since he won his lone start at Jefferson Park. To day he beat ten others of his age.

An ideal Spring afternoon brought out a good attendance in view of the program, but there was small reward for the followers of form, only one favorite winning. The interesting event of the afternoon was the riding of Willie Munden, star of the pigskin brigade at Tijuana during the Winter. Munden had four mounts during the afternoon, and three of them he brought home winners—Leatherwood in the second, Mabel C. in the third and Duckling in the seventh. He was unplaced in his other effort.

The battle for the place was the feature of the race for the Beverwyck Purse, since Apostle was never threatened once the field was well in motion. Pony McAtee's ride on A. G. Weston's Welshot brought the Wrack gelding home to take the place by a head from W. R. Sallee's Orestes II, the favorite.

The H. P. Whitney entry of Pyrex and Fresco was the short-priced favorite for the juvenile event, a half-mile dash for maiden fillies, and they ran second and fourth, respectively, in a field of fifteen. J. P. Jones's Club Steak, making her first appearance under colors, proved the winner, and her stable companion, Lena Rinehart, split the Whitney pair.

When the break came A. C. Bostwick's Royal Alma tossed off her rider, L. Simons. Club Steak displayed a brilliant burst of speed from the start, leaving her field far behind and coming home with a lead of ten lengths in the fast time of 0:47 4-5. Chalmers had the mount and the entry paid $9.60 in the mutuels.

A long shot carried off the money in the claiming event, at a mile and seventy yards for three-year-olds, the Sagamore Stable's True Boy paying $16.70 in the mutuels, although it was well known that Trainer Stotler has his horses very fit for the meeting. True Boy got up in the last jump to take the money by a nose from the Flamingo Farm's Exchequer. The latter made the early pace and had a good margin over Barney Wells at the finish.

Lawson Robertson Is Engaged For 5 More Years by Penn

PHILADELPHIA, April 16 (AP).—Lawson Robertson, head coach of the track team and trainer of the football squad at the University of Pennsylvania, was engaged today for five more years. His old contract expires this year and the new agreement was ratified by the Council on Athletics.

MAYOR WILL GREET HAKOAH TEAM TODAY

Jewish Soccer Stars From Vienna Will Parade to City Hall on Arrival Here.

Mayor Walker will head the Reception Committee to meet the Hakoah soccer team of Vienna when it arrives here this morning at 10 o'clock on the Berengaria. Mrs. Alfred E. Smith, wife of the Governor, will be a member of the committee. The players will tour the United States, their first game being scheduled for Sunday, April 25, at the Polo Grounds.

Hakoah (the name means mighty) is an all-Jewish sports club of Vienna. Its members have won the European championships in soccer, hockey, wrestling, chess and swimming, and the soccer team, just before sailing, defeated the Red Stars of Paris, city champions, in a fast game in the French capital, 10 to 4.

While in New York the eleven will be the guests of the Crescent A. C. in Brooklyn. After debarking the players will go to the Hotel Brevoort and then, forming behind a band, will march up Tenth Street to Broadway and down Broadway to the City Hall, where the Mayor will extend his official welcome. It is expected that more than 300 persons will take part in the parade and that a great crowd will be in City Hall Park to see the welcoming ceremonies.

Eighteen players are included in the group which will debark. All are internationalists, the highest ranking in soccer playing, and each man is a star of the first magnitude in his position. The majority of the men are young and adept at the fast style of attack, which is typical of the brand of soccer played in the Western section of the United States.

Club Steak displayed brilliant speed and opened up a winning lead with little effort, winning as her rider pleased. Pyrex, well up in the early running, finished stoutly. Lena Rinehart moved around and closed with good courage. Fresco broke in a tangle. She came around the leaders in the last quarter mile, closing a big gap. Samara stopped badly.

Leatherwood, under steadying restraint until entering the stretch, took command with a rush and drew out into an easy lead. Caslion, in close quarters for a half mile, saved ground, made a game effort, but then hung in the final eighths as if short. Miss Rosedale responded gamely under punishment and outgamed Wellfinder. Latter quit badly.

Apostle, showing fine speed, slipped through on the inside going down the backstretch, and went into a long lead rounding the turn, was never menaced thereafter. Welshot, hard urged all the way, finished gamely; outlasted Orestes II. The latter, a forward contender in the early racing, weakened through the stretch. Aucilla closed well.

State Boxing Board Bans Proposed Bout Between Flowers and Walker

FLOWERS-WALKER MATCH IS BARRED

GARDEN TO GET BATTLE

State Commission Will Pick Berlenbach Opponent Unless Delaney Deals With Rickard.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

The State Athletic Commission announced yesterday through Chairman James A. Farley that it would not tolerate a mixed championship match between Tiger Flowers, negro holder of the middleweight title, and Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion. It also transferred the proposed bout between Joe Dundee and Willie Harmon, welterweight rivals, which was signed, announced and scheduled by the Coney Island Stadium for May 28, from the stadium to Madison Square Garden on any date that suits the principals and the Garden.

Chairman Farley further announced that unless Jack Delaney at least considered Promoter Rickard's overtures for a bout between himself and Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight champion, the commission would step into the breach and arbitrarily select an opponent for Berlenbach who would assuredly not be Jack Delaney.

Then the commission put its stamp of approval on the bout between Louis (Kid) Kaplan, world's featherweight champion, and Johnny Dundee, ex-champion, which is scheduled for June 1 in the Queensboro Stadium.

Boxers Must Stick to Class.

A desire to keep Walker in his own division and serve notice on other titleholders that they will be expected to do likewise actuated the commission in its disposition of the Flowers-Walker bout.

Matchmaker Jess McMahon, representing Promoter Rickard, appeared with a request to hold the bout in the Yankee Stadium in June, but was advised the commission would not permit the match. "If Flowers wants to fight in June let him fight Harry Greb," was the commission dictum. The commission thinks Greb is entitled to another bout. It holds that Walker will find enough to do in his own division after his title bout with Pete Latzo.

The Dundee-Harmon bout submitted by the Coney Island Stadium was disallowed, Chairman Farley explained, because the Garden had first call on this bout. Chairman Farley asserted the commission had instructed McMahon not to proceed with the match as an attraction for May 7 at the Garden, when it was thought it would interfere with the Catholic Big Sisters' benefit card scheduled for May 17 in the Garden on which Harmon is scheduled to appear. Yesterday's ruling was that the Garden can have the match for any date after May 17.

Delaney's hesitancy in signifying his intentions with respect to the Berlenbach bout which Promoter Tex Rickard is offering him, led to Farley's intimation that the commission may make a substitution. Young Stribling or Georges Carpentier are the likely candiates.

Shade and Moody Must Meet.

Dave Shade and Frank Moody, who were disqualifed last Monday night at Syracuse by Referee Mike Hylas for an alleged unsatisfactory contest, were ordered to box at the Syracuse Arena within a week or ten days in a return match, and the money for their contest last Monday night will not be forwarded until they have completed another bout. The commission will collect from the second match the percentages of the boxers under the original contract and this money will be diverted to charity.

RICKARD GOES WEST TO SIGN UP DEMPSEY

May Meet Champion in St. Louis or Kansas City—Also Will Look Over a Chicago Garden.

Promoter Tex Rickard, accompanied by Max Kramer, contractor, who worked on the new Madison Square Garden, left for Chicago yesterday, ostensibly to go over plans for his arena in Chicago, where Rickard and the Madison Square Garden Corporation purpose to operate along lines similar to those here.

More important in its immediate relation to boxing, however, is the fact that the promoter's mission is to sign Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, to a bout contract. The document which Dempsey will be asked to sign will be a blank contract in which the titleholder will assign to Rickard the selection of the opponent, be he Gene Tunney or Harry Wills.

Rickard is not to sign Dempsey in Chicago. In fact it is unknown where the champion and the promoter will meet, and the place will not be arranged until Rickard reaches Chicago today. It is believed, however, that it will be in either Kansas City or St. Louis.

Dempsey will get a percentage privilege which will insure the champion the sum of $450,000 when he boxes. That is understood to be the price the champion has placed on his services. The date will depend upon its location. Rickard has not yet entirely abandoned hope of holding the bout at the Yankee Stadium, but is prepared to shift the scene to Jersey City. The battle, if in this city, will be held on Sept. 2, and if in Jersey City on Sept. 3. Dempsey will not be in position to fight until after his contract with Jack Kearns, the champion's deposed manager, has expired on Aug. 3.

Chances of a contest between Dempsey and Tunney here are practically nil, and the outlook for Jersey City is not particularly promising either. If the promoter persists in his plans to stage a Dempsey-Tunney bout in Jersey City, the State Athletic Commission is prepared to revoke the license of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, of which Rickard is President. At least that is the attitude of Chairman James A. Farley, expressed yesterday.

Gets Referee's Decision After Judges Fail to Agree.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 16 (AP).—Tiger Flowers, middleweight champion of the world, defeated Joey Gans of Allentown, Pa., in a ten-round bout here tonight. Flowers received the referee's decision after the judges had disagreed.

Cup Offered for Golf Match Between U. S. and British Pros

LONDON, April 16 (AP).—British professional golfers are showing increased interest in the institution of an annual competition similar to the Walker Cup competition in the amateur ranks. A golf enthusiast, whose name has not yet been made public, is ready to give a Challenge Cup for annual play alternately in England and the United States. The first series of matches are planned over the St. George's Hill and Wentworth courses early in June. Walter Hagen is scheduled to select an American team.

MET. GYM HONORS KEPT BY JOCHIM

Al Jochim of the Swiss Turn Verein, national all-around gymnastic champion, retained his metropolitan senior all-around title last night in the annual championship meet of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, held in Prospect Hall, Brooklyn, before a capacity crowd of 1,000.

Jochim's brilliant performance gave the Swiss Turn Verein the team trophy, a handsome silver cup, with a score of 24 points. The New York Turn Verein finished second with 21 points, while the New York Athletic Club took third honors with 10 markers.

Victories in three events and a trio of second places assured Jochim's retention of his all-around crown. He took first honors with ease in the free calisthenics competition and the flying rings and finished on top after a stiff battle in the horizontal bar contest.

Second place in the all-around test went to Walter E. Meyer of the New York Turn Verein, national parallel bars champion, who retained his metropolitan title in that event and scored a total of 2,805 points for the events in which he competed to 3,028.5 for Jochim.

The summaries:

Free Calisthenics for All-Around Men—Won by Al Jochim, Swiss Turnverein (282 points); Walter H. Meyer, New York Turnverein (260.5 points), second; Bruno Waldin, Passaic Turnverein (239 points), third; Al Hoehn, Turnverein Vorwaerts (252.5 points), fourth.

GOLDSTEIN STOPS O'BRIEN IN THIRD

East Side Lightweight Is Easy Victor in Pioneer Bout—Hassan Knocks Out Branch.

His scheduled six-round bout against Pep O'Brien, Scranton lightweight, as the feature attraction last night before a packed house in the Pioneer A. C., was just a workout for Ruby Goldstein, promising east side lightweight. Goldstein subjected O'Brien to such a severe drubbing from the outset of the contest that after 2 minutes 50 seconds of the third round the Scranton lad's seconds heaved a towel into the ring, admitting defeat for their man and giving Goldstein another knockout triumph.

Goldstein floored his rival twice in the first round and once in the third round, while on another occasion in the third O'Brien, backed into a neutral corner, went down without being hit. Regaining his feet, O'Brien faced a gale of blows until the towel came hurtling into the air. Goldstein weighed 136¾ pounds and O'Brien 136 pounds.

In the scheduled six-round semi-final Hagan Hassan, Turkish heavyweight, knocked out Vernon Branch, Chicagoan, in two minutes of the first round of an unsatisfactory contest. Sammy Dorfman, east side, won the decision over Frankie Goldsmith of the west side in their six-round bout. Willie O'Connell, clever west side bantamweight, out-boxed and out-fought Frankie Curry in their six-round bout and Georgie Cuneo won the decision over Mike Esposito in a six-rounder. Billy Humphries carried off the decision over Harry Brooks in their six-round quarrel.

MITCHELL DEFEATS DUNCAN BY 3 AND 2

IS LONG OFF THE TEES

Rival Runs Into String of Fives, Is 3 Down at Fifth and a 2 at Seventh Is of Little Aid.

ROEHAMPTON, Eng., April 16 (AP).—Abe Mitchell today defeated George Duncan, 3 and 2, thus winning the Roehampton Golf Club invitation professional tournament with its prize of £200. This annual competition affords British professional golfers the first opportunity to display their Spring golfing styles, and Mitchell sustained the hopes that the golfing public of this country places in him as the likeliest man to end the raids on the British open championship which the Americans have so successfully conducted in four out of the last five years.

Mitchell emerged from the Winter's hibernation at St. Albans, where, under the patronage of a wealthy enthusiast he has been pursuing his studies with intensity and devotion, and swept all before him on the short, but rocky, fairways and perfect greens of Roehampton.

He eliminated an able youngster, W. B. Smith, 4 and 3, in the semi-finals this morning, before renewing his ancient and friendly rivalry with Duncan. All this came after the trouncing which he administered to Archibald Compston yesterday when the score was 4 and 3.

Tonight Mitchell's admirers were more certain than heretofore that few, if any, golfers on either side of the Atlantic can defeat him in a 72-hole match, and the arrival of the American golfing invaders is awaited with the greatest interest.

Mitchell's sixteen holes against Duncan were played in one under fours, which required the steadiest golf. Duncan performed with characteristic impetuosity. Three ragged fives put him three down at the fifth hole. This fixed his fate, and, except for a single flashing two at the seventh, he never showed signs of hitting his true stride. Nevertheless the galleries stuck close, hoping for a repetition of Duncan's morning recovery, when, in beating the Lancashireman, W. Robertson, 5 and 4, he took 22 strokes for the first four holes and only 31 for the next ten.

Against Mitchell, however, Duncan was consistently outdriven. Mitchell's power from the tee was never better displayed than against the wind at the long second hole. Two screamers put him on the green. At other long holes, Mitchell was out in front, needing only a cleek or mashie to take him to the green, when Duncan required a wooden club.

PRINCETON ALUMNI HONOR FITZPATRICK

Track Captains Since '73 Attend Dinner — Oxford-Cambridge Plan Definitely Announced.

Keene Fitzpatrick, famous American coach and hale and hearty at 61, was the guest of honor last night at a dinner given for him at the University Club by the track alumni of Princeton University, where Fitzpatrick has been track coach since 1910. Fitzpatrick, who has been coaching football and track teams for thirty-six years, was eulogized by speakers, all of whom were stars at Princeton from 1873, when Princeton had its first track team, to the present day.

The first and the last track captains, in the persons of Jacob H. Van Deventer, '74, and Caleb F. Gates Jr., '26, paid tribute to the ability of Fitzpatrick, praised his methods and told of the successes of the Tiger in competition since he has been guiding the track and field teams. More than fifty Princeton stars were present in answer to an invitation sent out recently and signed by thirty-three track captains.

Rupert B. Thomas Jr., captain in 1913 and at present a member of the Board of Control at Princeton, described Fitzpatrick as one of the greatest influences that had ever come into the life of the Princeton undergraduate and told of future plans for Princeton track and field competition in which Fitzpatrick will play a major part.

Thomas revealed that Fitzpatrick and Jack Moakley, Cornell coach, would select the combined Princeton-Coracll track team that will go abroad this Summer for a meet with the combined Oxford-Cambridge team at Stamford Bridge on July 10. The personnel of the team will be decided upon after the Penn Relays and will be made up of the twenty-six best athletes in the two universities, regardless of the number that will be drawn from each university. The team, with Coaches Fitzpatrick and Moakley, and the undergraduate managers, will sail on the S. S. Caronia on June 24, said Thomas.

Thomas also disclosed that a definite arrangement had been made between Harvard and Yale, Princeton and Cornell, and Oxford and Cambridge for a four-year cycle of competition whereby American teams would visit England, an English team would come to America and a hiatus in Anglo-American competition would exist during the Olympic year. A combined Oxford-Cambridge team came to America in 1925, a combined Princeton-Cornell team will go to England in 1928, a combined Yale-Harvard team will go to England in 1927, and there will be no intercollegiate competition of this sort in 1928, as that will be an Olympic year. In 1929 Oxford-Cambridge will come here again.

R. Kinsey Victor in Honolulu.

HONOLULU, April 16 (AP).—Gerald Stratford of Berkeley, Cal., beat R. J. McKay, New York, 6—3, 6—1, and Robert Kinsey, San Francisco, defeated J. H. Hills, army champion, 6—2, 6—0, in the opening round yesterday of the mid-Pacific tennis tournament.

PUBLIC GOLF COURSES TO BE OPENED TODAY

Mayor Is to Drive Off First Ball at Van Cortlandt—Only Temporary Tees Ready.

The New York public golf links will open today. Mayor Walker is to drive off the first ball at Van Cortlandt Park. This is a week later than last year's opening, which indicates that the golf weather is a little behind previous seasons.

Van Cortlandt Park, Mosholu and Pelham will open with temporary greens. The regular greens will not be available until May. Commissioner John A. Hennessey of the parks of the Bronx, however, is pleased with the progress being made on the greens.

The tees at Van Cortlandt Park have been rebuilt but outside of this there have been no changes in the condition of the links. In case of rain the opening will be postponed until the following day. Indications point to a record year and commissioners are busy on a plan to lessen the congestion on week-ends that has been so trying in the past that many of the regulars have gone to the public links at daybreak in order to get off on their rounds without a tedious delay at the first tee.

FORT JAY BOXERS SCORE.

Capt. Pidgeon Plans to Enter Bermuda Race Without a Crew and Watch for Chronometer

Herbert L. Stone, Chairman of the Bermuda Ocean Race Committee, said yesterday that he hoped to have the entry of Harry Pidgeon, the Iowa navigator who recently circumnavigated the world single-handed in the yawl Islander, which he constructed himself at Los Angeles.

Captain Pidgeon told Chairman Stone that he expected to be in New York waters at the time of the race and if so would be glad to enter the Islander and sail her alone against the other boats in the fleet. The Bermuda race, a deep-sea thrash of 660 nautical miles to St. David's Head, outside Hamilton, will be started off New London on Sunday, June 20.

Although some yachtsmen in the Bermuda race in the past have missed the islands through lack of experience in navigation, it is believed that Captain Pidgeon would make St. David's Head without a miss. During his long voyage of 33,000 miles around the world he made some difficult passages, one of forty-two days in the Pacific, and always brought up at the port he desired to make.

Captain Pidgeon states that he circumnavigated the world without the aid of a chronometer, using a gold watch instead. This substitute for the usual instrument was placed on some cotton in a cigar box during the long trip.

STRANAHAN BEATS DUCKY YATES, 1 UP

Enters Pinehurst Final at Expense of Medalist After Uphill Battle.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 16.—Ducky Yates of Rochester, medalist in the mid-April tournament, was eliminated in the semi-final round here today by Robert A. Stranahan of Toledo. The decision was not reached until the final green, the margin being 1 up. To win Stranahan had to come home in 34, 2 under par. Yates was 2 up at the turn, out in 38 to Stranahan's 41.

The summaries:

First Division—R. A. Stranahan, Toledo, Ohio, defeated Arthur (Ducky) Yates, Rochester, 1 up; C. Rose Somerville, London, Ontario, defeated H. E. A. Gammons, Providence, 7 up (nineteen holes).

Second Division—J. L. Weller, Hamilton, Ontario, defeated H. Bradford Lewis, Andover, 7 and 6; S. Howard Voshell, Pomonok, defeated J. H. Jones, Wareham, Mass., 6 and 3.

Third Division—F. S. P. Randolph, Meadowbrook, defeated H. E. Swoope, Merion, Pa., 6 and 5; Robert Lowry, Shamokin, defeated A. B. Couch, Montreal, 4 and 3.

DEAL COURSE CHOSEN FOR JERSEY AMATEUR

State Golf Body Picks Club Near Asbury Park for Title Tournament June 3-5.

Selection of the Deal Golf Club near Asbury Park for the New Jersey State Golf Association's twenty-fifth annual amateur championship, to be held June 3 to 5, was announced yesterday at the first meeting of the association's new Executive Committee held at the Lawyers' Club.

Choice of courses for the open championship, which is restricted to Jersey players, and for the events held for caddies and caddie-masters, was put off until next Friday. At that time the New Jersey team for the annual triangular match with Long Island and Westchester also will be announced.

The meeting yesterday disclosed the personnel of the Jersey body's Executive Committee, which is appointed by the President. Jay R. Monroe, who was elected to that office in January, recently returned from Europe. The committee is composed of H. Y. Barrow of Baltusrol, E. B. Grubb of Somerset Hills, Maurice E. Risley of Atlantic City, Charles P. Eddy of Arcola, F. F. Turrell and A. D. Swords of Morris County, Stacey Reader of Shackamaxon, Al C. Buckley of Canoe Brook and Mr. Monroe.

COLLEGE STARS SET 21 NEW SWIM MARKS

National Body Received 40 Applications for Records—Several Fell Number of Times.

YALE MEN LED IN RELAY

Lowered Times for Every Free Style Event Known for 75-Foot Pool —Navy Performed Well.

Twenty-one intercollegiate records were bettered by varsity swimmers during the recent indoor season, according to the list of new marks compiled by the secretary of the National Athletic Association Natstoral Committee and made public yesterday.

It deserves mention, however, that the list fails to convey a true idea of the wealth of iconoclastic feats accomplished, as some of the old records were beaten by several swimmers and more than once by the same man, yet in each instance only the fastest performance chronicled naturally appears on the table of new standards. Suffice that nearly forty applications for records were received by the committee.

The outstanding achievements, in all cases, were returned by Yale or Naval Academy swimmers, so representatives of half a dozen other colleges who actually took part in the record breaking find their exploits omitted from the secretary's report.

The season's most striking performances went to the credit of the Yale sprinters. They smashed the 75-foot pool marks for every free style relay event on the calendar and the new figures they established in all cases rate as world as well as collegiate records. The new records:

Pools between 75 and 99 feet.

URGES EDUCATION FOR TRUE CITIZENS

Miss Sherwin Tells St. Louis Convention of the Work of the League of Women Voters.

SEEKS TRUE DEMOCRACY

This, She Believes, Can Best Be Obtained by the Development of the Individual Voter.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 16.—Strong faith in education in politics as the right road toward realization of true democracy was urged by Miss Belle Sherwin, President of the National League of Women Voters, in her address to the general assembly of the league delegates here tonight.

Opening the mass meeting that concluded the program of the first day of the convention proper, she told what the league had done in its seven years of existence toward that goal. In education, she emphasized, the league believed it had "found a way of helping to realize democracy which actually works among a growing number of citizens."

The same topic was discussed by Mrs. Maud Wood Park, past President of the league, and Mrs. Helen Taylor Upton of Warren, Ohio, former Vice Chairman of the National Republican Committee. Mrs. Upton spoke in place of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt of New York, Honorary President of the league, who, through illness, was kept away.

When the convention organized this morning reports of various committees and officers of the league were followed by presentation of committee recommendations. Regional conferences followed in the afternoon.

"Some of us are bold to believe," said Miss Sherwin, "that the necessity for political education has led the League of Women Voters directly into a creative process of Democracy.

"Whether it is possible to develop in this country an education which will qualify citizens to be partners in government is a question to face squarely.

"In the early days of small numbers in this country our new invention of public schools did in some measure result in the development of the individual in relation to the demands upon him and so laid the foundation for a working democratic Government. How far are we realizing that ideal through our educational system in the complex?

"For many, education today is either remote and limited to a brief period or is highly specialized for vocational purposes. Education for active citizenship has hardly been tried."

Still, she noted a "better sign for democracy" in "the modest attempts of schools here and there to teach critical reading of the newspapers and other means of avoiding mob-mindedness."

Detailing various activities of the league in its effort to educate voters politically, Miss Sherwin remarked that "the experiment of the league offers a new hope for democracy."

After seven years of existence of the league, she continued, newspaper editors and others were beginning to recognize the important influence of the league on public opinion and the development of an intelligent class of voters.

"The largest returns upon political education are not yet capable of measurement at the polls," she added. "They are to be found in the gradual appreciable increase of the number of citizens concerned to become competent voters through understanding some aspect of government or some political situation which for one reason or another has come home to them."

Mrs. Park, speaking on "the faith of the fathers and the works of the mothers," pointed out that the union of faith and works is as necessary to the welfare of the nation as to the salvation of the individual soul.

"Throughout history," she declared, "women, by their works, have helped to make man's faith a reality, and now that women are voters they are trying to carry out the faith of the fathers by the practical measures which they support and by their tendency to discriminate between the 'letter which killeth and the spirit which maketh live.'"

By all indications today the league is going to give the wet and dry issue a wide berth this time, at least officially. Rumors that prohibition and birth control, two inflammable subjects in the league, were to be threshed out at this convention were squelched today when committee recommendations for various subjects of study and legislation during the ensuing year failed to include these two issues.

DAUGHTER'S CALLER IS SHOT BY WOMAN

Prisoner Says She Opened Fire Thinking Victim and His Friend Were Robbers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, N. J., April 16.—Mrs. Sophie Kenneyman shot and seriously wounded John Engstrom of Dover when Engstrom and another man appeared at the rear door of her home about one mile from here last night. The woman declared she feared the men were robbers, but local police said that they had obtained information that Engstrom and his companion were known to the woman's two daughters and had gone to pay a call on them.

Mrs. Kenneyman, who is 56 years old, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Baker today and held without bail for the Grand Jury, charged with assault with intent to kill. Engstrom's condition was critical.

When the two men knocked at the rear door, according to the police, Mrs. Kenneyman ordered them away, and when they refused she went to an upstairs room and fired a shot from a window to try to frighten them into leaving. They remained, however, and the woman came to the rear door to face them.

Pointing the pistol at Engstrom, according to the police, Mrs. Kenneyman threatened to shoot unless he and his companion departed. Engstrom replied:

At this, said the police, the woman fired twice. One bullet grazed Engstrom's neck while the other lodged in his abdomen. His companion ran off. Although wounded, Engstrom got back into his automobile and drove twelve miles to Hackettstown, where he collapsed. He was taken to the Dover Hospital.

Autocar Co. Has Fewer Officers.

The number of Vice Presidents of the Autocar Company was reduced from five to two at a meeting of the directorate yesterday. The following officers were re-elected: L. L. Woodward, who was recently appointed President, was elected to that position; John S. Clarke and W. T. Savoye, Vice Presidents; T. C. Taney, Treasurer, and J. C. T. Anthony, Secretary.

LONDON FAREWELL TO OUR HOTEL MEN

Duke of York Pays Tribute to the Manager as the 'Dispenser of Hospitality.'

LONDON, April 16.—The Duke of York attended the farewell banquet to the American and Continental members of the International Hotel Alliance at the Hotel Victoria tonight. Lord Beasborough presided. The American and Japanese Ambassadors and the Swiss Minister also attended.

Many notable Englishmen were among the guests. The dining hall was elaborately decorated, the Statue of Liberty in ice being one of the features. The dinner, provided by Gordon Hotels, Limited, was a triumph of English culinary art.

The Duke of York spoke on the importance of the hotel manager and described him as the "universal dispenser of hospitality" in stimulating the spirit of travel. Referring to the visit of the Americans to Stratford-on-Avon, he expressed the hope that all who love Shakespeare's works would help in restoring the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre.

J. H. Thomas urged the visiting hotel keepers to "correct the false impression that this old country is down and out."

"It's quite true," he said, "that we are passing through a difficult period. We are still paying the price of war, but we are meeting our obligations. We intend to meet them and we are not down and out."

George W. Sweeney, the official delegate of the American Hotel Association, made some well chosen remarks and paid a tribute to the hospitality extended to members of the Alliance in this country.

Lord Dewar was another speaker. He asked the American hotel men to take back the following message to their fellow-citizens:

"May the golden chain which so happily binds your Republic to the British Empire now, never lose a link, for upon that chain rests the peace of the world, the advancement of civilization and the well-being of the human race."

CONCERT IN AID OF SCHOOL

Johnson and Gordon Delight Audience With Negro "Spirituals."

America's singing of those native folksongs known as negro "spirituals" was illustrated in a benefit at the Town Hall last night to complete a fund of $10,000, of which $2,000 had been promised by B. N. Duke, for the work of the Manassas Industrial School in the South. Paul Robeson, negro actor and baritone, was ill and his opening group with Lawrence Brown had to be abandoned, as announced from the stage. Alexander Gatewood, with Jessie Covington as accompanist, added to his classic airs and to familiar arrangements by H. T. Burleigh three extra songs at the start.

J. Rosamond Johnson and Taylor Gordon, who also interpolated three numbers at their first hearty greeting, finished the evening with many of Johnson's vivid versions of camp-meeting revival airs, such as the pair had sung in New York on no fewer than fifteen occasions this season. Their music, unique in racial sympathy and fervor, was applauded by a brilliant social house.

RUTGERS GIVES A CONCERT.

96 Singers Present a Choral Program of Wide Range.

Ninety-six fresh-voiced singers from the University Choral Clubs of Rutgers College and its allied New Jersey College for Women were heard in their third annual concert here at Aeolian Hall last night. Howard D. McKinney conducted early Latin chants of Palestrina and Vittoria, in which college choirs have followed Harvard's lead of some years ago. From Russian choristers recently touring America there also was an example in the "Hospodi Pomilui" of Luvosky.

Deems Taylor's adaptation of a Czechoslovak air, "Waters Ripple and Flow," shared a folksong group with the "Volga Boat Song" and with Vaughn Williams's arrangement of an old English "Springtime of the Year." Jean Knowlton, soprano, and Harold Lambert, baritone, assisted in solo passages and a group of songs apiece. Among later American lyrics the women's chorus added C. G. Sprose's "Fulfillment" and "Will o' the Wisp."

Sings Songs of Algiers and Tunis.

Laura Williams introduced songs of Algiers and Tunis, sung in costume and accompanied with Arab lute and drums in a recital last evening at the new Chickering Hall, in Fifty-seventh Street. Miss Williams, who studied this music among the people of North Africa, gave other folksongs with Agnes Conover and airs by Katherine Heyman, with the composer at the piano.

Hubbard Begins His Song Recitals.

Charles Hubbard, the tenor, opened last evening a series of three song recitals from modern composers, attracting an interested audience to the Fifth Avenue Playhouse at 66 Fifth Avenue. To a dozen Frenchmen, Mr. Hubbard added lyrics of Stravinsky and Tansman, the Spanish De Falla and the American Griffes. Josef Adler assisted at the piano, as he will on April 21 and 28.

National Opera Club's $1,000 Prize.

The National Opera Club of this city has offered a $1,000 prize "for a female voice of outstanding quality," the winner to be determined at the Young Artists' Contest in Chicago in April of next year. There will be preliminary State and district contests and a further prize of $500 will be awarded by the National Federation of Music Clubs at the same time.

Rotary Clubs Benefit Tonight.

A benefit under the auspices of the International Rotary Clubs, the proceeds to be used for the purpose of buying a farm for poor boys, will be held at the Manhattan Opera House tonight.

An array of vaudeville stars will appear with Loney Haskell as master of ceremonies.

John Golden Buys "Supernat'ral."

John Golden yesterday purchased a new play, "Supernat'ral," by Anne Morrison, which has been written for Nydia Westman and Wallace Ford. "Supernat'ral" will be tried out in June, following the Chicago engagement of Miss Westman and Mr. Ford in "Pigs," of which Miss Morrison is co-author.

Lowered Prices on Goodyear Golf Balls
Goodyear 75c—Glide 50c

Golfers everywhere will welcome the lowered prices on Goodyear Golf Balls. The savings effected by a record-breaking volume of sales and the consequent economies of large production are being passed on to golfers, resulting in the lowest prices at which Goodyear Golf Balls were ever sold.

The Goodyear, in either mesh or dimple marking, is now 75 cents each. The Glide, in mesh only, is 50 cents each.

Both are made by the makers of Goodyear Tires. Ask your professional or write to Goodyear, Akron, Ohio, or Los Angeles, California.

New York Central's first hundred years

New York Central this year joins that growing company of American institutions with hundred-year records of service.

It was on April 17, 1826, that New York State granted the charter for the construction of the first link in the New York Central Lines—the pioneer Mohawk and Hudson Rail Road, over which was first operated in 1831 the historic De Witt Clinton train, from Albany to Schenectady.

That courageous experiment of a century ago became the nucleus of the 12,000-mile railroad system that now stretches across the richest industrial region in the world, from the Mississippi Valley and the Great Lakes region to the Atlantic seaboard, and carries one-tenth of the rail-borne commerce of the nation.

New York Central enters its second century of service with a record of achievement that is an inseparable part of the story of American progress.

AMERICAN OPERA FOR METROPOLITAN

PUCCINI "TURANDOT" ALSO

"La Giara" Among Italian Works —Revivals of "Fidelio," "Magic Flute" and "Rosenkavalier."

New operas and revivals of some recent or older favorites, constituting a sheaf of ten in all, are announced today for the next season of the Metropolitan Opera House. It will be the forty-fourth year of the theatre and the nineteenth of Gatti-Casazza as director. Mr. Gatti timed his annual statement for the closing day of six months' opera-giving. It has been financially the most prosperous and numerically at least the most productive on this premier stage, with a new high record of forty-nine different works in 249 representations.

The general manager's forecast will be discussed by audiences at today's pair of farewell performances before the company's annual flight to Atlanta. It has already been anticipated by the vast majority of subscribers, who have renewed their holdings of coveted seats for another year. To new or prospective subscribers, the books of the opera house will be opened on April 27 and 28. The new season will begin next Nov. 1.

On Mr. Gatti's new list are four works of Italian origin, one being a ballet; three others to be sung in German, two in French and one in English. Four of those mentioned will be restorations from a season or two of silence, three others from the remoter days of one and two decades ago, and three will be new to America.

Deems Taylor's New Opera.

Deems Taylor's "The King's Henchman," with text by Edna St. Vincent Millay, heads the prospectus. It is an opera in three acts, for which the Metropolitan commissioned Mr. Taylor last year and to which he has devoted all his time since then except for the composition of a tone-poem, "Jurgen," similarly commissioned and produced by the New York Symphony.

Miss Millay, the librettist, is one of the most widely known among poets of present-day America. She is a graduate of Vassar College, as Mr. Taylor is of New York University. He was associated here in earlier musical activities with the concert baritone, Reinald Werrenrath. Mr. Taylor also has composed many songs, as well as "The Chambered Nautilus" for chorus and an "Alice in Wonderland" suite for orchestra.

Puccini's "Turandot," of which the cables are telling these days, in view of its world premiere next week at Milan, is an opera in three acts on a Chinese love tale, not unknown to the spoken stage. The librettists are Renato Simoni and Giuseppe Adami, and the late composer's work, left near completion at his death, has been supplied with orchestration only for a final number or two by his friend and fellow-composer, Franco Alfano.

Alfredo Casella's "La Giara," described as a "choreographic comedy" in one act, has its scenario from a plot by the Italian playwright, Luigi Pirandello. Its music has in part been heard in concert halls. Mr. Casella himself has been active as a guest conductor and pianist in America this season, though he arrived to find his engagement to lead the State Symphony frustrated by that orchestra's retirement from further concerts this year.

"Magic Flute" and "Fidelio" Revivals.

Of Mr. Gatti's major revivals, Mozart's "Magic Flute" has been a battlehorse for constellation of stars and galaxies of voices under all Metropolitan directorates, and during the years 1912-1916 for the company under Gatti-Casazza himself.

Beethoven's "Fidelio" likewise has filled an honored place in three different seasons during Mr. Gatti's time, as well as under his predecessor, Conried. Its heroine has been sung of old by Lehmann and Ternina and latterly by Morena and Melanie Kurt.

Ambroise Thomas's "Mignon," a step-child of opera, will be new to most hearers next year. It had four hearings in the many years of French opera by Abbey and by Maurice Grau, and a notable revival in Conried's final year, with Geraldine Farrar, Bonci and Plançon.

From the nearer past, Gatti-Casazza is to restore Montemezzi's "Love of the Three Kings," one of the finest modern works of the director's own country; Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Coq d'Or," with its exotic mating of lyric drama and ballet; Strauss's "Rosenkavalier," delayed at the last moment this season, and Verdi's "Forza del Destino."

There have been the usual rumors as to the stars engaged. It is said, for example, that florid rôles in "Magic Flute," "Mignon" and "Coq d'Or" will be prepared by the young soprano, Marion Talley. For several revivals, the casts of late years are available. As to these the director made no disclosure.

Mr. Gatti's statement ended with a request that there should be "no speculation as to the casts for the foregoing operas," as this matter is quite undecided. He added that suggestions "that such or such an artist be chosen for such or such a rôle" often caused embarrassment to the director and pain to the singers, some of whom must find themselves disappointed.

Massenet's "Don Quichotte" was sung to a house sold out at the Metropolitan last evening. Marion Telva made her appearance as the heroine, Dulcinea, for the first time replacing Miss Easton, and gave a performance of individual charm. Mr. Chaliapin's horse balked at a bit of loose scenery in the second act, but the Russian basso dismounted without dramatic disaster or personal mishap.

ARTIST'S MANY MOODS BOTHERED SCHINDLER

Raquel Meller's Conductor Withdrew in Favor of Man With Music Hall Training.

The non-appearance of Kurt Schindler, former conductor of the Schola Cantorum, as director of the symphonic orchestra engaged to accompany Raquel Meller, the Spanish disease, in her programs at the Empire Theatre, was explained last night by Mr. Schindler and E. Ray Goetz, who is presenting Señorita Meller in America.

The fact that the orchestra is not being led by Mr. Schindler is announced by a statement in the theatre programs, which says that he had withdrawn "owing to a sudden indisposition" and that he had designated Victor Baravelle to conduct in his stead.

According to Mr. Goetz after several rehearsals Mr. Schindler asked to be released, as he did not think things were going right. Mr. Schindler, Mr. Goetz stated, said that he could not catch all of Señorita Meller's various moods.

"You need a man with music hall training," Mr. Schindler is reputed to have told Mr. Goetz, "and I am not physically up to conducting for her."

Both Mr. Goetz and Mr. Schindler were emphatic in stating that the conductor's withdrawal was with only the best of feeling on both sides.

"There was no fuss at all," said Mr. Schindler. "I agreed to take charge of the orchestra for Mr. Goetz because of my admiration for Señorita Meller, whom I had seen many times abroad, and because the engagement was for the benefit of Spanish music in this country. I worked for three weeks before her arrival in New York, and supervised the preparation of the orchestrations that are now being used. I understood that I was to have an orchestra of thirty-six men, but because of the size of the pit it was necessary to cut this number to twenty-six. During the rehearsals I saw that most of Señorita Meller's selections were music hall material, and that she could get better results with a man of music hall training at the head of the orchestra."

Mr. Baravelle, who has taken Mr. Schindler's place, is well known as a musical comedy and revue conductor. He has led the orchestras of many productions, including various Al Jolson shows.

MRS. BENJAMIN ON STAGE.

Sister-in-Law of Mrs. Caruso to Make Her Debut at Hippodrome.

Mrs. Park Benjamin, sister-in-law of Mrs. Enrico Caruso and a member of New York society, will make her stage début at the Hippodrome the week of May 3, it was announced yesterday. Mrs. Benjamin, who has a lyric soprano voice, will sing operatic and classical songs.

Before her marriage to Park Benjamin she was Gladys Lanphere, daughter of a wealthy Western ranchman and the protégé of Henry Allen, former Governor of Kansas, who is expected to be present for her initial stage appearance. Mrs. Benjamin said that she did not expect to give up her social activities to follow her vocal career.

Benefit for Mrs. Jacob Adler.

A benefit performance for Mrs. Sarah Adler, widow of Jacob Adler, well-known Jewish actor, and in memory of Mr. Adler, will be given at the Manhattan Opera House about May 1. Elihu Penenholtz, President of the Jewish Theatrical Museum, announced yesterday. David Belasco, Morris Gest, Al Jolson and Fannie Hurst have promised their assistance, Mr. Penenholtz stated. Next Winter at the Jewish Actors' Club, 31 East Seventh Street, there will be an exhibition of Adler manuscripts, sculptures of the characters he portrayed during his career on the stage and other interesting mementos of his career.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Closing tonight are "Glory Hallelujah" at the Broadhurst Theatre, "Schweiger" at the Mansfield Theatre and "The Butter and Egg Man" at the Longacre.

Al Jolson plans to visit Los Angeles and Hollywood at the conclusion of his engagement in "Artists and Models." He will probably do some picture work before resuming his tour with "Big Boy." Next week will be Mr. Jolson's last at the Winter Garden.

Yellenti, who designed the scenery for "The Bells," will do the settings for "The Phantom Ship," Al Lewis's first independent production.

J. M. Barrie's "Dear Brutus" will be presented tonight by the Washington Square College Players at the University Playhouse, 100 Washington Square.

There will be three road companies of "Craig's Wife" next season, Rosalie Stewart announced yesterday. Chrystal Herne will continue in one of them.

MONTREAL AND QUEBEC FACE A FILM BOYCOTT

New York Distributers Act—Censorship in Province Called Worst in World.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, April 16.—Owing to censorship in the Province of Quebec, Montreal and other cities will be boycotted by United States film distributers after Aug. 1. The Province has a Board of Moving Picture Censors which is much criticised at times. The City of Quebec has a Civic Board of Censors, and the theatres in that city are up in arms and in the courts because of the civic board's action.

Announcement of the boycott came today at a meeting here of local motion picture distributers. Colonel John Cooper of Toronto, President of the Motion Picture Distributers, came here for the meeting.

"Orders have been received by local distributers from New York not to take any more orders for presentation of films in Quebec after Aug. 1," Colonel Cooper said.

"Were any reasons given?" he was asked.

"No."

"Why have such orders come?"

"We attribute them to the censorship here," answered Colonel Cooper. "Motion picture censorship in Quebec is the worst in the world. We have had trouble with the censor board here for years.

"Quebec has a perfect right to make its own laws, but we reserve the right as to whether we will live under those laws or do business under those laws.

"For years the distributors have been faced with this situation of their films, acceptable anywhere else, coming up here and being cut by the censor board. So much has this been done that Quebec has not proved a profitable market, and for that reason there is no use doing business here.

"Quebec represents less than 1 per cent. of the market for films on this continent. While there are censorship boards in all Provinces of the Dominion except Prince Edward Island, there are censor boards in only six States of the Union—New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

"There are 120 moving picture houses in Quebec, 40 of them in Montreal. There are 13 film exchanges in this city which supply the films to the theatres.

"The Quebec board cut as much as 2,000 feet out of 8,000 feet in one film in the last year. Are we going to stand for that? Better it was not shown. Not only is it a case of professional pride, but it is difficult to make money under such circumstances."

J. C. Adams, manager of Loew's Theatre, Montreal, issued a statement that managers of local moving picture houses would close their houses on August 1. Pictures are being ruined by the eliminations of the censorship, he said.

For some years there has been a steady campaign by Le Devoir of Montreal and L'Action Catholique of the city of Quebec, against American made films. These papers' contention has been that the American film is against moral principles.

Final Drama Contest Tonight.

The final of the Intersettlement play contests of the United Neighborhood Houses of New York will be held tonight at the Union Settlement, 237 East 104th Street. Four houses will take part—the Hudson Guild, presenting "Release"; Madison House, "Boots"; the Recreation Rooms, "Jubilee," and the School Settlement, "A Desert Dream." A silver cup will be given to the winning group. More than fifty plays have been presented in the contest since Fall.

"A Friend Indeed" Here on April 26.

"A Friend Indeed," a play of newspaper life, by Clayton Hamilton and Bernard Voigt, will open at the Central Park Theatre, 108 West Fifty-ninth Street, on Monday evening, April 26. The cast will include Ruth Easton, Constance Cameron, Jocquin Souther, Ashley Cooper, Theodore St. Johns, Albert H. Allen, Ralph Hogue, J. G. Cooke and Gertrude Maurin. Mary Forrest is making the production.

THE QUEST OF POLAR LAND.

Narratives of the preparations for the polar expeditions, which are like planning a strategic campaign before the great ordeal that will end in triumph or failure, make fascinating reading from day to day. AMUNDSEN declares that he is not engaged in a race for the Pole, but is interested only in the discovery of new land. Lieut. Commander BYRD thinks that there is an element of competition in the three enterprises and seems to be as eager to fly an airplane to the Pole as to find land between it and Alaska. Captain WILKINS has already flown seventy miles beyond the furthest north from the direction of Point Barrow, to get a glimpse of a snow land where the map shows nothing. When he says that, as PEARY attained the Pole, he is concerned only about geographical discovery, no one feels like disputing him. Yet his plan includes a flight over the "top of the world" to Spitzbergen. The explorers may protest at this stage of the game that they are not rivals, but each would doubtless be glad to tell the world by radio that he was the first to descry land where none was known to be and to drop the flag, or to make a landing, to claim it for the United States or for Norway. Newspaper readers are waiting for the start of the expeditions from their bases. Knowing that the first to get away may report success by a radio message in a day or two, or perhaps in less than twenty-four hours, they are disposed to look upon the quest as a race or a sporting event, protest as the explorers may.

The voyage of the airship Norge to Leningrad has been watched by friends of Captain AMUNDSEN with interest. She has proved airworthy, and there is no reason to doubt that she can be taken to Spitzbergen in fair weather as easily as she was navigated from Italy. But a halt at Leningrad has become necessary because her shed at King's Bay will not be ready for two weeks. All should be well if she arrives by May 1. Her supply of hydrogen will be on the spot, but it is reported that "the loading, "equipping and testing of the Norge "for her dash across the Pole for "Alaska may take two or three "weeks." It is not likely that she will fail to pick up Spitzbergen readily on her voyage from Leningrad unless fogs are thick. The Spitzbergen archipelago covers a good deal of space. The island of West Spitzbergen (or New Friesland) has an area of about 15,200 square miles, and is therefore almost twice as large as the State of Maryland. The passage to King's Bay should be quickly made by the Norge as soon as Captain AMUNDSEN signals that the shed and mooring mast are ready. The chances are that her prow will be pointed for the Pole before the end of May. But AMUNDSEN is too experienced an explorer to make haste carelessly. In the matter of geographical discovery, he will have in the use of the Norge a great advantage over WILKINS and BYRD in their airplanes. Even if he is not the first to sight land in the great area north of Beaufort Sea, he should be able to send out to the world a full description of it. He will be prepared to anchor his ship and descend for a leisurely inspection of newly discovered country.

Until the Chantier drops her anchor in King's Bay the fortunes of Lieut. Commander BYRD will not invite discussion. But it should not take him many days to prepare for his first flight to Cape Morris Jesup. He will have to go to and fro to establish a base there, but the distance can be covered each way in a few hours. He is a competent aviator and works quickly. This we know from his participation in the MacMillan expedition of last year. He will launch out for the Pole only when he is fully prepared. That should be in the month of May. In his flights between Fairbanks and Point Barrow Captain WILKINS has exhibited a capacity as a navigator and leader that proves he can cope with the hazards and difficulties of Arctic flying. Moreover, he is greatly daring with all his phlegm. As to all these ventures it should be remembered that the Arctic is inscrutable. No one can tell how it will award its prizes.

EXCESSES IN LABOR TROUBLES.

It is well that New Jersey Judges are to review the proceedings of New Jersey Sheriffs and policemen. Some of the actions of the latter in connection with the textile strike in Passaic and other towns seem to have been arbitrary and high-handed. The courts will decide whether the rights of individuals have been encroached upon, and whether the authority conferred by law has been exceeded or abused. New Jersey, like other States, has statutes providing severe penalties for sedition. The question is, of course, whether the police in an excess of zeal, or acting under too sweeping orders, have interpreted as seditious utterances which are not properly open to that charge. We all know that in a long-continued strike, where friction accumulates and exasperation mounts on both sides, excesses are likely to occur on the part both of the workers and of the authorities.

There appears to be no doubt that efforts have been made by agitators to make use of the textile strike for purposes beyond the immediate demands of the employes. The proof seems conclusive that a group of extreme radicals stands ready to attach itself to any industrial disturbance for the sake of interfering with the ordinary methods of the more steady-going labor unions, and of organizing an attack upon the whole capitalist system and our institutions of government. We had demonstrations in this city on Thursday of the lengths to which the "lunatic fringe," as the American Federation of Labor regards it, is ready to go simply with the object of making all the trouble possible and weakening the power of trade unions. Of course, such violence and recklessness on one side do not justify lawless measures of repression on the other. It is for the courts of justice to hold the scales even in such collisions, and there is every reason to believe that they will do so.

THE UNTIRED BUSINESS MAN.

Making a virtue of their necessity, independent art theatres of New York acknowledge a certain dependence upon finance. Four of them—the Provincetown Players, the Greenwich Village Theatre, the Actors' Theatre and the Stagers—have met and resolved upon "a clea..ig house." With "financing" activities" of this sort they confess themselves "unfamiliar"; but they confidently rely upon the aid of "business men who have "realized the importance of these the-"atres"—of which gentry, they declare, there has of late been a marked increase. To the tired business man, who is never so much so as when his wife takes him to experimental art productions, the proposed clearing house will be reminiscent of that fabled village, the inhabitants of which lived entirely by taking in one another's wash. Fie upon him! "He's "for a jig or a tale of bawdry, or he "sleeps; prithee, say on."

The fact is that modern progress in the theatre owes a debt to the business man which is already considerable and which may well be increased by the proposed financing activity. There was the New Theatre of fifteen years ago. It was a clearing house to the extent of two or three millions. But it was worth it. It taught the founders that not money nor social prestige nor yet financial experience as gained by the simple-minded banker is capable of producing a live institution of the arts. It taught them that those early advisers were right, though not business men, who warned them that such ventures rightly begin with a producing staff, a company of players and an audience, not with brick and mortar and a "diamond horseshoe" of fashionables—that the oyster makes the shell, in short, and not the shell the oyster. Thereafter those of the New Theatre founders who remained true to the faith looked for an institution already spawned and growing, and then set about feeding it. The Washington Square Players were their first discovery. During the war the organization went under, but for no fault of its own. It cleared later as the Theatre Guild and is now, as it seems, independent of the clearing house.

The four institutions that stand in the expectant attitude have done a lot of queer things, many of them failures artistically and financially. But, as the untired business man now knows, that is to be expected of experimental theatres. Nobody is likely to make the same mistake again. And always, however groping the execution, the impulse was artistic, the idea alluring. Sometimes there was a transcendent novelty, a success both artistic and financial. Such theatres are true laboratories of dramatic art, devoted to researches at once fascinating and fruitful. If they can get together on any sensible basis, they deserve to clear the untired business man considerably. Incidentally, they should be able to clear one another of a quantum of their unworkable ideas.

HIGH-PRESSURE HOSPITALITY.

Obviously, the 300 American hotel men now touring England enjoy limited opportunities for studying the British press. Otherwise they might be wondering why so much is being written about the need of speeding up the pace of life in Great Britain on the American model. On Thursday the visiting innkeepers did almost nothing except leave London in the morning, make a "complete" tour of Oxford, go on to Stratford-on-Avon, listen to an address of welcome from the Corporation, donate $1,000 to the rebuilding of the recently burned Shakespeare Theatre, catch a train back for London in time for a series of 7 o'clock gala dinners, and attend a reception at Lansdowne House at 10:30. The trustworthy correspondents report that the Americans are visibly cracking under the strain.

It is not inconceivable that British hosts are now engaged in repaying us for the classic Englishman in New York who proposes to run down to St. Louis before lunch. They may be showing that a tight little island, precisely because it is tight and crowded with things worth looking at, has its own advantages for providing American visitors with the hustle on which they presumably live. The fact is well established that no American at home ever works so hard at his business or at play as he does in seeing Europe. But on the whole the motive in the present schedule of entertainment seems to be not revenge but the warmest kind of hospitality, wherein the first duty is to give the guest what he is accustomed to. Americans abroad have become used to being offered ice-water twenty-four hours in the day at great inconvenience and expense. We can only pay tribute to the sense of British hospitality which has now set itself to run 300 American visitors off their feet. If they are tiring under the pace, it is easy to imagine what their British hosts are suffering, though the ordeal has been cheerfully assumed. Among the possible compensations is the opportunity now afforded to the British entertainers to visit Oxford and Stratford, by analogy with the native New Yorker who makes acquaintance with the Aquarium and the Statue of Liberty in the company of a cousin from Omaha.

The impression of English hotels and hotel methods carried away by the American visitors is bound to be of the very best. After a tour of Oxford and Stratford, and a dinner and a reception in London, within the space of sixteen hours, it must be a very poor London hotel mattress that will fail to induce the most perfect rest.

THE ORATORICAL CONTEST.

It has been gratifying to THE TIMES to record from day to day the progress of the Oratorical Contest on the Constitution, held under its auspices. The interest shown in it by the schools, including both teachers and pupils, has been keen and inspiring. After all the preliminary local contests, the climax was approached last night in the more than forty competitions, for City boroughs, counties, and districts, which were scheduled. Step by step the finals are approached, which will come next month and result in the selection of speakers to enter the grand national contest at Washington. The evidence at hand makes it clear that several elements have entered into the spirit and success with which the whole affair has been conducted. There is the natural love of public speaking, also, the stimulus of local school pride, the appeal of the prizes offered, and with it all, we believe, a desire to make a practical study of the Constitution, the supreme law of the land. To all who have cooperated in carrying on this contest—the school authorities, the students, the judges—THE TIMES extends its warm congratulations and thanks.

COAL RATES AND MARKETS.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has issued an order for reconsideration of the railway rates on hard and soft coal. During the strike the commission lowered rates on bituminous so as to make the supply available in markets ordinarily inaccessible to it. The emergency rates expire April 30, unless the railways voluntarily extend them pending reconsideration. The anthracite producers oppose extension. They naturally wish to free themselves from unwelcome competition. Soft coal producers desire to preserve their new market. Thus it appears that the competition between carriers becomes competition between markets and fuels. Before the era of regulation the railways made their rates in order to move goods, and prices became the regulator. The commission altered the relation of rates on hard and soft coal on no transportation theory at all, but in order to relieve the distress of coal consumers. It will be interesting to see how the commission will extricate itself from its dilemma when the arguments of the conflicting interests are balanced. The reduced rates are not unreasonable, as appears from the effort to extend them. They would serve to moderate the hard coal price monopoly permanently. As there is now no scarcity of coal, it would seem that the commission is charged rather with a duty toward the railways than toward either the producers or consumers of either sort of coal.

The incident shows that the regulation of railway rates is incidentally a regulation of markets and prices. The original idea of regulating railways was to punish their immoralities and prevent new ones. It is desirable to do that, and in fact it has pretty nearly been done. Regulation of railway rates can go no further in the direction of reduction, but there is opening a wider field in the regulation of rates by all common carriers, by either land or water, without subsidy to any and without prohibition of reasonable profit to any. The relation of rates between various competitive carriers is quite as important as the fixing of rates for any one class.

THE OPERA SEASON.

The Metropolitan Opera House closes its doors tonight after one of the longest seasons it has ever attempted. It has given a greater number of operas in these twenty-seven weeks than ever before, and probably more "novelties" than in any previous season. The company's reticence in obtruding its financial affairs upon public notice prevents any definite idea whether its prosperity has been as gratifying as its enterprise; but the size of the audiences at its frequent performances and the prices charged for tickets—we do not say they are too high—suggest a great income. The lavishness of the expense suggests also a great outgo. We can only hope that the balance is rewarding.

About the quality of the performances there has been, as always, difference of opinion. Whether the Metropolitan has maintained its world-wide reputation as a chief focus of operatic art is a question that all will not answer alike. Certainly the standard of singing to be heard there is not such as many people not yet tottering to the grave will recall from years gone by. There cannot be mustered, for example, a roster of singers capable of giving a true performance of MOZART'S great operas and others of periods that some will say are bygone. Of course the Metropolitan cannot be blamed for that. It may not succeed in enlisting the services of all the best singers in all styles of operatic art; but it gets many of them. The disheartening thing is that there are not enough to go around.

One result of this is to place an emphasis that never used to be put on excellence of ensemble, on "atmosphere," on suitability of mounting, on dramatic verity. Here, again, some will dispute that all has been done that could or should be, or that the highest intelligence has been given the freest play. But for what is vouchsafed us in this way we should be truly thankful, even though it cannot take the place of the supreme singing that for three hundred years has been one chief justification of opera.

The Metropolitan has essayed avoidance of an old charge, and has "done something" for American art and American singers this season. Perhaps it strained a little too hard in that direction, and without sufficient artistic justification. There is no need to recapitulate the exciting doings by which some American singers were greeted. As for the American composer, the Metropolitan skillfully avoided any intensification of the debate of the question of English singing by giving an American pantomime ballet, Mr. CARPENTER'S "Skyscrapers," instead of a vocalized opera. The result of all this rescue of Americanism has been discussed in our columns devoted to criticism and need not be gone over here. We fear that the general impression is that American art has not gained greatly.

The forty-eight operas and ballets, the eleven "novelties" and "revivals," produced on the great stage make a record that ought to give answer to the charge of monotony sometimes brought against the Metropolitan's repertory. The results have been more fortunate in interest and importance than in some previous seasons. On the whole, it appears that the Metropolitan is entitled to no small measure of self-gratulation; it is entitled to say that the organist is doing his best and that the public should not shoot.

TOPICS OF THE TMES.

Terrible, but Is It True?

No one is going to be frightened by the statements about a great plot to turn the United States into a theocracy, made by President CHURCH of the Carnegie Institute before the Senate committee. Yet he is a serious person, and there is more than a little evidence to prove at least that not a few people in the country will make the conspiracy succeed if they can.

They are already attaining their ends in part. Not to speak of prohibition, there is the campaign against the teaching of evolution. That has been prohibited in schools and colleges depending on public money by two States, and their example is likely to be followed in nobody knows how many more. The next logical step is to secure the passage of anti-evolution laws applying to all schools and colleges, and it is impossible to doubt that such is their ambition.

Mr. CHURCH mentioned tobacco as the next object of attack by those eager to enforce by means of law their private notions of virtue. Several States have tried to ban the cigarette, and though their success has not been brilliant anywhere, the determination is there. And every triumph of this sort leads to new efforts. In time, perhaps, there will be a war on hot biscuits, which many folk sincerely believe to be deleterious. Against cosmetics, bobbed hair and short skirts a censorious army already is talking fiercely, and it would resort to action the moment it saw a chance of winning. Articulate and noisy minorities can intimidate Legislatures with fatal ease, and they know it.

One striking and plausible statement made by Mr. CHURCH was to the effect that if the Roman Catholics were using the methods to which some Protestant organizations have resorted, the members of those organizations would be carrying torches and setting them to Catholic churches.

There Are Limits to Logic.

Against tobacco the zealots are not likely to go far, for though arguments against its use are not lacking, it has no such black record as alcohol. It does not "sharpen the parricidal axe" or deprive the orphan child of shoes to an extent measurable by the statistician.

Indeed, each triumph in the way of prohibitions by law renders the next triumph not easier, but more difficult. In time the saving grace of common sense makes itself felt, and then there is a return to such arguments as those which, before the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment, steadily were making the country more and more temperate. When a railroad told a man that if he drank he could not have a job, nobody complained, and no bootlegging class was created. Socially, then, drunkenness was going the way that dueling went—and snuff-taking. New things are different because use as well as abuse has been forbidden.

They Shouldn't Work for Rewards.

Commissioner MCLAUGHLIN has been earning commendation so steadily that it is with hesitation any adverse criticism is ventured with respect to anything he does. Yet it is at least debatable whether he is wise in changing the old rule that policemen must not take money rewards from those to whom, in the performance of regular police duty, they have chanced to render special service.

The capture of the Whittemore gang was certainly fine work, and the Jewelers' Association showed only proper appreciation when it raised and offered $1,300 as a reward for it. But in dividing the greater part of that sum among the men directly concerned in the capture, instead of putting it all into the Police Pension Fund, perhaps the Commissioner did something which in at least a small degree will lessen police activity in cases where no such reward is in sight.

It is highly creditable to our policemen that they do not demand or expect tips. That the Commissioner should be prompt to reward with promotion and other marks of distinction special displays of intelligence and courage is all right. But the policeman should be content with his salary—if he cannot get a higher one—and with no addition to it except glory.

Presumably Commissioner MCLAUGHLIN has a defense for what he did in the Whittemore case, or would not have done it, but, on further reflection, he may decide that he made a mistake.

He Turns Merit to Fault.

So often have the friends of college athletics put first in the list of their merits the training they give in "team-work," the sacrifice of self for the general good of the group, that it is startling to note that Dr. STEWART PATON, the eminent Princeton psychologist, makes that very quality a reason for finding fault with student sports as conducted. Constant coaching from the side lines, with few opportunities for playing the game in the student's own way, he says, produces not individual or original thinking but mass thinking, and Dr. PATON does not like that.

He did not deny that "team-work" produced results in the shape of victories that could be won in no other way, but perhaps he does not care much for victories so won. On the other hand, does not the student have to do some original thinking, or at least some thinking that for him is new, before he consents to subordinate personal glory to that of his team? He doesn't do that by the light of unassisted nature, for it is against instinct and natural impulse as they exist.

"Human Element" at Geneva.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Indispensable to a just and understanding criticism is sympathy. To an unsympathetic observer nothing is done right. Thus all that really happened at Geneva recently is that the device did not work like clockwork, but proved itself permeated with the human element. Anything amiss about that? What would the League antagonists have said if the Locarno compact had been rushed through without a dissenting voice? With glee they would have protested that the League is but a rubber stamp. The Locarno compact failed of ratification by reason of the manner in which it was handled. Certain mental reservations, and, even more so, certain after-thoughts, brought about its defeat. I am not sorry.

FRIENDS.

Into the woods I went, to find
The message of the Spring—
There's comfort in those dim, sweet paths,
In every growing thing,
And heart-break lessens when one hears
The wise trees whispering.

"Courage, my child!" The old pines crooned,
"To faith's kind hand hold fast!"
The oaks said: "Sorrow's sea is deep,
But haven's won at last!"
And tenderly the birches touched
My bent head as I passed.

The little voices of the woods
Breathed sympathy, the breeze
Dried tear-wet eyes—and oh, the calm
Communion of the trees!
Let human friends do all they will—
Can they give more than these?

AMENDING THE PROHIBITION LAW.

Powers of Congress and the States to Define Intoxicants—Origin of the Half of One Per Cent. Limit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with much interest the letter of Mr. Louis Marshall in your issue today. Not only was Mr. Marshall absolutely right in his opinion as to the powers of Congress, but the United States Supreme Court has gone much further than the opinion of Chief Justice White, in the case of "Ruppert versus Caffey," from which Mr. Marshall quoted. That case was one of the earlier cases which sustained the validity of both the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act.

Together with ex-Judge William M. K. Olcott, I had the pleasure of carrying to the United States Supreme Court the most recent case in which the powers of Congress were tested. I personally wrote the brief in the United States Supreme Court and argued the appeal in April, 1924, in the case of James Everard's Breweries versus Ralph A. Day, as Prohibition Director. This case and the companion case, Burke versus Blair, which was argued by Mr. Samuel W. Moore, were embodied in the unanimous opinion of the United States Supreme Court, rendered on June 9, 1924. These two cases attacked the constitutionality of the Willis-Campbell act, which is a supplement to the Volstead act. The Willis-Campbell act deprived physicians of the right to prescribe malt liquors as medicines, and also revoked the permits, which had previously allowed the breweries to make malt liquors in limited quantities for medicinal purposes.

Not only has the court reinforced the principle of the case to which Mr. Marshall referred, but Justice Sanford, who wrote for the court, went much further and said:

"It is clear that if the act is within the authority delegated to Congress by the Eighteenth Amendment, its validity is not impaired by reason of any power reserved to the States. The words 'concurrent power,' as used in the second section of the amendment, 'do not mean joint power, or require that legislation thereunder by Congress, to be effective, shall be approved or sanctioned by the several States or any of them'; and the power confided to Congress, while not exclusive, 'is in no wise dependent on or affected by action or inaction on the part of several States or any of them.'" (National Prohibition Cases, 253, U. S. 350, 387.) And if the act is within the power confided to Congress, the Tenth Amendment, by its very terms, has no application, since it only reserves to the States "power not delegated to the United States by the Constitution." See McCulloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 406; Lottery Case, 188 U. S. 321, 357.

There is no doubt that Mr. Marshall's opinion in regard to the proposed referendum is sound. All that can be gained by such a referendum is the expression of the popular desire as to repeal or modification of the Volstead act.

Whether it would be worth while to print ballots and go to the expense of an election for such purpose is questionable. No State has any power to define what is intoxicating; that power rests solely in Congress.

NATHAN BALLIN.
New York City, April 15, 1926.

If Congress Declines to Act.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I suggest very respectfully that you and Mr. Louis Marshall seem quite amusingly at cross-purposes in your little controversy on constitutional law?

Of course Congress cannot delegate to the States any power not sanctioned by the Constitution. But surely Mr. Marshall does not mean to assert that Congress is bound to do any defining of what is intoxicating and what is not, or of what alcoholic content shall be permitted.

Suppose Congress should repeal the precious Volstead act and pass another prohibiting and making a penal offense the sale, transportation &c., of any intoxicating thing containing alcohol? That is all Congress is required by due consideration of the Eighteenth Amendment to prohibit. It is all the amendment purports to prohibit. If Congress did that, then in every case the prosecution would have to prove, not that the fluid in question contained some trifling amount of alcohol, but that it could get an ordinary, full-grown human being drunk.

Now, does Mr. Marshall mean to say that if Congress did that the State of Kansas would not be at liberty to prohibit within its borders the stuff containing over one-half of 1 per centum?

Of course, while the amendment remains in force, no State can get a right, by Congressional permission or otherwise, to render that non-intoxicating in law which is intoxicating in fact, or, for that matter, while a valid Congressional definition is in force, to nullify within its borders that definition, either pursuant to Congressional permission or otherwise.

A Question for the Courts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you permit me to express my appreciation of the editorial published in yesterday's issue entitled "The 'Admitted Falsehood'?"

To my mind, Congress had no more right to define intoxicating liquor as anything containing over one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol than they had to declare that it meant candy or baked beans.

It may be within the power of a legislative body to define certain terms in an act which they are adopting and which has no relation to a constitutional provision, but the terms of a constitutional provision cannot be interpreted by anybody except the courts, and it is for the courts to determine what intoxicating liquor means in common usage and as defined in dictionaries.

OUTLOOK FOR SYRIA.

French Educational Work to Tell on the New Generation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I trust that your readers have read carefully the interview which you published in your number of the 13th inst. had with the Marquis Theodoli in reference to the troubles in Syria. One need not agree with him in everything that he said, but the difficulties which the French have to face there stand out in evil eminence. A little over a year ago I had the good fortune to pay another visit to Syria, and to see and to hear about all that was going on there. On account of the fine university that American interest entertains at Beirut, we of this country are concerned especially in that part of the East.

Let us not forget that Syria has always been a centre of controversy and a battlefield of passions. A number of ancient civilizations left their remains there; a number of religious organizations of far-away memory have not been extinguished. One need only mention the Maronite Church, the Greek Orthodox Church, the Jacobite Church, the Uniate-Catholic Church, the Latin Church, the Protestant Church, the Jews, the Mohammedans, the Ansariyeh, the Druses, the Yezidi Kurds, &c. When the French accepted the mandate they did so with scant consideration of the many varieties of life that are to be found there and of the internal disorganization that was prevalent. It was felt by the French to be a duty, and not a very inspiriting one, especially as the Turkish Government that had preceded them had made a point of intensifying this disorganization wherever it could in order the better to lay the foundation of its own power. Through the establishing of schools and the assisting of those that already existed, France is raising up a new generation which will make these divergent elements come to heel, which will produce a Syrian commonwealth that will shout the language of united patriotism and that will be a new factor in cutting in amid the racial and religious conflicts. Let us not forget that it takes time to do away with misguided passions.

Mussolini and the King.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your attention is invited to page 1,653 of the Congressional Record—Senate of this Congress (April 1, 1926)—wherein appears the statement made by Senator McKellar, of Tennessee which reads in part as follows:

"When a revolution in Italy came near to Rome the King capitulated and accepted three million and a quarter dollars per year from the Italian Government under Mr. Mussolini.

"The only difference between the regime in Italy and the regime in Russia was that in Russia the Communists killed the royal family and took charge of the Government, while in Italy this Communist, who had been a Communist all his life, took charge of the Government and did not kill the royal family. He simply bought them."

This is not the fact. The King of Italy has never accepted any bribe and it is highly improper for a Senator to make a statement in the Senate where the executive branch of the United States Government has no representative and can make no reply to a false statement concerning the ruler of a friendly nation and with whom our relations are most peaceful. The exact figures of the amount received by the King of Italy from his country and the allowances paid to other members of the royal family are on file with the Chief of Western European Division, Department of State, Washington, D. C., and an examination of the same will reveal that all the King receives is eleven million lire, which is in American dollars equivalent to $450,000 a year.

The speech of Representative Bloom in the House of Jan. 14, 1926, is a complete answer to Senator McKellar.

The Order of the Sons of Italy in America, Inc., Grand Lodge of the State of New York, which is a thoroughly American organization, vigorously protests against the conduct on the part of any legislator which tends to disrupt the good-will and international friendliness existing between two countries like the United States and Italy that have given so much toward world progress and stability.

Trees in Central Park.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Gallatin says that the holes for large new trees in Central Park are even wider than I thought necessary, but my main point was that there should be several feet of fresh rich soil under these trees. Today I watched the planting of a large tree. The hole was between two and three feet deep. About one foot of fresh soil was put into it, then the tree, which had a ball of soil 18 inches deep about its roots. This means that there are two and a half feet of good soil under the tree instead of the five feet which are needed. The roots will go through this in a couple of years and then strike the hardpan and sometimes rock beneath, and then in a storm the tree will blow down. W. J. Dean, the great English authority, says failing food supply, parasitic fungi and storms are the most potent agencies in killing trees. It would be interesting to know how many trees have died in Central Park in the last five years.

These newly planted trees will probably do quite well for two or three years, which is as long as they are usually guaranteed. After that there may be a new Park Commissioner who will say, as Mr. Gallatin very naturally has said about Mrs. Sage's rhododendrons, that he was not responsible. That this system will ultimately result in a desert seems probable. If any one thinks this view over-pessimistic, let him search for trees which have been in the park a few years and see if there are any in the southern half of it which look healthy and well nourished, like, for instance, the plane trees in front of the Frick house at Fifth Avenue and Seventieth Street. Of course, the park is a very difficult proposition. The soil is shallow and rocky and the natural plant food has been ignorantly burned, instead of being carefully preserved in pits and dug back into the soil every Autumn. The large paved roads cause unnatural dryness, and the feet of the children and boys devastating hardness. These are a few of the reasons why a great deal of fresh soil is needed where new trees are concerned.

Any one from New York looking at the trees and parkways of Boston must blush with shame—for in that fortunate city wisdom and foresight have been lavished on the parks, largely because of the help and inspiration of Professor Charles S. Sargent.

NEW MEN ARE ADDED TO HARVARD'S STAFF

A. E. Wells, New York Engineer, Is Named Professor of Metallurgy.

McILWAIN SUCCEEDS HART

Takes Eaton Chair of Government—Three Made Full Professors and Others Promoted.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, April 16.—Additions to the faculties of the Engineering, Law and Business Schools of Harvard University were included among the promotions and appointments announced today.

Arthur E. Wells, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1906 and for the past six years a consulting engineer and investigator, with headquarters in New York City, becomes professor of metallurgy.

Sayre MacNeil, Los Angeles lawyer, a graduate of the University of California in 1908 and of the Harvard Law School, with honors, in 1911, is appointed professor of law.

Harry B. Skilliman, who received his law degree from the University of Michigan in 1898 and who, since then, has practiced law in Indianapolis and Washington, served in the office of the United States Solicitor of Internal Revenue and done legal editorial work, is named associate professor of business research for five years.

Professor Wells has long been identified with mining and refining interests in Colorado and Utah, and has been an expert for the United States Bureau of Mines.

Three members of the Harvard Faculty are promoted to full professorships. Assistant Professor Edward S. King, a teacher at Harvard since 1897, becomes Phillips Professor of Astronomy.

George S. Forbes, Harvard, '02, who since graduation, except for two years as an associate in chemistry at Bryn Mawr, has taught in Harvard, is named Professor of Chemistry.

Emory L. Chaffee, M. I. T., '07, who obtained his master's and doctor's degrees at Harvard, is appointed Professor of Physics for three years. Professor Chaffee began his Harvard teaching in 1908.

Professor Percy W. Bridgman has been named Hollis professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, the second oldest endowed professorship in Harvard.

Professor Clifford H. Moore, Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences and Chairman of the Committee on Instruction, has been chosen Pope Professor of Latin.

Professor Charles H. McIlwain, Princeton graduate and teacher at Miami University, Princeton and Bowdoin before coming to Harvard in 1911, takes the place of Professor A. B. Hart, resigned, as Eaton Professor of the Science of Government.

Professor Francis H. Bohlen, who came from the University of Pennsylvania in 1925, is named Langdell Professor of Law.

Three associate professors are named as follows: Edward B. Hill, '94, Harvard teacher since 1908, Associate Professor of Music; William C. Graustein, '10, who became a Harvard instructor in 1913, Associate Professor of Mathematics, and Samuel R. Detwiler, graduate of Yale in 1914 and teacher there and at Peking Union Medical College, China, before coming to Harvard in 1922, Associate Professor of Zoology.

Five assistant professors are appointed for three years as follows: Gordon M. Fair, M. I. T. and Harvard, '16, Assistant Professor of Sanitary Engineering; Robert F. Field, Brown, '04, Assistant Professor of Applied Physics; Bremer W. Pond, Dartmouth, '07, Assistant Professor of Landscape Architecture; John C. Slater, Rochester, '20, Assistant Professor of Physics, and Melville C. Whipple, Assistant Professor of Sanitary Chemistry.

THAYER CONFERS DEGREES.

Dartmouth's Civil Engineering School Holds 54th Commencement.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., April 16.—The Thayer School of Civil Engineering, associated with Dartmouth College, held its fifty-fourth graduation exercises here this afternoon, when degrees were conferred by President Ernest Martin Hopkins on K. P. Coykendall of El Paso, Texas; J. O. Martin of West Lebanon, N. H.; H. A. Schroedel of New Britain, Conn., and C. T. Washburn of Northampton, Mass.

Present at the ceremonies were the following overseers of the school: Professor A. W. French of Worcester Polytechnic Institute; Otis E. Hovey, assistant chief engineer of the American Bridge Company; Edwin J. Morrison, President of the Hastings Pavement Company of New York City, and Arthur C. Tozzer, Vice President and director of the Turner Construction Company.

This evening the members of the graduating classes of the Tuck and Thayer Schools held their annual joint dinner. H. B. Thayer, '79, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, was the principal speaker. As the Tuck School graduation will not be held until next month, the members of the class of 1926 went as candidates for a degree instead of actual graduates.

SPELL IT "ESTHONIA" HERE.

Geographic Board Will Not Drop the "h," but British Board Does.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Although the Royal Geographic Society has adopted the spelling of Estonia in place of Esthonia, the United States Geographic Board has not followed suit. All official Government documents still spell it with an h, as also does the official diplomatic list issued by the State Department carrying names of members of the Diplomatic Corps here.

Edward A. Huse, foreman of the night proofroom of the Government Printing Office, a member of the United States Geographic Board, said tonight that body adheres to the form "Esthonia."

MAY CALL EXTRA SESSION.

Coolidge Will Follow Senate's Wish in Judge English's Case.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—President Coolidge has not followed the charges against Judge English sufficiently to reach a conclusion whether the Senate should proceed with the trial immediately or wait until Fall.

The President will be guided by the Senate. If that body should deem a special session necessary, the President is willing to act in accordance with that body's desires.

The impression is that the Senate will deter the trial until after the November election, and ask that the trial be set for a month before the next session of Congress in December.

CHIESA ART BRINGS $395,710 IN SALES

First Auction of Part III of the Collection Nets $43,860—$2,600 Is Highest Price.

PART II TOTALS $351,850

Western Buyer Gives $85,000 for a da Messina Painting of 15th Century—Sale Continues Today.

The first of two sessions of the sale of Part III of the Achillito Chiesa collection, held yesterday at the American Art Galleries, brought $43,860. The second session is today. Part II, consisting of Italian primitives and Renaissance paintings, was sold last evening and amounted to $351,850. The grand total was $395,710.

The art objects auctioned in the afternoon were Italian majolicas, French enamels, Gothic ivories, Renaissance textiles, lace and antique furniture. A sculptured pearwood "Madonna and Child," 56 inches tall, brought the afternoon's highest price, $2,600, being bid in by Ercole Canessa. He also bid in another pearwood Madonna for $2,300, a Deruta majolica plate with coat of arms for $1,800 and also paid $1,760 for a Deruta plate and $1,000 for an Urbino plate.

Mrs. C. Millhiser bid in a polychromed Florentine terra-cotta bust of a young girl for $1,150, and D. W. Walter paid $1,200 for a fifteenth century Botticelli-green cut velvet and needle-painted chasuble.

The big price of the evening was $65,000, paid by David W. Walters, a new buyer from the West, for the "Energetic Portrait of a Sicilian Patrician in Ecclesiastical Costume," by Antonella da Messina, a fifteenth century painter.

The bidding was rapid-fire, less than ten minutes sufficing for the sale, starting at $10,000.

Mr. Walters also bid in for $7,000 a "Madonna and Child" from the workshop of Fra Angelico.

The Kleinberger Galleries paid $14,500 for Van Der Weyden's "The Holy Family in a Landscape." The same buyer also bought the Crespi Madonna, half-length in profile, holding a laughing Christ Child, attributed to Michelangelo Buonarroti, for $5,500. The same buyer paid $5,600 for "Departure of Three Warriors" of the Florentine school. The decorations and costumes are those about the middle of the fifteenth century in Florence. They paid the same price for "A Triumph" of the same school.

Ercole Canessa made numerous purchases and will probably take many of them back to Italy. For Lorenzetti's "Crucifixion," with a gold background of Bulino work, he paid $5,600. For a "Madonna and Child," school of Giotto, he paid $8,000. For da Panicale's "Madonna and Child" he paid $6,000, and for del Conti's "Portrait of a Man" Mr. Canessa paid $6,500. For Lorenzetti's triptych, "Madonna, Child and Saints," Mr. Canessa paid $26,000. He also purchased Gaddi's panel with life-size Madonna and Child for $16,000.

W. R. Hearst bought Lorenzo da Sen Severino's triptych, "Virgin and Child," for $3,000; "Madonna and Child," Florentine school, at $3,600, and Desco da Parto's "Solomon's Judgment," for $8,000.

Clapp & Graham bid in a fifteenth century polyptych from the Vivarini workshop, with a full-length "Madonna," for $6,300. They also paid $3,000 for Del Sellaio's "Madonna and Child." William Wendle paid $5,000 each for two Filippino Lippi's two paintings of the "Legend of Perseus." Scott & Fowles paid $8,000 for Correggio's "Mater Amabilis." Ferdinand Howald bid in Fungai's "Madonna and Child" for $3,700. P. W. French & Co. paid $3,500 for "A Triumph," of the Florentine school, and also paid $3,500 for another of the same title.

SIBERIA TO GET SLEEPERS.

Soviet Signs Contract With the International Car Company.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 16.—The International Sleeping Car Company has signed a convention with the Soviet Government restoring its concession to run fast, comfortable trains over the Trans-Siberian Railroad.

This concession was interrupted by the outbreak of the war and will become operative again early this Summer.

As the Russian railroads have a wider gauge than those of the rest of Europe, special dining and sleeping cars have to be used. There are still a number of these cars in Russia, where they will be repaired and put into service again.

Through service will be arranged to the Russian border by the prolongation of the north express from Paris to Berlin and from the border to Vladivostok.

M'ADOO TO BE HERE MONTH.

Former Secretary of Treasury Leases Park Av. Apartment.

William Gibbs McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, has leased an apartment at 270 Park Avenue, which he will occupy during a stay of about one month here, it was learned yesterday.

The former Cabinet member, who has been living in Los Angeles, leased the apartment through Douglas L. Elliman & Company. Mr. McAdoo's visit, it was understood, would not be connected with politics.

LONDON, April 16.—The manuscript of Thomas Hardy's novel, "A Pair of Blue Eyes," brought £1,500 today at Hodgson's.

JARDINE ASKS CARE IN USE OF TIMBER

Tells Lumber Association That Forest Depletion Causes a Huge Annual Loss.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 16.—Forest depletion is causing a tremendous annual loss and presents a problem the solution of which is of vital interest to the American people, according to Secretary of Agriculture W. M. Jardine, who addressed the annual convention of the National American Wholesale Lumber Association at the Ambassador Hotel here this evening.

Secretary and Mrs. Jardine will remain in the resort over the week-end, returning to Washington Sunday night.

"The Department of Agriculture," said the Secretary, "is especially interested in bringing about a more careful use of the timber we have and the growing of new forests to replace the old."

Secretary Jardine urged growing of timber as a crop on cut-over lands throughout the country and acquisition of such lands and forestation by the States.

"The Government," he said, "has so far bought 2,690,000 acres of forest land, and during the next ten years, according to present plans, hopes to buy 500,000 acres in the Northeast, 3,000,000 acres in the Appalachians, 2,500,000 acres in the South, and 2,500,000 acres in the lake States. The McNary-Woodruff bill, now pending in Congress, will, if passed, make some such program possible."

Secretary Jardine declared that in addition to public forestry, large-scale industrial forestry is a "feasible and worth-while undertaking which will furnish an attractive investment for American capital."

The convention unanimously endorsed and decided to share in the $1,000,000 advertising campaign of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association to promote lumber sales and the proper use of the product. A committee to formulate plans for such advertising will be named soon.

ROYAL RIGHTS UPHELD BY GERMAN CABINET

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 16.—The Luther Cabinet took the stand this afternoon that the private property rights of the former ruling families must be held inviolate and that under no circumstances must former royalty be deprived of all their wealth.

This was the compromise submitted by the People's Party, which is one in the Government coalition, and was based on the ground that the ex-royalties are now ordinary citizens and therefore are entitled to the same protection as that given to others. Whether they acquired this property through their being rulers of the country or through private purchases, the People's Party does not believe that a distinction should be made.

The Democratic Party, which is another in the coalition, is opposed to this attitude and, joined with the Socialists and Communists, can prevent its prevailing, especially since Minister of Justice Marx gave the ruling that the creation of a special court for dealing with the Prince's affairs requires an amendment to the Constitution and, therefore, requires a two-thirds vote in the Reichstag.

Meanwhile the Radicals are clamoring for the referendum which the Reichstag was forced to grant, since the recent preliminary vote on this issue showed 12,000,000 people favored the expropriation of ex-royal property and only 4,000,000 were necessary to compel the Reichstag to put the issue to a referendum.

In Nationalist quarters satisfaction is expressed over the Cabinet's action, which is lauded as a tendency of the Cabinet to lean toward the political right, though in its foreign policies the Cabinet still retains the support of the Socialists.

BROWNING'S BRIDE VISITS HIGH SCHOOL

Arranges to Resume Her Studies —Shops While He Is in Court in Real Estate Suit.

Mrs. Frances Heenan Browning, the fifteen-year-old bride of Edward E. Browning, made arrangements yesterday to complete her schooling. She visited the Textile High School, where she was a student at the time of her marriage, and asked that her school credits be transferred to the Haldane School at Cold Spring, N. Y.

She then resumed her tour of the shops. While she was buying shoes, hats, coats and whatnot, her husband was again in the Seventh District Municipal Court at 320 West 125th Street. He is suing Nathan Wein of Arverne, L. I., for $6,500 which, he alleges, is due as rentals. Wein's defense was that he surrendered leases on the property in question several months ago and that the broker accepted the return.

Wein gave excerpts of Browning's philosophy of real estate success and Justice Abram Ellenbogen had difficulty keeping the laughter from halting the proceedings. Browning was called to the stand but did not testify, as the court adjourned the session.

Browning and his bride drew crowds that the police found hard to handle wherever they went. Last night they returned to the Gramatan Hotel, Bronxville.

MRS. CAPERTON A BRIDE.

Peggy Browne of Stage and Screen Wed to Lieut. Berner, U. S. N.

Mrs. Margaret Caperton, known on the stage and screen as Peggy Browne, was married to Lieutenant Warren Kenneth Berner, U. S. N., in Coronado, Cal., on April 5, it was learned yesterday. Mrs. Berner is the former wife of Lieutenant Caperton of the Marine Corps, to whom she was married during the war. They were divorced in Los Angeles in 1924.

As Peggy Browne, Mrs. Berner made her début as an actress in Ziegfeld's "Midnight Frolic" in 1919, and later played in several Broadway productions before entering the motion picture field. Lieutenant Berner was graduated in 1922 from the Naval Academy, and is now attached to the U. S. S. Nevada at San Pedro, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Berner have taken a residence at 210 Temple Street, Long Beach, Cal.

ART IN ASTOR HOME TO BE SOLD TUESDAY

BUILDING SOON TO BE RAZED

109 Paintings Will Be Auctioned as Well as House Furnishings, Statuary and Ornaments.

A private view of the paintings and furnishings of the John Jacob Astor residence at 840 Fifth Avenue was held yesterday by the American Art Association, which will conduct an auction sale of the art of the socially historic mansion on the premises for two days, beginning next Tuesday.

The house will be open for a free public exhibition tomorrow from 2 to 5 o'clock, and all day Monday. Admission to both the exhibition and auction sale will be by card only, which may be obtained from the offices of the association, 30 East Fifty-seventh Street.

Although Vincent Astor, who consigned the contents of the house to the association for sale, selected a portion of the furnishings for his new home in East Eightieth Street, the view yesterday disclosed a notable array of furnishings and art collected by the Astor family over a long period of time. The objects of art are exhibited practically in the same manner as throughout the occupancy of their owners since 1910, when the house was practically reconstructed.

The residence, architecturally a chateau of the time of Francis I, and soon to be razed like the two famous Vanderbilt houses, is known as one of the most imposing mansions of New York. The interior appeared yesterday to have been set for one of the social functions for which the house had long been famous.

Entering the superb inner bronze gates, which are to be sold, the visitor finds the great reception hall ornamented with marble statuary of extreme beauty and lifelike proportions, and the walls paneled with canvases after Brussels cartoons.

Immediately facing the entrance, beyond the sculptured Caen stone fireplace, is the picture gallery, with its elaborately painted and gilded ceiling, once the scene of many brilliant dances, containing the hundred and more paintings to be offered.

These are mainly of the nineteenth century French school, embracing works by Corot, Diaz, van Marcke, Detaille, Bouguereau, Lefebvre, Bernelle-Bellecour and Troyon.

The six superb brussels tapestries to be sold are of the seventeenth century and include "The Visit of Cyrus to the Defeated Croesus," and "The Tribute of the King to Cyrus," by Jacob van Zeunen, a "Caesar in Gaul," by Garaert van der Streecken, and "The Flight of Pompey," by Guillaume van Leedfael, son of the famous weaver, Jan van Leedfael.

The removable fittings of the house, and the paneling, comprising carved woodwork, decorative canvases, wall sconces, and the like, form an important feature of the sale.

Wednesday afternoon will be devoted entirely to the sale of the paintings, of which there are 109.

NEW YORK CENTRAL HAS 100TH ANNIVERSARY

Observance Today Will Include a Pageant, Unveiling of Tablets and a Dinner.

The 100th anniversary of the founding of the New York Central will be observed today with ceremonies on the lines of the railroad in this city, Albany and Schenectady. The centennial is that of the granting by the New York State Legislature of a charter to the Mohawk & Hudson Railroad Company, permitting the construction of a steam railroad between the Mohawk and Hudson Rivers, with terminals in Albany and Schenectady.

The exercises today will include a trip by two special trains carrying prominent railroad officials and their guests from this city to Albany and Schenectady, the unveiling of bronze tablets in the stations of those cities, a pageant of various types of railroad trains which will move over the route from Albany to Schenectady and a dinner tonight at the Waldorf.

The speakers at the dinner will include Patrick E. Crowley, President of the New York Central Lines; former United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew, who has been in the service of the New York Central for sixty years, thirteen years as President and twenty-seven years Chairman of the board; Bishop Manning, William A. Prendergast, Chairman of the Public Service Commission; Dr. Arthur T. Hadley, President Emeritus of Yale, and Senator Copeland.

SAYS FIRE PIPE WAS RUSTED

R. G. Dun Executive Explains Faulty Apparatus That Hampered Firemen.

Following the criticism made by Fire Chief John Kenion at the five alarm fire in lower Broadway on Thursday night that his men had been hampered by faulty fire-fighting apparatus in the R. G. Dun Building, adjoining the burning structure, an executive of the R. G. Dun Company said yesterday that the trouble had been due to a corroded valve in a standpipe in the street.

He said that only a few window casings in the Dun Building had been damaged by the heat and that the elevators which were temporarily put out of commission were in working order yesterday.

Peter Spence, Chief of the Fire Prevention Bureau, said that owners of buildings were responsible for standpipes within their walls and if his investigation showed that the standpipes in the Dun Building had been defective the company would be held responsible.

Bid for $30,000,000 Loan Approved.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, April 16 (AP).—Parliament sanctioned today the 91.53 bid made by Hallgarten & Co., New York bankers, for a $30,000,000 loan to the Uruguayan Government. The issue will bear 6 per cent. interest and may be raised by an additional loan of $15,000,000 if the necessity should arise.

JOHN D. E. TRASK DIES; AUTHORITY ON ART

Philadelphia Expedition Director of Fine Arts a Victim of Pneumonia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—John D. E. Trask, Director of Fine Arts for the Sesquicentennial Exposition and a former Director of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, died today of pneumonia in Hahnemann Hospital after a week's illness. His age was 55.

Mr. Trask first came here in 1894 and served as Assistant Secretary of the Academy until 1905, when he became Secretary. In 1910 he was United States Commissioner General to the International Fine Arts Expositions in Buenos Aires, Argentina and Santiago, Chile. Two years later he resigned from the Academy to serve as Director of Fine Arts for the Panama-Pacific Exposition of 1915 in San Francisco.

As Director of Fine Arts for the Sesquicentennial Mr. Trask made the plans for the Palace of Art, which is now virtually completed. His last post before coming here recently was as Director of the Milwaukee Art Institute.

He was a member of the Pennsylvania Academy, the T-Square Club and the Art Club of this city.

Mr. Trask was born in Brooklyn and educated at St. Austin's School, New Brighton, S. I. He had engaged in newspaper work and magazine writing here before going to the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

Byron H. Punnett.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 16 (AP).—Byron H. Punnett, for years one of the leading manufacturers of safes in this country and an internationally known bicycle rider of other days, died at his home here this afternoon, aged 68 years.

Born in this city, he became an expert bicycle rider shortly after leaving school and toured England and Continental Europe as well as this country, giving exhibitions of his prowess. Later he formed the Punnett Bicycle Company. He then became interested in combination locks and established the Punnett Safe Company.

James H. Farrell.

James Henry Farrell, old-time Hudson River steamboat man, died on Thursday at Bellevue Hospital. His funeral will be held from the Quinn Funeral Home, 146 Broadway, Astoria, at 10 A. M. today. He was in his seventy-fourth year. He was a fireman for years on boats that made the run between New York and Albany. Later he became a sea-going tug engineer, and was at his post until Wednesday, when he was stricken with pleurisy.

Funeral of Robert Clinton Geer.

Funeral services for Robert Clinton Geer who died here on Thursday were held at Sharon, Conn., yesterday afternoon. Mr. Geer had been for many years active in Wall Street and continued his business interest until a few months ago when ill health made it necessary for him to stop. He was 86 years old and was born in Goshen, Conn.

Mrs. Alla M. Lewis.

BINGER HERMANN DEAD.

Ex-Congressman's Trial in Land Office Inquiry Is Recalled.

ROSEBURG, Ore., April 16 (AP).—Binger Hermann, 83, who for sixteen years represented Oregon in the lower house of Congress and was Commissioner of the United States General Land Office at Washington during the McKinley Administration, died here yesterday. His death recalled old-time land fraud cases.

An investigation of land entries ordered by Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock in 1902 developed into a political fight which involved United States Senators and members of Congress of Oregon and other Western States. Hermann, who had resigned as Commissioner and had been elected to Congress was tried in Washington on a charge of destroying letter-press books while Commissioner and was acquitted.

Mr. Hermann was born in Maryland in 1843 and educated in the district schools of Allegheny County and in Independent Academy, near Baltimore, later Irving College. After going to Oregon as a youth of 16, he became a school teacher. Before serving in the lower house at Washington he had served in the lower house of Oregon.

Sheriff Takes "The Barnyard" From W. J. Cooke as Phillips Gallery Sues to Recover It.

VANISHED IN 1920, IS CHARGE

Mystery over the ownership of the painting "the Barnyard," a well-known work of Albert Pinkham Ryder, noted American artist who died in 1917, developed yesterday when the painting was seized by Deputy Sheriff Coakley while it was in the possession of Wilbur J. Cooke, a private collector, living in the Dakota, at 1 West Seventy-second Street, in a suit by the Phillips Memorial Gallery of Washington, D. C.

The canvas, which is valued by the Phillips Gallery at $10,000, is about ten inches by twelve inches, and was taken to the Sheriff's office in the protective casing in which it was found. Soon afterward Beals & Nicholson of 1 Madison Avenue, attorneys for Mr. Cooke, filed a bond of twice the asserted value of the work, and as a result the painting will be returned to Mr. Cooke, to be held by him until the trial of the action to determine the ownership. Meanwhile, the Sheriff in returning the painting will be protected by the bond.

The petition in the replevin suit of the gallery alleges that the work was purchased by Duncan Phillips in 1919 and that the Phillips Gallery had the picture in its possession until November, 1920. It is alleged that the painting was removed from the gallery then, and that the gallery had no knowledge of where it was until April 9 last.

While it was asserted yesterday in behalf of Mr. Cooke that the painting had been owned by him since 1911, and that there was a "long story" connected with it, inquirers for the details were referred to Mr. Cooke. At the Dakota, where he has a private gallery of some dimensions, it was said he had gone out of the State yesterday afternoon.

SAYS PUBLISHERS PAY HIGH CHARGE IN MAILS

Hanson Tells Committee of Congress That Trucks Are Cheaper for Newspapers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Elisha Hanson, representative of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, told the joint committee of Congress considering postal rates, today, that on certain classes of business the Postoffice Department charges publishers more than ten times the cost of the service rendered.

He produced figures tending to show that newspapers can be transported by trucks at rates substantially below those exacted for the carriage of the mails, and he instanced one case where a newspaper used a truck on a sixty-mile haul at a saving of $213 per week. The cost of the truck was $70, whereas transport of the same volume of newspapers by mail over the same distance would have cost $283.

Commenting on criticisms made by Joseph Stewart, assistant to the Postmaster General, that the trouble with many newspapers is that they do not want all of the facilities of the department in distributing circulation, Mr. Hanson asserted that the publishers should not be compelled to pay for something they do not receive.

Mr. Hanson denied a statement made by Mr. Stewart that railroad service is cheaper than motor trucks. He discussed rates which he thought would be fair to the publisher and at the same time yield a profit to the Post-office Department.

He stated that on a rate of 30 cents per 100 pounds for the fifty miles in the first zone, the department would receive $4.50 from the publisher for the 3-foot unit and it would pay to the railroad $1.87½, thus making a profit of $2.62½ on every unit of space filled.

In the second zone, if Mr. Hanson's figures were used, the department would receive $6 from the publisher and pay to the railroads $4.62½. He thought that in view of the fact that 85 per cent. of newspaper circulation moves within the first and second zones, the profit would justify the Government in adopting such rates.

LAMPOON CHAFFS MOVIES.

Editors and Janitors Pictured as Stars in Harvard Burlesque Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, April 16.—The motion picture industry received the attention of the editors of the Harvard Lampoon today with an issue of a "Photoplay" number, a burlesque on the motion picture magazine by that name.

The Lampoon's effort closely resembled the magazine itself. Five hundred copies were sold in less than an hour, and 1,000 more were distributed to news dealers tonight.

The photographs, which take up considerable space, were for the most part those of the editors themselves dressed in costumes. "Bob," The Lampoon caretaker, appears dressed in Hindu fashion, and is designated as "George Artless." A janitor of The Crimson also posed for a photograph, a burlesque on a well-known picture star.

To Make These Little Top Cornerpieces Compliment Ourselves

is farthest from our intention. Indeed, to be frank about it, the writer would regard it as an impertinence upon the public if such were a fact.

Plainly speaking, while there may be a touch of selfishness in everything that most of us do, in this particular matter of store making and keeping the theory and practice observed here is off the beaten track, and, though original with ourselves, can be copied and imitated anywhere and everywhere.

If what we are doing entitles us to distinction, it is because we are doing something more than the commonplace. Copyists of Raphael or Murillo were often disappointed in their efforts because they only copied what their eyes saw, and could not catch the spirit of the master painter.

It is not difficult to see figures and imitate colors of a picture, but the other something in the painting is often beyond analysis or possibility of transfer.

Crocheted Straw Hats, $9.85

FOR THE $12.50 TO $16.50 GRADE

An event of tremendous importance and scope, for Paris has inspired every one of them and there are no less than twenty-five models in the collection.

The smart small hat is many, many interpretations from the reproductions of Reboux's Casquette—we place it first, for hats of the beret genre outnumber all other hats in Paris—to hats with high square crowns, the type Madame Agnes creates and wears so well. Then, too, there are the hats with the wider brims which become more and more important as the warmer days draw near.

The straw—imported from Italy—is of a very fine quality and as light as a feather. Green, beige, gray, bois de rose, red, brown, navy blue and black. Second Floor, Old Building

GIRLS VIE WITH BOYS IN ORATORY CONTEST

They Win Seven of Fifteen Places in Five Boroughs of the City.

DIVIDE MANHATTAN HONORS

Carry Off Most Places in the Brooklyn Events, but Bronx Goes to Male Sex.

FORTY COMPETITIONS HELD

Westchester, Long Island, Other Parts of State and New Jersey Report Keen Interest.

High school girls ran a close race with the boys in the more than forty borough, county and district contests held yesterday afternoon and last night throughout New York City, New York State and New Jersey in connection with the National Oratorical Contest on the Constitution conducted by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

They divided honors in Manhattan, carried Brooklyn and lost in the Bronx, Queens and Richmond. Of fifteen places in competition in the five boroughs, the girls captured seven. In the other contests at large they fully maintained their pace as the returns continued to come in at a late hour last night.

Most of the contests were well attended, with the supporting students' delegations from the participating schools contributing their cheers to enliven the proceedings. Music also formed a conspicuous part in the programs, and Miss Eva L. Bennett of Julia Richman High School and Paul Martin, organist, who is a member of the musical faculty of Boys' High School, Brooklyn, were responsible for much of the success of this feature at the Manhattan and Brooklyn contests.

Leading Men as Judges.

The judges throughout formed a notable background for the enterprise last night, and prominent figures from the bench and bar, church and educational institutions generously contributed their time to help in the general purpose of civic betterment. One of the dramatic features of some of the larger city contests was unconsciously supplied through their agency.

It was noticeable that some of the more proficient orators held these elders without a break throughout their ten-minute discourses, and frequent comment was made afterward that they succeeded better than they knew in gaining and keeping the interest of such figures. Indeed, the look upon some of the judges' faces appeared to express surprise at their own interest in the efforts of the youthful oratorical aspirants.

WINS ORATORICAL PRIZE.

Harold Woodruff, 17 years old, a pupil of Florida High School in the Poughkeepsie district, won first prize—a year's scholarship at Columbia University—last night in the Interscholastic Speaking Contest at Earl Hall, Columbia, with an address on "The Farm Question."

Louis J. Wolner, 16, of the Albany High School won second prize—$50—with "Shall We Recognize Soviet Russia?" and John J. Ferman, 17, of Canisius High School, Albany, won third prize—$25—with "The Enforcement of Law."

The contest was held under the auspices of Columbia alumni to foster public speaking in the secondary schools. Professor William S. Weld presided, and the judges were Robert Cresswell of The New York Tribune, Hugh O'Donnell of THE NEW YORK TIMES and S. Archibald Smith, headmaster of Friends' Academy.

SAYS WESTCHESTER CAN PAY FOR PARKS

Macy Tells Commerce Chamber County's Present Debt Is Far Within Limit.

V. Everit Macy, President of the Westchest County Park Commission, addressing the Westchester Chamber of Commerce at its annual dinner at the Biltmore last night, said that the mere knowledge that extensive parks and parkways were being planned by the Park Commission had largely contributed to the $200,000,000 increase in real estate values in the county in the last three years.

Progress, parks and planning of the county were the principal topics discussed at the dinner. Mr. Macy praised the Board of Supervisors for approving the plans and appropriating millions of dollars for the proposed parks and parkways.

"The fact that every one realizes the necessity of these parkways and the improved conditions that will result," he said, "is shown by the rapid and phenomenal rise in the value of land throughout the county, ranging from 100 to 700 per cent. If in some miraculous way the commission could have acquired all the necessary land in one day, the county could have saved at least $5,000,000.

"In fact, to be frank, the commission is now seriously studying how the proposed parkways can be cut down in width, the parks reduced in size, and may even be forced into abandoning certain projects in order to keep within the $27,000,000 appropriated by the Board of Supervisors for the purchase of land.

"The commission is fully conscious, however, that what rights-of-way are not obtained now never will be, for the future costs will be unbearable. In all probability the land for the parkways will cost five times as much as the land purchased for parks, but they are essential to every day life and growth of the county.

"While the statutory debt limit is 10 per cent. of assessed values, the existing debt is 2.6 per cent. It would seem, therefore, that Westchester can well afford these expenditures so necessary for its future development."

Representative Ogden L. Mills, reviewing the accomplishments of Congress, told how local States, counties and municipalities had built up an enormous tax burden while Congress was getting the Federal tax burden into manageable proportions. He urged insistence upon the same kind of economy at home that the Federal Government was providing.

Colonel Franklin Q. Brown, President of the Chamber of Commerce, presided.

SUES CHANEY AND TELLEGEN

Government Alleges Back Income Tax Payments Are Due.

LOS ANGELES, April 16 (AP).—Lon Chaney, motion picture actor, and Lou Tellegen, film and stage star, were made defendants in two tax lien actions by the United States Revenue Department yesterday.

Taxes alleged to be due on Chaney's 1920 income amounting to $1,600 are sought. In Tellegen's case one action asks $3,072 on his 1919 income and the second $2,184 on his 1923 income.

Wants Policemen to Be Quicker on Trigger; Judge Urges Carrying Pistols in Plain Sight

County Judge George W. Martin, Chairman of the Kings County Board of Judges, proposed yesterday that policemen carry their pistols outside their uniforms. He said this would deter criminals and would give policemen a better chance in battles with gunmen. As an example of the handicap under which policemen work, he cited the shooting of four policemen, one fatally, by Paul R. Hilton, the Queens County radio burglar, who has just been caught.

"With their revolvers concealed in their back pockets, out of easy reach, the policemen are at a great disadvantage in meeting the gun-toting bandit and burglar," Judge Martin said. "The gun-carrying criminal has his weapon ready at hand. Either it is concealed in his sleeve, ready to be drawn quickly into action, or it is right in his grasp in his side pocket. With the criminal there is no lost motion in bringing his revolver into play.

"Before the police officer can bring his pistol into play the burglar can riddle him with bullets or make a safe getaway. The radio burglar in Queens would have been dropped in his tracks had pursuing officers had their guns at hand instead of having to fumble around for them in a back pocket.

"Moreover, the sight of police officers openly armed, with a weapon ready at hand, would, I am satisfied, serve to deter some of these bandits prowling about looking for victims. Recently on Fifth Avenue we had three young bandits who tried to shoot their way out of the grasp of three policemen. Just the mercy of God saved those officers, who felt two rounds of bullets whiz past their heads before they could bring their own weapons into play.

"Give the policeman at least an equal chance with the gunman in his fight for life entered into in the performance of his duty."

Tennis Player, Member of Old New York Family, Drops From Hotel Rockefeller Window.

MOTHER IN ADJOINING ROOM

He Was Ill Several Months and Had Nervous Break-Down—Faced Prospect of Going to Hospital.

A. Leonard Beekman, a member of the old New York family of that name, died yesterday in a plunge from a window on the eleventh floor of the Hotel Rockefeller, 33 West Fifty-first Street. He had been ill for several months and for the last three days his condition had been worse.

Mr. Beekman came to the hotel shortly before Easter. He was suffering from a servere nervous breakdown. He had been living in Philadelphia, at the Princeton Club, to be near his business, Paul & Beekman, metal stampers, at 1,734 North Fifth Street, Philadelphia. When his illness became aggravated he moved to the hotel so as to be nearer his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Beekman, whose home is in Bronxville.

When his condition gave alarm his mother took a suite at the hotel and a classmate at Princeton in 1918, A. B. Carver of Yonkers, for the last two nights had been sitting at the patient's bedside.

Early yesterday morning Mrs. Beekman came to her son's rooms to inquire as to his condition. He appeared to be about the same and while Mrs. Beekman and Mr. Carver were conversing, the sick man leaped from the bed and ran into the bathroom. He locked the door. A second later there came a scream. He had forced his way through the narrow window in the bathroom and either fell or leaped.

The plunging form, turning and twisting, struck several window ledges as it sped down the shaft to land on the glass roof of the mezzanine. The force cracked the glass. Mrs. Beekman threw open a window in her son's suite and saw his form lying eleven stories below. She ran to inform her husband, who had called at the hotel to ask how his son felt.

Meantime the telephone operator at the Rockefeller, Miss Irene Auken, whose switchboard is located under the mezzanine roof, was startled by the fall and informed the management. Bellboys found the body. A surgeon from Reception Hospital pronounced Beekman dead.

Beekman, who was 30 years old, had been under treatment by Dr. C. J. D'Alton of 123 East Fifty-third Street. At 9 o'clock yesterday morning he was to have been examined by Dr. D'Alton to determine whether it would be necessary for him to go to a hospital or to a sanitarium. Conscious of the dreary outlook before him, Beekman had been increasingly despondent lately.

The funeral will be at 2 P. M. tomorrow from the home of an uncle, C. Griffith Young, at 981 Madison Avenue. Beekman participated in many tennis tournaments up to 1924 and was ranked ninth in 1921 and thirteenth in 1922 in the metropolitan ratings. He first showed promise on the courts in 1914 when he captured the interscholastic tennis championship and entered Princeton. In 1923 he was ranked seventh in the Middle States Division. He has played little during the last two years.

ILLINOIS POWER'S NET UP.

Year's Earnings, $3,068,589, Equal to $2.63 on Common.

An increase of $385,250 in net income for 1925 over that for 1924 is reported by the Illinois Power and Light Corporation. The earnings last year after depreciation, interest and Federal taxes were $3,068,589, equivalent, after preferred dividends of the corporation and subsidiaries, to $2.63 a share earned on 400,000 shares of no par common stock. The income in 1924 was $2,633,339, or $2.34 a share.

Gross income last year totaled $29,284,998, while in the previous year it was $29,184,288, both items including other income. Expenses, taxes, depreciation, interest, &c., in 1925 were $26,216,409, against $26,650,949. Preferred dividends of the corporation and subsidiaries and common dividends totaled last year $2,812,668, while in 1924 they were $2,333,721. Surplus in 1925 was $255,901, against $199,618 in the year before.

Belgian Minister's Home Fired Upon.

GHENT, Belgium, April 16 (AP).—An unknown person fired three revolver shots today at the door of the home of Minister of Railways Edouard Anseele, who is in Italy, and then threw the head of a cannon shell into one of the windows. The shell failed to explode. No one was hurt. The police believe the shooter is mentally unbalanced.

Magnus Johnson Seeks Governorship

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 16 (AP).—Magnus Johnson, former United States Senator, filed today for the Farmer-Labor Gubernatorial nomination in the June primaries. He will be opposed by Tom Davis, Minneapolis lawyer.

HILTON ARRAIGNED; VICTIMS FILL COURT

WEEK'S STAY IS GRANTED

Evidence Goes to Grand Jury Next Tuesday—Alleged Fence In Jail In Default of High Bail.

The court room in Jamaica was heavily guarded yesterday when Paul E. Hilton, the radio burglar, who killed one policeman and shot three others in the Woodhaven sections of Queens in recent burglaries, was arraigned before Magistrate James J. Conway.

Twelve uniformed policemen accompanied the prisoner from the Queens County Jail in Long Island City to the Jamaica court room, and later took him back to the cell. Two policemen stood at each side when he was arraigned before the bar. Others were stationed at every door and window of the room, while detectives were scattered among the spectators in the crowded court room. Many persons whose homes had been robbed by the radio burglar were present. It was feared that Hilton might try to make a break or that gunmen might attempt to free him.

Appearing pale and haggard, the burglar was not represented by counsel. Assistant District Attorney Pasta requested an adjournment of one week so that the prisoner might try to get counsel. If he fails the Court will assign a lawyer to defend him. Hilton has no money, but friends may provide funds for his defense. When Magistrate Conway read the charge, accusing Hilton of homicide in shooting Patrolman Arthur Kenny on March 25 resulting in a wound which caused Kenny's death on April 6, and asked the prisoner if he had anything to say, Hilton replied:

"No, your Honor."

Asked if the adjournment for one week was satisfactory to him, the prisoner said:

"Certainly, Your Honor."

Assistant District Attorney Dayton said that the evidence against Hilton would be laid before the Queens County Grand Jury next Tuesday and that if an indictment was returned he probably would be put on trial in the Queens County Court on April 26.

The case of Morris Reiff, 33 years old, proprietor of the Star Radio Shop, at 134 Third Avenue, accused as a fence to whom the radio burglar sold his loot, was adjourned by Magistrate Albert Vitale in the Yorkville Court yesterday until April 21. Bail of $25,000 was continued, and Reiff was sent back to prison in default of bail.

DRUNKEN DRIVER GETS STATE PRISON TERM

Bronx Man's Second Trial Results in Manslaughter Verdict for Milkman's Death.

Joseph Cassidy, 29 years old, of 125 West Kingsbridge Road, a chauffeur, was found guilty of manslaughter yesterday by a jury before Judge Cohn in the Bronx County Court. He was sentenced to from twenty-one months to seven years in Sing Sing. Cassidy, under the influence of liquor, drove his automobile into a milk wagon driven by John Powers at Cortlandt Avenue and 161st Street, on June 5, 1925. Powers, the father of five children, was thrown out and died soon afterward of his injuries.

It was the first time a conviction of the kind had been obtained in the Bronx County Court. Judge Cohn, in imposing sentence, declared that a drunken driver was "more dangerous than a bandit with a gun."

It was the second trial of the manslaughter indictment against Cassidy. The jury in the first trial disagreed. Records of the Magistrates' court revealed that Cassidy had been fined $50 in July, 1923, for driving an automobile while intoxicated.

NO NEW MILK COMMITTEE.

Mayor, Praising Mrs. Hearst's Work, Won't Compete With It.

Mayor Walker denied yesterday that he intended to appoint a committee of women to succeed the Mayor's Committee of Women which flourished during the Hylan Administration and which was active in free milk distribution and other philanthropies under the leadership of Mrs. William R. Hearst.

"I understand," said the Mayor, "that Mrs. Hearst has organized an independent women's committee to care for the free milk distribution, and I should not wish the City of New York to seem to place itself in competition with any organization which is already doing good work in a good cause."

When he was asked whether he purposed appointing women to membership in the various committees which are yet to be organized, such as his projected city planning and housing committees, the Mayor replied that he would probably name several women to serve on each of these committees.

HOLD-UP MEN SHOOT TWO IN FIVE THEFTS

Loot in Daylight Robberies Is $3,000 in Cash, $7,000 Gems and Three Automobiles.

JEWELER ROBBED IN STREET

Shot Down by Thugs, Who Overlook $18,000 Jewelry—$3,000 Seized in Payroll Theft, Another Fails.

Armed men committed five holdups in Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx yesterday morning. They shot two men, stole more than $3,000 in cash, $7,000 worth of jewelry, and three automobiles valued at more than $3,000 and all escaped.

Joseph Flyer, 40 years old, a jeweler, who has a platinum setting shop at 104 Chrystie Street, was shot in the head and side by four robbers who held him up at Grand and Chrystie Streets at 9:30 A. M. They got platinum settings worth $7,000, which he carried in a brief case, but missed $18,000 worth of the same kind of jewelry which he had in an inside coat pocket. Flyer told detectives that he had been held up six months ago and since then had made a practice of carrying the larger part of his jewelry in an inside pocket and the smaller part in the brief case.

Flyer's office is on the third floor of the Jewelers' Building, which is equipped with a burglar alarm and tear-gas bombs. The police think the bandits were professional jewel robbers who knew the layout of the building as well as Flyer's movements, and accordingly took care to wait until he got outside the building before they waylaid him.

Crowds at Held-Up Scene.

Crowds were passing in front of the building as Flyer stepped out of the vestibule to go to the Jewelers' Exchange at the Bowery and Canal Street. As soon as he reached the sidewalk three men stepped up to him. A fourth was at the wheel of an automobile at the curb.

The three men all had guns in their hands," Flyer said. "One grabbed my right arm and another my left arm. The third came up in front of me and stuck his gun to my chest.

"'Hand over that brief case,' he said, 'or I'll put a hole through you.'

"I pulled my right hand away and tried to knock down the gun at my chest. Then I heard some shots and felt the shock of the bullets in my head and side. I dropped the brief case and fell. When I got up they were getting into the automobile and one had my brief case."

The wounded man was taken to Gouverneur Hospital and then to his home at 1,165 Fifty-third Street, Brooklyn.

Captain Sullivan and detectives of the Clinton Street Station began an investigation. They learned from witnesses that the license number of the bandits' car was the same as that of an automobile stolen on March 27 from Jennie Berkow at 1,009 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn.

The car was found yesterday afternoon, wrecked and abandoned, at Sheriff and Second Streets, Manhattan.

Payroll Theft Fails.

Five minutes after an armored car had delivered an $1,800 payroll from a bank at the office of the Dunbar Box and Lumber Company, at 551 West Twenty-eighth Street, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, six robbers with pistols in their hands rushed into the office, yelled "Hands up!" and started shooting into the floor and ceiling.

They seized a "dummy" briefcase and began to retreat. A dozen employes, who had heard the noise rushed in. The robbers shot their way out, wounding John Fink, 65 years old, a sawyer, of 517 Garden Street, Union Hill, N. J.

Just before noon yesterday three armed men in an automobile held up John Delaney of the plumbing firm of Coyne & Delaney, 828 Kent Avenue, Brooklyn, who was in another automobile on Ellery Street, near Sumner Avenue, Brooklyn, and stole $3,000 in cash from him without firing a shot.

While a traffic policeman was standing at Prospect and East Tremont Avenues, the Bronx, about 10 o'clock yesterday morning, two robbers held up the Liggett drug store at 761 East Tremont Avenue, at the corner of Prospect, and got $100 in cash. One bandit stayed at the door as a lookout, while the other went inside with a pistol in his hand and forced the assistant manager to bind two employes, wait on two girl customers without giving an alarm and then open a safe and four cash registers. They disappeared before an alarm could be given.

Three armed men stole three automobiles from Frank's Garage at 1,551 Sixty-third Street, Brooklyn, about 8 o'clock yesterday morning after holding up an employe. They entered with pistols in their hands and forced Walter Schardleburg, a negro car washer, into a side room, which they locked. Then they drove out in a Cadillac, a Buick and a Studebaker. Schardleburg telephoned the police.

Two men robbed the box-office of the Stadium, motion picture theatre, at Third Avenue and 119th Street last night of $106 and escaped.

The two men, who, the police were told, were shabbily dressed, engaged the ticket seller in an altercation and while one held the employe's attention the other, it was said, grabbed up the money, whereupon both ran and disappeared before employes of the theatre could follow them.

Three armed robbers held up Samuel Weiss and Jacob Jackier in their shoe store at 32 Avenue B last night. They forced Jackier to open the cash register, from which they took $500.

LINK UP BIG JEWEL THEFTS.

Police Find Same Methods in Wurts-Dundas Case as in Hayward Robbery.

Detectives investigating the disappearance of $40,000 in gems from the apartment of Miss Muriel Wurts-Dundas, at 71 Park Avenue, said yesterday they believed the window cleaner suspected was the same man who early last year robbed the homes of Colonel William Hayward at 1,051 Fifth Avenue and Adelaide Phillips at 172 East Sixty-fourth Street of jewelry valued at $40,000.

As in the theft at the Wurts-Dundas apartment, the jewelry disappeared after a visit from a window cleaner, who, acting in the same manner as he did at 71 Park Avenue, left his cleaning equipment behind when he departed. The detectives have obtained a fairly accurate description of the man and hope for an arrest.

Noel C. Scaffa, a private detective under indictment for his part in obtaining the return of $300,000 in jewelry to Mrs. James Donahue, from whose apartment at the Hotel Plaza they had been stolen, visited Police Headquarters during the day and it was reported that he called in connection with the disappearance of Miss Wurts-Dundas's jewelry. He denied this, however.

Hindenburg Like Washington, Mexican Guest Tells Germans

POTSDAM, Germany, April 16 (AP).—President von Hindenburg was likened to George Washington today by the head of a group of Mexicans visiting the historic places of Potsdam as the guests of the Prussian Government.

Proposing the President's health, Chairman Hernandez said:

"Of von Hindenburg it will one day be said, as of Washington: 'First in war, first in peace, first in the hearts of his countrymen.'"

SENTENCED IN THEFT OF $1,116,000 GEMS

Cohn, Who Posed as Salesman to Get Jewels, Receives Three and a Half Years.

PRISON FOR COMPANIONS

Three Promised Aid in Recovering Loot, but $176,000 Is Still Missing, Says Prosecutor.

Harry Cohn, formerly an accountant, and two confederates in a conspiracy which led to thefts of gems aggregating $1,116,000, from jewelry brokers in this city, received prison terms yesterday from Judge Koenig in General Sessions on their pleas of guilty to grand larceny indictments.

Cohn, who pretended to be a jewelry salesmen when he obtained the gems on memoranda in 1925, received a sentence of from three and a half to eight years in Sing Sing. Alexander Arnow, an itinerant jeweler, whom Cohn accused of having originated the plot which led to the disposal of the gems in pawn shops, or to others, for less than half their value, was sentenced to the same prison for from twenty months to three and a half years, and his brother, Harry, whose glib talk was alleged to have induced Cohn to enter the theft plot, received from fifteen months to three years in the prison.

Eight indictments charging grand larceny were returned against the trio when Assistant District Attorney Richard C. Murphy had finished an investigation of the plot last February. Cohn had been apprehended under a Federal bankruptcy warrant in Newark a few weeks before, and he immediately implicated Harry Arnow. Cohn who is 33 years old, and lived at 381 Edgecombe Avenue, revealed that the Arnows, a little older than he, had been living in luxurious circumstances at 1,085 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, but Alexander Arnow fled to California when he learned that creditors had thrown Cohn into bankruptcy.

With the arrest of Harry Arnow on Cohn's confession, Alexander came back, and was taken into custody. Then through information received from the plotters the prosecutor recovered $340,000 in money from Cohn, $500,000 of the gems, which they had disposed of to others, and $100,000 in jewels were held under an attachment issued by the Court, pending the outcome of litigation. Cohn and the Arnows had promised to aid the authorities in the recovery of all the loot, but Assistant District Attorney Murphy told Judge Koenig yesterday that they had not furnished any information that had not already come into his possession.

The prosecutor had agreed to allow the three conspirators to plead guilty to one indictment to cover the eight against each of them in the belief that the three would aid him in recovering the remaining $176,000 in gems. This indictment was based on the complaint of David I. Rogow, a wholesale jeweler, that on Sept. 23 last, Cohn obtained from him on memorandum two emeralds and 403 pearls, valued at $50,000.

Benjamin F. Spellman, counsel for Cohn, and Abraham Goodman, counsel for the Arnows, in pleading for clemency dwelt on an agreement they said had been made by the prosecutor when their clients consented to aid him in recovering the stolen gems. The lawyers asserted that the trio had not profited through their thefts. Cohn, they said, became impressed with the belief that he could take advantage of low prices in the jewelry trade at the time by obtaining the jewelry on memoranda and selling it before payments became due for much more than he had bought it for. It was further asserted that the Arnows had agreed to pledge the jewels for loans as Cohn obtained each batch and use the money as advance payments for new batches.

Assistant District Attorney Murphy told Judge Koenig that, while the defendants had not complied with their agreement, he felt that they were entitled to some consideration from the Court because of what they had done in aiding him to obtain indictments against others as receivers of some of the gems. He added, however, that the trio had repudiated testimony which they had given at the Grand Jury investigation, which led to these indictments, when the men accused of being receivers were about to be called for trial. This, he said, forced the prosecution to recommend that the indictments against these men be dismissed.

N. Y. U. GIRL IS MISSING.

Left Home to Attend Classes Last Thursday, but Never Arrived.

Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse Sepe of 2,111 Quentin Road, Brooklyn, reported yesterday to the police that their daughter, Rose, 17 years old, a student of New York University, has been missing since Thursday morning.

Miss Sepe, it was said, left home to attend her classes, but did not arrive at the university. Her family said they were at a loss to account for her absence, because she always had discussed her plans with them. She was described as 5 feet 3 inches tall, weighing 113 pounds, having brown bobbed hair and brown eyes and wearing a green serge dress, a black fur-trimmed coat, a black hat with white trimming, white stockings, black pumps, a diamond and a ruby ring, a wrist watch and a cameo pin.

An Acknowledgment.

THE NEW YORK TIMES acknowledges receipt of an anonymous contribution of $10 for the relief of a widow and three children of a man who was drowned on April 4, and for whose family an appeal was made recently by the Brooklyn Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor.

DEMOCRATS ATTACK GERMAN CLAIMS BILL

Garner Calls the Measure, Which Coolidge Has Endorsed, "a Stupendous Steal."

PROPOSALS ARE CRITICISED

Treadway Insists Committee Has Not Acted—Minority Seeks Changes.

MELLON DEFENDS THE PLAN

Writes to the Senate That It Is a Practical Solution of a Ticklish Problem.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—A bitter fight on the Administration bill introduced in the House by Representative Ogden L. Mills of New York, providing for an adjustment of claims with Germany and German nationals arising out of the war, was foreshadowed today, when Representatives John N. Garner of Texas, one of the Democratic leaders, speaking on the floor, denounced the measure as a "stupendous steal," and described it as "the most important piece of legislation outside of the tax bill that will come before this Congress."

Mr. Garner, who charged that an examination of its provisions would demonstrate that the plan embodied in the Mills bill would cost the American people $190,000,000.

"It has four provisions," said Mr. Garner. "One is to return all of the alien property now in the hands of the Alien Property Custodian to the German nationals. The second is to pay the mixed claims, the third is to pay the German nation for damages that occurred by reason of our taking their property and the fourth is for an issue of $250,000,000 in bonds to meet the indebtedness."

Declares Texan Is Premature.

Representative Allen T. Treadway replied to Mr. Garner:

"I think the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Garner) is very premature in the statement that he is making to the House," Mr. Treadway said. "So far as I know, the Ways and Means Committee has not acted on the bill with the view to reporting it. To my knowledge the bill has not come before the Ways and Means Committee for a vote. Therefore the gentleman from Texas is very premature in saying that it will be on the floor of the House within a week."

Efforts have been made in committee by Democratic members to force the adoption of amendments which would bar American insurance companies that suffered losses during the war period from securing benefits under the Mills bill. Awards have been made by the Mixed Claims Commission of claims made by insurance companies, and their payment is provided for in the bill.

Consideration of the bill has been marked by stormy sessions in the Committee on Ways and Means, but indications are that the bill will be reported to the House in the form presented by Mr. Mills. The bill has the approval of President Coolidge.

Mellon Explains the Measure.

Secretary Mellon believes the plan is the only practical method of dealing with that problem. His views are contained in a letter which he sent to the Senate today.

The Secretary stated that German owners of property involved and the American War Claimants' Association had been consulted, but not the German Government. Chandler P. Anderson, American Commissioner on the Mixed Claims Commission, advised the Treasury that Dr. Wilhelm Kiesselbach, the German Commissioner, and Dr. Karl von Lewinski, the German agent on the commission, represented as individuals a group of the private German owners.

There is no legislation introduced to cover the subject as a whole and, finally, Mr. Mellon wrote:

"Litigation is pending against the United States for compensation for ships of German citizens taken during the war and which are still undisposed of. The Mixed Claims Commission set up between Germany and the United States to determine American claims against Germany is approaching the completion of its work.

"There is, however, no provision for the payment of awards of the mixed claims commission which adequately compensates the private American claimants. The advice of the Treasury has been sought by Frederick C. Hicks, the former Alien Property Custodian, in reorganizing his office and from its study of the situation the Treasury believed that it was uneconomical, both from the standpoint of the owner and of the United States, to continue indefinitely the operation of the trusts by the Alien Property Custodian.

"If it is right that we should reaffirm the American policy that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation, then there seems to me to be no practical solution of the entire problem except that suggested by the Treasury. The Treasury, therefore, in the interest of all concerned undertook the preparation of a plan for the consideration of the Congress."

Paid in Cash to Avoid Interest.

"The tentative plan," wrote Secretary Mellon in conclusion, "provided for bonds bearing 5 per cent. interest. This rate of interest was necessary in order that bonds, payable in marks in Germany, should be worth par in the German market, where interest rates are very much higher than

TOPICS OF INTEREST TO CHURCHGOERS

A Proposed "Code of Ethics" for Ministers Is Being Studied by Presbytery.

'LOST' CANDIDATES SOUGHT

Names of Over Fifty Young Men Who Gave Up Their Studies for Presbyterian Ministry Announced.

A suggested "Ministers' Code of Ethics" has been submitted to the Moderator's Council of the Presbytery of New York by the Rev. Dr. George Stewart Jr., one of the two associate pastors of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, at Seventy-third Street. This announcement was made by the Rev. Dr. Harlan G. Mendenhall, Stated Clerk of the Presbytery, as part of the report of the Moderator's Council, which was submitted to the Presbytery at its meeting last Monday in the First Church. The proposed "code" itself was not divulged. But on the recommendation of the council the Presbytery voted that the Rev. Dr. Howard Duffield, the Moderator, should appoint a committee to discuss the code and report at the next meeting of the Presbytery.

The names of between fifty and sixty young men who had been under the care of the Presbytery in the last fifteen years as candidates for the ministry, but who had failed to go through with their plans, were read to the Presbytery at the meeting on Monday. In most of the cases no further word had been heard from the men. Dr. Mendenhall reported that some had entered the ministry of other denominations, but most of them had not been traced. The rule of the Presbytery is that if a man is not heard from for three years his name is stricken from the roll. The time was extended for those whom there was still a chance of locating.

Three young men will be ordained deacons this morning in the Episcopal Church of the Incarnation, Madison Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street. The officiating Bishop will be the Right Rev. David L. Ferris, Bishop Coadjutor of Western New York. The candidates are Jesse Herbert Smith of Independence, Kan.; Ernest Victor Kennan of Chicago and Henry Scott Rubel of Milwaukee. The ordination sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. H. Percy Silver, rector of the Church of the Incarnation.

A Spring breakfast will be given in honor of Bishop William T. Manning next Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock in the Hotel Roosevelt. Mrs. Henry Gansevoort Sanford will be toastmistress. Bishop Manning will speak and then the program will be given over to the Committee on Army Posts, of which Mrs. William Codman Sturgis is Chairman. She will outline a plan for a memorial chapel to be erected at Plattsburg for the New York soldiers who fell in the war. There will be addresses by Channing Pollock, Colonel De Lancey Jay, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and Colonel Archibald Thacher. The Chairman of the Breakfast Committee is Mrs. Charles Gilmore Kerley.

There will be two receptions at the Five Points Mission, 59 Madison Street, to welcome the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. George W. Grinton. The minister, who had been pastor of the Methodist church, Tarrytown, was elected by the trustees as superintendent of the mission, which is under the Methodist Church. His election was ratified last Monday by Bishop Francis J. McConnell of Pittsburgh, at the closing session of the annual New York Methodist Conference. The first reception will be given by the English congregation at the mission next Thursday evening, and the second will be given by its Italian congregation the evening of April 26.

There will be a dinner Monday evening in the Hotel Astor for the one hundred clerical and lay members of the staff of the New York Protestant Episcopal City Mission Society. The hosts and hostesses will be the members of the Board of Managers and their wives. The speakers will be Bishop Manning, the Rev. Dr. Milo H. Gates and the Rev. Dr. L. Ernest Sunderland. The toastmaster will be Robert L. Harrison.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, President of the Lutheran Synod of New York and New England, will go to Rochester tonight to preach and administer holy communion tomorrow morning in the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, that city, in connection with the farewell of the Rev. H. Branson Richards, the pastor. Mr. Richards has accepted a call to the pastorate of the First Lutheran Church, Athens, N. Y.

A reception will be given next Thursday evening to the Rev. Dr. George M. Baker, formerly of Schenectady, by the congregation of the Washington Heights Baptist Church, West 160th Street and Convent Avenue. Dr. Baker began his ministry here last Sunday.

A luncheon will be given Monday by the Episcopal Church Club at its rooms, 7 East Forty-eighth Street, in honor of the Rev. Dr. Robert Norwood, new rector of St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church.

"Does Education Without Christian Education Educate?" will be the topic at a dinner of the New York Presbyterian Social Union on Monday evening in the parish house of the West End Presbyterian Church, 105th Street and Amsterdam Avenue. The speakers will be Dean Herbert E. Hawkes and the Rev. Walter M. Howlett of the Greater New York Federation of Churches. Mr. Howlett is the chief promoter of the plan for a week-day religious school in every Protestant church.

In appreciation of the services of M. Z. Levinson as sexton for the last twenty-five years the trustees and members of the Congregation B'nai Jeshurun, Eighty-eighth Street and West End Avenue, have subscribed a fund to cover the expenses of a trip for him and his wife to Palestine.

The sum of $30,120.75 has been subscribed in cash and pledges toward the $100,000 endowment fund being sought for Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Central Park West and Sixty-fifth Street, of which the Rev. Dr. Paul Scherer is the pastor.

Methodist young people from Connecticut, New Jersey and New York will attend a dinner next Tuesday evening in Grace Methodist Church, 104th Street, between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues, under the auspices of the Epworth League of the New York Methodist Area.

The Rev. Dr. John L. Davis will begin tomorrow his third year as pastor of Grace Methodist Church. Last year Dr. Davis received 276 new members.

FOUR TRUSTEES NAMED BY CALVARY CHURCH

Board Fills Places of Those Who Resigned—Reports Progress on Building.

Following a secret meeting of an hour and forty minutes yesterday afternoon of the Board of Trustees of Calvary Baptist Church it was announced that four new members of the board had been elected and that "the matter of the new building was taken up and progress was made on it."

At the meeting at which Dr. Straton was present, the following were selected to fill the places of resigning trustees:

H. A. Van Opstall, Manager of the National Piano Manufacturing Company of 15 East Fortieth Street; Adolph Lindewall, a realtor; C. C. Hoffman, a commission broker, and Stephen A. Bradford, a public accountant.

Justice William Harman Black, President of the board, received the resignations last Monday of Benjamin J. and A. B. Miller, brothers and business men; W. A. M. Martin, a publisher, and Robert B. Buzbee, an attorney.

Mr. Martin was one of several plaintiffs in an action about a year ago against the Rev. John Roach Straton, the pastor, and others to enjoin the church from erecting a combined church and apartment house. They also brought a successful action to prevent Dr. Straton as a member ex-officio of the board from voting. The plaintiffs also disapproved of paying a salary to Dr. Straton for February and March while he occupied a Winter pastorate in Florida.

DEAN TREDER RESIGNS AS AID TO STIRES

Leaves Cathedral Post to Permit Bishop to Select His Own Advisers.

The Very Rev. Oscar F. R. Treder has resigned as Dean of the Cathedral of the Incarnation, Garden City, L. I., where he has been for ten years. His resignation was announced yesterday. It had been accepted at a meeting of the Vestry Committee of the Cathedral last Tuesday.

The meeting was called by the Right Rev. Ernest M. Stires, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Long Island, whose See church the cathedral is. Bishop Stires read the resignation to the committee and announced that he had finally decided to accept it.

The Dean gave as his chief reason for resigning a desire to free the Bishop of any "embarrassment in carrying out his visions, hopes and plans," for which, he recalled, the Bishop was, after all, responsible. He said the Bishop should share the burden of accomplishment with helpers, but they should be helpers of his own selection.

Bishop Stires expressed to the committee his appreciation of the service of the Dean and of "his manly, generous and helpful spirit."

In offering his resignation Dean Treder followed the example of his predecessor, Dean Cox, when the late Right Rev. Frederick Burgess, the predecessor of Bishop Stires, was consecrated to the Episcopate.

Shortly before the consecration of Dr. Stires last November, Dean Treder was in an automobile accident and was badly shaken up. He has not been well since.

Dean Treder is a chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Masons of New York. Before coming to the cathedral he was rector at Easthampton, L. I. He is married and has five children.

FINAL APPEAL BY CARDINAL.

Prelate to Open Catholic Charities Drive in Cathedral Tomorrow.

Seven thousand persons are expected in St. Patrick's Cathedral at 4 o'clock tomorrow when Cardinal Hayes will open the Catholic Charities campaign at vesper service. Among those in the cathedral will be 329 priests. The Rev. Joseph C. Fleming will deliver the sermon, and the Cardinal will address the workers.

The campaign will get formally under way on Monday when 15,000 workers tart a house-to-house canvass Last year $1,077,674 was raised.

Seeks $500,000 for Methodist Home.

Speaking yesterday at a luncheon at the Aldine Club, at which prominent Methodists were his guests, William J. Stitt, Chairman of the Committee on Special Gifts of the Methodist Episcopal Church Home, said to be the oldest home for elderly people in the city, announced that the home was seeking an endowment fund of $500,000. The drive will be made in connection with the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the institution.

Clergymen to Discuss Crime.

Under the auspices of the Brooklyn Juvenile Protective Association, clergymen of all denominations will discuss the crime situation at a meeting on Monday afternoon at the St. George Hotel in Brooklyn. Among those cooperating with the association in calling the meeting are the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, the Rev. Father John L. Belford and the Rev. John Howard Melish.

Mrs. T. P. Shonts Improved.

The condition of Mrs. Theodore P. Shonts, widow of the former President of the Interborough, who is at the Polyclinic Hospital suffering from pneumonia, was said yesterday to be improved. Mrs. Shonts was taken to the hospital late Wednesday night in a critical condition, and is registered there as "Mrs. Stratton." Dr. Rafael Ernesto Lopez of 350 West Eighty-fifth Street is her attending physician.

To the Jews of New York

An Accounting of the

SIXTY MILLION DOLLARS

Sent on their mercy mission during the past ten years

By the Jews of America through the

JOINT DISTRIBUTION COMMITTEE

OVER seven million Jews were helped and helped until we thought they could care for themselves.

In this we were mistaken, for the hope of a new and better day for the Jews of Europe was rudely shattered.

Peace had come to battle-scarred Europe, but not for the Jews. Hate was still rampant in many European countries.

Boycotts, special legislation, special taxes, limitation of activities, restriction of labor—all were aimed at the Jew, with the result that a new economic crisis overwhelmed them.

In Poland, in Esthonia, in Galicia, in Roumania, in Bessarabia, in Lithuania, in Latvia, in Austria, in Germany, in Hungary and in Russia; the Jewish situation is worse than it was at any time during the terrible years of the War.

DEATH stalks in every Jewish home. Death from hunger, death from disease, death self-imposed, is the daily lot of the Jew in those countries.

Orphan asylums are closed for lack of food. Schools and religious institutions are closed for lack of support.

Thousands of hungry children roam the streets in search of bread.

Hundreds of thousands of men and women pray that they may be spared the fate of those who have already died miserable, unnatural deaths.

This message is for every Jew in Greater New York who feels keenly the suffering of his people.

It is a message that must and will be answered!

There is one hope for the Jews of Eastern Europe, and that hope is in the Campaign of

FIFTEEN MILLION DOLLARS

Now being raised throughout America through the United Jewish Campaign

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Without showing any increase of activity, a good part of yesterday's stock market recovered more of the ground lost in the professional attack on values last Wednesday and Monday. The movement of prices was irregular, however, advances in some of the industrial and railway shares being offset by declines in others of the same group. The advances were clearly attributable to repurchases by the speculative sellers of those earlier days; there was no evidence of outside interest in the market. What the action of prices seemed to indicate was such inertia on the part of the non-professional constituency that real holders of stocks are just now as reluctant to sell as they are to buy. Put in another way, the market appears to be itself disposed to halt; awaiting presumably some tangible development in the general situation, good or bad.

No change occurred in the money market; at present quotations, rates at New York and London are at parity with one another. Outside of the financial markets, the only noteworthy incident of the day was a decline on the grain and cotton markets, less important in itself than as reflecting the general tendency of prices. Cotton sold yesterday at the low price of last year and nearly down to this year's lowest. The puzzle of the cotton trade is not the decrease in Europe's purchases—that was inevitable, as soon as the shortage of stocks on hand had been made good—but the unprecedentedly large takings of home mills, in the face of a textile trade that is generally described as "slow."

The weekly statement of "brokers' loans" by New York member banks of the Federal Reserve shows further decrease of $85,699,000, bringing the total reduction from the high point of Feb. 17 to $651,372,000. The only change shown from the recent drift was a slight increase in such New York loans for account of out-of-town banks; the week reported on being the first since the middle of February in which they have not been substantially reduced. Since these reports of loans to brokers were only begun in January, it is impossible to compare the reduction since the stock market turned in February with the movement for the corresponding period in other years.

That comparison is possible, however, in the Reserve Board's statement of loans on Stock Exchange collateral made to any kind of borrowers by all the reporting member banks. Those loans, which have been reported weekly during many years, reached their high point at the end of December; between then and April 8, the date covered by yesterday's statement, they have been reduced $409,706,000. In the corresponding period of 1925 they were increased $57,352,000, but they decreased $200,301,000 in the same weeks of 1924 and $146,770,000 in 1923. This would indicate that, although the present season's reduction has been exceptionally large, the normal tendency is toward substantial curtailment in the first quarter of the year.

The week-end reviews of mercantile trade lay stress on one factor in the situation which has caused some perplexed suspension of judgment in other quarters. There has been a good deal of questioning as to probable result of the prolonged spell of unseasonable weather in the present Spring. That it means an unusually late start for the cotton and Spring-planted grain crops appears inevitable, and the mercantile agencies find that consideration operating to check business activities. It can hardly be said, however, that this enforced agricultural delay has yet been greatly reflected in wheat or cotton, unless it be assumed that it has checked a decline which otherwise might have gone further. Experience has taught that in this country a bad start to the crops will often be fully overcome by return to favorable growing weather, also that, in so widespread an area as the agricultural United States possesses, adverse conditions in one section will be offset by opposite influences in another.

NEW YORK STANDARD PLANS STOCK ISSUE

Oil Company Stockholders Asked to Approve Addition of 2,500,000 Shares.

TOTAL WOULD BE 17,500,000

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of New York has been called for May 17 to approve an increase in the company's capital stock from 15,000,000 to 17,500,000 shares of $25 par value. Part of the increased capital will be used to acquire the capital stock of the General Petroleum Company of California. Stockholders also will be asked to approve a contract between the two companies, under which Standard Oil of New York would issue two shares of its own capital stock for one share of General Petroleum. Under these terms, Standard of New York will issue 2,355,000 new shares.

In connection with the consolidation General Petroleum will retire all of its outstanding preferred stock at par and accrued dividends. On June 30, 1925, a total of $3,212,200 of $25 par value preferred stock was outstanding.

Herbert L. Pratt, President of the Standard Oil Company of New York, in a letter to stockholders points out that the directors believe the acquisition of General Petroleum "will be advantageous to both parties and that the terms are fair. It therefore respectfully recommends that the stockholders approve the agreement submitted to them."

Aims at Lower Returns.

Mr. Pratt further says: "Standard Oil Company of New York and its subsidiary, the Magnolia Petroleum Company, have created intensive distributing facilities throughout New York and the New England States, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, parts of New Mexico, Kansas and Louisiana. They have in these localities an established good-will and a reputation for their brands which is a business asset of great value, and have built up these physical distributing facilities at large cost. This company has also developed widespread distributing facilities in China, Japan, India, Philippine Islands, Java, Straits Settlements and the Near East which represent a large investment, with a demand for its products in these thickly populated areas, which promises rapid increase.

"While the company has created and operates this extensive marketing organization and has the major part of its investment in these facilities for distribution, it has neither sufficient crude production nor adequate refining capacity to furnish all the petroleum products which it markets. Further, it has no crude production or refining capacity whatever on the Pacific Coast, which is its natural source of supply for the extensive operations in the Far East in which this company is engaged. As a result it is practically dependent on purchases from other companies to meet the needs of its distributing facilities in Eastern Asia.

General Has Crude Output.

"General Petroleum Corporation, on the other hand, has extensive producing properties in the California field which in 1925 produced approximately 10,000,000 barrels of crude oil, and also purchased approximately 15,000,000 barrels from wells in these fields served by its pipe line. It does an extensive business in selling oil for fuel to railroads, steamship lines and industrial plants in the States on the Pacific Coast. It has refineries at Los Angeles which handled in 1925 a total of approximately 18,000,000 barrels of crude oil. It has marketing facilities for refined products in California, Oregon and Washington, but not in foreign countries or in any States except those on the Pacific Coast.

"The business of the two companies is therefore complementary. The acquisition of the properties of the General Petroleum Corporation, with their substantial crude production, refining capacity and terminal facilities at Tidewater, will make their surplus over and above Pacific Coast requirements available and lessen the present disproportion between the needs of the widespread distributing facilities of this company and the supply of crude and refined products produced by it."

ANDES PETROLEUM STOCK ISSUE BOUGHT

Group Takes Up 300,000 Shares of Common—Atlantic Refining to Acquire Half Interest.

A new issue of 300,000 shares of common stock of the Andes Petroleum Corporation has been bought by a group headed by Henry Zuckerman & Co. and Jerome B. Sullivan & Co., it became known yesterday. This follows closely the information that the Atlantic Refining Company of Philadelphia has contracted to acquire an undivided one-half interest in all the Andes Petroleum property in South America.

Contract to purchase from Andes and Atlantic Refining jointly, 12,500 acres checkerboarded in the Mara District, Maracaibo Basin, Venezuela, was made by the Venezuela Gulf Oil Company, a subsidiary of the Gulf Oil Corporation of Pittsburgh. Terms of the purchase are an amount in cash, a payment in oil and a royalty.

The Andes Petroleum common shares will soon be offered to the public, it was said, the proceeds of the sale to be used in paying 50 per cent. of the cost of drilling undertaken with the Atlantic Refining Company and to provide additional working capital.

Andes Petroleum has an authorized issue of 2,000,000 shares of the common stock without nominal or par value, and the acquisition of the 300,000 shares by the bankers leaves outstanding 1,667,670 shares.

Amerada Gets Oil Leases.

The Amerada Corporation has acquired leases on 960 acres of proved oil land in the Panhandle field of Texas and 1,000 scattered acres in the Seminole field of Oklahoma from the Douglas Oil Company of Oklahoma, it was announced yesterday.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Fresh Slump in Franc—Japanese Yen at New High, as Chinese React.

A successive record low for all time in the French franc, and new bottoms for the year in the Chinese exchanges, while sterling, pesetas, the Scandinavians and the Japanese yen all developed strength and higher prices, featured the trading in the foreign bill market yesterday.

The fresh slump in the franc carried it to 3.34½ cents, 1¼ points under the previous low established on Thursday, and an overnight loss of 4 points. Belgian francs also gave up 3 points to 3.67½ cents. Nothing new appeared in the situation to account for the reaction, although local dealers are vexed that Paris should be surprised at the action of the franc here, for it is from this quarter chiefly that selling orders originate. Good buying of Spanish pesetas lifted it 8 points to 14.29 cents, the year's high previously touched last Tuesday. Sterling gained a small fraction to $4.85⅛.

The break in the Chinese exchanges dovetailed with record lows in silver both here and in London. Losses ran from one-quarter to one-half cent, and followed the virtual throwing over of Chinese currency with which to buy the Japanese yen on its ride to parity. Yesterday the yen jumped ⅞ cent, to 46.63 cents, highest in three years.

Paris Firm, London Irregular—Sterling Rises at Paris.

LONDON, April 16.—Trading was quiet and prices moved irregularly on the Stock Exchange today. Old 2½ per cent. consols, 54½; British 5 per cent. war loan, 102; both unchanged; 4½ per cents war loan, ⅛ lower at 95⅝.

De Beers Mining, ⅛ higher at 15; Rand Mines unchanged at 2⅝.

PARIS, April 16.—Prices were firm on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 5 centimes lower at 46 francs 50 centimes; 5 per cent. war loan 20 centimes lower at 56 francs 90 centimes.

Exchange on London 70 centimes higher at 144 francs 50 centimes. The American dollar was quoted at 29 francs 73 centimes, against 29 francs 61 centimes, yesterday.

Anaconda Head Goes to Europe.

C. F. Kelly, President of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, has sailed for Europe to confer with German officials on the company's option on the Von Geisches Erben property. Mr. Kelly would not discuss the nature of his trip, however. Anaconda obtained a six months' option last November to buy the property, which is the largest non-ferrous mining company in Europe.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident On the Stock Exchange and in the Financial Markets.

Weakness in the automobile stocks during the last hour of trading on the Stock Exchange unsettled the entire list and resulted in most issues ending the day below the high levels. At the close, however, the net changes among the active shares were about evenly divided between gains and losses. The railroad stocks, as indicated by the averages, closed higher, and the industrials closed lower, owing chiefly to the reaction in the motors and specialties. Steel common, one of the leaders, ended the day with a fractional gain. During the early hour of trading the market was firm, and net gains were noted throughout the list. As the day progressed more attention was given to the proposed tariff revision on motor car imports into Canada, and this caused considerable professional selling of these stocks, especially General Motors, Dodge, Hudson and Studebaker. Ford Motor of Canada also dropped to a new low record for the year. Trading was on a much reduced scale, except in the motor shares.

The Canadian Auto Tariff.

Wall Street jumped to hasty conclusions yesterday regarding the proposed reduction in the Canadian tariff on motor cars. According to dispatches received from across the border, some of the American plants have been shut down, but this was believed to be only a temporary condition until the various managements can ascertain their position under the new schedules. Wall Street was of the impression that the proposed revision would result in ruining the American motor car industry in Canada. In conservative quarters, however, there was reluctance to accept this view. The proposed reduction, according to one opinion, would result merely in a lowering of profits for American companies with plants in Canada, as the duty was passed along to the public, despite the fact that the American plants could operate more cheaply than Canadian manufacturers, because of quantity production. The opinion prevailed that even if the proposed revision were adopted, the American companies could still do a profitable business across the border.

More Instalment Buying.

The increase in instalment sales has been a frequent subject of comment in the past few months, and views pro and con have been freely expressed. It is generally conceded that the plan shows no sign of losing popularity. Automobile acceptance organizations are many, and now another field has been added to the lists of those where this method of stimulating sales is permitted. A large public utility has announced the formation of an acceptance corporation for financing the purchase of appliances sold to increase demand for electric power.

Drives at the Market.

It takes very little in the way of news to start the bearish fraternity off on a fresh drive at the market, and although in most cases within the last few days, these drives have not been successful, nevertheless, they are repeated again and again. Yesterday's drive was centred on the motor shares immediately upon publication of the news that some of the American companies operating in Canada had shut up shop pending a clearer interpretation of the tariff ruling which has been made.

Treasury 3¼s at New High.

United States Treasury 3¼ per cent. bonds, the issue that was sold to the public on March 15 of this year, touched a new high point yesterday, with sales at 100 27-32, which represented an advance of 11-32 of a point over their original offering price of 100⅝. Other United States obligations also were firm, furnishing about the only feature of interest in the bond market. Most price changes in the general list were limited to small fractions and were not indicative of any distinct trend. French bonds were slightly higher, despite the continued pressure on the franc, and most other foreign bonds were about steady. Standard domestic investment securities were inactive.

Record Low Price for Silver.

The belief in many quarters, and particularly in the Orient, that Japanese exchange will be restored to dollar parity some time this year was one of the contributing causes of the establishment of a record low price for silver yesterday. Chinese merchants and exchange operators, overstocked with silver, have been selling the metal for some time and purchasing Japanese yen, and another factor has been the recent lifting of the Japanese embargo against the export of silver, which has put large supplies into the world market. Talk of a gold standard for India has exerted a sentimental effect on the market, though Indian interests have been buyers rather than sellers of silver. They have been getting it at very low prices, however, and have not been in any sense supporting the market. Coincident with the low record for silver, Japanese yen reached their highest price since before the earthquake of 1923, and the belief was strengthened that the Tokio Government would announce a return to the gold standard before the end of the year.

Competition in the Southwest.

An evidence of the active competition among the railroads of the Southwest is disclosed in the annual report of the National Railways of Mexico in which the Executive President informs stockholders that both the Missouri Pacific and the Southern Pacific have approached the company with offers to purchase the Texas Mexican Railway which connects Laredo and Corpus Christie, Texas. Both offers were rejected, he reports. The economic possibilities of this territory and the profitable traffic it furnishes are forwarding railroad unification there faster than in any other section.

How Money Was Sent to Cuba.

Although the banking disturbance in Cuba has ended, the financial machinery that was called into play to check the run is worthy of attention. The basis of the transfer of currency to Havana was the use of the gold settlement fund of the Federal Reserve system. This fund amounts to $600,000,000 and is held in Washington, with various amounts credited to the individual Reserve Banks. When a bank in New York desired currency for its branch in Cuba, it applied to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and stated its requirements. The bank here relayed the information to Washington, which in turn notified the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta, which has an agency in Havana. The Atlanta Bank sent the currency. The New York Bank arranging the credit was debited on the New York Federal Reserve Bank's books for the amount obtained, and settled through the usual machinery. A similar amount was transferred in the gold settlement fund from the account of the New York Federal Reserve Bank to the account of the Atlanta Bank. The chief effect of the transaction would be an increase in discounts of the New York Federal Reserve Bank and an enlargement of the note issue of the Atlanta Bank, with a corresponding increase in the latter's gold holdings in the settlement fund.

MONEY.

FRIDAY, APRIL 16, 1926.

Stock Exchange call money continued easy at 4½ per cent., which coincided with the rate on Thursday. Business in the outside market was done at 3¾ per cent., but in neither place was the demand strong. Trading in fixed period market was quiet, in which the interest of borrowers has been curtailed in the face of the supply. More appeared on offer for 60 to 90 days at 4½ per cent. than previously, but business in these and the later maturities was small. Commercial paper and acceptances were unchanged.

AUTO SHARES DROP AT CANADIAN BLOW

Dominion's Proposal to Reduce Tariff Puts Level of Profits There in Doubt.

ASSEMBLY PLANTS CLOSE

General Motors Lays Off 3,000 Men at Oshawa—Ford of Canada Stock Slumps 31 Points.

Heavy selling of automobile shares on the New York Stock Exchange and Curb markets resulted yesterday from the proposal of the Canadian Government to reduce the tariff on automobile imports, which has been in force for several years. As a result of this tariff, many American companies have established assembling plants in Canada, and it was assumed in stock market circles that these plants would be affected by any tariff revision. The selling of stocks also was influenced by news from Canada that some American plants have been shut down.

Ford Motor of Canada which has been weak for several days, dropped to a new low record for the year. The stock sold at 335 earlier this year, but dropped to 470 yesterday. The net loss yesterday was 31 points, following a 58-point drop on Thursday.

General Motors, which was firm during the early trading, dropped to 115⅝, and closed with a net loss of 1⅝ at 116. Hudson Motors declined from an early high of 66⅞ to 62, and closed with a net loss of a point at 62½. Studebaker was down ⅝ of a point net, and other automobile stocks also closed lower.

The financial district received news that the General Motors Canadian plant at Oshawa was closed yesterday, affecting about 3,000 men. Workers, it was reported, found the following notice posted by the company:

"On account of tariff changes, the entire plant is closed indefinitely until the company is able to arrive at an intelligent conclusion as to what future course may be considered advisable."

The Ford Motor Company of Canada has not yet taken action. This company employs approximately 5,000 men. P. W. Grandjean, Secretary, is quoted as saying: "We have not analyzed the report. It was a sudden blow and we can't form any opinion until we have considered further the Government's proposals."

In conservative quarters, where Canadian industrial developments are watched closely, the opinion was expressed that the proposed reduction in the Canadian automobile tariff, if adopted by Parliament, would not necessarily mean the end of the manufacture and assembling of American automobiles in Canada. The only direct result of such a change, according to the opinion, would be to reduce their profits.

Assembled American cars, it is explained, have been sold to the Canadian public plus the tariff, thus adding to the profits of the Canadian subsidiaries of the American companies.

Doubt is being expressed that the rate will be reduced to a level which would invite competition for American cars assembled in this country. Such a procedure, it is asserted, would harm the Canadian manufacturers more than the system now in force.

Regarding the operations of the Ford Company of Canada, it is claimed that this company can continue to carry on operations in a profitable basis because of the reciprocal trade agreements between Canada and other British colonies. The Ford Motor Company of Canada, besides the Canadian markets, has the exclusive sales rights for the British Empire, exclusive of Great Britain and Ireland.

SILVER AT LOWEST HERE IN TWO YEARS

Lowest for Ten Years in London Based Largely on Pressure From China.

JAPAN EXCHANGE A FACTOR

Many Believe Japanese Soon Will Return to Gold Standard and Are Buying Yen in Silver.

The price of silver in New York broke to its lowest level in two years yesterday. London quotations were the lowest in more than ten years, principally as a result of pressure originating in China. The situation is traceable to the belief held in many quarters, and particularly in China, that Japan is likely to return to the gold standard some time this year, restoring her exchange to parity with the dollar. This belief has caused large interests in China to sell silver currency and accumulate yen exchange. One of the results yesterday was the establishment of the highest rate on yen since the period preceding the earthquake of 1923.

Silver was quoted in New York yesterday at 63¾ cents per ounce, a decline of about half a cent from the previous day and a drop of almost 5 cents from the present year's high point of 68⅝ cents recorded on Jan. 4. The latest quotation was the lowest in this market since the week of April 12, 1924. The London quotation on silver yesterday was 29½ pence, the lowest since the early days of the war. This year's high point in London was 31 15-16 pence, established on Jan. 4.

Exchange operators and merchants in China for some time have been heavy buyers of yen and have released large holdings of silver. The supplies of the latter metal in the world's market also have been augmented by a recent decision of the Japanese Government to lift the embargo against the export of silver, which had been in effect since the war period. Discussion of a possible establishment of a gold standard by India, which has a large circulation of silver currency and also uses the metal extensively for ornaments, has had a sentimental effect on the situation. An Indian commission now in London discussing tentative plans for a gold standard, but bankers believe that the country is not yet ready for one and will not be for a long time. At present Indian interests are buyers, rather than sellers, of silver, but they have been picking it up at very cheap prices, and their demand has not been in any sense a support of the market.

As a result of the buying by Chinese interests and other exchange operators throughout the world, the Japanese yen yesterday advanced 3-16 of a cent and closed at 46.63 cents. The upward movement that has taken place in the yen is illustrated by the fact that a week ago it was quoted at 46.19 cents and a year ago at 42 cents. The par of yen is 49.80 cents, only a trifle more than 3 cents above its present level. Exchange operators consider significant the recent revision of quotations on the yen by the Yokohama Specie Bank. Up to a short time ago this bank had quoted the yen at 45 cents, but it recently advanced the price to 45½ cents, then to 46 cents and finally to 46½ cents. While this had little actual effect on the exchange market, it was taken as an indication of the official value which the Japanese Government has placed on its currency.

There have been reports for months that Japan was contemplating a return to gold, and the Government is understood to be in favor of such a step, but has announced repeatedly that precipitate action would be avoided, in order to prevent the trade disorganization that would result from a violent movement of exchange. The yen has moved steadily upward, however, and the market has been supported at times by the shipment of gold under Government permits.

WANTS A DIVIDEND ON ST. LOUIS COMMON

Walter E. Meyer Says Minority Stock Is Not Opposed to Loree Merger Plans.

Walter E. Meyer, an attorney with offices at 50 Pine Street, made clear yesterday that he is not opposed to the Loree plan for merging the St. Louis Southwestern, Missouri-Kansas-Texas and Kansas City Southern railroads, but is seeking the initiation of dividends on St. Louis Southwestern common stock.

Mr. Meyer authorized the following statement:

"Referring to recent press reports on the St. Louis Southwestern situation in which my name has been mentioned, and in behalf of my friends and myself who own a considerable amount of stock of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Company, I desire to state that we are of the opinion that the minority stockholders are not adequately represented, if at all, on the Board of Directors of the company as at present constituted.

"The laws of the State of Missouri under which the St. Louis Southwestern was organized allow, as I am advised, for representation of minority stock interests by cumulative voting. With this in view we are securing proxies of stockholders for the purpose of electing a number of directors to represent the minority interest on the board, such directors to be without affiliation with any road with which it is proposed to merge the St. Louis Southwestern, and to protect and foster the interest of St. Louis Southwestern stockholders.

"Inasmuch as we have not been informed of the details of the plan, if any, for the merger of the St. Louis Southwestern with the Missouri-Kansas-Texas and Kansas City Southern, there can be no truth in the current published reports that we are opposed to such plan.

"As experience has shown that consolidations, though proposed, may take considerable time to be carried into effect, and as it seems to be admitted by all that the common stock of the St. Louis Southwestern is to be regarded as capable of paying a dividend, we are in favor of the immediate initiation of dividends on the common stock."

Magma Copper Net is $422,824.

The Magma Copper Company reports for the quarter ended March 31, 1926, net earnings of $422,824, before depreciation, which compares with $518,356 before depreciation and interest in the initial quarter of last year. During the quarter Magma produced 7,115,386 pounds of refined copper at a cost of 7.89 cents a pound, after deducting gold and silver credits and before depreciation, but after all fixed and general expenses. The average price obtained for copper during the period was 13.833 cents per pound.

$78,155,000 BONDS OFFERED THIS WEEK

Railroad Financing Leads With Total of $23,930,000, the Largest in Three Months.

BIG FOREIGN LOAN COMING

$30,000,000 Uruguay Issue to Go on Market Soon—Prices Are Generally Firm.

New bond offerings this week amounted to $78,155,000, against $124,747,000 last week, and $140,246,000 in the corresponding week a year ago. Railroad financing and a wide variety of domestic corporate issues featured the activities of the present week. The offerings, by groups, of this and last week, were as follows:

	This Week.	Last Week.
Railroad	$23,930,000
State and municipal	17,684,000	$82,047,000
Industrial	16,623,000	11,400,000
Public utility	9,916,000	29,550,000
Foreign	6,000,000
Miscellaneous	5,000,000
Farm loan		1,750,000
Total	$78,155,000	$124,747,000

The largest individual issue of the present week was a $17,030,000 offering by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. of Pennsylvania Railroad equipment trust certificates bearing 4½ per cent. interest, and priced to yield an average return of 4.67 per cent. for all maturities. A similar issue of Southern Railway certificates was brought out by Drexel & Co. and amounted to $6,900,000, making the present the largest week in railroad financing since the middle of January, when the Baltimore & Ohio sold a $30,000,000 bond issue.

There was a wide range of State and municipal offerings, the largest being an issue of $7,500,000 of State of Missouri bonds. Los Angeles, with two separate issues: Utica, N. Y., and Miami Beach, Fla., were among the other municipal borrowers. Prices continued firm in the municipal list, and most of the new offerings carried yields ranging from about 4 to 4.40 per cent. Dealers continue to report an inadequate volume of new municipal bonds available in comparison with the broad investment demand.

The only foreign issue of the week consisted of $6,000,000 of Department of Antioquia, Colombia, bonds underwritten by a Blair & Co., Inc., group. Other financing of the week included a $15,000,000 issue of Loew's, Inc., debentures offered by Dillon, Read & Co., a $5,000,000 investment trust issue and several good-sized public utility offerings.

Final details are being completed for a $30,000,000 Uruguayan Government loan, the award for which was made this week to a syndicate headed by Hallgarten & Co. It is expected the bonds will be placed on the market early next week. Several large public utility offerings also are scheduled for next week.

Bond prices were generally firm all this week and showed little tendency to follow fluctuations in the stock market. Although the volume of trading fell off at times, good support was in evidence for high grade investment issues, and also for the more speculative issues. United States Government obligations continued to move upward in price, and there was evidence of accumulation of these securities by large institutions.

The issue of $15,000,000 Loew's, Inc., fifteen-year 6 per cent. sinking fund gold debentures, with stock purchase warrants, offered by Dillon, Read and Company and the National City Company, has been sold and the subscription books closed, according to announcement by the former company.

Pierce Oil Net is $207,288.

A net profit of $207,288, after interest, depreciation, &c., is reported for 1925 by the Pierce Petroleum Corporation and its subsidiaries. This compares with a net loss in 1924 of $377,481.

PAN-AMERICAN OIL HAS BIGGEST YEAR

EQUAL TO $9.95 A SHARE

Net profits of the Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company for 1925 established a new high record, it was announced yesterday. Gross profits for the year aggregated $41,971,195, against $29,731,151 in 1924. After all charges and reserves for depreciation, depletion and taxes the company reported a balance of $27,335,994 available for the capital stock, or $9.95 a share on the average amount of Class A and B stocks outstanding. In 1924 the net amounted to $15,185,072, or $5.85 a share. The increase of $12,150,000 in net available for the stock was equal to $0 per cent.

The earnings for 1925 do not include the returns from the California properties sold last year to Edward L. Doheny and his associates, who organized the Pan American Western Petroleum Company. In 1922, when the company operated the California properties, gross profit aggregated $48,049,737 and net profit $31,579,937.

The consolidated balance sheet on Dec. 31, 1925, showed current assets of $53,497,794 and current liabilities of $16,607,731. The current assets included $21,953,685 cash, $11,303,374 accounts receivable, and inventory, carried at cost, of $12,903,340. Total assets amounted to $189,119,435. The statement says production amounted to 38,600,000 barrels in 1925, a gain of 2,000,000 over 1924.

F. H. Wickett, Chairman of the Board of Directors, in a statement to stockholders said:

"The balance sheet shows an investment in the Lago Oil and Transport Corporation on Dec. 31, 1925, of $6,959,938, representing the cost of 497,969 Class A shares and 1,000,000 Class B shares of the capital stock of the company. The present market value of these stocks, based on exchange market quotations of the Class A stock, is approximately $25,000,000. As a result of options exercised early in 1926, your company has acquired a majority of the capital stock of the Lago Oil and Transport Corporation and has assumed the management of the company as well as its operating subsidiaries.

"The management feels that the results for the year and the present financial condition of the company are highly satisfactory. It further believes that through acquisition of control of Lago Oil and Transport Corporation, previously mentioned, its already strong and satisfactory crude oil position has been materially strengthened, and it looks forward with confidence to the continued prosperity of the company."

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY ON AN UPWARD TREND

Electrical World Bases Its Conclusion on Increased Use of Power by Plants.

Industrial activity throughout the United States maintained a distinct upward trend during March, according to the current issue of Electrical World. During each of the first three months a substantial gain was noted.

Basing its computations upon the consumption of electrical energy by the large central station power customers of the country which is "a sensitive indicator of industrial activity," Electrical World concludes that the gain in March for the country at large was 13.6 per cent. above the average monthly industrial activity for the past three years. In February the gain was 7.5 per cent., while in January it was 9.8 per cent.

In making out the report the statisticians used consumption figures of 1,500 large manufacturing plants which consume approximately 5,000,000,000 kilowat-hours of energy per year.

"The metal industries taken as a group and for the nation as a whole report activity in March of 12.7 per cent. above the monthly average for the last three years," says the publication. "The transportation industry, including automobiles and shipbuilding, went up to 21.2 per cent. above the average, while the textile industry reported 2.8 per cent. above.

"March activity in the leather industry was 7.2 per cent. below the average, as was also that of the lumber industry, which was 5.9 per cent. below. In the clay and stone industries the activity was reported as 10.4 per cent. above the average."

Fisk Rubber Stocks Increase.

Stocks of manufactured goods of the Fisk Rubber Company have shown a slight increase, despite the fact that the company has been among those to abandon the "Spring dating" practice, and also that Fisk's March sales were 10 per cent. above those of a year ago and profits have risen slightly in proportion. Indications at present are, officials of the company said, that April sales and profits will show up as well if not better than those of March.

Buys Interest in Westland Oil.

An interest in the Westland Oil Company, which has oil and gas permits on Sane Creek and Shafer Creek domes in Southern Utah, was purchased yesterday by the Associated Oil Company. The sale price is said to have been more than $100,000.

LOANS TO BROKERS HIT LOWEST POINT

TOTAL WAS $2,487,352,000

Loans of New York City Federal Reserve member banks to brokers and dealers reached their lowest point of the year during the week ended April 7, the Federal Reserve Board announced yesterday. The total loans, secured by stocks and bonds, was $2,487,352,000, a decrease of $65,699,000 from the week of March 31. The week's total represents a reduction of $653,773,000 from the high point of the year, which was $3,141,125,000, for the week ended Jan. 6.

The latest reduction in brokers' loans marked a continuation of a trend that has prevailed almost uninterruptedly since the first of the year, but the recent ratio of loaning between out-of-town and New York banks was reversed. During most of this year the loans of out-of-town banks have been declining steadily, while the New York banks' loans have been gradually increasing. The decline in the week of April 7, however, was accounted for entirely by the New York banks, an increase having been shown by the others.

Detailed figures for the last two weeks reported follow:

	April 7.	March 31.
New York banks' loans for own account	$958,396,000	$1,047,784,000
For account of out-of-town banks	1,018,156,000	1,006,411,000
For account of others	510,810,000	516,856,000
Total	$2,487,352,000	$2,573,051,000

The week of April 7 marked the first time that the New York banks' loans to brokers had fallen below the billion-dollar mark. The period under review took in the days early this month when the money market was affected by the results of the quarterly settlements and sharp advances in the rates on call loans. As was the case on most occasions when money rates stiffened recently, out-of-town banks sent funds in large quantities to be loaned here.

The reduction in the aggregate of brokers' loans reflected further liquidation in the stock market, a process that has been in progress over a large part of the present year.

Notice of Redemption
To the Holders of CONTINENTAL POWER & LIGHT COMPANY
Three-Year 6% Gold Notes

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned, PENNSYLVANIA GAS & ELECTRIC CORPORATION (formerly known as Continental Power & Light Company), intends to redeem, on May 1, 1926, all of its Three-Year 6% Gold Notes then outstanding under the Trust Agreement dated October 1, 1924, between Continental Power & Light Company and The Equitable Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, and that on May 1, 1926, there will become due and payable at the principal office of The Equitable Trust Company of New York, Trustee, No. 37 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, City and State of New York, upon each of such Notes the principal amount thereof and accrued interest to such redemption date, together with a premium of 1½% of such principal amount.

Upon presentation and surrender at said office, on or after May 1, 1926, of such Notes, with all coupons maturing subsequent to April 1, 1926, attached thereto, payment will be made of the aforesaid principal amount and premium of 1½%, together with accrued interest from April 1, 1926, to such redemption date; but any holder of such Notes may, upon such presentation and surrender, between April 1, 1926, and May 1, 1926, obtain payment of the aforesaid principal amount thereof and premium of 1½%, together with accrued interest from April 1, 1926, to the date of surrender. The accrued interest represented by coupons maturing prior to such redemption date shall continue to be payable in the usual manner. The interest on said Notes shall cease on such redemption date.

Notes registered as to principal must be accompanied by proper instruments of assignment and transfer in blank.

PENNSYLVANIA GAS & ELECTRIC CORPORATION,
By H. M. BILLINGSLEY, Secretary.

NORTHWESTERN LINE GAINS IN NET INCOME

C. & N. W. Reports $10,784,578 for the Year, an Increase of $3,000,000.

PASSENGER REVENUE OFF

Southern and Missouri Pacific Offer to Buy National Railways of Mexico Declined.

The pamphlet report of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company, made public yesterday, shows total operating revenues of $148,538,269, compared with $149,454,584 the year before, but net income of $10,784,578, or an increase of more than $3,000,000 over the $7,671,324 in net reported for 1924. Surplus for the year was $3,410,828, against $297,574. Earnings of $8.35 on the common stock compare with $4.20 the year before.

Revenue from the transportation of freight advanced from $103,516,754 in 1924 to $104,888,463 in 1925, while passenger revenues declined from $28,872,655 to $28,769,126.

"Careful analysis of the cause of the passenger decrease," says President Frederick W. Sargent, "has been made and it is interesting to know that the percentage of decrease is all in the short haul business in substantially the same ratio as the increase in registered motor vehicles in the States served by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company's lines."

The Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway, which is wholly controlled by the Chicago & Northwestern, reports net income of $813,165 and a balance, after payments of dividends on the preferred stock, of $250,200.

Report of the National Railways of Mexico for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1925, discloses that the Southern Pacific and the Missouri Pacific approached the management of the Mexican railways separately and jointly with a proposal to purchase the Texas Mexican Railway, which operates in Texas between Laredo and Corpus Christi.

"As the execution of such a transaction required the trustees' authorization due to the mortgages affecting all the company's properties," says President Leon Salinas, "it was resolved to ask for their opinion in order to undertake said transaction, which, according to the judgment of the expert consulted by our local board at New York, seemed to be in the interest of the National Railways.

"The conditions proposed by the trustees meant an obligation as burdensome as it was unjustifiable, and our Board of Directors considered it best to abstain from dealing in those terms and wait for a favorable change in the company's situation that might enable it to carry out a convenient arrangement regarding the Texas Mexican Railway under more advantageous conditions."

The balance sheet at the close of the fiscal year discloses current assets of 12,377,016 Mexican gold pesos, and current liabilities of 248,236,943. Of the latter 237,264,192 represented interest coupons paid and unfunded.

C., B. & Q. PROSPECTS GOOD.

Year's Net May Exceed Earnings of 1925, Hale Holden Says.

Net earnings of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad in 1926 will equal those of 1925 and may exceed them if present prospects are realized, according to an estimate by Hale Holden, President.

"Our estimated March gross revenues were about $784,000 more than the gross of $12,129,250 earned in the previous March, and the surplus after charges for the first quarter of the year, with March estimated, was $4,880,287, an increase of $1,858,535 over the surplus of $3,221,452 in the corresponding quarter of 1925," he said. "We earned our dividend requirements and about $560,000 more in the first quarter. Weather conditions were unfavorable for maintenance work, and we spent substantially the same amount on maintenance as in the first quarter of last year."

OFFICERS SHIFTED IN CHASE NATIONAL

Wiggin Chairman of the Board, McGarrah Head of Executive Committee, McHugh President.

OTHER PERSONNEL CHANGES

R. L. Clarkson Vice Chairman of Directors—Vice Presidents Are Transferred.

The list of officers of the consolidated Chase National Bank, which formally absorbed the Mechanics and Metals National Bank last Monday, was announced yesterday and showed several important changes in personnel. Albert H. Wiggin, who has been doing double duty as Chairman of the Board of Directors and President of the Chase National Bank, becomes the senior executive of the consolidated institution, with the title of Chairman of the Board of Directors. Gates W. McGarrah, formerly Chairman of the Mechanics and Metals, becomes Chairman of the Executive Committee of the consolidated bank, and John McHugh, formerly President of the Mechanics and Metals, becomes the President of Chase.

Robert L. Clarkson, who last Summer resigned as Vice President of the Chase Securities Corporation to become assistant to the President of the Chase National Bank, now becomes Vice Chairman of the Board of Directors. Frank O. Roe, Harry H. Pond, Samuel S. Campbell, William E. Lee and M. G. B. Whelpley, formerly Vice Presidents of the Mechanics and Metals, become Vice Presidents of the Chase. William P. Holly, who joined the Chase Bank in 1901 and was made assistant cashier in 1915 and cashier in 1921, has been elected Vice President and cashier.

All former assistant Vice Presidents of the Chase Bank become second Vice Presidents and the title of Assistant Vice President is dropped. Alexander R. Webb, Frederick W. Gehle and George W. Simonson of the Mechanics and Metals and Arthur M. Aiken, formerly cashier of that bank, become Second Vice Presidents. Ernest W. Davenport, Clifton Stanton, Robert W. Kiesling, Alexander F. Bryan, George W. Dunnebury, Samuel S. Towns and Harry B. Churchill, formerly assistant cashiers of the Mechanics and Metals, become assistant cashiers of the Chase.

Edward S. Dix, George J. Runge, Vincent L. Banker and Frederick Pintard of the Mechanics and Metals become assistant trust officers, and Oliver B. Hill, formerly in charge of a division in the Chase Trust Department, also becomes an assistant trust officer. Carl Schuls, manager of the Mechanics and Metals foreign department, becomes a manager of the foreign department of the consolidated bank, and Ernest H. Kuhlman and James A. MacIlvaine are made assistant managers of the foreign department.

Alfred W. Hudson has been appointed Second Vice President in charge of the branch at Forty-first Street and Madison Avenue and Miss Constance M. Craigie becomes manager of the women's department of that branch. Vernon P. Baker, formerly assistant manager of the Madison Avenue branch, becomes assistant cashier in charge of the new Park Avenue branch at Park Avenue and Sixtieth Street, and Miss Harriet H. Sheppard will direct the women's department. Henry L. Nichols, formerly assistant manager of the Hamilton Trust branch, Brooklyn, becomes manager of the Chase Safe Deposit Company, Park Avenue Branch.

White Rock Earnings Decrease.

The White Rock Mineral Springs Company reports net earnings for the initial quarter of this year of $175,644, after depreciation, Federal taxes, &c., which is a decrease of $29,805 under the net income of $205,449 for the same period in 1925. The 1925 earnings are equal, after dividends on 7 per cent. first preferred stock, to $2.80 a share (par $100) earned on $1,000,000 second preferred, and to 58 cents a share on 200,000 no par shares of no par common stock. The 1924 earnings equaled $3.40 a share on second preferred and 68 cents a share on the no par common.

USE OF GASOLINE SHOWS 20% GAIN

Consumption in 33 States in Two Months Aggregated 581,228,000 Gallons.

FLORIDA LEADS IN INCREASE

Advance of 80% There Reported by Petroleum Institute—Oklahoma Second.

Consumption of gasoline in the United States in the first two months this year gained substantially over that of a year ago, according to the American Petroleum Institute. The gain was especially large in Florida and other Southern States as a result of the land boom there.

According to the Institute, thirty-three States which compile figures of gasoline consumption, reported a total of 581,228,000 gallons consumed in January and February, an increase of 97,774,000 gallons, or 20.2 per cent. compared with the same period a year ago.

Florida led all States in the percentage gain. Gasoline consumption in Florida in January and February was 13,634,000 gallons, against 29,150,000 gallons in the same months a year ago, a gain of 80 per cent. The total consumption for this State alone was equal to 4 per cent. of the consumption for the entire country in the same period.

The daily consumption of gasoline in Florida for the first two months of the year was 892,440 gallons.

Oklahoma, which ranked second to Florida in the percentage gain, consumed 31,600,000 gallons in the first two months, or 50 per cent. more than in the same period in 1925. North Carolina reported a gain of 39 per cent. in consumption, Mississippi 33 per cent., Missouri 28 per cent., Minnesota 27 per cent., Georgia 33 per cent. and North Dakota 36 per cent.

FINANCE LEADERS IN ANNUAL DINNER

Wall Street Representatives Hear Senator Lenroot on Stock Regulation.

HE TELLS AIM OF RAILROADS

Mayor Walker Says City Will Treat Financiers and Labor Unions Alike.

Several hundred representatives in the field of finance in Wall Street and throughout the country gathered at the Hotel Astor last evening for the annual dinner of the Association of Stock Exchange Firms.

Election of officers held in conjunction with the dinner resulted in the return of Colonel Henry Rogers Winthrop to the Presidency and the choice of the following: Vice-President, Edward Allen Pierce; Treasurer, Jules S. Bache; Secretary, Frederick F. Lyden. Governors chosen for the term ending in 1929 were Edwin M. Chapman, Chauncey P. Colwell, Herbert I. Foster, John W. Hanes and Charles A. Morse and, for the terms ending in 1927, Joseph L. Lilienthal.

The following nominating committee for 1926 was chosen: Chairman, Edward E. B. Adams of E. F. Hutton & Co., Sailing W. Baruch of Sailing W. Baruch & Co., Timothy S. Brosnahan of Thomson & McKinnon; Edward E. Burrill Jr. of Neilson, Burrill & Babcock, and Jay E. Eddy of J. H. Holmes & Co.

Senator Lenroot Speaks.

Senator Irvine L. Lenroot of Wisconsin, in an address dealing largely with the farmer's attitude toward corporations and big business, discussed the belief that railroads "are not run primarily for service either to the public or their stockholders, but for the benefit of what he terms 'Wall Street'; that they are used like chips in a poker game, and that they are sometimes deliberately wrecked for the purpose of making huge profits out of reorganization."

"To what extent there may be foundation for this belief I shall not discuss," he said, "but I do wish to take this occasion to say that a railroad, being a public utility, must have but two objects—service to the public and a fair return to its stockholders. To insure this is the object of Government regulation, and unless there is to be more instead of less of such regulation it is to the interest of all having to do with railroad stocks and securities to do what they can to see that railroads shall serve the purposes that I have indicated."

The issuing of stocks in classes, some of which provide no voting power, was attacked by Senator Lenroot as an evil.

He said he had no criticism of men who thought securities were offered below their true value and bought for a rise in their market quotations, "but feverish," unintelligent speculation, whether in Florida real estate or upon Wall Street, is an unmixed evil," he said. "Great buying booms led to speculation and to inflation of prices of stocks, bringing inflation of prices of commodities, taking money from legitimate channels of trade, distracting minds of persons from their regular business and injuring the country as a whole," he asserted.

"Here, I believe, is a distinct duty of the Government to control this situation through discount rates of our Federal Reserve Banks," he said, "but it is also a distinct duty of every line of business, including that in which you are engaged, to do what can be done to secure stable prices and a normal prosperity."

Mayor Walker Applauded.

Mayor James J. Walker was loudly applauded when he rose to speak, and even more loudly at the conclusion of his address, which was largely humorous and contained many references to Mayor Hylan's attacks on Wall Street and the "interests."

"I realize that it is a long time since you have had a Mayor of the city in your midst," he said. "I do not consider you as men of Wall Stret—rather as men of New York. For that matter, no street is more than any other street with the present Administration. Fifth Avenue means the same as 41st Street or Ninth Avenue and will get just as much or just as little. Wall Street will be treated just as the labor unions will be treated, for on Nov. 3 politics ceased with me. The people in the City Hall are there to provide a sensible, sober, sane government without discrimination.

"You people have a great responsibility in helping me administer the affairs of this world city, for you do important work. I want your assistance and cooperation. You people mean a lot in this city, but whenever you become too conceited remember that you are residents of a city that has the only 125 pound Mayor in the country."

Attorney General Albert Ottinger of New York spoke on the operation of his office as it concerned finance and Wall Street.

WANTS RAIL LAW CHANGED.

Judge Lovett Says Present Statutes Virtually Bar Big Mergers.

Except for intra-system combinations, few if any important railroad consolidations can be effected until Congress alters the present law, it was said yesterday by Judge Robert S. Lovett, Chairman of the Union Pacific Railroad. He has just returned from Santa Barbara, Cal.

"Congress should confer the requisite powers on existing corporations, as contemplated in the Cummins bill now pending in the Senate, although the compulsory features in that bill are objectionable," he said. "Many States have corporate limitations which retard or prevent consolidations and a Federal law superseding these is needed."

Judge Lovett said that the clerk of the Southern District Court of California was preparing the record of the Union Pacific's action to set aside the Los Angeles & Salt Lake valuation for submission to the United States Supreme Court, to which the Interstate Commerce Commission has appealed from the California Court's decision. Argument is expected to be in Autumn.

GRAHAM BROS. EXPLAIN.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., April 16.—Acting in response to many requests for information regarding their plans and the situation existing between themselves and Dodge Brothers, Inc., Ray A. Graham, on behalf of the Graham Brothers, issued today the following statement:

"Graham Brothers left the Dodge organization entirely upon their own volition. The friendliest feeling exists between the new administration and ourselves.

"We have disposed of our entire holdings in Graham Brothers Truck Company and have no plans for the future other than that we intend to take a rest."

DUBIOUS ON BERLIN LOAN.

Bankers Here Say No Such Deal With German Bank Is Contemplated Now.

A cable dispatch from Berlin yesterday, saying that the Renten Kredit Bank intended shortly to borrow an additional $25,000,000 in New York, surprised bankers here, who said that no negotiations for such an advance had been opened. It is understood that no loan in this field is imminent, but that a bond issue may be floated later in the year. Previous issues by the bank have sold successfully here, and it enjoys good credit.

A bond issue of $25,000,000 of the Renten Kredit Bank was underwritten last August by a syndicate headed by the National City Company. It was understood at the time that an additional loan of a similar amount would be made about the first of the year, but economical improvement in Germany and the accumulation of funds there made it possible for the bank to obtain its financial requirements in the home market. The bank recently obtained 250,000,000 marks from the Gold Discount Bank in Germany, but this was a relatively short-term loan, the first third falling due in 1929.

The Renten Kredit Bank last December complied with all technical requirements for a new American loan. Recently it amended its by-laws by adopting a rule to limit mortgage loans to 40 per cent. of the assessed valuation of the properties.

E. Roland N. Harriman has been elected a member of the Board of Directors of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company.

UNIONS ASK CHANGE IN RAIL LABOR RULES

Their Definition of a Through Freight Is Contested by Road Officials.

PARLEY HERE IS PUT OVER

Conferences between the Committee of Managers representing the railroads, of which John G. Walber is Chairman, and the Executive Committee appointed by the Order of Railway Conductors and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen were adjourned yesterday afternoon to permit each side to prepare such data as will be necessary to reach a decision on wage demands.

W. G. Lee, President of the trainmen; L. E. Sheppard, head of the conductors, and other members of the unions' committee will meet railroad officials of the Southern District on April 28 and those of the Western District on May 3. Conferences in New York will be resumed after the conclusion of the western meeting, but it was said yesterday that no date had been set as yet.

Discussion at yesterday's meeting and that of the day before concerned the changes proposed by the workers in rules governing their hours and pay.

In addition to the wage demands which run from $1 a day to $1.84 in the case of the baggagemen handling both express and dynamo the following stipulations are made:

All rates of pay in excess of standard rates and all mountain, desert or other differentials to be maintained—that is, the same amount of money now paid in excess of standard rates to be paid in excess of the rates agreed upon.

The adoption of the rates suggested shall in no case operate to bring about a reduction in compensation now paid.

Literal application of the following language: "In all cases of service, trainmen's time will commence at the time they are required to report for duty and shall continue until the time they are relieved of duty."

A through freight train is one that neither sets off nor picks up cars nor loads or unloads freight en route, nor does station switching. On all other freight trains trainmen shall be paid not less than local or way freight rates.

Not less than one brakeman shall be assigned to every passenger train of two or more cars or on other passenger trains of less than two cars that carry either baggage, mail or express matter for distribution.

All rates and rules herein enumerated to be effective as of Jan. 1, 1926, except where agreements in effect have been made to a later date.

Strenuous objection is found among railroad officials to the above demands—particularly to the clause which asks the definition of a through freight train. As the trainmen are paid on a mileage basis the employes on trains classified as local receive a higher rate than those on through trains.

National Carbon Buys Corliss.

P. P. Huffard, Vice President of the National Carbon Company, told yesterday of the purchase by the company of plant, inventory and good-will of the Corliss Carbon Company of Bradford, Pa., maker of industrial carbon brushes and other products. J. F. Kerlin, President of the Corliss Company, becomes a Vice President of National Carbon, having charge of sales of all carbon products.

Loans and Deposits Down; Investments Up In Member Bank Weekly Report of April 7

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The Federal Reserve Board's weekly condition statement of 709 reporting member banks in leading cities as of April 7 shows a reduction of $89,000,000 in loans and discounts, and an increase of $36,000,000 in investments. These changes were accompanied by reductions of $140,000,000 in net demand deposits and $47,000,000 in borrowings from the Federal Reserve banks.

Member banks in New York City reported declines of $86,000,000 in loans and discounts and $151,000,000 in net demand deposits, and increases of $19,000,000 and $18,000,000 respectively in investments and in borrowings from the Federal Reserve Bank.

Loans on stocks and bonds declined $53,000,000 at all reporting banks, and $39,000,000 and $17,000,000 respectively at reporting banks in the New York and Boston districts.

"All other" loans and discounts were $36,000,000 less than a week ago, declines of $45,000,000 in the New York district and $8,000,000 in the Atlanta district being offset in part by increases of $18,000,000 in the Boston district and $6,000,000 in the Richmond district.

Total loans to brokers and dealers, secured by stocks and bonds, made by reporting member banks in New York City declined $86,000,000, loans for their own account being $30,000,000 less than a week ago, loans for out-of-town banks $12,000,000 above, and loans for the account of others $8,000,000 below the amount reported the previous week.

Holdings of United States securities were $43,000,000 larger than a week ago, the principal changes including increases of $20,000,000 at reporting banks in the Chicago district, $19,000,000 in the New York district and $15,000,000 in the Boston district. Holdings of other bonds, stocks and securities declined $7,000,000, only relatively small changes being reported for any of the Federal Reserve districts.

Net demand deposits were $140,000,000 lower than reported for the previous week, reductions of $179,000,000 in the New York district and $11,000,000 in the San Francisco district being partly offset by increases of $41,000,000 and $11,000,000 in the Chicago and Boston districts respectively. Time deposits increased $38,000,000, principally in the Cleveland and Chicago districts.

The principal changes in borrowings from the Federal Reserve banks were reductions of $32,000,000 and $7,000,000 in the Chicago and St. Louis districts respectively and an increase of $11,000,000 in the New York district.

A summary of changes in the principal assets and liabilities of reporting members during the week and the year ended April 7, 1926, follows:

FIRE AFFECTS OIL POLICIES.

Many Reported Stopped in California —Rates Expected to Rise.

Cancellation of insurance policies held by several oil companies in California by certain fire insurance companies has been reported as a result of the fire which destroyed several million barrels of oil on the Union Oil Company property at San Luis Obispo and La Brea, Cal.

No definite information was obtainable, but it is believed in oil circles that the canceling companies had decided the business was unprofitable upon the rate scale now in effect.

The cancellation has not become general and the general belief is that most insurance companies will leave existing policies in force until they expire and then demand a higher premium rate. The problem of raising the rates will be taken up soon by the Insurance Rate Making Board of California, at which time it is believed the board will deliberate at length before making any drastic changes.

WARNS OF RAIL COMBINES.

Sir Henry Thornton Sees Difficulties in Large Amalgamations.

BOSTON, April 16 (AP).—The United States should consider carefully before taking steps toward amalgamation of large railroad systems, Sir Henry Thornton, head of the Canadian National Railways, said in an address before the Chamber of Commerce today. He added that it might help New England to consolidate some of her rail lines, but that large scale amalgamation had many disadvantages.

The consolidation of British railroads had not been entirely successful, Sir Henry said. He believed the wiping out of human contacts made necessary in the larger system was a loss, and said the expected economies had not been effected by unification. It was not "humanly or practically possible," he said, to eliminate shops or stations by amalgamation.

BANK ENLARGES BOARD.

Century Elects B. I. Rankovic President and Adds Four Directors.

William L. Kavanaugh, Joseph Cohn, William F. Donnelly and J. W. Miller have been added to the Board of Directors of the Century Bank, it was announced yesterday. Professor Michael I. Pupin, scientist and electrical expert, who has been President of the bank since its organization, resigned, in order to make a trip around the world. B. I. Rankovic, Vice President, was elected to the Presidency. He is President of the Belgrave Press. The other directors are Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins, D. B. Tripp and Charles Vorisek.

The bank recently moved into its new quarters at 338 West Twentythird Street.

Loew's, Inc., Debentures and Utility Shares Get Trading Rights.

The following announcements were made yesterday by the Committee on Securities of the Curb Exchange:

"Admitted to unlisted trading privileges: Loew's, Inc., $15,000,000 fifteen-year 6 per cent. sinking fund debentures, due April 1, 1941, with stock purchase warrants, 'when issued.'

Newsprint Production Increases.

United States production of newsprint during March totaled 145,910 tons, as compared with 129,822 tons in February, according to reports from the producing companies. Shipments reached 142,666 tons, as compared with 128,635 tons. Canadian mills report total production of 154,093 in March, as against 135,663 tons in February, while shipments were 153,457 tons, against 135,505.

BARS SALE OF STOCK IN VICTOR PAGE CO.

Court Grants Injunction Until Trial of Action Brought by Attorney General's Office.

NO AUTOS YET ON MARKET

Concern, Founded in 1921, Lays Its Failure to Produce to Agents Who Have Been Discharged.

Supreme Court Justice William B. Carswell, in Brooklyn, has granted the motion made by Deputy State Attorney General William H. Milholland temporarily to enjoin the Victor Page Motors Corporation of Stamford, Conn., from further sales of its stock, or other activities. The injunction will remain in effect until the trial of the action, date for which has not been set. Justice Carswell granted the motion Thursday and his action became public yesterday.

The Page Motors Corporation has been under investigation both in Connecticut and New York. In Connecticut the case was dismissed after, it was said, an agreement of some sort had been arrived at out of court. Some weeks ago, Mr. Milholland, accompanied by State troopers and office assistants, temporarily broke up a meeting of the concern's stockholders when he demanded that Victor W. Page, its President, who was then presiding, take an oath and submit to questioning.

Threats to throw Mr. Milholland out were made, a newspaper photographer's overcoat was torn from his back and the stockholders finally voted that Mr. Page refuse to answer questions until the following day when he could have an attorney with him. Testimony was taken for several days at Mr. Milholland's office and when the case was first presented in court a stay was granted pending the decision reached Thursday.

It is alleged by the State Attorney General's Anti-Stock Frauds Bureau that the Page Motors Corporation, although organized in 1921, has not placed a single motor or automobile on the market, although it has admittedly produced several experimental motor cars.

The action to enjoin the company is directed also against Mr. Page, Charles Freeman, Chairman of the corporation's Production Fund Committee, and John Paige Knox, its attorney and secretary. Mr. Page has testified that the corporation's failure to produce automobiles has been due to misrepresentations made by agents who have since been discharged, but whose statements caused investigations that have taken up the time and money of the corporation. It was admitted that the corporation had received for its stock about $500,000.

TO ABSORB RANGE COMPANY

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 16 (AP).—A million dollar transaction whereby Albert Pick & Co. of Chicago will acquire the John Van Range Company of this city has been virtually completed, it was learned today. Ira Krupnick, Vice President of the Pick company, conferred here with representatives of the Range company and confirmed reports of the proposed sale.

Negotiations are expected to be concluded in about thirty days, when stockholders of the Range company meet to consider plans to dissolve the company and distribute its assets.

The deal involves the main manufacturing plant of the Range company in Cincinnati, sales branches in Atlanta, Cleveland, Chicago and other cities, and several warehouses here.

Incorporated in 1883 to manufacture large ranges for hotels, restaurants, &c., the John Van Range Company was said to have done an annual business of approximately $2,000,000. The Pick company, a $25,000,000 corporation specializes in the outfitting of hotels, restaurants and large institutions.

Reorganizes Sales Department.

Reorganization of the Graybar Electric Company's sales department, including the creation of several new activities, was announced yesterday by G. E. Cullinan, Vice President, in charge of sales. The company was organized to take over the merchandise business of the Western Electric Company. Under the reorganization, M. A. Curran, formerly manager of the central station department, becomes assistant to the Vice President and J. L. Ray, formerly manager of the supply and equipment department, becomes general supply sales manager.

Mergenthaler Assets $30,080,489.

In the annual statement of the Mergenthaler Linotype Corporation it is shown that assets of the company on March 31 totaled $30,080,489, as compared with $30,084,353 on Sept. 30, 1925. Profit and loss surplus on March 31 was $11,320,935, as against $10,616,042 on Sept. 30, 1925. Among the assets were: Cash, $655,827; bills receivable, $9,871,095; accounts receivable, $3,882,669, and inventories, $6,032,223. Liabilities totaled $18,759,554, including bills payable, $500,000; accounts payable, $108,739, and reserves, $5,350,815.

Acquires Savannah Utility.

C. W. Kellogg, President of the Engineers Public Service Company, announced yesterday that the plan for acquisition of the Savannah Electric and Power Company had become effective through the deposit of 95 per cent. of the common stock of the latter company. The acquired company does an exclusive electric light, power and traction business in Savannah and its suburbs. Its power stations have 18,300 kilowatt capacity and its railways have sixty-seven miles of single tracks.

Servel Company to Reorganize.

Plans for recapitalization of the Servel Company under a Delaware charter were approved by stockholders at a meeting in Richmond, Va., yesterday. Under the plans, holders of the old company's Class A shares will receive stock of the new company on a share-for-share basis. The new company will have only one class of stock and all of it will have voting power.

RECEIVERS NAMED FOR EMPIRE FARMS

New Jersey Concern's Assets Are Put at $3,000,000 and Liabilities $1,000,000.

Equity receivers have been appointed, it was learned yesterday, for Empire Farms, Inc., operators of hundreds of acres of truck farms at Great Meadows, Warren County, N. J. The corporation's assets are put at $3,000,000 and liabilities at $1,000,000.

Robert Walker who has been manager of the farms for fifteen years and William L. Dill, State Motor Vehicle Commissioner, were appointed receivers by Federal Judge William N. Runyon in Newark on Monday.

The corporation controls the stock of the Alphano Corporation and the Mooreland Farms Corporation. The New York offices are at 2 Rector Street. John N. Hoff of Scoonton, N. J., is President, and H. Clay Lint of New York, Secretary.

Leon F. Ostro of Brooklyn, a stockholder, brought the action to preserve the assets, through Furst & Furst, attorneys, of Newark. Several suits, the nature of which was not disclosed, are expected, it was said, and Ostro sets forth in his application that ready cash to meet judgments is not available.

BUYS ARROW BUS LINES.

Newark Public Service Reported to Have Paid $500,000.

Announcement was made by the Public Service Transportation Company in Newark yesterday that it had purchased the Arrow Bus Company, which operates three lines, one between Paterson and Newark, another between Paterson and Midland Park and the third between Paterson and Suffern.

Although the price was not made known it is reported that it was approximately $500,000. Fifty buses operate on the lines, with forty-two operating permits. Twenty-four permits are on the Newark-Paterson line, six are on the Paterson-Midland Park line and twelve on the Paterson-Suffern line.

Prior to March 5 the lines were operated by John H. Stoddard, but on that date they were incorporated as the Arrow Bus Lines, Inc., with an authorized capital stock of 100,000 shares. Besides Mr. Stoddard, the incorporators were: C. A. Stoddard, a brother, and R. T. Wilson, a brother-in-law.

WHEAT OPENS FIRM, BUT ENDS WITH LOSS

May Reaches a New High Mark on Early Movement, but Closes Two Cents Plus Lower.

EXPORT DEMAND BRISKER

Corn and Oats Are Hit by Selling Orders, and, With Rye, Lose a Little.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Wheat opened firm, with May and July selling at a new high on the present movement, but an overbought condition was disclosed, and with heavy general local and commission house profit-taking prices declined and the close was at net losses of ⅞@2¼ cents, May leading. The recession in the latter delivery was accelerated by the purchase of a cargo of 122,000 bushels of Duluth No. 2 Northern for shipment here by May 20 at a price equal to 1½ cents over old May.

A leading local professional was credited with having gone out of his line during the day, and many of the Pit element who have been heavily long on May sold on the early bulge, which put it to $1.69.

Export demand was brisk, with Winnipeg messages claiming that the pool had sold 2,700,000 bushels during the last two days, while the seaboard reported 800,000 to 900,000 bushels sold in all positions, including two cargoes to Portugal and a cargo to Brazil. There was also some business in durum and in new crop Winters via the Gulf.

Liverpool was weak and unchanged to 1¼d lower, with May in the market only ¼ cent over Chicago at the time it closed. Buenos Aires declined 2½@3 cents.

Crop Observers Kinyon and Le Count have taken the field again and are in Nebraska. Messages from the Southwest indicate that sentiment there is distinctly bearish both on the old and the new crop situation.

There are said to be possibly 500,000 bushels of wheat at Duluth that might be moved to this market. Late in the day it was understood that the 122,000 bushels bought during the day were for delivery purposes, although the price paid failed to show any profit to the buyer.

The market shows an advance of around 15 cents in May from the recent low point. The July is commencing to feel the effect of the increased interest in new crop Winters for shipment via the Gulf. Foreigners bought both May and July wheat here early.

Primary arrivals were 386,000 bushels; week ago, 484,000; last year, 427,000. Shipments were 353,000 bushels; week ago, 396,000; last year, 408,000.

Primary arrivals were 377,000 bushels; week ago, 419,000; last year, 414,000, and shipments, 511,000 bushels; week ago, 401,000; last year, 904,000.

Oats closed ⅝ cent lower, with scattered liquidation in the May. Cash interests bought May and sold July at ⅝ to ¾ cent difference. Weather conditions in the West were favorable for field work and the bulk of the seed is in the ground in parts of Iowa. Nothing was heard regarding export demand.

Rye was 1⅜ to 1½ cents lower at the close, with a light trade, the action of wheat being the main influence.

RUBBER ADVANCES HALF TO ONE CENT

There was a halt in the reaction in crude rubber yesterday, prices advancing from half a cent for the active positions to more than 1 cent in the distant months under the influence of short covering on the theory that the decline had been too drastic and the re-entry of factory buying, attracted by levels which represent a cut of about 30 per cent. from those which prevailed just about three months ago.

Business was a good deal quieter than that staged on Thursday, 318 contracts changing hands, compared with 479 on the previous day. May at 48.30 and July at 46.40 cents were up 60 and 70 points, respectively. August and December, the only other months dealt in, made gains of 110 and 120 points. Prices on the London market were ¼ pence to a pence and a quarter higher at the close. According to cable advices from London all deliveries from April to December were quoted at 22½d. This is the first time in history that delivery rubber eight months hence was quoted at the same price as spot deliveries.

	High.	Low.	Close.	Thursday's Close.
May	50.00	48.10	48.30	47.70
July	48.00	46.20	46.40	45.70
August	46.10	44.50	44.70N	45.20
December	48.00	45.50	45.20	44.00

Other months closed: June, 44.90; September, 45.50; October, 45.90; November, 45.40; January, 45.00; February, 44.50; March, 44.50. Spots, smoked ribbed sheets, were quoted at 49.00.

The outside market also developed an undertone of strength, with resultant advances in all grades. In spot sheets this amounted to 3 cents, at 49 cents, and in first latex crepe the gain was fully as much at 50 cents. Other grades followed this lead and closed higher. The turnover reversed a contraction from the volume sold on Thursday.

$5,000 for Rubber Exchange Seat.

Three seats on the Rubber Exchange of New York changed hands yesterday at prices ranging from $4,800 to $5,000, which compare with a previous sale price of $4,500. The seat of W. S. Dowdell was sold to T. K. Evans and that of J. J. Carlee to Clarence H. Heaume for $4,500 each. F. R. Henderson, President of the Exchange, paid $5,000 for the seat of H. Hollaseh, which was purchased for the General Rubber Company.

Niagara Power Income.

Net income for the first quarter of 1926 of the Niagara Falls Power Company was $721,594 after all charges, as compared with $708,152 in the corresponding period of the preceding year. The 1926 quarterly earnings are equal, after preferred dividends, to 50 cents a share on 721,152 shares of common stock, as compared with 58 cents a share on 714,940 shares of common in the same period of 1925.

HEAVY SALES CAUSE DECLINE IN COTTON

Prices Drop One-quarter of a Cent and New Crop Positions Reach Year's Low Levels.

NEW ORLEANS THE LEADER

Increased Pressure Causes Southern Market to Head the General Movement Downward.

Less rainfall occurred in Southern States than for some time and predictions for fair, warmer weather developed yesterday the heaviest selling movement experienced in cotton in several weeks. After holding comparatively steady for several hours, pressure of liquidation forced quotations off one-quarter of a cent, with final prices 17 to 27 points lower than Thursday. Though the covering demand for May contracts furnished resistance, buying failed to counteract improvement in weather prospects, and all new crop positions went into new low territory for the year. January sold below 16¾ cents, while both October and December changed hands at lower quotations than were reached during the decline in the early part of March.

New Orleans led the day's downward movement as a direct result of increased Southern pressure at that centre. The recent lowering of differences of high grades reflected a desire on the part of holders to secure a market at a lower price basis. With planting operations under way as far north as the Carolinas, Southern advices have reported increased offerings of cotton still on hand from last season's production. Dealers have bought lower grades in the interior, and in many instances have been selling contracts as hedges against at least 50 per cent. of the cotton purchased.

The demand for May sold obligations in that month were reduced, proved the main support of the market. Scale orders in the new crop were on a diminished volume compared with the buying for both domestic and foreign account at the same price level six weeks ago. After December orders at 17 cents and those in October at 17¼ cents had been filled, persistent weakness in New Orleans carried quotations steadily lower the last hour and caused lowest prices of the session in closing dealings.

Week-end figures showed 112,000 bales in sight, against 82,000 last year, making 15,129,000 for the season against 14,021,000 last year. Spinners took 208,000, against 220,000 last year, bringing the total for the season to 12,151,000, against 11,971,000 a year ago. The visible supply decreased 96,000, as against 137,000 last year, leaving the world's supply of American 4,101,000, compared with 3,302,000 a year ago.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

EASTERN WOOL TRADE CONTINUES SLOW

Falling Prices and Keen Competition the Present Ruling Influences.

BOSTON, April 16.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: "The Eastern wool markets continue very quiet. Apparently there is nothing in the immediate outlook to give anyone much confidence. Business at the mills is slow and generally unsatisfactory. All along the line, buying is hand-to-mouth and consequently competition is all the keener with narrower profits and frequently mills sell without profit to keep their organizations intact.

"In the West, buying has been less general and a smaller volume of wool has been sold. In Montana, 36 cents has been paid, partly on manufacturers' account for bulk half-blood clips, although most growers have been firmly asking 40 cents. In other sections there has been little change. One or two choice clips in Nevada and Texas have been purchased at a half-cent advance in the grease, but probably at satisfactory clean costs. Some buyers have withdrawn virtually from the market, quoting lower prices.

"The foreign markets are fairly steady on merinos and fine crossbreds, while medium to low crossbreds are easier, prices being down a half cent on tops."

HULSWIT QUITS SUPERPOWER

Frank T. Hulswit, who resigned as President of the United Light and Power Company following a failure in market operations involving the company's stock, has resigned from the Board of American Superpower Corporation, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. Hulswit also had resigned from the presidency of the Brooklyn Borough Gas Company and from the boards of other utilities controlled by the United Light and Power Company. He has retained his controlling interest in the American States Securities Corporation, which he organized in December for general investments.

LITERARY FOLK TILT ON COPYRIGHT BILL

Publishers and Authors Oppose Scientists and Educators at House Body Hearing.

IMPORT BAN STORM CENTRE

Restriction on Buying Books Abroad Would Impede Education and Research, Opponents Hold.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Book publishers, librarians and university men sparred back and forth today in the hearing before the House Patents Committee over the merits of the Vestal Copyright bill and the restriction it would impose on the importation of foreign prints of books on which American publishers own rights. When the librarians insisted that they should have English prints for their particular uses, the publishers assailed such ideas as "snobbish" and not in good faith.

Scientists, linguists, librarians and university professors used the early part of the hearing to attack the importation provision.

Dr. M. L. Raney of Johns Hopkins University, appearing on behalf of the American Library Association, wanted to revise the sections involved so as to leave the law as at present.

The publishers then assailed the proposed revision, and the day's session ended with the bill receiving a few more endorsements from the literary world.

Gene Buck, President of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, endorsed the bill, saying that the music writers were enthusiastically in favor of the automatic copyright provision and the plan to enter the International Copyright Union.

Others who appeared to endorse the bill were Clifford P. Smith of Christian Science Publications, Frederick G. Melcher of New York City, Eustace Seligman, representing counsel for the National Association of Book Publishers, and Karl W. Kirshwey, representing the Hearst interests.

Melcher Attacks Cost Plea.

Mr. Seligman said that the clause to which the librarians objected would not prevent them from obtaining English copies.

Mr. Melcher said there was little or no difference in the cost of English and American prints when the 25 per cent. discounts given by American publishers were considered. The plea of exorbitant prices was unreasonable, he maintained.

The educators painted a picture of young America's education being neglected, scientific research being hampered and development being impeded if the bill were to pass in its present form.

"The buyer for libraries and the student are interested in the original copies and not reprints," Dr. Raney declared.

"Do you mean to say," asked Representative Sol Bloom, Democrat, of New York, "that libraries in this country would prefer to buy their books abroad to purchasing works produced by the people of this country when those libraries themselves are supported by these people?"

Dr. Raney insisted that the libraries and classical students must have the originals. He added that it would be a physical impossibility for the New York customs to handle the volumes imported from England, check them to see if American copyrights were held and ascertain whether there was a stock of them on sale in this country.

Dr. William Mather Lewis, President of George Washington University, appearing on behalf of the Association of Urban Universities, including Columbia and the College of the City of New York, also said there would be difficulty in administering the importation clause.

Dr. Lewis Sees Science Injured.

Dr. Lewis declared that 75 per cent. of the world's research in science was being done by scientists supported by the universities of this country, and that any restriction such as the importation clause, through the delays involved, would deprive them of an opportunity to keep abreast of developments which foreign research workers would enjoy.

Objection to the automatic copyright provision was voiced by Dr. Harrison E. Howell, representing the American Chemical Society. He said that this feature presented an important problem particularly in the preparation of scientific magazines, in the editing of which he is engaged.

The Archaeological Institute of America, the College Art Association and American Philosophical Association were represented by Dr. David M. Robinson.

The importation clause would prove a great impediment to education," he asserted. "Students and university professors always want the English edition to see exactly what the author says. In the American reprints there might be typographical errors."

Dr. E. M. Curtis, representing the President of Goucher College and the Association of American Colleges, also opposed the proposed restriction of purchases abroad.

"We have various views on diplomatic isolation, but I do not think we want a policy of intellectual isolation," said Dr. Curtis.

Others who appeared were Truman Michelson, representing the Linguists' Society; John C. French of Johns Hopkins University, representing the Modern Languages Association; Dr. Henry G. Doyle, representing the American Association of University Professors; Henry B. Bernard of the American Historical Association; Joy E. Morgan of the National Educational Association and Charles R. Mann of the American Council of Education.

UNIONS PLEDGE $50,000.

Daily Forward Promises $10,000 in Jewish Campaign.

The United Jewish Campaign announced yesterday that the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America had pledged $50,000 of the $6,000,000 to be sought here between April 25 and May 9. The Jewish Daily Forward pledged $10,000.

The unionists took their action after a speech by David A. Brown, Chairman of the campaign, who told of the plight of workmen in Poland and elsewhere in Europe. Other speakers were Jacob Billikopf, Colonel Herbert Lehman, Joseph Schlossberg, B. C. Vladeck and Abraham Beckerman. Five additional industries were organized yesterday.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—6¼ per cent. for the best names. Thursday—6¼ per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Garment Activity Still Lacking.

The ready-to-wear market continues to maintain a rather quiet pace. Reordering by retailers has continued restricted in comparison with the improvement that was expected. Much of the Spring business that has been lost is permanently gone, according to some coat and suit wholesalers, who agree that concessions in Spring merchandise at both wholesale and retail will shortly be the order of the day. The distinct Summer season plan, which will be inaugurated by the Fashion Show at the Hotel Commodore on Tuesday night is expected to make for a more stable market than otherwise would prevail, but its application will be confined more to the stimulation of purchases of new and specialized offerings of silk dresses, silk coats and accessories for distinct Summer wear.

Printed Cottons Still Selling.

Although the refusal of the weather to warm up has taken some of the edge off the demand for printed cottons in this market, a nice business in them, especially in percales in small patterns, is still being done. The individual orders are smaller than they were, but in the aggregate the jobbers are buying freely enough to keep the facilities of the printers well engaged. The break that has taken place in printed silks for the current season has apparently not affected cotton goods of this kind as yet, and there seems to be no great fear in the trade that it will. In some quarters the temporary slowing up in buying of printed cottons has not been altogether unwelcome, in that it affords an opportunity for the printers to catch up a little on deliveries.

Gray Goods Were Inactive.

Not a great deal was done in the local gray goods market yesterday. Printcloth sales were largely confined to spots, although there was some buying for May 38½-inch 64-60s at 7¾ cents. Spots of that construction brought an eighth more. Other spot printcloth sales included 39-inch 68-72s at 8¾ cents, and 38½-inch 60-48s at 6¾ cents. Not much was done in the sheetings, so far as the different constructions traded in were concerned, but a nice business in May-July deliveries of 36-inch 6.15-yard sheetings was reported at 6 cents. The fine-yarn cloths lacked snap and feature, and the same was true of the heavier goods and specialties.

Silk Market Marks Time.

The reasoning advanced for delayed openings of Fall broad silks continues to gain ground and there will be few, if any, openings of important lines until the end of this month. While the later demand that was anticipated for Spring silks has not yet made itself felt strongly, wholesalers continue to express confidence in the outlook for a concentrated demand when the weather becomes more settled. The overstocked condition of the market in prints has been corrected somewhat by both liquidation of goods on hand and curtailment of production so that, if there is even a fair later call for prints, the season is expected to wind up with "clean" stocks of these goods.

Neckwear Demand is Active.

Neckwear continues to be one of the most active items in men's haberdashery. Reorders from retailers have been coming through steadily for new patterns and colorings. Foulards lead in the fabric preferences of most retailers, although faille and crepes are also selling well. Bright colors which, however, are not quite as vivid as those of last Spring, hold most interest, with stripes and neat figured effects leading in the patterns. A nice business in Fall tie silks has been booked by the tie silk mills.

Added Attention to Camel's Hair.

Featuring of camel's hair weaves as women's wear sports fabrics for Fall by one of the leading style mills is considered a significant development. The adaptability of the cloths to sports and travel wear is beyond question, as they possess qualities of durability, softness and warmth that entitle them to rank high. Their introduction by this mill will serve to give them more attention than they have received in the past, although one well-known producer of camel's hair cloths has been selling them to the women's wear trade for a number of years. It is predicted that, with the example set, a number of other mills will also offer such materials, with the indications being that "camel's hair" is likely to be the sports watchword for Fall.

Topcoat Sales Show Up Better.

With more favorable selling weather during the past week, the demand for men's topcoats has taken a spurt. This has been felt to some extent in the re-order business coming from retailers, but manufacturers believe the bulk of such business is yet to come. The straightline topcoat is the style that is selling best in the larger cities, it was said, with the soft-finished cloths and, to some extent, tweeds having consumer preference. In many garments the large plaid or check of a bright contrasting color on a bluish-gray ground has taken well in the patterns.

Short Skirts Hit "Boot" Hose.

The continuance of the vogue for short skirts is having a noticeable effect on the demand for "boot" hose in this market. It is especially marked in rayon goods, which, because of the attractive prices at which they can be sold over the counter, have a wide distribution. It was said yesterday in the trade that hose made with less than a 20-inch "boot" are now dragging badly, and a case was cited in which one 17-inch "boot" number had lately been reduced from $2.50 a dozen to $1.95 without jobbing buyers making much effort to get them. As these goods are in the gray, to be dyed any colors the buyer may specify, it is apparent that their failure to sell at the original figure was not due to the colors being wrong. Twenty-inch "boot" hose are having a fair demand, but the best call is for the 22-inch numbers. Even the latter have not been in overwhelming demand of late, as is shown by the cut that was recently made in standard goods of this type from $3.35 a dozen to $3.15.

Burlap Market is Very Dull.

The local market for burlaps has been duller during the last few days than for some time past. Although, statistically, there is plenty of reason for firmness of prices at present, actually there has been a decline of a quarter of a cent a yard in both light and heavy standard burlaps in the last week or so. Buyers are holding off in anticipation of still lower prices, and important bids are altogether lacking. Futures especially are neglected, as important users of burlaps can see no need of buying goods for distant shipments at prices similar to those asked for spots. Cables from Calcutta yesterday reported that market very quiet and off about 25 points from the week's opening quotations. Standard 40-inch spot burlaps were quoted in the local market by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc., at 7.05 cents for 8-ounce goods and 9½ cents for 10½-ounce cloths. April and April-June shipments from Calcutta were quoted, respectively, at 7 and 9½ cents.

No Great Rush for Coal.

Nothing like the usual Spring rush for the domestic sizes of coal has yet appeared in the anthracite market. Seward's Journal will say today. Company coal continues to move in full volume, but the large producers are not sold so far ahead as they normally are at this time of the year. The result is that dealers are getting relatively prompt shipments on their orders and are not bidding against each other for outside tonnage. This has caused the independents to lower their quotations gradually, until now they are obtaining premiums of only 25 to 50 cents a ton, as a rule, over the circular. Even this small magin is offset by the necessity of accepting very low figures for their steam sizes. The cleaning up of distress coal at tidewater has progressed to a point where the tonnage standing at the local bituminous piers is little, if any, above what may be considered normal for this season of the year.

THE WEEK'S PRICE TREND.

One Striking Advance Put Potatoes Up to $10 Per Barrel.

Although there was again such a large excess of declines over advances in Dun's list of minimum wholesale commodities prices that there were almost two of the former to every one of the latter, there was a notable shrinkage in the number of changes in this week's list as compared with that of a week ago. Then there were 72 revisions, including 54 declines, while this week there were 32 declines in a total of 49 changes. One of the features was the upward tendency of prices for the more important foodstuffs. A notable advance was that in potatoes, which now stand at $10 a barrel.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

Of the seventeen changes in the foodstuffs this week, ten were advances. In the local market for provisions all of the changes in flour were upward. The fancy grade of Minnesota family flour led with a rise of 30 cents a barrel, while Spring patent and Winter soft straight flour each advanced 15 cents a barrel. Middle Western lard was lower here, but there was again no change in hams or bacon. At Chicago, mess pork, short ribs and live sheep showed no change, while live steers and hogs were higher.

Changes in the dairy products were few and unimportant. Extra creamery butter dropped a cent a pound, but there were no changes in the listed varieties of cheese. Fancy near-by eggs did not change, while fresh-gathered "firsts" were slightly lower. Prices all through this part of the list are now not very much different from those of a year ago, a spread of 4½ cents a pound on extra creamery butter being the largest margin between the two.

Changes in the listed fresh fruits were lacking this week, and the only revision in the dried ones was a drop in "40-50" California prunes in 25-pound boxes. In the vegetables the only decline was in choice white kidney beans, and the only advance was one of 50 cents a barrel in potatoes. This brought the price of the latter to $10 a barrel, against $3.25 at this time last year.

No. 7 Rio and No. 4 Santos coffees were both lower this week, but there were again no changes in the teas. Fluctuations in the spices consisted of declines in Zanzibar cloves, nutmegs and black Lampong pepper. There was a rise in 96-degree raw sugar, but fine granulated did not change.

Malting barley showed the only decline in the grains this week, with advances indicated in wheat, corn, oats and rye. The leather list was again quotably unchanged, and in hides the only change was a rise in Chicago city calfskins. Tallow went down.

No changes were seen in lumber this week, while in the building materials the only revision was a decline in Eastern spruce lath. In the metals the changes were evenly divided, with two each way. The advances occurred in zinc and tin, while the declines took place in valley furnace basic and Bessemer pig irons.

The combined lists for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils produced only seven advances and three declines. A slight break was seen in menthol, in case lots, which now costs only about half as much as it did at this time last year. The other changes in these lists were without feature. Turpentine declined, but there were no other revisions in the naval stores.

Both the best Brazilian and best plantation crude rubbers declined again this week. A drop of 50 cents a ton in foundry coke put it back where it was a year ago. Furnace coke has been at last year's level for several weeks. Hemp was lower, and the trend of wool was downward.

The week in the textiles was devoid of important features, although a leading line of wool sport fabrics for Fall was opened at reductions averaging 5 to 10 per cent.

ORDERS IMPORT CERTIFIED.

Czechoslovakia Bans Entry Unless Endorsed by Consulate.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, April 16 (AP).—Beginning April 21, the Czechoslovakian customs authorities will refuse entry to cereals, flour, vegetables and malt unless they are accompanied by certificates issued by the Chamber of Commerce of the exporting country endorsed by the Czechoslovak Consulate.

The measure is directed especially against Argentina and Canada, which countries have imposed extra duties on Czechoslovak merchandise.

For the time being transatlantic consignments arriving without certificates will be referred to the Ministry of Commerce, which will decide whether they will be admitted or excluded.

DOMESTIC BUSINESS CONTINUES TO GAIN

Commerce Department Finds Trade Increasing Over April of Last Year.

COAL OUTPUT IS LARGER

Cotton, Wool, Oil and Lumber Receipts Higher—Stock Prices Advance Over 1925.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Continued gains in domestic business and industry for the first two weeks of April over the same period of the previous year are shown by figures reported to the Department of Commerce. The volume of distribution during the first half of April as seen from carloadings and check payments was larger than in any other comparable period.

The output of bituminous coal and beehive coke during the first week of April was larger than a year ago, while lumber production and the volume of new building contracts awarded recorded similar changes from the corresponding week of 1925. Receipts of hogs at the principal primary markets during the first week of April were larger than a year ago, while the receipts of cattle and wheat recorded declines.

Cotton receipts in sight during the first two weeks of the current month were larger than during the corresponding period of 1925. The production of crude petroleum during the first week of April also recorded an increase over the corresponding period last year.

Receipts of wool at Boston during the first two weeks of April were about twice as large as during the same period of 1925. Exports of wheat and wheat flour on the other hand were running considerably below their respective movements of the preceding year.

Prices of stocks on the New York Exchange during the second week of April recorded an advance from the low points of the preceding week and averaged almost 10 per cent. above the corresponding week of the previous year.

Average prices for corporation bonds were higher than in any previous week during the last three years with the exception of the week ending Feb. 27, 1926, which equaled the current average quotation. The volume of shares sold on the New York Stock Exchange during the first two weeks of April was about 50 per cent. larger than during the same period of 1925, while bond sales during the same period were smaller in volume than a year ago.

Interest rates on New York call loans were higher than last year, while time money rates ruled easier than a year earlier. Wholesale prices continued to average lower, being about 5 per cent. below a year ago. The number of firms failing during the first two weeks of April was 4 per cent. smaller than a year ago.

MERCHANTS TO GREET FOREIGN EDITORS

Will Go to Philadelphia to Meet Visitors—Mayor Will Also Welcome Them.

More than one hundred owners and editors of newspapers in twenty countries in Central and South America and the West Indies are scheduled to arrive here on Monday as guests of the Merchants' Association. The newspaper men have been attending the first Pan-American Congress in Washington. They will remain in New York City until Friday.

Special Pullmans will be awaiting the visitors in Philadelphia, where members of the General Reception Committee of 240 persons, headed by Lincoln Cromwell, will meet them. They are due at the Pennsylvania Station at 6 P. M. and will go to the Commodore. At 9 P. M. the journalists will be guests at a reception, vaudeville show and supper in the hotel ballroom.

Mayor Walker will address them on Tuesday at the City Hall, and then they visit the station of the Radio Corporation of America and the Stock Exchange. A luncheon by The Associated Press will be held in the Waldorf at noon; the visitors will visit the Hispanic Museum in the afternoon and at night will be the guests of the publishers of the New York daily newspapers at the Park Lane.

On Wednesday morning they will visit the plant of THE NEW YORK TIMES and will be guests at luncheon of Adolph S. Ochs, going later to attend the annual meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association at the Waldorf. After the performance at the Hippodrome the Latin-American journalists will visit the plant of The New York Herald Tribune. A breakfast to be given by the American Association of Advertising Agencies and a luncheon by the Pan-American Society of the United States, both at the Commodore, will fill the forepart of Thursday. In the afternoon the visitors will go around Manhattan Island by boat. On Thursday night a dinner in their honor will be held by the Merchants' Association in the Biltmore. Friday morning the delegates will go by motor to the West on a trip arranged by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

Serbia Decorates General Bliss.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The King of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes has awarded to Majo. Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, retired, the Grand Order of St. Sava in recognition of "eminent service" rendered to that country. As an officer of the army, General Bliss is prohibited from receiving any decoration or medal from a foreign Government. Secretary of War Davis, however, has directed that a notation be made on his army record. General Bliss is now serving as Governor of the Soldiers' Home in Washington.

Jewelry Peddler Acquitted.

Joseph Jaffe, 39 years old, a jewelry peddler, was acquitted yesterday by a jury in Judge Mulqueen's part of General Sessions on a charge of criminally receiving $2,000 in antique Spanish jewelry which had been stolen from the home of Mrs. William Astor Chanler at 141 East Nineteenth Street. Frank Gorsky, a window cleaner, arrested for the theft, was alleged to have involved Jaffe as the man to whom he sold the jewels for $30. Jaffe contended that the jewelry was not worth the value put on it by Mrs. Chanler and said he purchased it from Gorsky in good faith.

BUSINESS RECORDS

FAILURES FOR THE WEEK.

BRADSTREET'S reports 239 failures for the week in the United States, as compared with 227 for the previous week, 208 for the corresponding week in 1925, and 246 for the corresponding weeks 1924 to 1922. The New England States had 20; Middle, 81; Western, 83; Southern, 49; Pacific Western, 26. Canada had 44, against 46. In the Dominion 71.5 per cent. of the concerns failing had $5,000 capital or less and 12.5 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

118,000 MURDERERS FREE, SAYS JURIST

Technicalities Must No Longer Shield Criminals, Declares Judge Kavanagh of Chicago.

METAL TRADES MEET HERE

There are at large in the United States 118,000 men and women murderers who have never been brought to justice, Marcus Kavanagh, Judge of the Superior Court of Chicago, declared last night at the annual dinner of the National Metal Trades Association at the Hotel Astor. There were in this country last year, he said, more than 10,000 criminal homicides as compared with 100 in England. Speakers at the meeting preceding the dinner were Representative Ogden L. Mills, whose subject was "The Real Tax Problem in the United States"; John W. O'Leary, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. William J. Spillman of the Department of Agriculture.

Judge Kavanagh declared that the lawlessness in this country today was unparalleled in the history of civilization. "There is no mystery as to why we have so much crime," he said. "Evil-minded men in the United States have no respect for the law, because their experience has been that they need have little fear of its penalties.

"The time has arrived when precedents, forms of practice, pleading and procedure must no longer be allowed to shield the criminal."

Representative Mills criticised sharply Governor Smith's program of borrowing for State improvements as contrasted with the "pay as you go" plan. Comparing the economies of the Federal Administration with those of the State and local Governments, he declared that the Federal Government had reduced taxes at the rate of $1,000,000,000 a year. He said this saving to the taxpayer was virtually wiped out by the action of States and localities, which have been increasing their expenditures at the rate of $1,250,000,000 a year.

Mr. O'Leary, speaking on the contribution of management to American industry, declared that scientific principles of business management had vastly increased production and facilitated distribution, largely through their application to labor problems. "To transfer the viewpoint of labor from that of opposition to the employer," he said, "into one of cooperation and enthusiasm for the product is not only possible but is being realized daily."

The remedy for the problems confronting agriculture is through a balance of productiton to the market demand, said Dr. Spillman. Overproduction of corn, oats, hay and beef, he declared, is the real reason for present agitation by the farmer. The Department of Agriculture, he pointed out, is attempting to give farmers advance information on market conditions at the time of planting.

Mrs. Margaret B. Benson of the Women's Department of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, speaking on "Women in Industry," asserted that a number of women's organizations had become the dupes of international socialistic propagandists, and have directly or indirectly become agents for communism in schools, churches and social groups throughout the country.

Other speakers included W. Irving Bullard, Vice President of the Merchants National Bank of Boston, whose subject was "The Problems of International Finance"; Dr. Clarence H. Robertson, who spoke on "Scientific Advance in China," and Virgil Jordon of the National Industrial Conference Board, speaking on "The Nub of the Agriculture Situation."

SENATORS ASSAIL BUILDINGS MEASURE

Democrats Refuse Unanimous Consent to Consider the $165,000,000 Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The $165,000,000 public buildings bill, which is believed to have the approval of President Coolidge, replaced the Italian debt settlement in the Senate today. A fight on the measure was tarted by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi and other Democrats, who criticized it as "political" in character.

Senator Fernald of Maine, in charge of the bill, declared the proposed expenditure of money was intended to save the Government from paying out annual rents aggregating nearly $25,000,000. He asked unanimous consent to consider the measure, but Senator Harrison made objection and the motion was then made to set aside the debt settlement, on which there has been an agreement to vote next Wednesday.

The last Public Buildings bill of a general character was passed in 1913. Senator Fernald called attention to the enormous growth since that time of the public business in post offices and other Government branches.

Rents in the District of Columbia amount to more than $1,000,000 and in the country at large to more than $23,000,000. Not all of these would be saved, he said, but the money would be applied where emergencies exist.

Of the total carried by the bill $50,000,000 would be for buildings in the District of Columbia and $115,0000,000 outside. Of the latter sum, $15,000,000 is for the purpose of completing projects authorized in 1913.

Democratic objectors complained that the remaining $100,000,000, which is in the form of an omnibus bill, would not be apportioned fairly.

"If we continue renting much longer," said Senator Fernald "the realtors of the country will own the country."

Asked by Senator Simons of North Carolina, how the sum carried in the bill was determined upon, Senator Fernald said it was "about all that the President would stand for."

"The Senator said it was all the President would stand for?" asked Senator Harrison.

"About all," Senator Fernald replied.

"And as to the method of spending," asked Senator Harrison, "is that the only method the people would stand for."

He asked why the long practice of having Congress, instead of the Treasury Department, direct the places where the money was to go should be abandoned.

"You say to the Secretary of the Treasury," he added, "here is so much money, go to it. The elections are coming on."

Senator Fernald replied that $15,000,000 of the sum carried out the plan worked out by a Democratic President, a Democratic Administration and a Democratic Secretary of the Treasury. This would take care of sixty-five buildings.

"Certainly in view of that it cannot be charged we are playing politics," added Senator Fernald.

LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

WEST 75TH ST. SITE SOLD TO BUILDER

Jacob Axelrod Assembles Plot for a 15-Story Hotel to Cost $1,500,000.

DEAL FOR EAST SIDE PLOT

Builder Is Negotiating for East End Avenue Property—Apartment House Sales.

Jacob Axelrod has purchased 11 West Seventy-fifth Street from Charles P. Doelger. It is a lot 23 by 102 feet. Mr. Axelrod owns 15, 17 and 19 West Seventy-fifth Street, which together with No. 11 makes a plot of 89 by 102 feet, upon which he will erect a fifteen-story apartment hotel at a cost of $1,500,000 from plans of George F. Pelham, architect. Leroy Coventry was the broker in the transaction yesterday.

Henry Shapiro & Co., who recently acted as brokers in the sale of 73 and 75 East End Avenue, southeast corner of Eighty-third Street, to the Irrose Realty Corporation, a subsidiary of the Schulte Real Estate Company, Inc., have resold the property at a substantial profit to the Fidelio Realty Corporation.

The same brokers have also sold for Samuel Chase the adjoining property at 71 East End Avenue to the Fidelio Realty Corporation. These two purchases give the buyers a plot of 76.2 by 82 feet, improved with three four-story tenements and stores. A deal is now pending for the resale of this plot to a builder.

Upholds $900,000 Gift to Agriculture

The Appellate Division upheld yesterday the bequest made by Mrs. Elizabeth Bice Frasch, widow of Herman Frasch, for many years President of the Union Sulphur Company, of her residuary estate, valued at $900,000, toward chemical research to aid agriculture in the United States. Mrs. Frasch in recognition of her husband's interest in agricultural chemistry, gave the bulk of her estate to the United States Trust Company, which was directed to consult with the American Chemical Society, and choose a number of institutions or organizations to receive the income from the fund for agricultural chemical research.

Ends Litigation Over Tinker Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., April 16.—Surrogate Robert S. Pelletreau of Suffolk County today decided in favor of Edward L. Tinker of 449 Park Avenue, New York City, and East Setauket in the litigation over the estate of Miss Annie R. Tinker, who died in London in February, 1924. By the Surrogate's decision the valuation of the 500 shares of the Tinker Realty Corporation was placed as of the date of Miss Tinker's death, and the executors of the estate, Edward L. Tinker and William W. Lancaster, a New York attorney, were instructed to proceed with the administration.

23-Story Office Building For a Broadway Corner

A twenty-three-story store and office building will be erected on the northwest corner of Broadway and Thirty-seventh Street as the result of plans filed yesterday with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings. It is estimated that the improvement will cost $1,900,000.

The proposed building will occupy a plot measuring 104 by 195 feet. The owner of record is given as Mary A. Fitzgerald of Paris, France. The plans were filed by Buchman & Kahn, the architects.

PRIVATE HOUSE SALES.

Buyer to Occupy Residence in the Chelsea Section—Other Deals.

In the Chelsea section R. Telfair Smith, Inc., sold for Katherine L. Arrowsmith the four-story and basement brick and brownstone private residence at 475 West Twenty-second Street to a client for occupancy.

E. Ornstein, Inc., bought the four-story private dwelling at 435 East Eighty-fourth Street.

The Hines Realty Company sold for Henry Peters 415 West 148th Street to Ellen M. Soderberg. This is a dwelling, 18 by 100 feet.

The same company sold for Dr. Thomas Lawton 19 West Seventieth Street to Dr. Econon. After extensive alterations Dr. Econon will occupy.

The same brokers sold for Clarence C. Rohmedder to Adolfo Arena 620 West 158th Street, 25 by 100 feet, a dwelling.

Porter & Co. sold for Charles H. Dix to a client for occupancy the three-story brownstone dwelling at 79 West 113th Street, adjoining the corner of Lenox Avenue.

THE BROOKLYN MARKET.

Six Two-Family Houses Sold on East Ninth Street.

Green & Co., as agents for the Greenspec Homes Corporation, have sold six two-family houses on East Ninth Street, between Avenues U and V; 2,164 East Ninth Street was sold to S. Lipshutz, 2,168 to Jacob Wasserman, 2,170 to H. Schnasky, 2,173 to Nathan Seckler, 2,180 to Sarah Rothfield and 2,184 to Max Axelrod.

Bulkley & Horton Company sold the three-story and basement brick dwelling, on a lot 16.6 by 75 feet, at 288 De Kalb Avenue, between Clinton and Vanderbilt Avenues, for George F. Klack to a client for occupancy.

Frank J. Penza sold his two-family house at 1,291 East Seventh Street to Isidore Jacobs. Charles Gonikman & Son were the brokers.

The same brokers also sold to David Seidel the one-family house at 1,488 East Twenty-seventh Street for the Trachson Building Corporation.

EAST SIDE "CO-OPS" SOLD.

William T. Dewart to Live at Park Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street.

William T. Dewart, who recently succeeded to the presidency of the various enterprises of the late Frank Munsey, has purchased through Ewing & Ives, Inc., and Albert B. Ashforth, Inc., an apartment of fourteen rooms and six baths in the cooperative apartment house to be erected at the northwest corner of Park Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street. Mr. Dewart's apartment will be on the top floor of the building.

Potter, Hamilton & Butler, Inc., have sold for the Thomas Holding Corporation a twelve-room apartment on the eighth floor in Beekman Mansion, a new 100 per cent. cooperative apartment house at 439 East Fifty-first Street. The purchasers are Mr. and Mrs. David I. Mackie. Brown, Wheelock; Harris, Vought & Co. represented the selling syndicate.

Three Babylon Tracts Sold.

Dr. Roy Henline bought through the James R. Nolan Company, Inc., a tract of about twenty-five acres fronting on Great South Bay, near Babylon. The price paid was reported as $25,000. The same brokers also sold a tract of thirty acres of meadow land near Babylon to the Restel Realty Corporation for $35,000. The Levy-Meyers Syndicate also purchased through the same brokers a sixteen and one-half acre tract in Babylon for $21,000.

Investors Buy Vacant Queens Plots.

The Laurel Hill Estates, in conjunction with the Hub Realty, have sold the southwest corner of Broadway and Fifth Street, Queens, a plot 56 by 100 feet, to an investor, making the second sale within a week. They also sold a triangular plot at the southeast corner of Grand Avenue and Twenty-fifth Street, Queens, to a client for investment.

Lessee to Alter East Side House.

Pease & Elliman have sold for Joseph G. Abramson his lease of the four-story and basement, 23-foot dwelling at 999 Madison Avenue, adjoining the southeast corner of Seventy-sixth Street, to Mrs. Helen Brickner, who will alter the dwelling into a studio and apartment building and occupy part of it.

SUBURBAN ACREAGE A FEATURE OF SALES

Potter Tract in East Hampton Bought by Developers for Residential Subdivision.

WESTCHESTER ESTATE SOLD

Long Island and Westchester acreage took a prominent place in suburban transactions yesterday. Long Island buyers showed a preference for tracts in the vicinity of the Hamptons, where there has been much activity of late.

In the west end of the incorporated Village of East Hampton the East End Development Company has purchased for $90,000 a forty-five-acre tract formerly owned by E. C. Potter. The property is near the Atlantic Ocean and Georgica Lake. The buyers plan a residential development in keeping with the homes and estates surrounding the tract. R. C. Payne & Co. negotiated the sale.

The same brokers also sold for Charlotte Thiele a large plot fronting 400 feet on the Montauk highway and 300 feet on the Town Line Road, Wainscott. John Montgomery and others were the buyers. The reported price was $12,000. The same brokers also sold a tract of thirty-one acres in Queens for A. B. Hallock to Harry A. Bonuck.

In West Hampton Theodore D. Berman, President of the Berkel Realty Company, purchased a tract of twenty-two acres at a reported price of $5,000 an acre. The property adjoins the holdings of the Berkel Realty Company at Brooklyn and Eagle Avenues, Lakeview.

There was also a good demand for large vacant parcels in Nassau and Queens Counties. In Mill Neck the estate of Gabrielle W. Murdock sold through the office of Warren Murdock a tract of three and one-half acres improved with a remodeled Colonial farmhouse and outbuildings. The plot is on Beaver Lake, opposite the Beaver Dam Winter Sports Club.

Edward and Louis Schacher have purchased the block at Malba Drive and Twenty-first Street, Malba, L. I., adjoining the Malba Station of the Long Island Railroad, where they will erect five stores and seven apartments. Samuel S. Pollick, architect and builder of Woodmere, has been engaged to start work immediately. The erection of these stores and apartments will give to Malba its first stores.

The Twentieth Century Holding Company, Reuben R. Krefetz, President, purchased from the Camet Construction Company for improvement fifteen lots on the north side of Bay, Twentieth Street, Bensonhurst, with a frontage of 312 feet, upon which it will erect fifteen two-family houses. Morse & Flicker acted as brokers in the transaction.

Cross & Brown Co. sold the block front on the north side of Polk Avenue, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets, Jackson Heights, to a New York builder, who intends to erect a high-class six-story elevator garden apartment covering the entire plot. Construction is to be started at once.

The Morrose Holding Corporation sold the business plot, 100 by 123 feet, on the southwest corner of Greenpoint Avenue and Carolin Street, Long Island City, to a New York investor, who has resold to a local builder for improvement with stores and apartments. The Hub Realty Company was the broker in both transactions.

Van Rensselaer Estate Sold.

Stephen Van Rensselaer has sold his twenty-seven acre estate in Briarcliff-Ossining Hills to a client of Yates & Gary, the brokers who negotiated the sale. The property is improved with a Colonial farmhouse built before the Revolution. There are also a garden-er's cottage, garage, greenhouse and other outbuildings on the property. The estate joins the property of Miss Jeanne Eagles.

The Owners Equity Bonds, Inc., have purchased a plot 400 by 175 feet between Palmer Avenue and Pondfield Road West, overlooking the Bronx River Parkway and within three minutes' walking distance of the Bronxville station. The site will be improved immediately with a high-class elevator apartment house laid out in suites of from three to six rooms.

The Briarcliff Realty Company has sold seven lots at Briarcliff, in the Valentine Development, to Florence S. Jackson, one on Larch Road, three on Simpson Road and three on Jackson Road, which fronts on the new Briarcliff-Peekskill Parkway Route. Sarah E. Putney has purchased a one-half-acre site on Birch Road, two lots on Oak Street and one on State Road in the same development.

Mary S. Fisher sold her residence, on a large plot on Walworth Avenue, Greenacres, Westchester County, to a New York business man, who will occupy immediately. George Howe, Inc., were the brokers.

Investor Buys Elmhurst Manor Lots

The Queensboro Corporation has sold to an investor eighty-five lots fronting on Thirty-second, Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets, Grand and Astoria Avenues, Elmhurst Manor.

CITY BREVITIES.

The Lotos Club has issued invitations to a Ladies' Day entertainment at the clubhouse, 110 West Fifty-seventh Street, on Thursday afternoon, April 29.

The International Trade Press, Inc., moved its Eastern offices yesterday from 15 Park Row to 239 Park Avenue at Forty-sixth Street. Charles W. Price, Chairman of the Board of the publishing house, has had his office on Park Row for forty-one years.

The State Board of the Daughters of the Revolution meeting at the Astor yesterday discussed plans for the convention which will be held at the Sesquicentennial Exposition at Philadelphia. The D. A. R. will have a float in the Educational Building from June 1 to Dec. 1.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16.—The anticyclone that was central over the Lake region Thursday night is moving over Quebec, with an extension southward to the North Carolina coast. Generally, the pressure is low from the Rocky Mountains eastward to the Atlantic coast. Precipitation has occurred during the past twenty-four hours in the Lake region, the Ohio Valley, the lower lake region and the Middle Atlantic and the North Atlantic States and slightly higher in the Southern States (Key West), and it will not change materially Sunday except in the Carolinas and Southern Virginia, where cooler weather will prevail.

Observer-Wind Warnings Cautionary.

In the following record of observations at United States Weather Bureau stations yesterday, the temperatures given are the highest during the twelve hours from 8 A. M. to 8 P. M. and the lowest during the preceding twelve hours from 8 P. M. to 8 A. M.; the barometer reading and condition of weather are those recorded at 8 P. M., and the rainfall is for the twenty-four hours ended at 8 P. M. All report large passenger lists.

SPAIN TO OPEN NEW SERVICE

José Luis Albarrin, personal representative of the Condé de Guell, President of the Spanish Royal Mail Line, announced yesterday at the offices of the Committee of Information Pro Espana, 41 Broad Street, details of the new monthly service between New York and Seville which will be inaugurated the first week of June.

The Manual Arnus, a new ship of 13,000 tons displacement, will start the service. Two other ships, slightly larger, are now under construction. The first of these will be ready in 1927.

The new service has been made possible by the recent completion of the Cadiz-Seville Canal, which was opened on the return of the Spanish airmen from South America on the Argentina battleship Buenos Aires. This canal makes Seville a seaport only three hours' sail from the ocean. According to Mr. Albarrin, much encouragement to the line's plans for attracting Americans to Spain was given by former Ambassador Alexander P. Moore.

Men's Spring Suits

Approved Styles!
New Weaves! New Colors!
Kirschbaum Tailoring

$45

It is really surprising how much quality can be concentrated into a man's suit at forty-five dollars. It can be done. We made a vigorous effort to excel all previous value-giving accomplishments at the price, in these spring suits produced by the Kirschbaum craftsmen.

And we succeeded in a measure that is quickly reflected in the clothes. The result is a new mark in value-giving. Styles, fabrics, patterns and needle-work, admittedly worthy of a higher price. Rich virgin wool weaves; many exclusive patterns, and colors in tune with the season.

KELLOGG PROPOSED NEUTRALIZED TACNA; CHILE SAID TO BALK

Washington Takes Serious View of Reported Rejection—Foresees New Complications.

PROPOSALS NOW GIVEN OUT

Secretary Suggested a Buffer State or Sale to a Nation Outside the Dispute.

FEARS OVER A PLEBISCITE

Conditions Make It Doubtful That Vote Will Settle the Long-Standing Quarrel.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—A press report from Chile today that the Chilean Government had rejected Secretary Kellogg's latest offer for an amicable adjustment of the long-standing dispute between Chile and Peru over the Tacna-Arica territory has disturbed the Administration greatly.

With official confirmation lacking, hope still exists here that the report has no substantial foundation. The fact remains, however, that the situation embodied in the Tacna-Arica controversy, with forty years of international bitterness to complicate it, is viewed with profound concern by the United States. This Government sees itself forced into an extremely embarrassing and delicate position should its current efforts at conciliation prove futile.

The Chilean press report brought important reaction from the State Department in its disclosure of the terms of the offer to the two South American disputants, which Chile is credited with having rejected.

Alternative Suggestions.

A peramentt communiqué issued this afternoon made known that after both Governments had rejected proposals from the United States that one of them surrender the disputed area to the other, with compensation to the nation relinquishing its claims, or that the disputed territory be divided between them, Secretary Kellogg asked Chile and Peru to accept either of the following suggestions:

"1. The territory of Tacna and Arica shall be constituted a neutralized State, either independent or under the protectorate of South American States as may be agreed, or

"2. The provinces of Tacna and Arica shall be transferred (upon an apportionment of equitable compensation, and appropriate economic arrangements, to be agreed upon) to a South American State not a party to these negotiations."

It is one or both of these two proposals that Chile is reported to have rejected. The hope that the press report is untrue is founded on the fact, also disclosed in the State Department communiqué, that the plan of neutralizing the Tacna-Arica area had been advanced by the Chilean delegate of the Plebiscitary Commission headed by General Pershing, and had come informally to Secretary Kellogg's notice from "Peruvian sources," to quote the communiqué.

Secretary Kellogg, as the communiqué sets forth, had noted in addition that the suggestion of setting up a buffer State in the Tacna-Arica district had been advanced informally by Chilean and Peruvian publicists "in such a manner as to lead him to believe that it might prove acceptable to both Chile and Peru."

Washington Views Affair Seriously.

How little interested Americans generally may be in the Tacna-Arica difficulties or indifferent to their consequences, the reported abortive ending of the effort at an amicable adjustment is a matter of the gravest character to the United States Government. Officials here are perturbed to a degree that probably will appear surprising to those Americans who will take the trouble to read what is published on the subject in the newspapers of Sunday morning.

It should not be understood that officials are discussing the situation freely. On the contrary, they have been showing and continue to show a marked reticence, born of a fervent desire to do nothing and say nothing that might in any way complicate their earnest effort to restore cordial relations between two important sister republics. In the welfare of these republics they have a deeply sympathetic interest and for their Governments and peoples the most friendly feeling.

With such sentiments animating them, it is patent that after two years of constant endeavor, initiated by Charles E. Hughes when Secretary of State, under the authority of President Coolidge, the Administration will be dismayed if it finds that the situation, instead of promising harmonious settlement, will be disturbing of South American tranquillity.

Fear Check to Latin Progress.

A phase of apparent concern to well-wishers of Latin-American progress is the fear that a futile outcome of the efforts of conciliation will engender a feeling in this country critical of the capacity for government of the nations to the south of the United States.

In recent years the tendency to revolutionary political disturbance and clashes between neighboring States has materially decreased and with that tendency the people of this country

Population of Paris Drops 25,000 Within Five Years

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Co.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 17.—Since 1921 the population of Paris has, contrary to expectation, declined. Within the twenty arrondissements of the city there are now, according to a census taken on March 7 last, 2,838,416 inhabitants, which is 25,000 less than was shown by the census of March 6, 1921.

This loss of population, however, is only an indication that Paris, following the example of all other cities, is spreading outward. Though the full results of the census in the suburban districts are not yet known there are indications here and there of an increase of more than 400,000.

20,000 WOMEN STIR LONDON BY PARADE

JEERING REDS PELT HORSES

But Whaddon Hunt Riders Keep Mounts in Control While Great Crowds Burst Into Cheers.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—Groans and hisses from groups of Red sympathizers mingled with the cheers from the crowds of the supporters of the Women's Guild of the Empire as a long procession of women, organized by the Guild in protest against strikes and lockouts, marched today through the fashionable West End of London to Albert Hall.

The 20,000 women marching under command of their "General," Mrs. Flora Drummond, reminded London vividly of the old suffrage days.

On the whole, they received a very friendly reception from the crowd. Underneath the Charing Cross Bridge, however, certain sections of the crowd started booing and some paper bags were thrown at several of the mounted demonstrators.

The riders were members of the famous Whadden Hunt and included Miss Betty Cater, who was bridesmaid at the Duchess of York's wedding. Some of the horses took fright when the paper bags were thrown at them, but superb handling by their capable riders prevented any untoward result.

Red Taunt Fails on Miners' Wives.

A good deal had been made of the fact that miners' wives were marching in the procession with the women of title. The Communists refused to believe it was anything but a demonstration planned and participated in by the upper class.

"Have you seen a miner's wife?" they demanded scornfully in intervals of singing "The Red Flag."

"Are you a miner's wife?" one Red asked a Whadden Hunt member.

"I should like to be," she answered smilingly.

There were in actual fact many hundreds of miners' wives in the procession. Accompanied by pipers, 3,000 Scotchmen were in line. Lancashire lassies wearing red roses and Yorkshire girls wearing the white rose, which linked this very modern demonstration with the days of Warwick, were among its picturesque elements.

90 Per Cent. Are Workers' Folk.

Fully 90 per cent. of the marchers were said to be wives and daughters of workingmen. They carried hundreds of banners. Some read: "Fair Sick of Strikes and Fits of Work." "Miners' Wives Want District Agreements," "The Strike is a Two-Edged Sword" and "The Only Solution of Unemployment Is Work."

The Duke of Hamilton's sister

MILLS, ACCUSED OF SELF-INTEREST, DROPS CLAIMS BILL

New Yorker Admits He Found He Was Interested in Payments as Garner Charged.

MEASURE'S FATE IN DOUBT

Mellon and 25 Representatives Also Accused of Personal Benefit in the Bill.

STATE POLITICS INVOLVED

Party Leaders Wonder What Will Happen if Mills Seeks the Governorship.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—As a result of an accusation made in the House today by Representative John N. Garner of Texas that Secretary Mellon is a stockholder in five corporations which have had awards from the Mixed Claims Commission, and an admission by Representative Ogden L. Mills of New York that he has interests in one company which would benefit from the Mills bill providing for an adjustment of German claims growing out of the war and a return to German nationals of seized property, the chances of action on the Mills bill at this time have been seriously threatened.

Mr. Mills announced in the House today that, following his discovery that one company in which he holds stock would receive money under his bill, he would have nothing more to do with the measure.

Mr. Garner, who denounced the Mills bill yesterday as a "stupendous steal," stated today that approximately twenty-five members were directly concerned in the Administration plan to effect a settlement of property claims with Germany, and that under the rules, owing to this personal interest, they would be barred from voting on it.

The Texan made a bitter attack on Secretary Mellon, asserting that the Mills bill was prepared in the Treasury, and he made pointed allusions in which he employed the phrase "legalized theft."

Disposed to Defer Action.

While a final decision has not yet been reached by the leaders, it was said there was a disposition among them, in view of the bad feeling provoked over the Mills bill and today's disclosures, that it would be better to defer action on the measure until a later day.

"When I returned to Washington after an absence of one day," said Mr. Mills in the House today, "my friend from Texas, Mr. Garner, informed me that in looking over the list of claimants who had received awards from the Mixed Claims Commission, and whose claims therefore were covered by the bill H. R. 10820, introduced by me, he found there was a company in which I was a director and stockholder.

"As soon as he called that matter to my attention I telephoned the office of the company in New York, and I found that the information of the gentleman from Texas was correct.

Seize Employe as Bootlegger In Buckner's Office Building

Charged with bootlegging among employes of the Government in the Federal Building, Alfred G. Thran of 143 Ocean Avenue, Amityville, L. I., was arrested yesterday by Postoffice Inspectors Brown and Looney. The inspectors said Thran operated a bootleg still in his home and brought the product to the Federal Building to sell it to his fellow-employes.

The investigation began as a result of suspicions by Government officers here that bootlegging was going on among employes for the benefit of other employes. Thran was taken before United States Attorney Emory S. Buckner, whose office is on the second floor of the Federal Building. He was then arraigned by Assistant United States Attorney John M. Harlan, head of Mr. Buckner's prohibition division. United States Commissioner Francis O'Neill released Thran on his own recognizance for a hearing Monday.

DATA ON CITY MILK GONE, HARRIS FINDS

He Discovers Letter Files of Monaghan's Secretary Have Been Rifled; Few Remain.

TWO CONFESSIONS BARED

Search Reveals Adulteration Went Unpunished—Results of Milk Seizures Are Told.

The letter files of Thomas J. Clougher, Secretary to Dr. Frank J. Monaghan, former Health Commissioner, have been rifled and out of the hundreds of letters he wrote during the two years he was in office less than a dozen still remain at the department. it was discovered yesterday by Dr. Louis I. Harris, present Health Commissioner, in the course of his investigation into the million-dollar bootleg milk scandal. Clougher was dismissed from the department by Dr. Harris on Jan. 8, immediately after he assumed charge.

Although the disappearance of the letters caused a momentary halt in the gathering of evidence yesterday, it was said that their loss was not regarded as vital and that leads already were in the possession of the investigators which, together with the confession of Harry Ingber, who has admitted extorting money from illicit milk dealers in return for furnishing them protection, will "insure the most satisfying results."

Calls Breach "a Lie."

Dr. Monaghan declared yesterday that reports of a breach between himself and former Mayor Hylan over the milk situation were "a lie." Notwithstanding this, evidence was discovered by Dr. Harris that the former Mayor did not entirely trust Health Department employes to make honest milk inspections and that, by his order, uniformed policemen had been drafted to do the work.

On going through the files, Dr. Harris found a copy of a letter written by former Commissioner Monaghan to Mr. Hylan on June 15, 1925. The letter recited that, by order of Mayor Hylan, twenty-four members of the Police Department had been assigned to collect samples of milk in the city. They were instructed, according to the letter, to choose their own places in the taking of samples.

The letter said thatfrom May 15 to May 29, 1925, these policemen collected 246 samples of cream, of which 4.23 per cent. were found to be adulterated. They also took 2,220 samples of milk and found that 94 of them had been tampered with. Dr. Monaghan asserted that from 1920 to 1924 the department had prosecuted 2,556 persons for milk violations, collecting $38,361 in fines. During the same period, he said, there had been 3,546 prosecutions for selling adulterated cream, in which fines aggregating $63,938 had been imposed. In 1923 and 1924, Dr. Monaghan wrote, the prosecutions and fines collected for milk violations were greater than they had been in previous years.

Two Confessions Found.

Dr. Harris's examination of the department files yesterday disclosed written confessions by two dealers connected with a large Queensborough corporation who admitted that they had brought cream into the city from unapproved and uninspected sources. Although this is regarded as a serious offense, Dr. Harris said he found an order from Dr. Monaghan addressed to James E. Thompson, Chief of the Division of Milk Inspection in the department, in which he was directed to notify the dealers that a "recurrence" of the violations would result in recommendations to the Board of Health that the permit of the corporation be revoked.

Fred W. Kautzman, a member of the Special Service Squad of the Department of Health, who is under suspension and who on Friday refused, on advice of counsel, to permit District Attorney John E. McGeehan of the Bronx to question him, yesterday declined to appear before Dr. Harris for examination. The refusal was based upon the advice of his counsel, Harry Vollmer Jr., he said.

It was announced by Dr. Harris that he had obtained evidence that dealers who have been smuggling bootleg milk into the city from unapproved sources have had railroad yard employes on their payrolls. He said he was centering this phase of the investigation at present on uninspected and adulterated milk coming from Long Island and Canada and milk smuggling along

DEMANDS ANOTHER $25,000

BROKEN PROMISE CHARGED

Counsel Say They Were Assured Bail Would Be $15,000 and Had It Ready for Court.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., April 17.—Albert Weisbord, textile strike leader, arrested on April 10, appeared in Court of Oyer and Terminer at Paterson today on a writ of habeas corpus, pleaded not guilty to four indictments, was released in $25,000 bail and was rearrested by Garfield authorities, who held him in $25,000 additional bail. Then, failing to produce the $25,000, he was locked up in the Bergen County Jail at Hackensack. Joseph Feder of Passaic, the lawyer who represented him at his arraignment before Recorder Richard J. Baker in Garfield, entered into a controversy with the Court, and at the conclusion of the hearing was forcibly ejected by Police Lieutenant Jacob Brown. This was after Feder had remarked that he would "rather be in Siberia than Garfield, N. J."

Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State under Woodrow Wilson, argued before Justice Charles Black in the Passaic County Court at Paterson that the bail of $30,000 in which Weisbord had been held since his arrest was excessive. Excessive bail, he contended, struck at the roots of American liberty. Prosecutor J. Willard Deyoe then announced that four indictments had been returned against the prisoner and asked the prisoner how he will plead to the indictments. The four indictments were headed "Conspiracy to overthrow government" and the fourth "inciting to riot."

Bail Fixed at $25,000.

Justice Black fixed bail at $10,000 on two and $2,500 on two, making the total $25,000. He fixed $10,000 for "inciting to riot." Security was furnished by Joseph Brodsky of the International Labor Defense, but when Weisbord was about to leave the county jail he found four Garfield police awaiting him.

"Something tells me you gentlemen have something to serve me," he remarked.

Three complaints alleging that on April 9 he had, at a strike meeting in Belmont Park, urged assault on non-striking workers and destruction of property, and that he had conspired with Clarence Miller Rubenstein to the same ends, were produced. He was escorted to Garfield by Captain Francis J. Boyle, Lieutenant John Pyott, witness against him in the complaints, and two detectives. Weisbord's appearance in the Passaic Court House was attended by a demonstration of strikers who blocked the centre and all passages of the building, and occupied all seats and standing space in the court room. He stood by while Justice Black heard the arraignment of a murder prisoner, and sentenced another who pleaded non vault to murder and a statutory offense.

Weisbord was escorted to the counsel's table by Sheriff Charles Morgan. The complaints were read in rapid fire style by Mr. Deye. Feder then got to his feet.

"This man was arrested at his office by police officers with no warrants or complaints," he said. "He was arrested on April 10 and the complaints presented today were dated April 12. The bail fixed by the Recorder of Passaic is most arbitrary and excessive. He is charged with inciting hostility to all government in that he introduced Bertram Wolf of the Communist Party at a meeting on Feb. 24. I would point out that introducing a man is no crime. Weisbord was a passive listener. The overt act, if any, was on the part of another person. Yet on this charge he

Recent Death Rate From Alcohol Highest Since 1917, Life Insurance Survey Shows

The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company issued from its headquarters at 1 Madison Avenue yesterday a statement that for the first three months of 1926 the 168 deaths from alcoholism among its 17,000,000 industrial policyholders represented a death rate of 3.9 per 100,000, the highest registered from that cause in any three-month period since 1917.

"These figures," the statement continues, "may be compared with 121 deaths and a death rate of 3 per 100,000 during the same quarter of last year. This represents a rise of nearly 30 per cent. For the first three months of 1924 the rate was 2.9 per 100,000.

"Deaths from cirrhoses of the liver, which is closely associated with alcoholism, numbered 314, with the rate of 7.3 per 100,000. This may be compared with 278 deaths and a rate of 6.9 for the corresponding quarter of 1925. For the same three months of 1924 deaths numbered 241 and the rate was 6.4.

"Since Jan. 1, 1922, a period of four years and three months, 1,825 deaths were charged to alcoholism among Metropolitan policyholders. Of these, 1,804 occurred among approximately 16,000,000 policyholders in the United States and the balance among approximately 1,000,000 Canadians insured in the company's industrial department.

"There were five deaths from wood and denatured alcohol poisoning, which is the same number recorded during the first quarter of last year."

26 PHYSICIANS QUIT COLUMBIA CLINIC

WANT DR. MACKEE NAMED

Dr. Hopkins's Appointment Is Called an Injustice to Doctors of Practical Experience.

Twenty-six members of the staff of the department of dermatology of the Vanderbilt Clinic and the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University have resigned within the last week, it was learned yesterday. Only three or four have retained their positions in this department.

The resignations took place because the Faculty of Medicine of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia did not select Dr. George M. MacKee, the senior member of the department, to succeed Professor John A. Fordyce, the head of the department, who died last year. The Faculty selected Dr. Joseph Gardner Hopkins, who had been an assistant of Dr. MacKee. Dr. Hopkins is a bacteriologist and roentgenologist, with much experience in scientific research.

One reason given for the resignations was the feeling among members of the staff that the governing body had failed to appreciate the services of men of vast practical experience in the treatment of disease and had placed too great an emphasis on laboratory work.

Dr. Hopkins Commended.

A member of the governing organization said last night that is was true that broad scientific training was the first thing which the Faculty sought in appointing new men to important medical posts. He said, however, that Dr. Hopkins, combined considerable clinical experience with high scientific attainment, that his general qualifications made him the best equipped man for the place and that he was expected to improve the department.

The resignations, it was said, would not change the intentions of the Faculty. None of the resignations has been considered as yet, it was said, and no vacancies filled.

DEPEW, 92, REVIEWS CENTRAL'S 100 YEARS

Veteran Gets Ovation at the Birthday Celebration of the Railroad System.

COOLIDGE SENDS GREETINGS

Message From Governor Smith Also Congratulates Officials at Notable Dinner.

Chauncey M. Depew, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the New York Central Lines, who will be 92 years old next Friday, delivered the principal address last night at a dinner in the Waldorf-Astoria, with which that railroad celebrated the 100th anniversary of the chartering of the Mohawk & Hudson Railroad, the original unit of the New York Central system.

P. E. Crowley, President of the New York Central Lines, was toastmaster. Other speakers were U. S. Senator Royal S. Copeland, Dr. Arthur Twining Hadley, former President of Yale University, and William E. Pendergast, Chairman of the Public Service Commission. The speeches were broadcast by Station WJZ.

Despite his advanced age, Mr. Depew was the hit of the night. He gave an address that lasted fully a half hour, alternating his favorite jokes with serious facts with which he reviewed the history of the railroad, and he sat through a dinner and entertainment which lasted about five hours. It was after midnight when he got home, having spent a night that would have tried the endurance of many a man half his age.

The chances are that he will be back at his desk in the New York Central offices tomorrow morning as usual.

Mr. Depew received an ovation from the 1,000 guests, all standing when he rose to speak. At the beginning of his address his voice was a bit weak and faltering, as it might very well have been from a man of his age, but as he went on it grew stronger and stronger. Before he had finished he surprised his audience with the power of his voice and the vehemence of his gestures as he testified to his lifelong faith in the pioneer work the railroads have done for the development of the United States. He said in part:

Sixty Years With Railroad.

"It is a very interesting and suggestive thought that of the one hundred years since the beginning of the New York Central Railroad I have lived all but eight of them, for ninety-two of the one hundred I have been alive. I can claim to have been a participant in its affairs during most of that period, and for over sixty years a member of its staff, for thirteen its President, and for twenty-seven Chairman of the Board.

"The growth and expansion of the company owes much to the wonderful territory of the lines, the great increase in population, in economic development, in industrial expansion along its route, and the empire building of the whole country.

"We trace the New York Central from its first expansion from Albany to Schenectady, and then by natural growth extending its lines to Buffalo, and from Buffalo to Chicago and the West, then to Cincinnati and St. Louis in the Southwest, then to the Northwest into Canada, until today, with its feeders and associated companies, it has found the shores of the Pacific Ocean and is competing with the great Panama Canal.

"When I first joined the New York Central it ran from New York to Albany, 140 miles, and from New York to Chatham, 128 miles. That constituted all of its mileage. The entire

DOMINION VICE DEPICTED

Ex-Attorney General and Clergymen Call State Sales a Curse.

ECONOMIST LAUDS DRY ACT

Fisher of Yale Tells Senators That It Is Largely Cause of Prosperity.

STUDENT SOBRIETY CITED

Educators Declare Drinking Is Much Less Than in the Pre-Prohibition Years.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Continuing their onslaught against the wets, the prohibition forces sought today before the Senate Judiciary Committee to disprove the testimony given last week by Canadians who declared that Canada had found the solution to the liquor problem in its Government-owned and operated liquor-selling stores in various provinces of the Dominion.

Canadian drys today came to the aid of the American prohibitionists and declared that instead of being a blessing the Government liquor business was a curse to the Canadian people.

The first of the Canadian witnesses was W. E. Raney, former Attorney General of Ontario, who, facing a long cross-examination by Senator Reed, insisted to the end that the assertions made by friends of the Canadian control law that it was a success were unfounded and could be disproved by a dispassionate study of the facts.

The other Canadian witness was the Rev. Dr. W. W. Peck of the United Church of Canada, who is Educational Secretary of the Prohibition Federation of Canada and is sometimes referred to as the "Wayne B. Wheeler of the Dominion." Dr. Peck denounced the Canadian system as a sham and a failure.

Alonzo Stagg Urges Enforcement.

Alonzo A. Stagg, Yale football player and for many years football coach of the University of Chicago, was a witness, as were also Professor Walter F. Willcox of Cornell University and Professor Irving Fisher of Yale.

Mr. Stagg declared that much of what he described as "looseness" among the young people of today was due to the breakdown of American home life, resultant in part, at least, he said, from the fact that the parents of today were running away from their home responsibilities and seeking personal pleasure. Prohibition, however, Mr. Stagg declared, was a good thing that only needed real enforcement to make it the success it should be.

"The trouble about enforcement," he asserted, "is that a great many Americans have not been playing the game."

The testimony of Professor Fisher was a feature of the afternoon session. He gave it as his opinion that the great majority of Yale students are "wet."

"There is no doubt," he said, "but that the prevailing sentiment among our student body is wet, and statistics showed that as much as 80 per cent. of the students are not in sympathy with prohibition."

At Yale, according to the testimony of Professor Fisher, Saturday night is sometimes a "very bad" night. There is less drinking, he said, at the "proms" now, but still a great deal at the intercollegiate athletic games. He was not a prohibitionist in the beginning, Professor Fisher said, but he had since become converted and was convinced that it was one of the best things that ever happened to the nation.

Testifying as an economist Professor Fisher declared that prohibition has caused a saving in national wealth of at least $6,000,000,000 yearly in the form of increased energy, increased wages and increased industrial profits.

Statistics on deaths from alcoholism and other causes ascribed to liquor were submitted by Professor Wilcox. The alcohol chart showed a decided drop up to 1920, then it began to mount until 1925 when it was almost at a level with pre-war figures.

Reed Raises Rebuttal Question.

When the committee convened this morning Senator Reed of Missouri, the only wet on the committee, brought up the question of rebuttal testimony by the two sides to the liquor controversy, and said that in order to get the truth in some instances the committee itself might have to act.

"I find that we get from one town one set of statistics on one side, and an entirely different set of statistics on the other side," said Mr. Reed. "I think the committee, for its own enlightenment, ought to permit the correction of figures or anything of that kind. Whether we do it as a committee or whether we do it through Mr. Codman is immaterial to me, but I do not like to be left here with the statement by one side that the arrests in a town, for instance, are 1,000, and be the other side that they are 300 or 400. That leaves us without any real evidence.

"I am mentioning it now and do not care whether the committee does it or Mr. Codman, but I think in a case

Prince Carol Makes Peace With His Parents; May Return to Bucharest as Crown Prince

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 17.—Prince Carol of Rumania, who last Christmas renounced his rights as heir to the throne, has made up with his family and it is understood he will soon return to Bucharest. He is still in Paris.

On his return to the Rumanian capital he will resume his rights as Crown Prince. This decision has been reached in correspondence between Prince Carol and his father and mother, King Ferdinand and Queen Marie, and the Prince's friends point out that the fact that Queen Marie has made peace with her elder son is most important.

It is said here that the King of Great Britain helped to bring about the reconciliation.

Prince Carol's friends here say the fall of the Bratiano Government, against which the Prince fought, makes his return feasible. The opposition to ex-Premier Bratiano, which now holds power, was supported by the Crown Prince, whereas his mother supported M. Bratiano.

Rumanians are asking, Will Queen Marie continue to hold the whip-hand in Rumania, eclipsing the power of the King, or will Prince Carol's return result in the King, through his son, becoming the dominating figure in Rumanian political life?

Prince Carol's return to Rumania and his resumption of his rights as Crown Prince will probably dispose of the suit for 10,000,000 francs brought against the Prince by Mme. Zizi Lambrino. The basis of her case was that under her separation agreement with Prince Carol, her rights as his wife returned when he ceased to be heir to the throne. If he becomes again heir to the throne her suit is, of course, weakened.

However, Prince Carol's acquaintances in Paris predict that before he returns to Bucharest the Lambrino suit will be settled out of court by payment of a sum of money to be supplied by the Rumanian King.

BUCHAREST, April 17 (AP).—Queen Marie, it is authoritatively stated, has given up the idea of joining the Greek Orthodox Church.

Return to Rumania Expected Before.

The near return of Prince Carol to Bucharest with the resumption of his dynastic and political titles and prerogatives was positively asserted by Edwin L. James in a dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES from Paris printed on Feb. 27. Just prior to this the royal, legal and parliamentary departments of the Rumanian Government had solemnly accepted and confirmed the Crown Prince's renunciation, which had first been made known on Dec. 31, 1925, after his Royal Highness had fled from Bucharest to Milan.

Meanwhile, the 4-year-old son of Prince Carol and Princess Helen, eldest daughter of the late King Constantine of Greece, whom he had married in the Spring of 1921, was named Heir Apparent, with a potential regency consisting of King Ferdinand's younger son, Prince Nicholas, the President of the Court Cassation, and the Patriarch.

Mrs. Walker Flies From London to Paris; Rest of Hotel Party Go by Boat and Rail

PARIS, April 17 (AP).—Two hundred and eighty Americans tonight are the honored guests of the French capital, with the prospect of a week's enjoyment of all the luxury pleasure-loving Paris can offer. It was the first night on French soil for most of the delegates from the United States to the International Hotel Men's Convention when, fatigued after an all-day trip from London to Boulogne and a visit to the famous resorts of Le Touquet and Paris-plages, they descended from their train at the Gare du Nord. They went immediately to various hotels where quarters had been arranged for them.

Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of the Mayor of New York, was not among the travelers by train, but made a twentieth century entrance into Paris by airplane. She missed the ceremony of the presentation at Boulogne of a curiously designed gold ring, such as has been worn by the women of that city for centuries. She enjoyed what she described as "a thrilling and delightful air trip," through alternating storm and sunshine over the Channel and Northern France. She was flying over Le Touquet while the other members of the party were being escorted through the resort.

The City of Boulogne has arranged to have one of the rings presented to Mrs. Walker in Paris. A similar ring was presented to Mrs. Thomas D. Green of New York, wife of the President of the American Hotel Association.

The Americans, with delegates from sixteen other nations, will be the guests at luncheon tomorrow of three famous restaurants in the Bois de Boulogne—Armenonville, Château de Madrid and Pré-Catelan—after which they will go to the Longchamp races. There will be a gala performance at the Opéra in the evening.

LONDON, April 17 (AP).—The members of the European tour of the American Hotel Association started for Paris this morning after more than a week's elaborate entertainment, which they declared unsurpassed by any hospitality they had previously experienced.

Two special trains carried them from the Victoria Station to Dover. The general managers of the leading London hotels bade farewell to the women tourists and they received numerous bouquets.

As the trains were about to depart the Americans raised three cheers for England.

GARVIN NEW EDITOR OF ENCYCLOPAEDIA

Head of London Observer Takes Britannica Post at Request of American Directors.

A WRITER FOR 31 YEARS

He Began on The Fortnightly Review —Wrote Notable World War Weekly Articles.

By T. R. YBARRA.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—James Louis Garvin, editor of The Observer, one of the most prominent journalists in Great Britain, has been appointed editor of the Encyclopaedia Britannica. He stated today that one of his reasons for assuming the new post was the emphatic desire that he do so expressed by the American members of the Encyclopaedia management. A large majority of its readers now, he added, are Americans.

In outlining plans for continuing the work of this compendium of knowledge Mr. Garvin said today:

"Above all I aim at making it a work of intellectual cooperation between distinguished scholars and experts of all kinds in many countries, and the deliberate design is to restore international unity in these matters, which was broken by war and has remained too long and too widely interrupted in peace.

"In a spirit of knowledge no national prejudice can be allowed to exist, for all nations help to accumulate what may be called the common stock of civilization."

The Encyclopaedia Britannica first appeared in 1768 in Edinburgh. The first regular edition was completed in 1771.

A Noted Publicist.

J. L. Garvin, the journalist, who has been selected as editor of the Encyclopaedia Britannica in succession to the late Hugh Chisolm, was born of Irish stock at Birkenhead, England, in 1868. He was educated at Birkenhead, Hull and Newcastle-on-Tyne, England. Specialized courses of private tuition in science and modern literature supplemented his academic and collegiate work.

After a short experience in business, during which time he wrote on political subjects for a number of papers, young Garvin decided to enter the journalistic field. The only position he could find was as a proofreader on The Newcastle Chronicle. This post he took. Within six weeks, however, he was writing leading editorials, though only 23 years old.

The Chronicle at that time was owned by Joseph Cowen, whose friends had been Mazzini, Kossuth and most of the Continental exiles after 1848, as well as E. L. Godkin in America. This association left a lasting impression on young Garvin, giving him a keen interest in foreign as well as in domestic affairs. In his days on The Chronicle he also came into prominence as a speaker through his advocacy of the cause of Parnell against Gladstone.

Within a short time after going on the staff of The Chronicle, Garvin also began to contribute to The Fortnightly Review, a connection which he maintained for seventeen years. His articles on literature as well as on politics for this publication eventually led to his removal to London, where, in 1899, he joined the staff of The Daily Telegraph.

Shortly after his arrival in London he began to contribute a long series of articles to The Fortnightly Review under the name of "Calchas." These were the result of his tireless study of European affairs in general and German affairs in particular, and their contention that a world war was a matter of only a few years attracted widespread comment. At the outset these "Calchas" articles were variously attributed to different writers, but as the identity of their author became known, Garvin's reputation was made.

Became Editor of Outlook.

In 1905 Garvin became editor of the weekly publication, Outlook, which he conducted for two years with intense vitality both on the literary and political sides. Then, in 1907, he was offered the editorship of The Observer, at that time owned by the late Lord Northcliffe. This publication, the oldest of the London Sunday papers, was founded in 1791 and had had an enviable career. But it had fallen from its high estate and was a losing venture financially. Garvin's task was to undertake its rehabilitation.

This he did by making of it a blend of magazine and newspaper, the former features including a treatment of literature, music, art and the drama, while the latter embraced news of the day at home and abroad, dealth with along the most modern journalistic lines. Although the paper in its new form was not immediately successful, its circulation eventually increased tenfold, to more than a quarter of a million copies, while its influence on public opinion became profound and far-reaching.

Garvin was described by Northcliffe as the greatest living journalist. His editorials and articles on foreign affairs commanded wide attention. A student of American affairs, he became a leading interpreter of the American point of view to England. During and after the war his articles and opinions were widely quoted in America.

Garvin lives at Beaconsfield, once the home of Edmund Burke. He has pursued consistently from youth up to the present the habit of omnivorous reading, besides mixing widely with men of eminence. He selected for the staff of The Observer some of the foremost writers along those lines in England—such men as St. John Ervine, the author of "John Ferguson," "Jane Clegg" and other noteworthy plays, who is the dramatic critic of the paper, and A. H. Fox-Strangeways, who writes on music.

Among the literary honors which have been conferred on him are membership in the Spanish Academy and a Litt. D. degree from Durham University. Although history and economics are his chief study, poetry is his chief pleasure, and among his close friends and associates he numbers the foremost men of letters in England.

His catholicity of taste combined with his own cultural and literary attainments promise well for a continuation of the high editorial standards for which the Encyclopaedia Britannica has become known. The new editor will direct the preparation of additional volumes of the Encyclopaedia, as well as supervise the revision continually being made in material contained in those already published.

FORBIDS U. OF P. DANCES TO WOMEN STUDENTS

Head of Beaver College Complains of Drunkenness at Fraternity Event.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17 (AP).—Reports of drunkenness and a "general Bowery dance-hall atmosphere" at recent dances sponsored by University of Pennsylvania fraternities have caused President Lynn H. Harris of Beaver College for Women, Jenkintown, Pa., to refuse further permission for young women of his college to attend university affairs. Beaver College has an enrollment of 358 students.

Promiscuous drinking at the recent inter-fraternity ball of the University of Pennsylvania, given at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, precipitated the decision to "black list" future university events, Dr. Harris said.

Provost Josiah C. Penniman of the university, replying to Dr. Harris's complaint, told him the inter-fraternity affair was being investigated and hinted that the university Council of Welfare might forbid all dancing in the future, the President of Beaver College said today.

"I do not mean to imply that all the couples were drunk," Dr. Harris said in explaining his reference to the inter-fraternity affair, "but there were numerous men and women who plainly showed the effects of liquor, and no effort was made by anybody either to stop the drinking or to keep them off the floor unless they began fighting or could not stand up, according to the reports made to me."

In his letter to Dr. Penniman, President Harris said in part:

"Our action is not prompted by any fanatical feeling with regard to prohibition, but would be exactly the same if there were no prohibition law in effect. At all of these dances some, at least, are from Christian homes and are of decent rearing. It seems scarcely proper to subject these to contact with open drunkenness.

"We know that the majority of our students are from respectable homes and we trust they are ladies. At all events we do not feel justified in sending them with our permission into conditions which might tempt them or afford them opportunities to be other than ladies, or which are contrary to all the principles which we are endeavoring to inculcate."

Dr. Harris's charges were denied tonight by E. Scott Lower Jr., President of the Interfraternity Council, under whose auspices a dance singled out by the college president was conducted. Lower, a senior, expressed indignation when informed of Dr. Harris's statement. He said:

"The ball was conducted in strict accord with the rulings of both the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel management and the police. At 2 A. M., the morning of the dance, Police Captain Abbott made his personal appearance at the affair in his official capacity and was satisfied with the conduct of the ball. Such an attack is unprecedented and is perhaps more provoked by sensational hearsay than from personal knowledge."

The second and final session yesterday of the sale at the Anderson Galleries of tapestries, furniture, rugs, Barye bronzes and other objects from the collections of J. J. Albright, Count Scheremetiev, Baron Ropp, Samuel W. Weis, George Blake Dexter, Frederick Rider and others brought $92,238.50. The grand total is $127,056.50.

An important Gobelin tapestry, "Le Chameau," in the second series of Les Nouvelles Indes, finished in 1774, brought the sale's highest price, $22,500, and was bid in by Henry Symons, Inc., which also paid $17,500 for "Le Combat d'Animaux," from the first series which represents animal life in the jungle.

Charles of London bid in a Brussels tapestry of about 1520, "Abraham and Isaac Welcoming Rebecca," for $9,000, and also bid in "Eliezer Asking Rebecca's Hand in Betrothal" for $7,000, both after drawings by Barent van Orley and both exhibited at the Albright Art Gallery. An early Gobelin tapestry, "Diana Rejecting Otus," about 1610, from a set of Diana's story by Dubreuil, went on "order" for $4,500. Dr. E. Cadgene paid $2,400 for a fine Persian Saruk medallion rug, in brilliant colors on a deep blue ground. A Kirmanshah rug went to E. J. Murnane for $1,600, who also paid $1,350 for a Renaissance tapestry Stuart sofa. Mr. Murnane also paid $1,050 for a pair of Renaissance tapestry Stuart armchairs.

The Clapp & Graham Company acquired a Barye bronze group, "Angelica and Roger," for $1,300. Mrs. S. S. Carvalho paid $1,200 for a Renaissance walnut settle, upholstered in sixteenth century Flemish tapestry. M. J. Tashjian bought a Kashan medallion rug for $1,150. E. F. Collins, agent, paid $1,100 for a sixteenth century Flemish tapestry, "The Conquest of Troy," from the Chateau d'Ermenon. James A. Curran paid $1,075 for a Chippendale two-back mahogany settle and $1,000 for a pair of English armchairs.

LA FOLLETTE FOR BLAINE.

Favors Wisconsin Governor for Senator Lenroot's Seat.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., April 17.—The list of candidates for Wisconsin State offices who will receive the support of Senator Robert M. La Follette in the campaign this year is headed by Governor John J. Blaine for United States Senator.

Governor Blaine will oppose Senator I. I. Lenroot. Herman L. Ekern, Attorney General, is the La Follette choicesfor Governor. Frank R. Zimmerman, Secretary of State, a protégé of the late Senator La Follette, will oppose Ekern. This issue will probably cause a split in the Progressive ranks.

Henry Huber of Stoughton is named for Lieutenant Governor; Ira Lorens, Milwaukee, for Secretary of State; Solomon Levitan, State Treasurer, is named to succeed to that position, and John Reynolds, Green Bay, is the La Follette choice for Attorney General.

DR. HARDING GETS PENSION.

Placed on Civil War Veterans' Total Disability List.

WASHINGTON, April 17 (AP).—Dr. George T. Harding, father of the late President, was notified today by the Pension Officethat he had been placed on the total disability list of Civil War veterans, with an allowance of $72 a month.

Dr. Harding spent the Winter in Florida and he is now visiting relatives in Washington before returning to his home in Marion, Ohio. The pension was obtained by Senator Willis, Republican, of Ohio.

TABLETS UNVEILED AT RAIL CELEBRATION

OLD HISTORY IS RECALLED

President Patrick E. Crowley and 300 executives and guests of the New York Central Railroad Lines went to Albany and Schenectady yesterday, where Mr. Crowley presided at the unveiling of two tablets, commemorating the 100th anniversary of the granting of a charter to the Mohawk and Hudson Railroad. This was the first unit of the New York Central System and ran from Schenectady to Albany, a distance of seventeen miles.

Two "Centennial" specials left the Grand Central Terminal, which was gay with bunting for the occasion, at 7 o'clock in the morning. Traveling at Twentieth Century speed, the trains rolled into Albany at 10 o'clock where they were met by Mayor John Boyd Thatcher 2d of Albany, Lieut. Gov. Seymour Lowman and a committee.

Behind a band, Mr. Crowley, A. H. Harris, Vice President in charge of Finance and Corporate Relations; John L. Burdett, Vice President, who has been with the railroad for fifty-six years, and others marched past a pageant of locomotives consisting of ten power units, at the head of which was the diminutive De Witt Clinton and its train of yellow stage-coach model cars. At the throttle of the Clinton, clad in garments that were the style a century ago, was Charles Stark, one of the oldest engineers in the service, who is now Supervisor of Mechanical Examinations at West Albany. With him was Conductor Charles Vrooman of the Mohawk Division, the oldest passenger conductor, Gaily attired women wearing gowns of that era, and their escorts occupied the tops and the interiors of the coaches.

Some Famous Locomotives.

Behind this train, which first ran in 1831, were other locomotives, including the famous 999, which pulled the Empire State Express at 112½ miles an hour in 1893. The engineer for that record run, Charlie Hogan, now manager of the department of shop labor, was among the guests. The last unit in the pageant was the giant Mohawk locomotive, just out of the shops at Schenectady, weighing 181 tons.

Proceeding to the south side of the station, Mr. Crowley and Mayor Thacher ascended a flag-draped platform, where Mr. Crowley reviewed briefly the history of the railroad and its growth from the original unit to a system with more than 12,000 miles of tracks. Speaking of the digging of the Erie Canal and its effect on the commerce of the State, he said that up to the time of the opening of the canal a few months before the first steam road charter was granted, Baltimore and Philadelphia had outdistanced New York in commercial importance.

"The opening of the great highway into the interior by way of the Erie Canal," he said, "gave New York a lead which has never since been challenged. This was our first great lesson in the value of cheap transportation. Emigration to the rich lands of the West had set in. Success of the Erie Canal attracted attention to the Mohawk Valley route, the only break in the Appalachian barrier; and this route was henceforward the favorite."

How the Railroad Started.

The value of this water route, Mr. Crowley said, became apparent to the men of vision, and George W. Featherstonhaugh, scientist, explorer and author, an Englishman who had settled near Schenectady, with his friend, Stephen Van Rensselaer, applied to the Legislature of 1826 for an act to incorporate the Mohawk and Hudson Railroad Company with a capital of $300,000.

Mayor Thacher reviewed the history and growth of Albany and expressed the hope that city and the New York Central would continue "in the years ahead to travel swiftly on in the friendship and understanding of whole-hearted and intelligent cooperation."

The tablet, a bronze plaque about four feet high, was then unveiled. At its top is a bas-relief of the De Witt Clinton, and at the bottom another depicting a train of today. Between the two figures are these words:

April 17, 1826. April 17, 1926.
To Commemorate the One Hundredth Anniversary of the Chartering of the Mohawk and Hudson Railroad Company, Which Built and Operated between Albany and Schenectady the First Railroad in the State of New York. This Tablet is erected by the Successor of that Company, The New York Central Railroad Company.

The centennial specials then went on to Schenectady as did the locomotive exhibition, where on the north side of the station a similar tablet was unveiled. Mr. Crowley shared the platform at Schenectady with 10-year-old James Duane Featherstonhaugh, the great-great-grandson of the founder of the road. The address at the unveiling was made by George W. Featherstonhaugh of Schenectady, grandson of the founder, who was introduced by Mayor Alexander T. Blessing.

Tells of Early Struggle.

Mr. Featherstonhaugh told of the struggle of his grandfather to get the charter. "Ten years were spent," he said, "in an apparent attempt to educate the public for the experiment, and it was not until December, 1825, that he reached a determination to make an application for a charter."

He said the application was made by inserting a notice in a Schenectady newspaper that a petition would be filed at the approaching session of the Legislature and that the notice was published weekly for six weeks, the cost of which was $1.56.

"This was the first open and public step taken," he said, "and the $1.56 was the first investment in railroads in this State.

The tablet was then unveiled, and Mr. Crowley introduced the youngest representative present of the Featherstonhaugh family. Leaving Schenectady, the specials were routed over the "Castleton cut-off," through South Schnectady by the great terminal yards at Selkirk, and across the Hudson on the Alfred H. Smith Memorial Bridge at New Castleton, named for President A. H. Smith of the New York Central, who died three years ago following a fall from his horse in Central Park.

On the trip back to New York L. A. Riddon, passenger traffic manager, announced a new day train to run into service April 25 between Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland and New York. This train will be a limited, and has been named the "De Witt Clinton." He said one section would leave Toledo at 7:30 A. M. and the other would leave Detroit at 8:30 A. M., and the two, combined as one train, would leave Buffalo at 2:30 and arrive at the Grand Central at 11:45 P. M. This train will be known as No. 55.

Guests at the exercises, in addition to those mentioned, included the following Vice Presidents: George H. Ingalls, in charge of traffic; John G. Walber, personnel; R. D. Bronner of the Michigan Central; R. D. Starbuck, F. E. Sheldon of the Ohio Central; F. A. Worcester of the Big Four and Howard L. Bisco of the Boston & Albany; W. C. Wishart, Controller; E. L. Rossiter, Treasurer; D. J. Stephenson, Secretary; R. J. Carey, general counsel; W. E. Harriman, President of the Clearfield Bituminous Coal Company, a subsidiary of the Central, and Martin J. Alger, Executive Assistant to the President; former Lieut. Gov. George R. Lunn of Schenectady, Public Service Commissioner, and State Senator William L. Love of Brooklyn.

The specials returned to the Grand Central at 5:20 P. M.

EARLY DAYS OF RAILROADS.

Ralph Budd Tells of Adventures of the Central's Third President.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Not only did the founders of the New York Central Lines throw open the East to transportation, but one of them blazed the way clear to the Pacific Coast.

In a telegram of congratulations to the New York Central Railroad on the occasion of its hundredth anniversary today, President Ralph Budd of the Great Northern Railway revealed the little known amazing adventures of Ramsey Crooks, third President of the railroad, which later became the New York Central, and right-hand man to John Jacob Astor.

From stark nakedness in the Pacific Northwest wilderness to all the comforts of millionaire life in New York City, Crooks passed through the greatest vicissitudes possible to man in eighteen months. "He was a partner in the historic John Jacob Astor fur trading expedition of 1811, which established Astoria, Ore." said President Budd in his telegram. "Up unknown river valleys, through almost impenetrable forests and over mysterious mountains he worked his way to the unknown Northwest. Captured by unfriendly Indians, he and his party were stripped of all possessions and clothing and left to perish.

"They wandered about for days, stung by insects and living on food which they could find with their own hands. When they had almost despaired of ever reaching civilized life again, Crooks one day heard the snatch of a song by a voyager paddling down the river. Within eighteen months he was back on Broadway. The fortitude with which Crooks withstood these buffetings of fate stamped him as a man of courage and resource capable of achieving the greater success which later came to him as President of the Mohawk & Hudson.

"I feel there is a tie almost of kinship between the Great Northern and New York Central, in that William Crooks, the son of Ramsey Crooks, was the first chief engineer of the St. Paul & Pacific Railway, the forerunner of the Great Northern. The first railroad locomotive ever operated in the Northwest was named the "William Crooks."

MEXICO TO PROSECUTE BISHOP OF HUEJUTLA

Attorney General Declares He Incites Disorder in Pastoral —Pope Urges Calm.

MEXICO CITY, April 17 (AP).—The District Judge issued an order today directing Bishop José Jesus Martinez Zarate of Huejutla, State of Hidalgo, to appear for trial on charges preferred by the Attorney General.

These charges grew out of the recent pastoral letter of the Bishop voicing his opposition to the intention of the Mexican Government to insist on obedience to the religious clauses of the Constitution.

The Attorney General asserts that the language of the letter constituted a violation of the law, and he has instructed the District Attorney to seek severe punishment for the prelate if he is found guilty. Señor Ortega declares the letter is an attempt to incite the people to disorder and disobedience of the law, and also that it slanders high Government officials.

The Mexican Archbishopric today published an Apostolic letter from Pope Pius to the Mexican Catholics, in which the Pontiff expresses regret over the situation in Mexico and praises the people and clergy for their fidelity to the Church.

The letter instructs the Bishops, clergy and Catholic societies diligently to avoid political participation, and expresses hope for a peaceful and harmonious settlement of the Mexican problem through religious and spiritual activities.

MEXICO HURRIES WARSHIPS ON PATROL

Government Is Said to Have Word of a Shipment of Arms for Revolutionists.

VERA CRUZ, April 17 (AP).—A Mexican cruiser and four gunboats left here today, steaming southward.

The Government maintained silence as to their mission, but the general belief is that they have been despatched to patrol the coast near Cosumel, off the State of Quintana Roo, as there have been rumors of a shipment of arms from Cuba for a band of revolutionists.

HAVANA, April 17 (AP).—Rumors that a shipment of arms and ammunition had been made from Matanzas to Mexico and rumors of a Mexican revolutionary junta last month, brought prompt Government investigation, after which General Guadalupe Sanches (who was head of the De La Huerta revolution in Mexico) left Havana for Santiago De Cuba.

General Sanches, according to a telegram from the Governor of Oriente Province, disappeared from Santiago De Cuba, and officials have been unable to trace his movements.

McKee Addresses Bronx Realtors.

Joseph McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen, and Albert Goldman, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, were the principal speakers last night at the second Annual dinner of the Real Estate Board of the Bronx at the Concourse Plaza. Mr. McKee urged support for the Administration and told of the many difficulties met in trying to satisfy every one. More than 1,000 members of the board and their guests attended the dinner.

DEPEW, 92, REVIEWS CENTRAL'S 100 YEARS

mileage of the country then was only 36,000 miles, and now it is nearly 300,000.

"I remember in the early days of expansion, not only of our own lines but all others going from the Atlantic to the West, a statement that every mile of new railway brought into cultivation and production 100,000 acres of farming land, and it was a wonderful picture to see these new communities and happy homes rising like magic as the steel rails brought them out of the wilderness into participation with civilization and the prosperity of the country. The whole story of American development is a most marvelous, exciting and inspiring narrative, and is told by the conception, building and successful operation of the American railroads.

Influence of One Family.

"Great as has been the growth of the New York Central Lines, yet it is a remarkable fact that during most of their existence they have been under the management and general control of one family. When, in 1864, Commodore Vanderbilt quit river and ocean navigation, he declared that the future of the country was in railroads. It was wonderful foresight that enabled him to make this prediction. He bought the Harlem Railroad and in a few years transformed it from bankruptcy into a prosperous line.

"The Commodore was succeeded by his son, William H., who was a very able and successful railway executive. Through his sons and grandsons the New York Central is still a Vanderbilt corporation. The Vanderbilts have associated with them the ablest men in the country in their Board of Directors, and the best minds in America for business, finance and transportation.

"Commodore Vanderbilt was one of those rare geniuses who, by their own natural equipment, make themselves phenomenally successful in life and add enormously to the results and productivity of the country. He had a remarkable faculty in grasping the present situation and forecasting the future. He was one of the most remarkable products of American organization and American citizenship. He said little in conversation, but absorbed the ideas and suggestions of others, and possessed a rare analytical power of discernment between what was wise and otherwise in the vast accumulation of advice which was flowing in upon him.

"The General Superintendent at that time was Mr. Tillinghast, who was very original and among the many who were claiming recognition or reward for what they had done. Discouraged, the Commodore used to remark, 'That does not amount to anything.' The Commodore was thrown off his guard by Tillinghast for the first and only time in his life.

Tells Story About Richmond.

"When Dean Richmond, who had been President of the New York Central, died, the Commodore asked Tillinghast what kind of an estate he had left. Tillinghast said, 'Very small, very small—only about six millions.' It was an enormous fortune at that time.

"The Commodore shouted, 'Tillinghast, how much makes a man rich in Western New York? I think Richmond was wonderful.'

"Dean Richmond was the acknowledged leader of the Democratic Party in New York. His handwriting was so bad that he could not read it himself. A Bishop wrote to him for a pass. Richmond answered, declining, in his own handwriting. The Bishop thought it was a life complimentary, and so did the conductors on the road. The Bishop was riding free successfully for many years.

"It staggers the imagination when we think of this corporation beginning with a capitalization and property valued at less than thirty millions of dollars, and that now its stupendous value is a billion and a quarter.

"As I look back over my associates in the Board of Directors during these sixty years, over the line of Presidents during that period, over the men of great ability and sterling character who have held important positions, I recall them all vividly tonight, and I feel that I have passed most of my life in this association, in this companionship and in this wonderful company, that it makes life in retrospect infinitely worth the living."

President Crowley's Speech.

President Crowley reviewed the history of the New York Central system's growth for one hundred years and continued:

"In the long roll of Americans of vast achievement, our railroad folk cherish a pardonable pride in pointing to the numerous names of men of their own vocation. The list is a long one—far too long to enumerate here. With the careers of some of them you all are quite familiar—those sturdy pioneer empire builders who bridged the continent and made this a united nation in the years immediately following the Civil War.

"I take the privilege of naming only two with whose ideals, activities and achievements I am most familiar. In the front rank comes Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, head of the great family whose men have for four generations been active and successful in the work of building, expanding, developing and organizing the vast plant and personnel of the New York Central system into what it is today. Commodore Vanderbilt, to my mind, was one of the first and greatest of America's economic statesmen because his prophetic vision clearly perceived the future rail transportation needs of this growing country, the advantages of railroad extension and the consolidation of rescources and facilities, and whose courage led him to attack the problems of establishing from independent and incomplete lines a consolidated transportation machine.

"His sons, his grandsons and his great grandsons have applied their abilities and fortunes to the task of developing and improving railroad transportation service to the public, right down to the present day.

Praises Late A. H. Smith.

"The second railroad statesman whom I cannot forego mentioning is my distinguished predecessor, the late Alfred Holland Smith, who was President of our system continuously for the ten years from 1914 to 1924, except for the period of war-time control, when he was the operating chief of all the Eastern railroads for the Government. From boyhood, President Smith worked for the New York Central, starting in the humble capacity of an office messenger, and winning constant promotions through successive positions of the operating department by his wonderful abilities.

"The period of Mr. Smith's Presidency was one of the most trying to all our railroads in their entire history, because of the numerous problems of finance and legislation and need for expansion, but in spite of almost indescribable difficulties and handicaps, under his guidance the New York Central made tremendous advances in the upbuilding of its plant, the perfecting of its personnel and the attainment of economy and efficiency. All New York Central men gain inspiration from contemplation of the spirit and accomplishments of A. H. Smith, and the efforts of his life and the plans which he laid will be a real power in the workings of our organization for many years to come.

"New York Central is a hundred years old, but it has in no sense reached its maturity. I do not believe that it will ever become old in the sense that its greatness will be of the past rather than of the present and the future. It has today, as it enters its second century of service, all the vigor of youth—a greater vigor than at any time since the first rails were laid in the Mohawk Valley.

"If a railroad is efficiently to serve a growing country like ours it must not only keep young but grow stronger year after year. A railroad that is not growing is dying. Obsolescence will strangle it. To carry the great traffic of today with the equipment and facilities of only ten years ago would be impossible. And it would be just as impossible to carry the greater traffic of ten years hence with the present facilities and equipment.

"The railroads of the country, as a whole, have never been so well managed, so efficient, so responsive to the public needs as they are at the present time. It may be that some of our systems, great as they are now, will be greater. It may be that weaker roads will be strengthened by closer associations with stronger ones, and that stronger ones, through that association, will become even more efficient. But the greatest factor today in the success of our railroads and their hope for the future lies in cooperation—cooperation between the managements and their employes, between the carriers and the public bodies by whom they are regulated and, above all, cooperation between the railroads and the public they serve.

"A hundred years from now, when the directors and officers of the New York Central and the leaders of American industry gather here in New York to celebrate the bicentennial of this railroad system, they will look back upon a hundred years of progress far more wonderful than that of these first hundred years which seem so great to us.

"No mortal in 1826 could have had the vision to see the achievements of this wonderful hundred years—the age of steam and electricity, of the telegraph, the telephone and the radio, of the electric generator, the electric motor and the internal combustion engine, of the automobile and the airplane, of the harnessing of the inexhaustible power resources of this earth for the advancement of civilization.

"And no one today can see behind the veil of the next hundred years. But of one thing I am confident, and that is that this country of ours will carry on to greater achievements, blazing the broad trail of scientific discovery and human progress."

Coolidge Sends Regrets.

President Coolidge, who was invited to attend, sent the following regrets to Patrick E. Crowley, President of the railroad company:

The White House,
Washington.
March 17, 1926.

My dear Mr. Crowley:

The invitation of yourself and the Board of Directors of the New York Central Railroad Company to attend your dinner at the Waldorf, in commemoration of the one hundredth anniversary of the granting of the charter of the Mohawk & Hudson Railroad Company, has been presented to me through Mr. C. C. Paulding.

As this was the first railroad to be built in the State of New York, your celebration is of particular importance and significance. When one compares transportation conditions as they existed then with the development as exemplified by the New York Central system today, he must marvel at the achievements of a single century. The country owes much to the men who have constructed and maintained the efficient standards of our railway systems.

I regret very much that it will be impossible for me to be with you on the evening of April 17.

Very truly yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Message From Gov. Smith.

Governor Smith, in a letter expressing his regret that his official duties kept him from attending the dinner, said:

"It is indeed a jump of centuries to the 'DeWitt Clinton,' the revered mechanical ancestor of the Southwestern Limited, the Empire State Express and the transportational wonders of the present age.

"It is not for me to recite again the story of the 'Central.' Every school child knows it, but I cannot refrain from commenting upon the meaning of this great enterprise, its contribution to our civilization. Every tie and every rail have been words in the glowing paragraphs that constitute the glorious history of progress. The 'Central' of today is really a fulfillment of the daring prophecies of the hardy pioneers of a century ago as well as an augury of the limitless possibilities of the future.

"The 'Central' moved Chicago weeks nearer New York and opened up that virgin country of the West with its inexhaustible treasure of human necessaries. Its operation made the distance between the great Port of New York and the industrial centres and bartering points of the West, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, a matter of hours.

"What a certification and attestation of the soundness of the judgment and the sureness of the vision of our transportational pioneers, and what a lesson to the present promoters and directors and managers of the New York Central Lines this vindication of the courage of the original planners the present New York Central has been and is.

"The story of the New York Central has been a story of unmeasured and immeasurable benefit to the people of this country, to every class and rank and order; of profit to business; of remuneration ungaugeable to communities; of gainful occupation to labor; of lucrative return to capital, and altogether of tremendous avail, advantage and service."

AMUNDSEN AIDS BYRD; GOES TO SPITZBERGEN

WANTS TO HELP ALL HE CAN

Takes Experts on Freighter to Prepare Base Hangar for Arrival of the Norge.

AIRSHIP IN PERFECT SHAPE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TROMSOE, April 17.—Captain Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth left here tonight in a snowstorm on the freighter Knut Skaaluren for King's Bay, Spitzbergen, whence the airship Norge will attempt her flight over the Pole.

With them went mechanics, including four Italian and Norwegian airplane experts, to prepare for the arrival of the Norge. Two weeks' hard work will be required there before the mast and hangar are finished and everything is ready to receive the airship, which is awaiting word at Leningrad that the hangar is ready and the training of the landing crew completed.

The work will be made easier by the fact that the midnight sun began two days ago, so that it is always light.

The crossing to Spitzbergen will take five or six days, as the freighter is heavily loaded with hydrogen gas and other supplies and the ice is still likely to delay entrance to King's Bay; but the ship will push through as fast as possible in order that the dirigible may take advantage of the first good weather.

There will be friendly rivalry with Commander Byrd, who is expected on May 1, and may take off about the same time as the Norge. Amundsen will do everything possible to aid Byrd, whom he regards highly. One of the last things Amundsen did today was to obtain an ice pilot for Byrd, who in his steel ship runs greater risk if caught in the ice.

"It is only what I would expect any one to do for me," said Amundsen. "I want to help Byrd all I can, to show him the ice conditions and give him the benefit of all our experience last year. We have to stick together in the North. There is no question of who will be first over the unknown Arctic, the purposes of the expeditions being different."

However, others in the expedition hope the Norge will get away first after the hard year's work on the arrangements.

The trip of Amundsen and Ellsworth up the coast of Norway was a triumphal one. At every village the wharves were crowded with people, many children cheering when the men appeared on deck. Amundsen's room is filled with flowers and letters sent by school children.

Last year's expedition made him and Ellsworth national heroes, invoking all the spirit of ancient Norse traditions.

NOBILE PRAISES THE NORGE.

It Came Through Difficult Trip Well and Needs No Repairs.

By WALTER DURANTY.

LENINGRAD, April 17.—"The Norge's performance was satisfactory to my highest expectations," said Colonel Nobile, commander of the Amundsen-Ellsworth dirigible which arrived at Gatchina yesterday, in a talk to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today. He went on:

"Although in the course of the sixty-seven-hour flight from Rome to Leningrad we met extremely heavy weather over Northern France and the Baltic everything functioned perfectly and on our arrival we found nothing needing repair or alteration.

"No less satisfactory was the working of the crew and the problem of command generally which might have appeared to present certain difficulties owing to the divided nationality. I gave orders to the Norwegians in English, which you might call the official language of the expedition, and all went without hitch or friction, though we had a trying time over the Baltic and Latvia when we were lost in the clouds fifteen hours, not knowing whether we were over land or sea. But we still had fuel for twenty-eight hours' more flying when we landed at Gatchina and so I had no real cause for anxiety.

"The Russian arrangements for the landing and for guarding the ship were most excellent and all needed supplies of hydrogen, gasoline, &c., were provided immediately. Indeed, the ship is ready to leave for Spitzbergen right away, but we must await news about the mooring mast in Vadsoe and the hangar at Kings Bay. Neither appears yet to be ready, therefore it is unlikely that we will leave for eight or ten days at the earliest."

Colonel Nobile said he had no doubts about the airship for the flight to Alaska, but that his chief preoccupation was the weather. He added:

"If conditions are less favorable than we hope for, we may reduce the crew to fifteen or even fourteen men and replace the weight thus saved with gasoline. If conditions are favorable we may reach Nome, but, of course, Point Barrow remains our real objective."

Commander Lauded by His Aid.

Lieutenant Riiser-Larsen, the Norwegian vice commander of the Norge, expressed no less satisfaction at the ship's performance in the flight from Rome to Leningrad than the Italian constructor. Colonel Nobile, to whom Larsen paid a high tribute for his conduct of the operations in trying conditions.

Larsen also said the Soviet authorities had given most efficient assistance. Not only was the landing handled splendidly, but 2,000 soldiers were set to clearing the road between the airdrome and Gatchina and every courtesy was shown to the expedition.

The Lieutenant was optimistic in regard to the final flight across the Pole. He said the perpetual daylight obviated the need of Holmes lights, which were dropped between Pulham and Oslo to indicate any drift from the wind. Drift will be calculated by taking a line from a prominent ice hummock with sufficient accuracy to give approximate position. He said there would be no attempt at landing at the Pole, but that flags would be dropped as a symbolic gesture. Currents undoubtedly will remove or ice destroy them before long, just as Peary's traces have doubtless long been obliterated. He thought it possible that land would be discovered toward Canada, and perhaps toward Alaska.

Between Spitzenberg and the Pole we do not expect to find much new data," he said, "but there are great possibilities on the other side. By that time the ship will be lightened and we can fly 800 or 1,000 metres high, which will give visibility for a hundred kilometers on either side. Even at that height we can easily tell, by the formation, variation and height of the ice above sea level, whether there is land or sea beneath.

"This will be most interesting as giving data about currents in the Polar Sea, which in turn affect currents in the North Atlantic. We have aboard thirty-two cases of gasoline and as each is emptied we will drop it with a stamp bearing the date and also the name of the Norge. Some of these cases doubtless will be found and are expected to give valuable information regarding currents."

Russians Intensely Interested.

Russian aeronautic circles are enormously interested in the Norge's flight. Today the ship was visited by a group of forty-five officers of the Aeronautic School, who examined every detail and made sketches and photographs.

Colonel Nobile said some months ago there had been a question of the purchase of one or more of his dirigibles by the Soviet Government. An expert visited the factory and made an elaborate study of the question. The same expert visited the dirigible at Gatchina, but Colonel Nobile said:

"I do not think the subject will be raised now, as we are pressed for time and have other things to think about. Moreover, you must understand that my factory works exclusively for the Italian Government and any purchase of airships would have to be discussed by the respective authorities."

He added that he had been asked to speak Thursday at the Institute of Engineers of Ways and Communications on the following subjects:

1. The dirigible factory from the financial and technical viewpoint.
2. The technical details of the dirigible Norge.
3. The flight from Rome to Leningrad and the lessons therefrom.

Obviously, the magnificent performance of the ship and its low price as compared with rigid airships or sea warships cannot fail to appeal to the Russians, whose naval strength is vastly below the average of the great powers.

The reception by the Academy of Science to the visting airmen has been postponed till 2 o'clock Wednesday. In the evening Colonel Nobile is to address the aeronautic engineers. Meanwhile excursions and visits to museums and other points of interest have been prepared for the members of the expedition.

To Drop Fascist Symbols at Pole.

ROME, April 17 (AP).—If the Amundsen expedition reaches the North Pole in its Italian-built and Italian-commanded airship Norge, Fascism will have—at least symbolically—reached the top of the earth. Commander Nobile, who built the dirigible and is in command of it, consented before leaving Italy to drop at the Pole a piece of a Fascist battleflag and a piece of black cloth symbolic of Fascism. Both of these objects were presented to him by the Fascist organization of Grotte di Castro.

SOVIET-REICH DEAL ACCEPTED BY BRITISH

They Take Berlin's Word That It Will Not Affect Locarno or the League.

M. P.'S GOING TO RUSSIA

Conservative Party Members Will Investigate for Themselves Conditions Under Red Regime.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—The compact of benevolent neutrality entered into by Russia and Germany, as announced in THE NEW YORK TIMES, has been the chief diplomatic event of the week. Some alarm, according to reports, has been caused in certain European capitals by Germany's action, but it is not shared by the British Government.

"We would rather it had not taken place at this particular time, but now that it has we accept Germany's statement of her reasons for it," practically represents the British official attitude. It is an acknowledgment of the assurances given to both the British and French Governments by Germany that the clauses of the new treaty will conflict neither with the Locarno compact nor with Germany's future obligations under the Covenant of the League of Nations, of which she is regarded as a de facto member.

Disposition to Welcome Treaty.

There is a disposition in some influential British quarters not only not to condemn the new compact, but to welcome it. Though the British Government officially maintains its attitude of what might be described as passive hostility to the Soviets, there are signs that some of its followers have more open minds. A party of four Conservatives, members of Parliament, for instance, left England today to pay, for the first time since the Russian revolution, a visit to Russia. It comprises Sir Frank Nelson, Robert Boothby, Captain R. C. Bourne and Colonel T. C. R. Moore.

The main idea is to see exactly how things stand under the Soviets," said Sir Frank Nelson.

Colonel Moore said:

"I have formed the opinion that the Soviet Government is rather in a state of evolution at present and preparing to recognize Russia's pre-revolutionary obligations. I believe not only that the welfare of each country is necessary for the good of the world but that Russia has far more to gain by cultivating relations with Britain than any other country."

Writer Predicts Great Changes.

J. L. Garvin, editor of The Observer, appears to welcome the new compact.

"European economic unity and the general disarmament of hearts which alone can insure that of hands and world peace itself," he writes, "must depend on whether there is to be a changed attitude in other countries toward two mighty peoples who have now reaffirmed their fundamental sense of common interests. They are something like one of the elemental forces of the earth which cannot be fettered forever by the paper chains woven between Paris, London and Rome with the assistance of Warsaw and the Little Entente.

"Gradually, slowly, the greater ex-Allies and their satellites will have to bring themselves to bear the hated word revision, or there will be no League and no peace.

"American credit has poured into Germany on a vast scale. Without definite intention, but with full effect, United States investors are rebuilding German commercial strength, bound to reach a height never attained before. Austrian Germans in the end will join the fatherland.

"The Soviet system will soon have been established for nearly ten years. The violent phases of the revolution are over. One thing must be thoroughly realized. Any fundamental change whatever in the present Government system could only mean some regime less favorable to the Western nations and to peace.

"If Downing Street and the Quai d'Orsay won't take a leaf out of the book of Wilhelmstrasse and seek their own direct settlements with Russia, then in the next seven years a great deal more of their diplomatic ground will crumble than in the last seven."

AMERICAN SHIFT ON REPARATION BOARD

T. N. Perkins, Changing Places With W. P. Cooke, Heads Arbitral Tribunal.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 17.—Thomas N. Perkins, who for the last eighteen months has been the American member of the Reparation Commission, deputed to act in questions relating to execution of the Dawes plan, has resigned and today the commission appointed in his place Walter P. Cooke, who was Chairman of the Arbitral Tribunal between the commission and Germany. With the consent of the commission the two Americans have exchanged appointments, Mr. Perkins taking the post of Chairman of the Arbitral Tribunal.

It is understood that the reason for the exchange is that Mr. Perkins, for business and family reasons, finds it inconvenient to remain permanently in Paris. His new appointment will enable him to spend a good part of each year in the United States.

All his colleagues on the Reparation Commission today expressed great regret at his departure, Louis Barthou and Sir Basil Kemball Cook, the French and British members, saying they had found Mr. Perkins's collaboration of the greatest usefulness in easing the application of the Dawes plan.

WILKINS PLANE REPAIRED.

Test Flight Is Made With It by Army Aviators at Fairbanks.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, April 17 (AP).—Two army men, Major Thomas G. Lanphier and Sergeant A. N. Wisley, made a test flight here today with the airplane Detroiter, which was wrecked March 19 and repaired in Fairbanks.

Captain George Hubert Wilkins, leader, and Lieutenant Carl B. Eielson, aviator, were expected here today from Point Barrow, Alaska, in the Alaskan. The Alaskan and the Detroiter are the equipment of an expedition in search of land in the Arctic Ocean.

It was intimated that both machines would hop from here to Barrow, 550 miles to the northwest, Wednesday; that the Detroiter will then make a dash from Point Barrow north into the unknown, and that thereafter the planes will return here.

After that, when additional supplies have been cached at Barrow, the Alaskan is to be left there in reserve while Wilkins and Eielson in the Detroiter make the final jump.

FRENCH TO DEMAND RIFFIAN GUARANTEE

General Simon Will Seek to Advance Front in Peace Parley, Which Begins Today.

OUTLOOK IS DOUBTFUL

Conference Will Be Secret and May Last Two Weeks, but End of the War Is Held Remote.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 17. — Assurances have reached Paris that Abd-el-Krim has instructed the Riffian delegates to "do everything possible to secure peace." This statement, which is confirmed by one of the Riffian delegates, has encouraged the hope that the Oudjda conference will be successful.

General Simon has announced that as a preliminary to all negotiations he is going to demand tomorrow as a guarantee of good faith security that the French lines be advanced by five or six miles so as to cover certain strategic points.

This precautionary measure, the General says, is absolutely essential if there is to be a truce, and without its acceptance by the Riffians it is possible that the beginning of the negotiations may be postponed for some days.

France has no intention of talking peace in the attitude of having been even stalemated, he added; she first of all is imposing her conditions for the suspension of hostilities.

Even with this first point gained the negotiations, however, seem likely to be difficult and prolonged, lasting at least two weeks. That they will be secret is announced by the decision of General Simon to hold the first meeting with the Riffian delegates tomorrow at Camp Bertaux, some eighty miles from Oudjda.

"It is surrounded by a fortified camp," the General told newspapermen today. "And so we are assured that at least our first meeting will be secret."

The difficulty in the French negotiations is to avoid offending the pride and independence of Abd-el-Krim, while seeking first by the detachment of his followers and second by offers of consideration and reward his abandonment of his country and the cause he has fought for.

It is no secret in Paris that during the past few weeks the Riffian chief has made repeated attempts to seek a separate peace with France and break the agreement between Paris and Madrid. Abd-el-Krim with some justice regards himself as the victor in his long struggle with Spain, and it is not easy to see what conditions he can make peace on which have even the appearance of being imposed by General Prince de Hirsch's Government.

If difficulties arise tomorrow they will, it is expected, be caused by the demand of the Spaniards to advance their position the same way as the French.

General Simon himself described the negotiations as likely to be "delicate and laborious," and, though Abd-el-Krim's attitude and his choice of delegates is encouraging, the certainty of settlement is somewhat remote.

Meeting Place Is Kept Secret.

OUDJDA, Morocco, April 17 (AP).—The French, Spanish and Riffian peace delegates will meet tomorrow morning at a spot on the fighting front, the location of which is being kept secret, to discuss the preliminary terms of an armistice.

This gathering is preparatory to the first official meeting of the peace delegates, to be held here on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Painlevé to Quit Ministry for France.

PARIS, April 17 (AP).—Le Matin's correspondent at Rabat says the Sultan of Morocco, Mulai Yussef, is to come to France for a stay of about ten days. He will make the trip on a warship and will be accompanied by an imposing cavalry guard.

Coolidge Hopeful for Harbors Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 17 (AP).—After a conference at the White House today, Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican House leader, said President Coolidge was hopeful of passage of general rivers and harbors legislation at the present session. The President was not represented as specifically endorsing the omnibus bill, which would authorize appropriations totaling $36,000,000, but as favoring, in a broad way, the continuation of general rivers and harbors improvements.

UNIT DROPS DESPITE GIFTS

Divergent Views Fail to Explain Real Cause—The Midi Proposes Making Tourists Pay in Gold.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 17.—France is facing a confused fiscal situation. On the one hand voluntary public subscriptions are flowing in for the redemption of the floating debt. On the other hand the franc is steadily losing ground. The whole country is asking why.

While many newspapers put the blame for the decline in French currency on foreign speculators and foreign markets, others say that the political differences in France are responsible for the weakness in the currency. Technical experts think that the franc's decline is partly accounted for by heavy seasonal buying and that manufacturers are now building up fresh stocks of raw materials to replace those exhausted by a Winter of industrial activities.

But followers of the exchange market say it is also true that the fall of the franc should be partly blamed upon the sensitiveness of the Paris market to sentimental values. These observers contend that the growing enthusiasm for the national contribution will have a hard time in meeting the impetus given to the franc's decline by the accumulated pessimism of many months.

Comparisons With Mark's Fal.

Some newspapers go so far as to draw comparisons between the present position of the franc and that of the German mark when the latter began to slide, although that is held to be an exaggerated conclusion in the case of France, where the printing-press has not been resorted to largely." The Journée Industrielle says:

"The peril of the present exchange crisis is that it is pushing us toward a level beyond which it is no longer possible to master the movement—a level which is hard to fix.

"Let us remember that the dollar took two years to pass from 48 to 184 marks, one year from 184 to 7,350, six months from 7,350 to 154,000, and five more months to reach 4,200,000,000,000. During this time exhausting efforts were made to arrest the movement. But above all there was a public belief in the decline—some people undoubtedly helped in it—and the country's abandonment of its money created a movement which swept away all barriers.

"But it is quite as necessary to avoid falling into a chasm through ignorance as through alarm."

Such statements as these are sufficient proof that France is passing through a period of financial seasickness. Seen in this light, the preparations for a wide campaign by the committee selected yesterday to head the national subscriptions are coming in the nick of time.

Growing Fear of No Fiscal Solution.

Although the Parliament has voted laws making up the budget deficit before the budget itself is adopted, that fact, even taken together with satisfactory foreign trade and the improved position of the Bank of France and the Treasury, does not appear sufficient to assuage public fears.

The frequent shifting of Finance Ministers has caused a growth of the opinion that the financial problem is insoluble. And this fear originated the movement in favor of public subscriptions which began several months ago—even before the Government realized the benefits it might reap from them—when there were spontaneous offerings from several small villages in remote parts of the country.

Now that official machinery has been established to gather the willing gifts from a people who already feel themselves heavily overtaxed, a nation-wide campaign will be waged to centralize and stimulate the sacrifices of the "financial volunteers."

On the list of leading men of all professions—law, medicine, learning, sciences, army, finance, business, religion, &c.—who have lent their services as national committeemen there are no members of Parliament.

Plan for National Campaign.

The National Committee for Voluntary Subscriptions will hold its first meeting on Monday, when it will consider the best means for furthering the movement. The general plan is to facilitate payments by the receival of them in practically every public establishment. All gifts will be entered in the gold book at the Finance Ministry, and extracts will be posted in the town hall of each Commune, giving the names and donations.

Consulates and embassies abroad will probably be empowered to receive subscriptions, although no appeal will be made to try to arouse foreign interest. Gifts from foreigners, however, will be received and many rich American residents here have already made important contributions.

Until the gifts are centralized in Paris no official total will be issued, but as soon as the work of organization is complete weekly contributions will be published. Officials are unwilling to set any figure which they expect to be reached. Two slogans have been adopted by the organizers of the movement.

The first is: "In the present circumstances no faltering can be tolerated." This was taken from Marshal Joffre's order of the day before the Battle of the Marne in 1914.

The second is: "Forward! Lift up our heads! This country will save itself once again!" This was from Finance Minister Raoul Peret's speech on March 30.

Would Make Americans Pay in Gold.

The Midi publishes on its third page today a report of the meeting of the stockholders of the Hotel Continental, in which it was said: "The directors indicated that Americans spent annually in France more than $500,000,000." At the present rate of exchange this means about 15,000,000,000 francs, or about 40 per cent. of the total French budget.

The same paper in a leading article on its first page refers to American tourists as "destructive grasshoppers," and recommends that they be made to pay gold francs instead of paper francs for all their purchases in France. "Who says we repelled the invader in 1918? The German invader, perhaps, but not the American and English invaders. The latter only changed their clothes. They were in khaki, now they come back in tourists' garb. They have traded gun for fork, but still continue to live on this country."

After a half column of abuse the Midi says that every American or Englishman should be made to pay in gold, since they force Frenchmen who go to their countries to pay in gold. The newspaper figures that only one-fifth as many would come, which, it calculates, would be a great relief, but holds that, paying in gold, that fifth would spend just as much.

Franc Lower as Offensive Starts.

PARIS, April 17 (AP).—A general offensive against the floating debt was launched today when a committee, of which President Doumergue is honorary President and Marshal Joffre Commander-in-Chief, was formally installed for the purpose of receiving voluntary contributions for a sinking fund.

Another low record for the franc was registered today, however. This morning the dollar purchased 28.82, and its position in exchange is causing the Government much anxiety.

The primary object of the free offering sinking fund of which the committee will take charge is to reduce the short-term bonds so that they will no longer menace the Treasury. The fund will eventually serve to retire inter-allied war debts, as well as domestic loans, though other measures are expected to eke out the proceeds of the voluntary subscriptions.

People in all walks of life seem eager to do their bit for Joffre and the French Treasury in the new battle of the Marne, and the prospects are that the campaign which during the war brought 1,500,000,000 francs in gold into the Bank of France will be cast into the shade.

The voluntary fund is not counted upon to work the miracle alone of French financial salvation, but the spirit it develops is expected to help largely in saving France's financial difficulties.

Offerings are coming in from persons in the highest and the humblest walks of life, the gifts ranging from the Prince of Monaco's 20,000 francs to a peasant's gold watch and chain, the latter of which the astounded Finance Minister found on his desk on coming to work.

The contributions include 1,000 francs from a pair of newlyweds who were desirous of celebrating their happiness patriotically; 10,000 francs came from the French Association Football Federation; one day's wages was given by the employes of the Prefecture of the Orne Department, and a handful of sous which a child sent M. Peret with a scrawled note, informing the Minister that she had decided to forego the purchase of a long sought toy in order to help France.

The President of the Paris Municipal Council sent 1,000 francs and the Councillors 500 francs each.

Hayes of the Association of Western Union Employes and Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall.

JURY FAILS TO AGREE ON O'NEILL DRAMA

New Trial Is Ordered in Los Angeles for Cast of 'Desire Under the Elms.'

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, April 17.—The cast of "Desire Under the Elms" will be tried again, the jury having disagreed in the first trial here this week.

Members of the jury are reported to have said that there was no hope for a verdict, since they were unalterable in their opinions as to the decency or indecency of the play. Judge Frederickson discharged them and set the case over to April 22.

After a conference between Prosecutor Friedlander and his deputy, Roy Reams, who prosecuted the case, Friedlander announced that he would plan a retrial. He said he would confer with members of the different bodies who requested the prosecution, and in case they recommended a dismissal he might drop the case.

During the trial of the cast of seventeen the prosecution witnesses testified that they were shocked by scenes and words of the play.

Defense Attorney Arthur W. Green called as many more witnesses who said that the play was a great dramatic triumph and that its moral lesson overshadowed and neutralized the use of harsh words.

HEADS LUMBER ASSOCIATION

F. G. Underhill Elected at Annual Convention Closes.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 17.—Frederick S. Underhill of Philadelphia was elected President of the National American Wholesale Lumber Association at the close of its annual convention here in the Ambassador Hotel.

The following directors were elected: Dwight L. Hinckley, Cincinnati; C. L. Linder, Portland; J. W. McClure, Memphis; H. W. McDonough, Boston; A. C. Manbert, Toronto; J. B. Montgomery, Pittsburgh; Max Myers, Cleveland; G. M. Stevens, New York, and Ben S. Woodhead, Beaumont, Texas.

The association adopted resolutions urging support of the House bill to amend the Bankruptcy act, opposing the Senate bills proposing regional appointment of Interstate Commerce Commissioners and advocating prompt action by the States relative to improved timber taxation methods, reforestation and conservation.

ROME WELCOMES MUSSOLINI HOME

Guns Boom, Bells Peal, Huge Crowds Throw Hats in the Air and Raise Arms.

PLANES SIGNAL HIS COMING

Similar Enthusiasm Marks His Arrival at Gaeta From His Tour of Tripoli.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, April 17.—On his return from his triumphal tour in the Colony of Tripoli, Premier Mussolini was received home again with almost regal honors. In Gaeta, where he first landed from the dreadnought Cavour; then in Rome, where he arrived late this evening, scores of thousands of citizens greeted him with enthusiastic acclaim, such as in olden times they accorded only to commanders of Roman armies returning to the Eternal City after inflicting defeat upon Rome's enemies.

All official Rome was gathered at the station to greet him as soon as he stepped off the train. Thousands upon thousands of citizens lined the route between the station and his residence, apparently accounting a brief glimpse of him as he sped past in a motor car ample reward for hours of patient waiting. Guns boomed, church bells pealed and airplanes circled overhead as the Premier's train came within sight of the city.

Crowds Gather Hours Before Time Set.

Many hours before Mussolini's train was scheduled to arrive streams of people anxious to secure some vantage point began converging from all sections of the city toward the station. Fascisti in black shirts, with flags and banners, began lining both sides of the route, holding back the immense crowds that thronged the sidewalk and every available open space. A steady trickle of carriages and motor cars bore all the State and city notabilities to the station.

The arrival of Mussolini's train was heralded by the droning airplanes high overhead. A few minutes later guns boomed and church bells began pealing. Tremendous cheering broke out when the train steamed into the station. It reached its climax when Mussolini smilingly appeared at the window of his saloon car. Thousands of arms stretched toward him in the Roman salute, while the station resounded with cries of "Viva Mussolini!" "Viva il Duce!" "Viva Fascismo!"

First to greet Mussolini as he stepped from the train was Senator Cremonesi, Governor of Rome, who expressed the Eternal City's joy at seeing him back again safe and sound after the attempt on his life on the eve of his departure for Tripoli. He was followed by the Cabinet Ministers, by high State officials and by the chief officers of the army and navy.

Mussolini appeared in excellent health and spirits. His usually sallow complexion had been considerably bronzed by the African sun, while the heavy bandages which covered his nose on his departure had been replaced by small pieces of adhesive plaster. He was full of energy and activity.

Wild Greeting by the People.

The scene when Mussolini stepped from the station into the large square outside, packed tight with his admirers, who were with difficulty restrained by cordons of troops, police and Fascisti, defies description. Thousands upon thousands of hats flew into the air, thousands upon thousands of hands were raised in the Roman salute, thousands upon thousands of throats shouted their greetings, and their applause marked their admiration. The police cordons swayed before the pressure of the people trying to get near the Premier.

Mussolini remained a few instants facing the crowd with his hand raised in the Roman salute, then entered his motorcar and drove rapidly toward his home. The scenes of enthusiasm were repeated all along the route as the Premier's car proceeded along the beflagged and artistically illuminated streets.

Mussolini had already received a similarly enthusiastic reception at Gaeta, into which Fascisti from the surrounding district, thousands of whom walked many miles in order to be present at the Premier's landing, poured all day. Scores of thousands of people had gathered as the dreadnought Cavour, escorted by a squadron of destroyers, steamed into the harbor. Mussolini, however, evidently in a hurry to reach Rome, drove directly to the station and was gone a few minutes after his arrival. He paused only long enough to say to the Fascisti, who obviously expected him to deliver a speech:

"Fascisti! Now is the time for acting, not talking."

LEADERS HERE STUDY NEW APPORTIONMENT

Admit Change of 17th District Is in Favor of Re-electing Nicoll for the Senate.

SMITH VETO IS FORESEEN

Tammany Is Sure Governor Won't Sign Measure, Republicans Fear the Same Result.

Great interest was shown here yesterday by both Republicans and members of Tammany in the fate of the Republican Senate Reapportionment bill, introduced in the Legislature on Friday. The prevailing opinion was that it was certain to pass the Legislature, which is Republican in both houses, but that it probably would be vetoed by Governor Smith. The opinion in Tammany was that the Governor was sure to veto it, unless changes to make it less partisan were made. Republicans were slightly more hopeful, but were inclined to believe that it probably would be vetoed.

Local interest centred in the proposed reapportionment for Manhattan, of which a map was published in yesterday's TIMES. Except where purely personal interests were involved, the interest was greatest in the proposed Seventeenth Senate District, the purpose of which, according to both Republicans and Democrats, is to create a certainly Republican district and bring about the re-election of State Senator Courtlandt Nicoll, the only Republican Senator from Manhattan, and one of the two Republicans in the upper house of the Legislature from New York City.

Built Around Seventeenth District.

Apparently the whole scheme of the proposed Manhattan reapportionment has been built about this Seventeenth District. It runs from Bleecker and West Third Streets on the south to West 101st Street on the north and includes practically every Republican or possibly Republican election district in the centre of Manhattan Island. Its almost certain Republicanism has been insured by including nothing east of Third Avenue on one side and very little of the territory near the Hudson River on the west side, the tenement sections near both the Hudson and East Rivers being heavily Democratic. In laying out its boundaries only the most strongly Republican parts of the Fifth Avenue and Greenwich Village sections have been retained, and on the west side of Central Park the most Republican part of the Seventh Assembly District has been retained.

Incidentally, the proposed reapportionment, if it becomes law, will create two almost surely Republican Assembly districts, as approximately 2,000 Democratic plurality has been taken from the present Seventh Assembly District, of which Albert J. Berwin is leader, and the present Fifteenth Assembly District, the banner Republican district of Manhattan, will be made more strongly Republican.

Interest in this proposed Senate district has been increased by the fact that Senator Nathan Straus Jr., one of the leading Democrats in the Senate, will be thrown into the same district with Senator Nicoll if the bill becomes law and presumably will run against Senator Nicoll for re-election.

Straus Defeat Is Seen.

Senator Straus, however, is accustomed to running in Republican territory, as the district he represents was considered Republican when he was first elected. Republicans expressed confidence that the district, as laid out, was so overwhelmingly Republican that Senator Nicoll would defeat Senator Straus if they should be opponents, although they admitted that the latter would be a very strong candidate.

Senator Nicoll's friends were reported to be particularly anxious to get the reapportionment bill through, as they believed he might be defeated in his present district at the November election. Local Republican leaders have made no secret of their expectation of a tremendous Democratic vote in New York City this fall, particularly if, as seems likely, the prohibition referendum takes place then. Passage of the reapportionment bill and the creation of this new district would, according to their viewpoint, place Senator Nicoll beyond the danger of a Democratic landslide.

Publication in THE TIMES of the map showing the boundary lines of the proposed Manhattan Senate districts brought speculation as to the reason for the various jogs and teeth. It was explained with seeming justification that most of them were caused by the necessity of making each Senate District practically equal in citizen population to every other and the constitutional prohibition against dividing a block. With blocks varying in population from nothing to more than 2,000 in some of the crowded east side sections, this was said to have been a difficult matter.

Reasons for Boundaries.

A series of steps in the boundary line between the proposed Fifteenth and Seventeenth Senate Districts, running from West Seventy-first Street to West End Avenue, to West Sixty-eighth Street, to Amsterdam Avenue, to West Sixty-fouth Street, to Columbus Avenue, to West Sixty-second Street, to Broadway, was said to have been caused by a desire to put the Tammany clubhouse of the Seventh Assembly District at 131 West Sixty-fourth Street in the Seventeenth Senate District to be with the rest of the present Seventh Assembly District territory. James J. Hagan, the Tammany leader of the Seventh Assembly District, was said to have requested that the clubhouse, which is owned by the club, be kept in his district.

The tooth at Fourteenth Street and Irving Place was caused by the wish of influential Tammany members to have Tammany Hall in a Democratic Senate District, the proposed Eighteenth, which for the most part consists of the same territory as the present Sixteenth Senate District, in which the late Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany, had his home. This was said to have been entirely a matter of sentiment, as the block in which Tammany Hall is located has only thirteen voters.

A series of teeth appear in the eastern boundary of the proposed Seventeenth Senate District, the line turning from Third to Lexington Avenue and back again at Eighty-fourth Street, Eighty-third Street, Forty-eighth Street and Thirty-second Street. These departures from a straight line were said to have been requested by Republican leaders William C. Hecht Jr. of the Sixteenth Assembly District and J. S. Shea and Charles F. Lexow of the Twelfth, so that their clubhouses or residences might be continued in their own territory.

Await Tammany Plan.

The Tammany reapportionment, introduction of which in the Legislature is expected next Tuesday, is awaited with interest. According to Tammany members, the map of the Manhattan Senate districts to be proposed by Tammany will show much straighter boundary lines and no obvious attempt, so far as will appear from the map, to gain partisan advantage. Republicans discussing the matter said that this would be easy, as boundary lines drawn from east to west, dividing Manhattan Island into a series of parallel strips, would create a series of districts every one of which would be Democratic, because of the heavy Democratic vote in the sections adjoining the waterfronts on either side.

The Tammany reapportionment bill, of course, has no chance of being passed by the Legislature, but is expected to aid Governor Smith in justifying a veto of the Republican measure by furnishing a comparison.

Republicans, in expressing belief that the Governor would veto the Republican bill, said that he would be asked to do so by Tammany because it would cause Manhattan to lose two Senators and four Assemblymen, and Brooklyn to gain one Assemblyman, thus opening the way for a loss of Tammany influence at State conventions and perhaps ultimately its leadership of the Democratic organizations in New York City.

They expressed belief that the Governor, if he vetoes the bill, might seek justification in a discrepancy of populations on the proposed districts, particularly in those up State. As an illustration, they pointed out that the population of the proposed Thirty-fifth Senate District, composed of St. Lawrence and Franklin Counties, had 128,432 population, while the population of the Thirty-first District, the County of Albany, was 136,214.

NEW JERSEY TO FIGHT PHONE RATE INCREASE

Commission, Defeated in Court Decision, Plans Another Move to Cut Charges.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 17.—Although defeated in its fight in the United States Supreme Court to keep the New York Telephone Company from increasing rates to customers in Northern New Jersey, the State Public Utility Commission made it known yesterday that it would seek in another way to force a return to the old schedule.

Consideration will be given to the fixing of a new depreciation reserve rate lower than that in effect at present, and also to any other items which might lessen charges to subscribers.

In its decision the Supreme Court held that the commission erred in refusing to permit a higher rate on the theory that the company had an excessive depreciation reserve. The board held that the company should use this piled up reserve before applying for increased rates. The Supreme Court decided there was no relation between a company's reserve fund or property depreciation and the rates it should charge.

The commission does not understand the court decided that the depreciation rate under which the reserve accumulated was a reasonable rate to be maintained in the future, or that the commission was prevented from fixing a rate which would be lower than the one the company had in effect.

The New York Telephone Company filed its application with that of the Delaware and Atlantic Telegraph and Telephone Company, which serves Trenton. Advances in rates were allowed to the latter concern, and the New York company, after its petition was denied, appealed to the Federal courts.

LONG ISLAND ROAD TO SPEND $11,000,000

Electrifying From Floral Park to Mineola and Valley Stream to Mineola This Year.

WILL BUILD NEW STATIONS

Grade Crossings at Mattituck and Broadway, Elmhurst, to Be Eliminated.

Long Island Railroad improvements included in the company's budget for 1926 reach a total of about $11,000,000.

Among the major projects under way or to be started soon are the extension of the electrified system from Floral Park to Mineola, on the main line, and from Mineola to Valley Stream, on the New York Bay extension, and the double tracking of the Long Beach Branch from East Rockaway to Wreck Lead.

Plans also are being prepared to install a second track on the Montauk Division from Sayville to a point east of Patchogue, besides the construction of a storage yard and engine terminal.

Six thousand seven hundred tons of 100-pound rail have been ordered and will be used to replace lighter rail and to provide additional running tracks and sidings. Tie plates and anti-creepers also have been ordered. New ties to the number of 155,000 will replace worn-out ties and be used for double tracking on the Montauk and Long Beach Divisions.

The company proposes to erect two passenger stations, one at Northport and the other at West Hampstead. The grade crossing at Broadway, Elmhurst, will be eliminated. This work is estimated at $430,000, one-half to be borne by the railroad, one-quarter by the state and one-quarter by the City of New York. Plans also call for the elimination of the grade crossing at Mattituck on the main line.

A new steel and concrete bridge is to be constructed over Queens Boulevard on the North Shore Division. This will cost $400,000. Two bridges, to carry Forest Park Drive over the Rockaway Beach and Montauk Divisions will be rebuilt at a cost of about $150,000 each.

At a cost of about $910,000 the road is having seven electric freight locomotives constructed. In further compliance with the Kaufmann Electrification law, the Long Island purchased a 100-to oil-ele tric Diesel locomotive for freight service at a cost of $100,000, and early this year acquired a new gas-electric engine for freight shifting service, costing $60,000.

DUST PIPE EXPLODES, 17 HURT IN FACTORY

Flames Trap Several in Plant of Victor Talking Machine Company in Camden.

WOMAN CRITICALLY BURNED

CAMDEN, N. J., April 17.—An explosion in a sawdust conveyor in the cabinetmaking plant of the Victor Talking Machine Company here this afternoon injured seventeen employes and caused a fire which imperiled the lives of 200 workers.

Four of those injured are women, one of whom is not expected to live. She is Miss Josephine Coppalini, 23 years old, of 1,935 South Thirteenth Street, Philadelphia. A burst of flame cut her off alone on the third floor. Before firemen or other employes could get to her she was seriously burned. She is in Cooper Hospital. Eight others are in the same hospital.

The explosion occurred at 4:20 o'clock. Workers in the cabinet plant saw a sheet of flame leap from a pipe of wood dust. A dull roar shook the building. There was a rush for the doors, but before any of the 200 employes could get out the plant was ablaze in a dozen places.

The first frantic rush through the doors sent workers to a box of the company's own fire alarm system. But the company's forces were useless, as the entire building was in flames. An emergency call was sent to the city fire department. Apparatus arrived with several fireboats from the river side and hose, tons of water were pouring into the building.

Several employes trapped on the third and fourth floors were rescued. Most of those burned were not seriously injured.

Among those in the hospital besides Miss Coppalini are:

ALLGATO, JOSEPH, 33, 641 Wharton Street, Philadelphia.
WALKER, Mrs. IDA M., 38, Bellaire, N. J.
ALANGIO, ANTHONY, 36, 537 Rankin Street, Philadelphia.
CHRISTIE, JOSEPH, 40, 1,334 Tasker Street, Philadelphia.
BOZA, ROCCO, 28, 343 Clinton Street.

Fire Chief George B. Wade said he believed the fire had been caused by spontaneous combustion. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

BUCKNER IN ADDRESS AVOIDS DRY ISSUE

Details Other Angles of His Job at Smith College Club Luncheon.

The Smith College Club of New York held its annual luncheon at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday. The speakers were United States Attorney Buckner, William A. Beebe, the explorer, and Dr. William Allan Neilson, President of Smith. About 500 attended.

Mr. Buckner avoided prohibition. He discussed the various phases of the work of the United States Attorney's office, remarking that "most people think the United States Attorney is merely a prohibition cop." In speaking of the civil side of his office, Mr. Buckner disclosed that his staff had pending 320 suits involving income tax delinquents, the sum at stake being $30,000,000.

Another angle of his job that required time was that dealing with smuggling, he said, adding that his office had "hundreds and hundreds" of cases of merchants who were being questioned for undervaluation of imports. "Women," he said, with a smile, "have no monopoly of smuggling, contrary to what some people say."

He condemned the tendency to pass "laws and more laws," and said the problem leading all others today was "to get the normal State functions back to the States." Mr. Beebe told of his trip to the Galapagos, and Dr. Neilson explained how Smith's experiment in having students put in their third collegiate year in Paris, concentrating their study chiefly upon the French language, was working out.

"Made in U. S. A." Laces To Be on Exhibit Monday

Several Departments and Broadway Windows of Macy's Will Testify to Artistic Achievements of American Lace Makers

That machines may be the handmaidens of art is pertinently demonstrated this week in a special exhibit at Macy's of the exquisite new laces recently produced by America's foremost makers. They are the laces which are so important now in the newer fashions—costume laces, lingerie laces, and laces for accessories and decorative purposes.

In addition to having surmounted the mechanical obstacles involved in the production of anything so intricate, so delicate, and so specialized as lace, American producers have fostered the creation of excellent designs which fully justify their present fashion importance.

Interesting Lace Windows.

One of Macy's Broadway window displays, opening to-morrow, will illustrate the industrial processes, showing the yarns in the gray, then dyed, and then being woven. Another window, opening on Tuesday, will show the uses of lace in smart fashions. A lace evening gown from Lanvin, an afternoon costume and various other articles made with lace will exemplify the trend of fashion.

Other gowns of lace, adaptations and copies of Paris successes and lingerie trimmed with American lace, are shown in Macy's third floor apparel sections.

The headquarters of lace, on the street floor, where these American-made types may be bought by the yard, are exhibiting the very newest designs, including the fashionable black Chantilly, and certain new flouncings which are made circular, for godets and bouffant skirts.

Spanish influences and Spanish fashions, not the least of which is Senorita Raquel Meller herself, have cast their glamour over many of the loveliest of these laces, and their American makers have, in weave and color and authentic patterns, intensified their Spanish inspiration.

Milt Gross At Macy's Monday

Milt Gross, popular humorist and cartoonist, will visit Macy's to-morrow afternoon from two to three p. m., and autograph copies of his newly published "Nize Baby" in the Book Department on the street floor.

If you do not already know that dollink baby that itts opp hall de hepple freeters and de typpyukka puttink, you have a great treat and many, many laughs in store. If you do know him you w ll certainly want this record of his doings. For Nize Baby's companions are none other than Looey Dot Dope, Mowriss, the blitched blound witt pongeranium dug, and others just as quaint.

Golf Links Now Open to Public

Season Started Yesterday—Mayor Drives Off at Van Cortlandt

"Fore! Fore! Fore!"

Van Cortlandt Park, Mosholu and Pelham golf links all opened for the season yesterday. At Van Cortlandt, no less a personage than Mayor Walker himself "drove off" yesterday as the first golfer.

Now is the time for long drives and low scores, for trick shots and high form. The public links are available, the balmy days are here and it would be a good plan for the golfer to take stock now of his equipment and his needs for the game.

Macy's Sporting Goods Shop on the fifth floor is ready for him, with the standard brands of clubs and golf balls, including the new Supro-Macy ball which combines distance with durability and is guaranteed against cutting. A professional expert is in attendance to advise golfers.

New Golf Togs.

In the Men's Sportswear Shop on the same floor are to be found four-piece golf suits and separate knickers in sizes and styles to fit all types. One of the new golf jackets is a reversible affair with overplaid rubber on one side for protection against the rain and a smart knit wool fabric for sunny days on the other. A slip-on rubber shirt with elastic bands at the cuffs and a zipper closing in the front can be tucked into one's knicker to do duty as a golf raincoat. The new sweater sets, hose and sweater matching, feature big bold octagonal and square shapes.

For the woman golfer there is the Sportswear Shop, and the Knitwear Department adjoining it on the third floor, where smart golf suits, knitted sports dresses, jackets and sweater sets are to be found. A new note in women's golf suits is the tweed outfit with divided skirt. Soft felt hats for the game in the popular high shades of yellow, g een and rose may also be procured here.

Merchandise advertised by Macy's on sale tomorrow and the next day. See today's World, American or Tribune for the Macy grocery ad.

BARS HERKINS & CO. IN GIBSON OIL DEALS

Court Enjoins Brokers From the Activities Alleged to Have Defrauded Stockholders.

NOVEL METHODS CHARGED

State Prosecutor Says Concern Sent Confirmations to Buyers When No Shares Were Purchased.

Herkins & Co., Inc., brokers, at 150 Broadway, Lorrin A. Herkins, President, formerly a floor member of the New York Stock Exchange for John Muir & Co., and six other officers and salesmen of the firm were enjoined by Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney yesterday from further transactions involving securities of the Gibson Oil Corporation, which has oil properties appraised at $14,000,000 net, and also from alleged fraudulent practices in the handling of securities in general. Argument on a motion to make the injunction permanent and to appoint a receiver will be heard April 27.

Application for the injunction was based on an investigation conducted by Deputy State Attorney General George E. Carmody of the Anti-Stock Frauds Bureau, at 66 Broadway, who alleged in an affidavit filed with the moving papers that stockholders of the Gibson Oil Corporation had been defrauded of many thousands of dollars within the last y during which time Herkins & Co. had specialized in the stock of that corporation to the extent of several hundred thousand shares.

Novel Fraud Charged.

According to Mr. Carmody, the alleged frauds were novel. Herkins & Co., he alleged, for a time were in touch with a man who held an option and was able to furnish them securities of the Gibson Oil Corporation. Later he stopped doing so, and Herkins & Co., it is charged, continued to specialize in the stock, sending confirmations of purchases to customers when, in reality, they had made no purchases.

Scenting disaster, Mr. Carmody set forth in his affidavit, Herkins & Co. notified real Gibson Oil stockholders to dump their shares on the market. The result was that, in two or three days, the price of the securities dropped sharply to around $4 to $4.25 a share, whereas, about Feb. 15, they had been selling at $7 a share, and, for a time, Mr. Carmody asserted, Herkins & Co. had been representing these securities to be worth $14 to $15 a share.

As soon as the stock had been depressed on the Curb, Mr. Carmody alleged, Herkins & Co. purchased numbers of these securities for their own account from their customers, concealing the fact they had been buying up the shares they had advised customers to dispose of. Only one week before the alleged campaign to depress Gibson Oil, it is charged, Herkins & Co. had been soliciting orders at the $14 and $15 prices.

Others included in the injunction are Eleanor C. Di Pirro, Secretary and a director of Herkins & Co.; Allen W. Walz, a director, and William Jennings Bryan, Herbert J. Wile, Joseph Menardi and Edward Marshall, salesmen. The injunction order includes "all property derived from fraudulent stock transactions, including the bank account of Herkins & Co.," which are enjoined from "transfer or interference of any kind whatever."

Alleges Advice to Sell.

The moving papers set forth that at first the Gibson Oil stock rose on the New York Curb Market, where it is listed, so that if Herkins & Co. had been compelled to buy in the open market they would have suffered losses. It is then alleged that the advice to real stockholders to sell was given over the telephone to large numbers of stockholders who were told that Herkins & Co. had an "inside tip" that the Gibson Oil Corporation would soon become involved in a lawsuit which would jeopardize the value of its stock.

Walter J. Danz, one of the complainants, said in an affidavit also filed in the case that Herkins told him he had taken out an injunction against the Gibson Oil Corporation, and led him to believe the corporation had been enjoined from operation. Danz declared he ordered Herkins to sell 1,300 shares at the market price, then about 4⅛. Danz's affidavit set forth that Herkins & Co. told him they would sell his shares, but actually purchased them for their own account, and charged Danz a commission for the pretended sale.

Mr. Carmody's affidavit asserted that examination of the books of Herkins & Co. had disclosed the purchase of several hundred thousand shares of Gibson Oil in this way. The Gibson Oil Corporation, which owns valuable properties in the Pan Handle oil fields in Texas, is a Delaware corporation with a capital stock of 1,000,000 shares.

Mr. Carmody said Herkins had testified before State Attorney General Albert Ottinger that it was the firm's "common practice" to sell their own Gibson stock to the public and at the same time to charge broker's commissions.

ENDORSE FUND DRIVE OF BROOKLYN MUSEUM

Women Support Move to Remodel Smith Mansion as Home of Children's Organization.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Brooklyn Children's Museum, at a luncheon yesterday in the Hotel St. George, Brooklyn, endorsed the campaign of the museum to obtain money for the remodeling of the Smith mansion as the future home of the children's organization. The matter was before the Board of Estimate at City Hall last week.

The Children's Museum, which is part of the Brooklyn Institute of Art, faces Brower Park, at Brooklyn Avenue and Prospect Place. The Smith mansion, which is twice the size of the museum, also faces the park, but extends from Prospect Place to St. Marks Avenue.

The Rev. John Howland Lathrop was toastmaster. Borough President Guider promised support in the campaign to get the money for remodeling. John H. McCooey, Democratic leader of Brooklyn, offered a resolution urging the Board of Estimate to "expedite the payment of the appropriation for the Smith mansion." Aldermanic President McKee seconded the resolution.

Supreme Court Justice Lewis L. Fawcett and Matthew Sloan, President of the Brooklyn Edison Company, and Mrs. Kathleen Norris, the novelist, were speakers.

BLAMES DIM LIGHTS FOR IMMORALITY

Justice Lewis Wants More Illumination in Cafes as a Check to Lawlessness.

Dim, shaded lights rather than white lights were blamed by Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Lewis of Brooklyn for much present-day immorality and lawlessness in an interview yesterday.

"Dim, shaded, amber or rose colored lights, soft music, swaying bodies, tinkling glasses, cozy nooks—these appurtenances," said Justice Lewis, "are cunningly made part of a general scheme to make patrons of some restaurants and all-night clubs forget all sense of responsibility and decency.

"The owners of these places are not actuated by a desire to give their patrons a good meal at reasonable price and earn a fair profit; they're after the most money in the least time.

"A great study, I find, is made of the lighting system. There was a time when one could see what one was about to eat. Now all dishes are shrouded in mystery; the ceiling lights have passed into the discard. In their place we have small table lights—one on each table, and so shaded that persons sitting on either side of the board can just barely discern each other's outlines. Certainly their faces and actions are protected from inquisitive neighbors-at-table.

"Light these places properly, and I venture the opinion that men will not go there with other men's wives; that young girls will not dare go there, for fear of being seen.

"More air, more light and more room will bring about more morality."

CHILDREN AID CATHEDRAL.

200 in Guardian Society Give $30 Representing Their Savings.

Six children from the American Female Guardian Society and Home for the Friendless, 936 Woodycrest Avenue, visited the Cathedral of St. John the Divine yesterday and gave $30 to Bishop William T. Manning to help build the Children's Arch. Their contribution represented savings by 200 boys and girls in the home.

Bishop Manning received the young visitors in his office in the synod hall and thanked them for the gift. Anna Thonan made the presentation speech. She is 14 years old. The others were Millard Mawbey, 12; Hazen Ambrose, 10; Virginia Kane, 10; John Garcia, 8; and Shirley Reed, 5. They were accompanied by Miss Viola L. Parks, director, and by Miss Regina G. Morgan and Mrs. Katherine Jeavons, teachers.

SILK AND SATIN COATS

SMART NOW—WILL BE EVEN SMARTER LATER

For Women, Misses and the Petite Miss

Fashion—more practical than we give her credit for—has given her smart endorsement to the silk or satin coat. The reason is obvious—Spring lingered on the way—Summer is just around the corner. Silk coats, either smartly furred, kasha lined or worn with separate fur scarfs are seen everywhere worn by smart women of all ages, and Saks-Fifth Avenue now presents a large and exclusive collection of silk and satin coats that fulfills every requirement of fashion and exceeds every expectation in quality.

BARNARD FRESHMEN WIN 'GREEK GAMES'

Defeat Sophomores in Annual Contest at Drama, Poetry, Music and Athletics.

THEIR MARGIN A SMALL ONE

Second Victory for a Freshman Class in 23 Years That Games Have Been Held.

The freshman class of Barnard College, Columbia University, triumphed yesterday afternoon over the sophomores in "Greek Games," Barnard's annual classic contest in drama, poetry, music, dancing, costume and athletics. The winners had 51 3-10 points out of a possible 100. The games took place in the gymnasium of Students' Hall, 119th Street and Broadway. It was the second victory for a freshman class in the twenty-three years that the games have been held.

The class of 1929 took the lead in the entrance dramatization, judged for execution, dramatic interest, original music and costuming, and kept it until the end. The story of the pageant, drawn from the traditions of Hermes, the patron god of this year's games, told of the punishment by divine anger of a popular leader who had scorned a sorrowing mother whose child he had crushed beneath his chariot wheels. The music was writen by Margaret Carroll.

Parts of the priestesses who lighted the fire upon Hermes's altar were taken by Dorothy Hussie, 1928, and Gertrude Kahrs, 1929. Miss Hussie delivered the Invocation in Greek. A challenge to the contest was delivered for 1928 by Hazel Russell and the reply, for 1929, by Jane Hilyer, in Greek. In the winning Chorus and Dance, presented by the class of 1928, Alice Ittner and Helen Hope took solo parts. May Friedman, leader of the chorus, received the wreath of victory for dance music.

Freshman Wins Poem Prize.

Jane Hillyer, 1929, won the contest for lyrics. Her poem, "Prayer of a Lover to Hermes," was read by Hilda Muggli, 1928.

In athletics, the following were the results: For discus throwing, Elise Schloesser, 1929, received the wreath for form, and also the highest score for placement; Ruth Richards, 1928, won second place, and Marion Ress, 1929, third place.

For hurdling, the wreath of first place went to Olive Bushnell, 1929. Sarah Donnell, 1928, took second place and Ruth Hoyt, 1929, third.

The wreat. in hoop rolling was received by Mary Bamberger, 1929. The higher score in the chariot race went to the class of 1928, the wreath being accepted by the charioteer, Mabelle Schopp, in behalf of herself and her team of horses, represented by Evelyn Frank, Clara Fisher, Lucrezia Andujar and Harriet Steele.

A wreath for original music was given to Eugenie Cheroff, 1928, who composed the melodies used in the entrance pageant of her class.

Judges of the events were as follows:

For entrance: Norman Bel Geddes, Miss Katharine Coffey, Professor John Erskine. Costumes: Tony Sarg, Miss Marian Mettler, Miss Belle Boas. Lyrics: Edwin Markham, Miss Babette Deutsch, Professor Brander Matthews. Music: Arthur Bedarsky, Mrs. John Peltz, Frank Scherer. Dance: Mrs. Augustin Duncan, Lucia Alsamora, Miss Bird Larson. Athletics: Miss Edna Trull, Miss Fern Yates, Miss Florence McArdle, Miss Edna Carling, Miss Lillian Schoedler.

Students on Committees.

Students heading the "Greek Games" Central Committees were: For the class of 1928, Mary Hooke, Chairman, and Constance Friess, ex-officio member; for 1929, Gertrude Kahrs, Chairman, and Marian Churchill, ex-officio member; Ruth Bates, 1925, business manager; Betty Kallaher, 1926, student supervisor.

In charge of advisory committees were Eleanor Rich and Margaret Ayars for 1928 and Elise Schlosser and Helen Roberts for 1929.

Olive McGill, for 1928, and Ruth Von Roeschlaub, for 1929, were chairmen of business committees; Helen Gambrill and Margaret Andrews, respectively, of athletic committees; Janet Gemmel and Vera Freudenheim, of dance committees; Harriet Taylor and Jane Hillyer, of lyric committees; May Friedman and Margaret Carrol, of music; Edith Wood and Sylvia Seifert, of costume committees.

The Barnard "Greek Games," it was explained in the official program, are "an attempt to reproduce, so far as modern conditions permit, a classic festival.

"The only departure from the Greek custom," it is said, "is the use of color in the costumes, instead of the authentic white."

Colors this year were purples and grays, relieved by scarlet, used by the freshmen, and soft blues and greens, contrasted with henna and blood orange, the choice of the sophomores. Barnard "Greek Games" date from 1903.

HINDENBURG IS VISITED BY KING OF SWEDEN

Monarch Is First Royal Caller on President of the German Republic.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 17.—In the person of King Gustav of Sweden President von Hindenburg has received the first royal visitor ever entertained by the Chief Magistrate of the German Republic. The King's call at the Presidential Mansion in Wilhelmstrasse took place at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but, possibly owing to the strict incognito he preserved during his few hours' stay in Berlin, was kept secret until today.

The Swedish ruler also is the first chief of a State to pay his respects to the German President. Chancellor Remek, who visited the Field Marshal officially a few weeks ago, is Prime Minister of Austria, but not the head of that republic.

Although King Gustav's call was entirely unofficial, he was welcomed with full military honors. Thus, in the courtyard of the old Wilhelmstrasse Palace, a company of German soldiers for the first time since the revolution presented arms to a foreign sovereign.

His Majesty was attended by the Swedish Minister, one gentleman-in-waiting and the royal physician. He wore a silk hat and frock coat. President von Hindenburg, similarly attired, received him in the State drawing room. After a short conversation, in which it is declared political subjects were not touched on, the Field Marshal escorted his guest into the dining hall, where tea was served. Besides the Swedish callers only three members of the Presidential household were present.

He had arrived in Berlin from the Riviera yesterday morning, and continued his journey to Stockholm last night.

SMITH SIGNS BILL FOR CRIME INQUIRY

Approves Creation of Commission for Investigation of Cause and Prevention.

APPROVES 13 BAUMES BILLS

Governor Also Empowers City to Remove Elevated and Surface Tracks on Three Streets.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—Governor Smith today made it possible for New York State to launch an intensive drive against criminals when he signed a bill sponsored by Assemblyman Davison, Republican, of Nassau, providing for the creation of a special commission empowered to make a sweeping investigation into the cause and prevention of crime.

The Governor also approved thirteen anti-crime bills recommended by the Baumes commission. The Baumes commission recommended twenty-two bills and virtually all of them have been approved.

The Crime Commission will consist of eleven members, including two Senators, two Assemblymen, the Speaker of the Assembly, the President Pro Tem of the Senate and five members to be appinted by the Governor. An appropriation of $50,000 is made for expenses.

There has been some talk that Assemblyman Davison, who is the Chairman of the National Crime Commission, may become the head of the State commission.

Longer sentences for persons convicted of robbery and burglary are provided in the anti-crime measures approved today. Persons convicted of first degree robbery could be sent to prison for fifteen years, instead of ten as at present. One bill approved makes gambling a misdemeanor instead of a felony. This change was recommended by the Baumes commission in the belief that more convictions of bookmakers and policy players could be obtained.

Under a bill sponsored by Assemblyman Goodrich, Republican, of Westchester, which was approved by the Governor, a person sent to a State prison would have to serve at least one year unless his sentence was commuted by the Governor. At present persons who are sentenced for from on to two years often serve less than a year because their sentence is automatically reduced by good behavior.

Another anti-crime measure approved by the Governor provides that the opening address of the lawyer for the defense must be made at the end of the opening address of the prosecution.

A total of sixty-three new laws was added to the State statutes by the Governor's signature. This brings the total number of laws approved by the Governor this year up to 470.

Two measures were approved affecting the City Court of New York City. One increases the salaries of the Justices to $17,500, with $18,000 for the Chief Justice. Another provides for the election this Fall of five new Justices, which would bring the total number of members of this court to fifteen.

Three bills providing for the removal of elevated or railway surface tracks in New York City were approved. One authorizes the city to remove the elevated structure from East Thirty-fourth Street, between the westerly side of Third Avenue and the foot of East Thirty-fourth Street, east of First Avenue. Another bill authorizes the removal of the street car tracks from East Fifty-ninth Street, between the westerly line of Second Avenue and the westerly line of First Avenue. Under a third the tracks from Central Park West and Eighth Avenue, between Fifty-ninth and 110th Streets, may be torn up.

Senator Knight today introduced a bill to create a commission of nine members to continue the work of the Hughes Commission, which planned the reorganization of the State Government. The chief work of the proposed new commission would be to make the existing laws conform with the reorganization program. Two members of the commission would be appointed by the Governor, three by the Senate leader and four by the Speaker of the Assembly.

Three bills recommended by the Hughes Commission were approved today by the Governor. They provide for the reorganization of the State Labor Department, the creation of a State department in place of the Secretary of State and for amendments to the executive and military laws.

READING ARRIVES IN LONDON

Former Viceroy Says That India Is Nearing Self-Government.

Copyright, 1926, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—Lord Reading returned to his native shores today after five years as Viceroy of India.

After crossing the Channel from France in a violent thunderstorm, the ex-Viceroy, who was accompanied by his wife, was met at Victoria Station by Lord Colebrooke, on behalf of King George, and by Lord Birkenhead and Sir Ronald Waterhouse, on behalf of Prime Minister Baldwin.

Interviewed by newspaper men aboard the Channel boat, the ex-Viceroy said, "All's well with India."

He declared that the years he spent there were a time of anxiety and hard work, but added that affairs there were better than when he arrived. "I never knew when trouble was coming," he said, "or from what quarter it would come. Day and night I was at work."

Lord Reading remarked that he did not go in while Viceroy for riding on elephants in processions.

"The hardships of the Viceroy's life are in the sheer drudgery of what I might almost call 'office work,'" he said. "I have done my best to bring peace to India. Things are better there now than five years ago. For one thing, the evil spirits aroused by the war are dying out. The Indian's emotional unrest is departing. People are looking at things in a calmer light. Constitutional methods are coming back.

"India is being more and more self-governed. We could not stop self-government even if we wanted to. In fact, we have promised the Indians self-government."

TROOPS AT BRIDGE OPENING.

Will Take Part in Ceremonies at Delaware Span on July 4.

Troops of the regular army will take part in the South Jersey Exposition in July and August, featuring the opening of the $37,000,000 suspension bridge across the Delaware River at Camden, N. J., according to tentative plans announced yesterday by Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall, Commander of the Second Corps Area, Governors Island.

Arrangements are being made to send Company B of the First Regiment of United States Engineers from Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, to Camden in time to represent the army at the opening of the bridge on July 4. This company, according to plans, will remain through the exposition. The soldiers will pitch tents on a tract of land at the Camden Civic Centre and the public will be invited to see a regular army bivouac as it would exist under actual campaign conditions.

Colonel Godwin Ordway, U. S. A., commanding officer of Fort Hancock, will be in charge of details for the army.

KASTEL CONVICTED ON HIS THIRD TRIAL

JURY ASKS FOR CLEMENCY

Considered Case 28 Hours—Prisoner Indicted in 1922, Following Dillon & Co. Failure.

After being out twenty-three hours, the jury that heard evidence in the third trial of Philip (Dandy Phil) Kastel, for fraudulent use of the mails in connection with sales of securities by Dillon & Co., convicted him yesterday on one of six counts in the indictment. Clemency was recommended. Federal Judge Augustus N. Hand, who presided, announced motions to set aside the verdict would be heard Thursday. Kastel's $10,000 bail was continued until tomorrow, when it will be increased to $20,000, pending outcome of the motions.

Kastel was indicted in 1922. Dillon & Co. failed in 1921. He has been tried three times in three weeks on the mail fraud charge. The first two trials resulted in disagreements. After the second trial Federal Judge Colin Neblett of New Mexico, who had presided at both trials, said he would be willing to remain in New York all Summer if necessary to see the matter reach a decision.

Judge Neblett set the case down for retrial on Tuesday. On that day James W. Osborne, who, with Clark Jordan, represented the defendant, filed an affidavit of prejudice in which he took exception of Judge Neblett's statement about waiting here for a decision. Judge Neblett said he would willingly exchange places with any Judge in the Federal Building for the third trial.

The case was prosecuted by United States Attorney Buckner and his assistants, Frederic R. Coudert and Raphael Koenig. Kastel is also under indictment at Fonda, N. Y., in connection with the activities of Dillon & Co.

RULES IN BECKWITH CASE.

Rhode Island Judge Favors California Guardian of Boy Heir.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 17 (AP).—The opinion that when the administration of the $500,000 trust estate held by the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company for Lawrence Beckwith is completed here, it should be turned over to the California guardian of the child, is expressed by Judge Stone in a decision handed down in Municipal Court today dismissing the petition of Charles E. Houghton and Harry F. Dolan, Massachusetts guardians for the discharge of Edward A. Stockwell as guardian of the estate in Rhode Island.

The Rhode Island Superior Court in a decision handed down on March 31 dismissed an appeal from the appointment of Mr. Stockwell as Rhode Island guardian. An appeal from this decision was taken to the Supreme Court.

Pays $1,000,000 for 256 Acres.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., April 17 (AP).—E. M. Speer of this city was declared today to be the purchaser of 256 acres of land from Dwight W. Morrow, in a deal which was announced yesterday. The purchase price was said to have been $1,000,000. The land is in the area to be affected by the Fort Lee-Hudson River bridge.

BARON KRUPP DECLARES DAWES PLAN VALUABLE

Sees in Its Elasticity a Partial Solution of Germany's Industrial Problems.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 17.—While voicing doubt as to the possibility of increasing Germany's exports to the high level necessary for meeting future reparational annuities, Baron Krupp von Bohlen Halbach, head of the Krupp concern, in a speech before the general convention of German Industrial Bank today, spoke most optimistically about the functioning of the Dawes plan.

Experiences of the past year, he declared, had been extremely valuable in estimating the plans of probable development. He continued:

"The Dawes plan presents no rigid formulae for the fulfillment of forthcoming tasks. It must not be forgotten that the plan as a living thing operates fundamentally on the principle of elastic adaptation to changing circumstances in German and world economic conditions. Hence it will be possible to seek in the plan's actual operation rational solutions, taking into constant consideration the vital interests of all concerned."

Pointing out that the deficit in last year's German trade balance had to be covered by foreign loans, Baron Krupp said the position of the Reich's foreign trade caused grave misgivings. To attain the export volume requisite for the liquidation of the Dawes obligation, he observed that neutral experts had estimated that raw materials to the value of 14,000,000,000 marks must be imported yearly in order that the export total will be raised to 15,000,000,000 marks.

But, he added, in 1925 Germany's exports were 40 per cent. below their 1913 level.

Baron Krupp stigmatized German industry's flight from inflation into material values as the cause of bitter deception. When the return of a gold basis came, he affirmed that an appalling shrinkage in these supposedly real values had to be recorded and that many industrial concerns went to the wall in consequence.

The Art of Living

TO find real happiness in life we must learn to get the most pleasure out of every hour, every day. To this end one of the greatest helps is a pair of active feet in shoes that are comfortable and natural.

When your shoes hold your feet rigid, cramping the bones and foot muscles and nagging your nerves, the spirit may be willing but the flesh is weak. In Cantilever Shoes you enjoy the buoyant support of flexible, snug-fitting arches. Your foot can relax and function naturally, building up strength through exercise in this naturally shaped, free-flexing shoe.

How lightly and easily you step along in Cantilevers. They encourage you to walk and be active because they are in perfect harmony with the feet. It is wonderful to wear shoes that work with your feet instead of against them.

This spring would be a fine time for you to learn the joy of Cantilever comfort and flexibility. There is a tempting variety of attractive new styles, pumps in pleasing designs and trim oxfords that are light in weight and gracefully shaped. Any of the stores listed below will be glad to show you the new Cantilever styles.

Widths, AAAA to E. Oxfords, $10.00 and $10.50. Pumps, $10.50 to $13.00. High Shoes, $11.75.

DISPUTED RYDER ART RETURNED TO COOKE

His Counsel Deposits $20,000 Bond With Sheriff—Case of Mistaken Identity, He Says.

CANVAS LOST WHEN LENT

'The Barnyard' Vanished From Box Sent Here by Phillips Gallery in 1920—Called Genuine by Expert.

Wilbur J. Cooke, formerly of Philadelphia, who was married in 1916 to Mrs. John S. Huyler, widow of the millionaire candy manufacturer and who now lives at the Dakota, 1 West Seventy-second Street, recovered possession yesterday of the painting "The Barnyard," by Albert Pinkham Ryder, after his attorney, John D. Beals, deposited in the Sheriff's office a bond of $20,000 to indemnify the Sheriff for releasing it.

Inquiries, however, revealed that when the replevin suit brought by the Phillips Memorial Gallery of Washington to recover the painting, valued at $10,000, is tried, interesting revelations are likely to be made, although neither Sullivan & Cromwell, counsel for the Phillips Gallery, nor Mr. Beals would disclose the nature of their evidence. "I think it is purely a case of mistaken identity," said Mr. Beals.

The story of the loss of the Ryder owned by the Phillips Gallery and of the appearance of the painting now claimed by Mr. Cooke was told, however, and it will be to some extent the basis of the proof at the trial. The painting was bought by M. Knoedler & Co. at the sale of the Ichabod Williams collection in 1915. It was held by the art firm until 1919, when Duncan Phillips bought it for the gallery established by him and his mother in Washington in memory of his father Major Duncan Phillips.

The Ryder painting, with several other masterpieces from the gallery, was lent in 1920 by Mr. Phillips for an exhibit of American art at the Century Club in New York, and was sent to be packed for shipment to New York. When the box containing the Phillips paintings reached here "The Barnyard" was missing. Detectives were employed, but no trace of the picture could be obtained. Mr. Phillips finally offered a reward of $500 for information leading to its recovery. Nothing was heard of it until April 9, last.

Mr. Cooke took a painting a few days ago to an artist for an opinion as to its genuineness. Since it was a Ryder, the artist then carried the picture to Frederic Fairchild Sherman of 28 East Eighty-fifth Street, publisher of Art in America, author of a recent biography of Mr. Ryder and the best-known authority in this country on this painter's works. Mr. Sherman declared at once that it was the missing Ryder sought six years by the Phillips Gallery, and notified the gallery to that effect. Mr. Cooke, on the other hand, insisted that the painting had belonged to his mother and had been in his family since 1911. Mr. Cooke then took the painting away, and when notified that it would be the subject of litigation delivered it to his attorney, where it was seized by the Sheriff on Friday.

It was asserted yesterday that the painting in question still bears several "key numbers" placed on it while it was in the Knoedler Gallery and that photographs taken of it recently resemble replicas made years ago. It was also asserted in behalf of the Phillips Gallery that other evidence makes it beyond question the missing Ryder.

In behalf of Mr. Cooke it was said that Mr. Ryder, who died in 1917, painted many canvases similar to "The Barnyard," and that a half dozen of them had been taken to the Phillips Gallery in the belief that each was the missing picture.

Mr. Sherman was out of the city yesterday, but a representative said that Ryder painted no other canvas similar to "The Barnyard." "Mr. Sherman is convinced that this is the painting lost by the Phillips Gallery," said his representative.

YALE PROFESSOR FOR HAWAII

Herbert E. Gregory to Be Director of the Bishop Museum.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 17.—Closer cooperation between Yale University and the Bishop Museum of Honolulu has been made possible by a new arrangement under which a Yale professor will spend his full time in Hawaii as director of the museum.

Professor Herbert E. Gregory of the Yale Geology Department, who has spent half of each year in Honolulu at the head of the museum, will for the next three years devote all his time to directing its activities. In addition, Yale will continue to provide four fellowships for advanced students at the museum who are interested in the natural history and ethnology of the Pacific regions.

The Bernice P. Bishop Museum is an affiliated part of Yale University, and is the only institution devoting its energies solely to a study of Pacific islands. Its chief attention has been given to the native races, whose numbers have decreased by 75 per cent. since 1870. The museum is aided in this task by the fact that it was founded and endowed in memory of a royal princess of Polynesian blood, and is regarded by the natives as a place where things relating to the customs and history of the races in their primitive condition will be recorded and preserved.

The studies entered upon by Yale and the Bishop Museum have led to the discovery of ruins of great antiquity in the Mariana Islands, between Hawaii and the Philippines, which scientists declare indicate a vanished civilization in the Pacific comparable to that of the ancient mainland.

HONORS LATE DR. KOHLER.

Mrs. Frankel Gives Prayer-Book to Jewish College in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, April 17.—A prayer-book of Jewish liturgy, printed on vellum in Mantua in 1528, was presented to the library of the Hebrew Union College here today by Mrs. Simon Fra kel of New York, in memory of Dr. Kaufmann Kohler, who was for many years President of the college.

The gift was one of the features of a Kaufmann Kohler memorial service held in the college chapel today. The Sisterhood of Temple Beth-El of New York, of which Mrs. Leopold Plaut is President, presented a beautiful "Ner Tamid," perpetual lamp, to the chapel, as a memorial to Dr. Kohler. The principal speaker was Rabbi Morris Lazaron of Baltimore, of the class of 1914, who was a friend and pupil of Dr. Kohler.

In his address Rabbi Lazaron called Dr. Kohler "the last of the giants" and discussed many of the ideas, writings and opinions of the late scholar, particularly his viewpoints on evolution and Zionism.

SEEK WHITE FOX FURS WITH IRIDESCENT TIPS

Hudson Bay Company to Establish Post Near the Magnetic Pole.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 17 (AP).—Upon the shores of Boothia Peninsula, as close as it is possible to get to the magnetic pole, the Hudson Bay Company's ship Baymaud, formerly the Maud, in which Roald Amundsen had hoped to drift across the North Pole a few years ago, will establish a fur trading post this year to obtain some of the famous iridescent-tipped white fox furs, samples of which came out last year.

Several islands northwest of Boothia Peninsula are reported to have these foxes, which are very valuable. It is the intention of the company to leave the Baymaud in the Arctic all next Winter and she may end her days in the waters where Amundsen intended she should operate when he built her.

Definite planting of the British flag on all Canadian islands touched by the Baymaud also will be a feature of the trip.

FOUR WOMEN HONORED.

Park Trees Dedicated in Recognition of Their Services.

Four trees were dedicated in the Honor Grove in Central Park yesterday afternoon "in recognition of national and international patriotic and humanitarian services" rendered by four prominent women. The women thus honored were Mrs. Algernon Sydney Sullivan, Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton, Mrs. Frank E. Wise and Mrs. John Kurrus.

Mrs. William Albert Lewis, founder of the Honor Grove, who was in charge of the ceremony, introduced several speakers after Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin had given a brief address of welcome to the 200 who attended the dedication. Among the speakers were Dr. George Alexander, Senator Howard P. Bayne and Dr. Paul Karovitch, Serbian Consul, and Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell of Labrador, who spoke of Dr. Morton's war work. Delegations from the Women's Overseas League, the Medical Society of New York, the United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Virginia Society were also attendance.

After the dedication Mrs. Angelique V. Orr of the Relief for the Aged and Mrs. William Albert Lewis expressed their appreciation for two stone benches placed in their honor along the walk that approaches the Honor Grove.

BIG ROBBERY PLOT REVEALED BY NOTE

Plans for $500,000 Theft in St. Paul Contained in Letter Found on Prisoner.

WARNING SENT TO THAT CITY

Arrested on the charge of stealing several thousand dollars' worth of silk gowns from a Broadway shop, Joseph Stern, 32 years old, of 116 West Seventy-second Street, was found yesterday to have a letter in his pocket giving plans for a $500,000 fur robbery. The letter had been sent to Stern from St. Paul, Minn., and informed Stern that he could "declare himself in" if he wished to, on the fur robbery.

Detectives said they were unable to tell from the letter where the robbery was to have been committed and when, although they assumed that it was to be in St. Paul in the near future. They notified the St. Paul police to be alert. The letter was not signed.

"Who is this letter from?" Inspector John D. Coughlin asked Stern in the line-up at Police Headquarters.

"A friend I met a couple of months ago," the prisoner replied.

"Were you going on the job?"

"I don't know anything about it," Stern protested. "I just got the letter, and it doesn't say much, so I can't tell you about it."

Detectives Horan and Maloney of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station found Stern at Seventy-second Street and Columbus Avenue early yesterday. He fled, but the detectives chased him and caught him at Broadway and Seventy-second Street. They drew their pistols but did not have to fire a shot. Stern was unarmed.

The police said Stern answered the description of a man who robbed the dress shop of Lillian Sloane, at 2,137 Broadway, on April 10. The burglar who robbed the shop hacked a small hole through the floor of a loft over the store. Then he shoved an umbrella through the hole, opened the umbrella and held it upside down under the hole to catch falling bits of plaster, to prevent noise and detection, while he enlarged the hole so as to let his body through. Then he pulled silk gowns from showcases, hoisted them up through the hole, and pulled himself up after them.

TRUCK KILLS A WOMAN; SIX NUNS HURT IN AUTO

Sisters in Car Hurled Down an Embankment—Taxi Hits Push-carts, Injuring Six.

Mrs. Mary Kubland, 60 years old, of 477 Pearl Street was killed yesterday morning when she was struck by a motor truck at Park Row and Pearl Street. The driver, Charles Bartels, 52 years old, of 341 Rivington Street was held by Magistrate Henry M. R. Goodman in the Essex Market Court in $5,000 bail for a hearing in the Homicide Court on Wednesday.

Three men and three women were slightly injured shortly before noon when a taxicab crashed into a row of peddlers' carts at Mott and Broome Streets after the taxicab was alleged to have been rammed from behind by a motor truck. Of the injured the men and one women were grouped about a cart and two women were passengers in the taxicab, which was being driven by Louis Silverman of 307 Seventh Street.

Six sisters of the Order of St. Dominick were injured in the forenoon in an automobile accident on West Neck Road while returning from mass at St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church in Huntington, L. I., to their retreat on Rosemary Farm, in Great Neck. An automobile station wagon, in which they were riding, was overturned and thrown down a six-foot embankment when hit by an automobile which attempted to pass.

Max Eder, driver of the station wagon, was uninjured. With the aid of passing motorists he took the sisters to the Huntington Hospital. The most seriously injured was Sister Mary Placida, who had an arm broken. Sisters Leandra, Panoratia, Cortona, Valentine and Henrica were bruised and cut but not seriously hurt.

J. M. Petit, employed on the Marshall Field estate, was driving the other car.

GIRL SCOUTS HOLD 10TH SPRING REVIEW

Golden Eaglets, Most Coveted Prizes, Awarded to Misses Harvey and Jacoff.

3,500 IN THE PAGEANT

Troop 160 Wins Commissioner's Cup at Annual Gathering Held at 7th Regiment Armory.

More than 3,500 scouts attended the tenth annual Spring review of the Manhattan Council of Girl Scouts at the Seventh Regiment Armory, Sixty-sixth Street and Park Avenue, yesterday afternoon. The program included presentations of awards that have been won during the past year, and exhibition work of the Scouts, gymnastics, games, folk dances and songs and the first appearance in public of the Bonnell Band, which was organized recently under the patronage of William A. Bonnell.

Two golden eaglets, the highest prize in the organization, were awarded. The winners were Lieutenant Maxine Harvey and Lieutenant Ida Jacoff. A letter of commendation and twenty-one other awards must be received before a Scout can qualify for a golden eaglet. Mrs. Arthur O. Choate, national Second Vice President, made these awards.

The Bonnell award for proficiency in campcraft, given by William A. Bonnell, was presented to Capt. Claire E. Galston, First Lieutenants Betty Doherty, Maxine Harvey, Margaret MacDonald; Second Lieutenants Helen Bed, Florence Doerling, Clara Lundberg; and Scout Sadie Maiman. Helen Menets and Sarah Silverstein. Letters of commendation in recognition of interpreting the Girl Scout laws in their everyday life, were awarded to Captains Louise Indermuhle, Naomi Kerner, Mollie Meisael, Roberta Risch; Second Lieutenants Priscilla DeMille, Florence Doering, Clara Lundberg and Scout Victoria Ward.

The Commissioner's Cup, won by the troop winning the most points during the Winter season—special emphasis was laid on home service—was awarded to Troop 160, Capt. Gertrude Green affiliated with Christadora House. Troop 80, Captain Wilhelmina Oetjen, affiliated with P. S. 188 G, and Troop 40, Captain Stanger, affiliated with P. S. 152, won second and third places respectively.

Five received gold stripes for ten years' service in scouting. They were Mrs. Arthur Osgood Choate, Miss Cora Nelson, Miss Caroline Lewis, Miss Naomi Kerner and Miss Olive Brower. The presentation was made by Mrs. Louis Guerineau Myers, Commissioner.

Among those in the reviewing stand were Mrs. Lyman Delano, Mrs. Arthur O. Choate, Mrs. Walter Rothschild, Mrs. George Pratt, Mrs. B. Tappin Fairchild, Miss Elizabeth Baker, Chicago Commissioner; Major Arthur W. Proctor, Miss Caroline Lewis, Captain Beard of the Boy Scouts, Miss Cora Nelson, Mrs. William Bonnell, Mrs. Harold Gile, Mrs. J. J. Daggett, Miss Constance Cutler, Miss Marjorie Westcott, Dr. Benjamin Hyde, Miss Jennie Hunter, Mrs. Anna Taylor Jones, Dr. Faneuil S. Weisse, Louis C. Myers, V. Everit Macy, Robert G. Mead, Edgar Park, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chadbourne, Mrs. Archibald Douglas, Frederick White of the Boy Scouts and members of the Council.

Woman's Slayer Sentenced.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., April 17.—Ralph Costello, 19 years old, of 385 Harrison Street, Passaic, N. J., pleaded non vult today before Supreme Court Justice Charles C. Black, in Paterson, to an indictment charging him with the murder, on March 21, of Mrs. Catherine Clowrey, 64 years old, of Paterson. He was sentenced at once to serve from twenty to thirty years in prison. It was stated that Costello took Mrs. Clowrey's pocketbook in her hand while she was making a purchase at the back door of a Paterson café, followed her and struck her down. There was only $4 in her pocketbook.

Maiden Lane Historical Society Observes City Tercentenary—Irving Tablet Dedicated.

The 300th anniversary of the purchase of Manhattan Island from the Indians for the equivalent in Dutch guilders of $24 was celebrated yesterday afternoon by the Maiden Lane Historical Society at the State Chamber of Commerce, 65 Liberty Street, with the dedication of a memorial tablet destined to mark the birthplace of Washington Irving, 131 William Street. The tablet will be affixed to the Golden Hill Building on the northwest corner of John and William Streets early in September.

Albert Ullman, Secretary of the Historical Society, in his talk on Washington Irving said the tablet was not only to commemorate the birthplace of the "father of our literature" but also the Battle of Golden Hill, which took place near by, and which, he said, marked the "first bloodshed of the American Revolution."

Following the opening address of John W. Sherwood, President of the society, Arthur Guiterman, author of light verse, read a poem in which Irving was referred to as "the merry, earnest, unpretentious scholar," and the biographer of Goldsmith, Washington, Mahomet and Columbus. Prior to reading his poem, Mr. Guiterman expressed objection to the "publicity New England cornered" relative to the War for Independence. "New York," he said, "had a tea party even as Boston, but with a salient difference. Whereas Boston made a lot of hub-bub about hers and flung the offending tea into the harbor, New York merely advised a certain captain to carry his cargo of tea back to his home port."

Mr. Guiterman told how Emerson, Longfellow, Lowell and Whittier were lauded to the skies as pioneers in our literature, while Irving, James Fenimore Cooper and Edgar Allan Poe, all of them primarily New Yorkers, were unfairly cast into shadow by the New England giants.

George S. Hellman, author of "Washington Irving, Esq.," said the creator of Rip Van Winkle was an anomaly in the Puritanical and Calvinistic atmosphere of Colonial days. As a boy Washington Irving was quite indolent, he said. He described how the adolescent Irving used to slip out of bed and climb from his home by way of a shed in time to attend the only theatre then open in New York. He mentioned the contemporary uproar caused by Irving's "Salmagundi" and "Knickerbocker History," both of which seemed irreverent to many New Yorkers of the time.

Mrs. Henry V. D. Black, Chairman of the committee that is planning an Irving memorial at Irvington-on-Hudson, said that the memorial would consist of a bronze bust of the author set on granite, flanked by statues of Boabdil, last King of Granada, and Rip Van Winkle. Of the $30,000 necessary for the monument, $21,000 has been raised. "If King Alfonso of Spain visits America next Summer, he will be invited to Irvington to see Sunnyside, the home of Irving, our early Minister to Spain," said Mrs. Black.

Mrs. Catherine Parker Clivette, President of the Greenwich Village Historical Society, commended on the diversity of people who have lived on Manhattan Island. Three hundred guests were present, including Major George H. Putnam, Dr. George F. Kunz, President of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society; A. T. Wall, librarian of the New York Historical Society; Captain William J. Pedrick, Vice President of the Fifth Avenue Association, and Captain W. B. Gibbs, Vice President of the Thirty-fourth Street-Midtown Association and editor of Little Old New York.

SAYS VACCINES REDUCE PNEUMONIA DEATHS

South African Bacteriologist Tells of Combating Disease Among Natives.

The successful use of vaccines against tuberculosis and pneumonia among natives of South Africa was described by Sir Spencer Lester, research bacteriologist for the Institute for Medical Research at Johannesburg, who arrived on the Berengaria yesterday. He said he had come to study the work done by the Rockefeller Institute in developing vaccines and serums.

The Institute for Medical Research with which he is connected has concentrated upon a study of pneumonia and tuberculosis since its organization in 1914, according to Sir Spencer.

"We have 100,000 natives employed in the mines in and around Johannesburg," he said, "and the mortality among them from pneumonia and tuberculosis was very high. We have reduced the mortality from pneumonia 60 per cent. since 1918. We are fighting tuberculosis by preventive methods. Among the miners it is caused chiefly by silica dust which irritates the lungs and makes them more vulnerable to tuberculosis germs. We are now employing devices to keep silica dust down as much as possible."

Sir Spencer expressed the belief that the death rate in New York might have been materially reduced in the last year by the use of vaccine against pneumonia.

R. B. Mellon, President of the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh and brother of Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, returned with his wife and their daughter, Miss Sarah Mellon, from a Mediterranean cruise.

TOWN FACES TAX DILEMMA.

Forgot That Area Deeded for Park Was $150,000 in Arrears.

It developed yesterday that the City of Mount Vernon, in deeding four and one-half acres of lowland near Sixth Street to the Westchester County Park Commission for $1, forgot all about back taxes on the property, covering fifty years and aggregating $150,000.

The city took possession of the property for back taxes, and now the Aldermen will have to make provision in the budget next year to take care of the taxes. Bonds which had been issued to cover the taxes each year will have to be marked off on the profit and loss account.

No one would buy the land because of its swampy condition, so it was decided to turn it over to the Park Commission and let it improve the tract at the county's expense.

Three Are Ordained Deacons.

Three young men, all members of the graduating class of the General Theological Seminary, were ordained deacons of the Episcopal Church yesterday morning in the Church of the Incarnation, Madison Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street. The candidates were Jesse Herbert Smith of Independence, Kan.; Ernest Victor Kennan of Chicago, and Henry Scott Rubel of Milwaukee. The Right Rev. David L. Ferris, Bishop Coadjutor of Western New York, officiated.

BOYS, THE OLDEST 15, ADMIT 10 ROBBERIES

Schooled in Crime by Chauffeur, They Say—Alleged Tutor Is Also Held.

MAY CLEAR UP 300 THEFTS

Charged with being the teacher and ringleader of a band of young robbers who have operated in Jamaica lately, Leslie Hahr, 26 yearsold, a chauffeur, of 28 Humboldt Street, Jamaica, was arrested yesterday morning at his home by Detectives O'Brien and Flattery. It is alleged that under the tutelage of Hahr boys from 10 to 14 years old have been robbing stores in Jamaica for the last two months.

The detectives saw five boys at 5 o'clock yesterday morning at Rockaway Road and Liberty Avenue, Jamaica. When they questioned them the boys could give no satisfactory explanation of their being out so early. Two of the boys fled when the detectives started to take them to the station. The boys detained are:

Benjamin Rogwhsky, 15, of 150 South Street; Michael Bratanietwiez, 13, of 23 Elm Street, and Chester Krempe, 13, of 43 Bandman Avenue, all of Jamaica. Rogwhsky, the police said, had a .45 calibre automatic pistol in his possession.

From information gained by questioning the boys the detectives went to the home of Hahr and found a moving van in front of the house. Search of the van revealed many articles alleged to have been stolen from neighboring stores in the past few months. Hahr denied that charge.

Detectives said that, according to the stories of the boys, Hahr had instructed them in the finer points of holding up stores as well as thefts while under the guise of making purchases.

The boys are said to have confessed to robbing ten stores in Jamaica since March 23, and they are also said to have given information which may lead to the clearing up of more than 300 listed robberies.

The latter were supposed to have been committed by boys, due to the fact that in every instance gaudy trinkets, candy and things especially attractive to youngsters were the only things taken.

The gang showed no partiality in the type of stores they had visited, but robbed indiscriminately barber shops, hat stores, garages, bakeries and others of every conceivable variety. The boys presented a bold front when questioned by detectives, seeming to take considerable pleasure in recounting their exploits.

Hahr will be arraigned tomorrow on a charge of receiving stolen goods. The boys will be arraigned in Children's Court on Tuesday. Meantime they probably will be taken to the Children's Society Shelter in Brooklyn.

LOST SPANISH FLIERS ARE FOUND IN DESERT

Estevez and Mechanic Had Wandered Forty Miles From Their Machine After Forced Landing.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAIRO, April 17.—Captain Estevez, lost Spanish airman, and his mechanic, Calvo, have been found by British airmen on the road to Amman. They had covered forty-four miles afoot.

A further message from Amman reports the condition of Captain Estevez as "fairly good," though he must be suffering severely from exhaustion and lack of water and provisions. Details are not obtainable.

A later message said that the mechanic was in a deplorably exhausted condition, and had been taken by plane to a camp set up by the rescuers.

The messages indicate that the air pilot and his mechanic had wandered apart in the desert. The captain was found first, and he could give no clue as to where the mechanic might be. The search was continued and the mechanic located later.

CAIRO, April 17 (AP).—Captain Estevez was found by Flying Officer Coghill, of the British Royal Air Force, forty miles from his abandoned machine. His feet were blistered, but otherwise his condition was said to be fair. He was taken by airplane to the nearest medical station.

The British are at loss to explain how the airmen subsisted during the long period between their forced landing last Sunday and their rescue.

Early dispatches reporting the finding of the plane of Estevez said it was deserted about 100 miles from Amman, in the Syrian desert. A note attached to it said Estevez and Mechanician Calvo were walking to Amman, which is in Palestine on the east bank of the Jordan River, about fifty-five miles northeast of Jerusalem.

Estevez was on a leg of the Spain-Manilla flight from Cairo to Bagdad, and was about one-third the distance when forced to come down.

READING COLLIERY BURNS.

Loss is Estimated at $500,000—Company Employed 950 Men.

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., April 17 (AP).—The Alaska colliery, employing 950 men, was destroyed by fire here tonight, entailing a loss estimated unofficially at about $500,000.

The colliery, comparatively new, was one of the largest in this section of the anthracite region, and was owned by the Reading Company. Officials said tonight they were unable to explain the cause of the fire pending an investigation.

Breaking out shortly before 8 o'clock, the flames had wrecked the structure within two hours. A night watchman who discovered the fire said there had been no explosion.

Since the resumption of hard coal mining after the long strike, the colliery had been operating at about normal capacity.

Sees Politics in the Move and Says Function of Board Is One for Public-Spirited Citizens.

Dissatisfaction with the status of the $1,650,000 Police Relief Fund was expressed yesterday by R. A. C. Smith, former President of the fund, in a printed "communication" which he sent to former trustees and other citizens who in 1924 aided in the organization of the project for the financial relief of policemen, their widows, orphans and dependents. Mr. Smith, an Honorary Police Commissioner in the Enright administration, complains that no President has been named since, at the request of Police Commissioner McLaughlin last February, the Board of Trustees was cut down from thirty to ten and the membership was confined to city officials, including Mayor Walker, the Police Commissioner and the heads of the several policemen's benevolent organizations.

He adds that thus far no demand has been made on him for the resources of the fund, $1,650,000 in Liberty bonds, and announces that those who aided in the gathering of money for the fund are "surprised" that Commissioner McLaughlin should cause a bill to be introduced this year in the Legislature amending the law under which the fund was chartered in 1924, although former Supreme Court Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, one of the thirty trustees who resigned at Mr. McLaughlin's request last February, had explained to the Commissioner that such legislation was unnecessary, the constitution of the organization empowering the change in the number and character of the trustees, as had been done at the February meeting.

Sees Political Reasons.

"As I stated previously," Mr. Smith's communication goes on, "the fund is barely one year and a half old when, for what seems to be only political reasons, changes are made which in the opinion of those who have made a study of the matter defeats the purpose for which the fund as constituted was created. The purpose of the elective membership of public spirited citizens, together with the ex-officio membership, was a strong union, and it has received the support of all classes of citizens."

Mr. Smith begins the communication with the statement that he feels those citizens who formerly were identified with the fund should "be completely informed and the history of the Police Relief Fund be made clear." Mr. Smith continues:

"Here in April, 1926, a report of the income and expenditures for the first quarter of 1926, should now be ready for distribution, but as I am no longer the President or member of the body controlling the fund, that report for the period will have to come from somewhere other than this office."

Then he discloses the minutes of the meeting of the old trustees, held in Commissioner McLaughlin's office in Police Headquarters on Jan. 29 last, which contained this paragraph: "Police Commissioner McLaughlin stated that in his opinion the present form of the organization was not a proper one, as control of the fund should be vested in the hands of city officials and the men of the department, and not in the control of people outside the department. After discussion, all members present and represented by proxy voted in favor thereof."

Tells of Disapproval.

Referring to the law passed by the Legislature in 1924, which gave the fund legal status, and telling of the disapproval by several of the old trustees of the project of Commissioner McLaughlin to have it amended by legislation to confine control of the fund to city officials and police organization heads, Mr. Smith said:

"The act had been created for the specific purpose of including in its membership and management public-spirited citizens who were not affected by political changes and who would work with any Mayor or Police Commissioner as well as the officers of the Police Department. However, it was decided that if the present Administration, expressing its views through the Police Commissioner, desired to administer a fund of this importance to the families of the members of the police force, we, as citizens, with proper spirit, should give them our assistance. We insisted, however, that whatever change took place should be in a legal manner by which to relieve the trustees and officers from further responsibility in the administration of this fund, and in consonance with that spirit Judge O'Brien's firm rendered an opinion to the Police Commissioner.

"The action at the meeting of Feb. 25, 1926, amended Section 1, Article I of the Constitution, and changes the character of the membership by eliminating any one but city officials and placing the control of the fund entirely in the hands of ex-officio members, to wit: The Mayor, Police Commissioner, the same representatives of the uniformed force as provided in the present existing act, and in addition thereto the Controller and the President of the Board of Aldermen.

"Notwithstanding all this and to the surprise of many, Commissioner McLaughlin has sponsored a bill in the Legislature to amend Chapter 572 of the Laws of 1924, which is the present incorporated Police Relief Fund, contrary to the understanding reached between the officers and members as above stated."

Commenting on published reference to the amendment as a "ripper measure," Mr. Smith declares:

"This is a good title because it tears apart an organization of public spirited citizens who in conjunction with city officials and representatives of the uniformed force were functioning as a corporate body."

Mr. Smith declares it would be "effrontery" for anybody to suggest that the funds would not be properly handled by Mayor Walker, Commissioner McLaughlin and others on the new Board of Trustees, but he insists that the many duties of these officials will prevent them from giving their personal attention to the fund.

"Is it fair to ask them to give their personal attention to this fund, which, after all, is a matter properly belonging to the lay citizens rather than to elected officials?" he asks.

RICKENBACKERS ADOPT 16-MONTHS-OLD BOY

American Ace and Wife Took Child Into Home in Feb. 1925 —Named David Ledward.

The adoption by Major Edward V. Rickenbacker, noted American ace and Detroit automobile manufacturer, and his wife, Adelaide A. Rickenbacker, of a 16-months-old boy was disclosed yesterday when an order of Surrogate Foley permitting the adoption was filed in the County Clerk's office. The boy, who was christened Martin Henry Stephens, will be known hereafter as David Ledward Rickenbacker.

The petition of Mr. Rickenbacker and his wife, who was the divorced wife of S. C. Durant, an automobile manufacturer, when she married the aviator at Greenwich, Conn., on Sept. 16, 1922, was sealed, and the only facts concerning the boy who is to be the heir to the Rickenbacker fortune were contained in the court order. It is known that Mr. Rickenbacker said that as the organizer of the Rickenbacker Motor Company and its Vice President he is amply able to provide for the boy, and agrees to support and rea. him as he would his own child.

The order also discloses that the boy was born Jan. 4, 1925, but that both the child and the mother were abandoned by his father, and he was then given to the care of the Alice Chapin Adoption Nursery of 2,100 Lexington Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Rickenbacker took the infant into their home at 8,120 East Jefferson Avenue, Detroit, on Feb. 8, 1925, and thereafter became greatly attached to him and decided on the adoption. The proceedings before the surrogate were based on an agreement entered into between Mr. and Mrs. Rickenbacker and the adoption nursery, but the order cites that the parties presented the "substantial consents" required by law.

Mr. Rickenbacker went to France as chauffeur for General Pershing, and at his own request was transferred to the Air Service. He received the D. S. C. with nine palms and the Croix de Guerre with four palms, and retired as a Major to go into business.

CRITICIZES OUR FARMERS.

Conference Board Says They Fail to Restore Minerals to the Land.

As an agriculturist the American farmer is a pretty good miner, according to a statement issued yesterday by the National Industrial Conference Board.

The board asserted that the mineral in American farm land as a whole was being absorbed into the crops without replacement by the farmer in the form of fertilizer. As a result European farmers, whose land had been cultivated centuries longer than ours, were getting larger crops per acre than we, because they were not satisfied with "agricultural mining" but replaced the minerals their crops absorb.

The report points out that, while 9,000,000 tons of nitrogen a year are required for American farm lands only 5,450,000 tons are used, 3,500,000 tons of which are supplied by the farms themselves.

NEEDS MORE MONEY TO HANDLE ALIENS

Immigration Service Inadequate for Lack of Cash and Men, Says W. J. Coyne.

INSPECTORS ASK RAISE

Through bills recently introduced in both Houses of Congress, immigration inspectors are seeking increases in salaries "for the good of the service," according to a statement just made public by William J. Coyne, President of the United States Immigration Inspectors' Association of New York.

With a view to "justification of the measure," the association has prepared a comparative table of salaries paid to officers engaged in law enforcement, in the Bureau of Investigation, the Department of Justice, and in the Customs, Internal Revenue, Postal and Prohibition services. The table shows 14 principal customs agents receiving yearly an average of $4,128; 168 post-office inspectors, $4,000; 11 Department of Justice investigators, $3,964; 5 Prohibition agents and inspectors, $3,920; 210 Internal Revenue agents, $3,914; while the eight highest-salaried immigration inspectors average but $3,362 a year.

"No one better than ourselves realizes the futility of the wisest immigration laws unless enforcement of such laws is placed in the hands of thoroughly competent and trustworthy officials," President Coyne said. "It is obvious, however, that unless remedial legislation, as regards salaries, is enacted in the very near future, acquisition and retention in the service of such competent officers will become more and more difficult."

The statement emphasizes the difficulties under which immigration officers must work, pointing out that while they try to keep out the criminal, immoral and otherwise undesirable element, they must constantly endeavor to administer the law in the most humane manner consistent with the circumstances. Immigration officials, the statement avers, are often called upon to exercise careful judgment, realizing that upon their manner of enforcing the law may depend "the weal or woe of a multitude of human beings."

No Added Tax Burden.

An increase in the salaries of immigration employes would require no added burden to the taxpayer, President Coyne points out, adding that it is consistent with the policy of "constructive economy" sponsored by President Coolidge. "On the contrary," he says, "we believe that even a more efficacious remedy for the treatment of our aggravated immigration problem may be found in the employment of a more adequate machinery to effectively enforce laws already on the statute books.

"The appropriations for the regulation of immigration have for many years been woefully insufficient for the maintenance of such machinery. As a result we find now a great number of inadmissible aliens who have filtered through our defective sieve.

"The wholesale smuggling operations and other violations of the immigration laws, of which we hear so much at this time, have, in our opinion, been largely encouraged by the common knowledge as to the weakness of our law-enforcing machinery, which is entirely due to lack of men and means. The unwholesome effect of a feebly enforced immigration law, the first manifestation of the authority of our Government which the incoming aliens encounter, cannot be overestimated. As the first impression is usually a lasting one, it cannot help but influence the newcomer in the formation of harmful views of our laws and institutions. The situation has also had a disheartening effect upon the officers concerned."

Enormous sums are spent by State and municipal Governments for the maintenance of indigent, diseased or criminal aliens, President Coyne says, many of whom entered this country surreptitiously. It is an open secret, he adds, that a great number of aliens are permitted to remain in the country because of lack of funds and adequate machinery to deport them.

Urgent Needs Admitted.

"That better salaries, elimination of overtime, except in emergencies, by providing adequate staffs, or else proper compensation for such overtime, are urgently needed in the interest of an efficient service is generally admitted," the statement continues. "The total absence of systematic promotions on merit is also to be greatly deplored. The only sustaining incentive for many of our men at the present time is the genuine interest taken in their work, which is singularly free from the ordinary governmental routine work. Another source of hardship which many of our men have endured in the past are the exigencies of the service which necessitate the transfer of officers from one station to another, especially to a foreign port, without due compensation for expenses involved in moving their families and household effects, not to mention the great inconvenience of breaking up well-established homes.

"The distressing regularity with which a shortage of the annual appropriation for the immigration service has occurred in the past has not only been responsible for our unsatisfactory standard of salaries, but also has been the prime cause for the periodical furloughs without pay with which the entire immigration force had to contend on several occasions in the past."

As a remedy for this situation the association advocates a separate item in the appropriation for salaries only. It also advocates an independent allotment for deportation purposes. Additional revenue to offset such appropriations may be obtained by imposing fines, as President Coyne indicates by saying:

"In some quarters an increase in the annual appropriation for the immigration service is not favored for the reason that the additional sum may be somewhat in excess of the total revenues derived from immigration sources. We believe that no governmental agency which is called upon to protect this country in time of war, or against crime, or against any other destructive or hostile elements, including objectionable aliens, should be deprived of the necessary funds for effective operation on the ground of insufficient revenues collected by such agency. Nevertheless, we maintain that even the issue of revenue can be satisfactorily met by an increase of the immigration head-tax and by the imposition of adequate fines in the cases of aliens who enter surreptitiously.
